AGRICULTURAL AND OTHER STATISTICS.

The surface of the county is gently undulating. The lands in the county north of the Arkansas gradually descend toward the river, and they are nearly all tillable. The estimate of prairie is 98 per cent; of timber, 2 per cent; of upland, 85 per cent; of bottom land, 15 per cent. The average width of the bottoms on the large streams is about two miles; the width of the timber belts nearly one-fourth of a mile. Good springs are abundant, and well-water is found at an average depth of twenty-five feet. The varieties of timber are ash, box elder, coffee bean, cottonwood, elm, hackberry and mulberry. Artificial forests are becoming quite abundant.

In 1878 Rice County had 29 acres in winter wheat; in 1880, 44,535. Spring wheat in 1872, 32 acres; in 1879, 8,873. Rye in 1872, 32 acres; in 1878, 2,285. Corn in 1872, 2,889 acres; in 1882, 64,303. Barley in 1872, 3 acres; in 1877, 2,244. Oats in 1872, 119 acres, in 1879, 9,544. Buckwheat in 1873, 4 acres; in 1881, 60. Irish potatoes in 1872, 49 acres; in 1880, 936. Sorghum in 1872, 29 acres; in 1882, 2,452. Broomcorn in 1874, 36 acres; in 1881, 2,425. Flax in 1874, 12 acres; in 1881, 221. In 1869, it had one acre in hemp; in 1881, 63. In 1881, it had 873 acres in rice corn; it had 6,223 sheep; in 1882, 9,890 sheep; in 1882, a wool clip of 14,830 pounds. The value of its slaughtered animals for 1882 was $87,631; of poultry and eggs marketed, $19,254; of horticultural products, $347; produce of market gardens, $1,692. It has returned 3,355 horses; 413 mules; 2,947 milch cows; 5,626 other cattle; 7,694 swine, Poland-China and Berkshire breeds are preferred.

Red May and Turkey varieties of wheat have the preference. Lamberton Bros., Lyons, report 112 acres of wheat, yielding 35 bushels per acre; Richard Early, 3½ acres, 60 bushels per acre.

In 1872 the taxable property of Rice County, as determined by the State Board of Equalization, was as follows:

Personal property	$ 47,900
1,905 Town Lots	13,308
54,680 acres of land	273,400

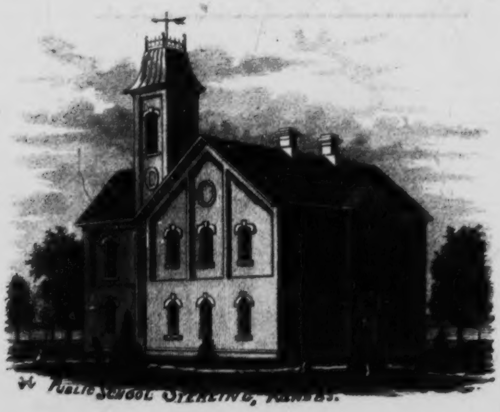
In 1875, the assessed value of the property in Rice County was established at $702,579.-88; in 1876, at $842,515.62; in 1877, at $886,459 06; in 1878, at $936,815.29; in 1879, at $1,109,841.26; in 1880, at $1,117,429.23; in 1881, at $1,253,897.92; in 1882, at $1,540,-673.44.

In 1870, there was a census return of five persons in Rice County; in 1875 there were 2,453; in 1880, 9,292, of whom 9,235 were white, of males 21 years of age and over, of colored there was 12; of foreign birth, 404; natives, 2041. The returns of the assessors of population for 1881 was 8,114; for 1882, it was 8,546.

STERLING.

In Sterling Township in May, 1872, William P. Edwards settled on Section 18, Township 21, Range 8, about three miles from Peace. At that time, what is now Sterling Township contained seven families, and on the town site of Peace A. G. Landis had his store building partly finished, which was the only trace of civilization. Rev. J. B. Schlicter was a clerk in the store of Mr. Landis. Mr. Edwards, in 1876, said: "We have now a schoolhouse on Section 18, and two weeks more of school will make a six months' school this season, with only one week's vacation, and this section has four families and twenty-two children living on it, and has furnished seventeen scholars from it who have been in regular attendance for the last term."



PUBLIC SCHOOL STERLING, KANSAS.

A prominent Friend, Rev. J. B. Schlicter, Congregationalist, and Rev. Thomas H. Watt, Wesleyan Methodist, were the locators of Peace.

April 18, 1876, at chambers, in the City of Marion Centre, Judge Samuel R. Peters issued a decree of court incorporating the City of Sterling, which decree was published in the Rice County Gazette, and which declared: "Said town of Peace, in the County of Rice and State of Kansas, incorporated as a city of the third class, under the name and style of The City of Sterling," and 'do hereby designate its metes and bounds as follows, to-wit: Section twenty-one (21) Township twenty-one (21) South, of Range eight (8) West, in Rice County, Kansas."

He ordered an election for city officers to be held in the office of "Reck's Cottage on May 10, designating J. L. Burwell, J. E. Davies and Patten Himrod as Judges; Kirk Himrod and J. H. Smith, Clerks; W. A. English, W. B. Hadlock and A. G. Landis as a Board of Canvassers. The officers elected were as follows: Councilmen, W. H. Lape, receiving 69 votes; E. B. Cowgill, 63; A. G. Landis, 58; W. H. Page, 39; Patten Himrod, 38; W. M. Lamb was elected Police Judge; J. S. Chapin, Mayor, each receiving 36 votes.

At the city election held April 2, 1883, R. F. Bond was elected Mayor; W. A. Thomas, Police Judge; J. G. Skiles, John De Ford, P. P. Truehart, J. C. Turner and D. S. Knouse, Councilmen. There were 224 votes polled.

When the name of this town was changed it was in honor of Sterling Rosan, one of its early settlers. The town of Sterling is 236 miles southwest of Atchison; 253 miles from Kansas City, and is a railroad station on the A., T. & S. F. R. R., of present and prospective great importance.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Ten years ago it could scarcely be called a hamlet. In 1880, its population was 1,014; in 1883, its estimated population is 1,500. Its business may be summarized in the spring of 1883, as follows: Three banks, two architects and builders, six grocery stores, three hardware stores, three jewelry and music stores, four dry goods stores, one furniture store, three hotels, one druggist, two shoe stores, and the ordinary supply of wagonmakers, blacksmiths, painters, carpenters, shoemakers, and other artisans found in a first-class village.

There is an elevator, known as the Davenport Elevator, built in 1878, by Dow, Hancock & Gilman, now (1883), run by Charles Arnold, the present proprietor.

There are two flouring mills; the Crystal Mills and Keystone Mills. Other industries.

Syrup Works.—Clements & Eustis, proprietors. In July, 1881, these works were built at a cost of $12,000, and opened in August. The daily capacity of the works is 2,000 gallons of syrup. The machinery is driven by a 50-horse power, the steam is supplied by two 100-horse power boilers, immense coils of steam pipe are used for heating the different tanks and pans used in the second and third stories of the building. The proprietors have raised a large portion of the cane they manufactured into syrup, and in 1883, intend planting 700 acres. In order to utilize the large amount of power that remains idle when the works are not running, the proprietors propose to put in a large amount of mill machinery, for the purpose of manufacturing flour.

Sugar Factory.—Reginald M. Sandys & Co., of New Orleans, have an extensive stone sugar factory, twenty-five feet in height, 40x130 feet. The cost of the building and machinery is some $40,000. The adaptability of the soil and climate of Central Kansas for the production of that kind of cane, susceptible of making an excellent quality of syrup, and also sugar has been placed beyond question. In 1882, Mr. A. J. Decker, a special agent of the United States Agricultural Department, visited Kansas, and in a letter bearing date, December 26, 1882, to Col. A. S. Johnson, Land Commissioner of the A., T. & S. F. R. R., he says:

"Replying to your request for information on the sorghum interest of the country, as to the success in the production of sugar, and the advantages of Kansas in producing this crop, I am pleased to answer:

That during the past year the obstacles in the way of making sugar from sorghum have been greatly overcome, manufacturers producing one thousand pounds of first quality dry sugar to the acre of cane with as much certainty as flour is produced from wheat.

As to the advantages of Kansas for growing sorghum, I find the soil and climate especially adapted to this crop. The planting season commences about the 1st of April, and continues until July, giving a working season of fully ninety days. The dry weather and almost constant sunshine of the fall season developes a juice testing from 10° B to 14° B, with an average above 12° B, while the average of the other States visited did not exceed an average of 9° B.

This advantage may be more plainly understood by a statement of the fact that 9° B requires ten gallons of juice for one gallon of syrup, juice testing 12° B, requiring less than six gallons.

And I have taken notes of the largest yield per acre, and find that J. W. Chapman, five and a half miles from Sterling, raised 67,500 pounds of sorghum on one acre, which is larger than any yield yet reported to me.

Another great advantage is the large quantity of seed and its quality. The amounts reported were from twenty to forty bushels to the acre, and sixty pounds per bushel. It was considered by most persons engaged in the business, that the seed was worth as much as it cost to raise the cane and deliver it at the mill.

Owing to the dry fall weather, again, the bagasse furnishes all needful fuel, nothing else being used. I was assured by the large factories that the cost of producing syrups was less than 20 cents per gallon.

With these natural advantages, and with the aid of the new developments in producing sugar from the sorghum, which I understand are to be applied in three of the largest factories in Kansas, this coming season of 1883, I am satisfied will show results far ahead of any yet shown. In the near future, Kansas can not fail to rank high as a sugar-producing State; and when these advantages become known, there will be a sugar boom in Kansas that will shake the entire country.

Mr. Sandys, the resident partner of Sandys & Co., a practical sugar manufacturer and chemist, regards this region of Kansas almost equal to Louisiana in producing cane, and is not subject to the calamities that so often and so destructively injure the crop in that State."

In the latter part of March, 1883, Mr. Sandys sold this establishment to Eastern parties, represented by P. H. Kellogg, of Boston, J. W. Langley, John Layman and M. A. Scoville, of Champaign, Ill. These purchasers expect to adapt the works to the manufacture of sugar from the sorghum syrup by the process that obtains at the Champaign works, and will put in additional machinery.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—ATLANTA TOWNSHIP.

DAVID AHLBERG, farmer, resides on Section 34, Township 19, Range 8, west, one and a half miles from Lyons, county seat of Rice County. He came to this place in August, 1871, has 160 acres of fine agricultural land, 140 acres of which is cultivated, he has had many hardships to contend with, while this county was new, first winter he lived here, one of his horses died, and the next spring, not being able to purchase another sold the remaining one for thirty acres breaking, paying $4 an acre, and he worked by the month the next summer to support his family; in 1873, he raised some spring wheat which was cradled, and to get it ground into flour had to take it to Salina, sixty miles. And in 1874, the grasshoppers came July 25th, and devoured his entire crop of corn, consisting of fifty acres, besides destroying his hedge and young fruit trees. But the following year he raised a large crop of fall wheat, which he sold in Ellsworth, thirty miles from here. And then in the spring 1879, they had one of the most terrible hail storms he ever witnessed, which played havoc with his eighty acre wheat field, and since then he has raised fair crops, in 1882, he raised 2,100 bushels corn, from seventy acres. But to-day he has one of the best farms in Rice County, he has his farm all hedged in, and has all varieties of fruit trees, and has raised peaches in great abundance since he has lived here, he is a very industrious and hard working man and whatever he makes up his mind to do he will accomplish or die in his efforts, he has never gone back on Kansas. He is a native of Sweden, born February 28, 1834. Came to America, 1857, and settled in Henry County, Ill., and married Miss Emma Mary Matilda Engstrum, a native of Sweden, in 1859. They have four children, Anna, Huldah, Emma and Grant.

Sunderland, of Woodford County, Ill. They have one daughter, Mary Elizabeth.

J. C. MCNAMES, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Chase, Section 22, Township 19, Range 9 west, came to his place December 20, 1870. It will readily be seen by the date of his settlement that he was one of the first settlers in Rice County. He took the third claim that was taken up in the county. Buffalo, antelope, deer and other wild animals roamed the unsettled plains almost entirely unmolested, save only by the dusky redskins, who were encamped to the number of 300 within a few rods of his then humble habitation. He frequently shot buffalo while standing in the door of his sod house, and killed one large buffalo within forty feet of his home. His nearest market and P. O. was Ellsworth, twenty-eight miles away. There were several Indian scares and troubles, but he was not obliged to leave. He was away fourteen miles from home at one time when the country was entirely new, when his horse kicked him on the leg, which broke it. He went home, crawled into the house, and a neighbor set the limb for him, which soon healed. He was born in Canada West, March 6, 1827, lived there on a farm until nineteen years old, and came to Ogle County, Ill., where he farmed and followed masonry until he came to Kansas. Married in 1860, to Fannie Davidson, a native of Iowa. They have one son, Duncan. He is a member of the Baptist Church; he has held several township offices, etc. He has a large, fine farm, suitable for agricultural purposes and stock-raising, with plenty of timber.

F. C. SHAW, farmer and stock raiser, Section 28, Township 19, Range 9, P. O. Chase. He first landed in Kansas, June 15, 1872. Rice County was then almost entirely unsettled. He has 160 acres of land, 100 of which is cultivated. In 1882 he raised 900 bushels of wheat, being an average of thirty bushels to the acre; corn made an average of twenty-five bushels to the acre. He was born in Penobscot County, Me., April 22, 1831, and lived in his native State twenty-four years and then moved to Rock County, Wis., where he followed painting and farming for eighteen months, thence to St. Charles County, Mo., and followed the same occupation until August, 1861, when he enlisted in Company D, First Illinois Cavalry, served one year and was captured by the enemy and was paroled, re-enlisted in Company F, and soon changed to Company B, Third Illinois Veteran Cavalry, participated in all the battles of his command, except the Nashville campaign under Gen. Thomas; he was mustered out September 20, 1865. He soon afterward went to Adair County, Mo., and followed farming until he came to Kansas. He was married in 1854, to Miss Mary J. Brown, a native of Maine. He was appointed Postmaster of Wildwood, Rice Co., Kan., in June, 1875, and held the office until December, 1881.

W. W. SPIERS, physician and surgeon and dealer in a general line of drugs, medicines, books and stationery, Chase, opened trade November 1, 1881, carries an average stock of $1,200. He first came to his farm on Section 24, Township 19, Range 10, in April, 1875. He has 320 acres of land, 150 cultivated. He has since practiced medicine, farmed, etc. He was born in Switzerland County, Ind., May 11, 1838, raised in his native State, and enlisted July 4, 1861, as a soldier, soon promoted to Hospital Steward, then Assistant Surgeon, Twenty-second Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry. He was a member of Company H, and participated in many battles, he was mustered out in November, 1865, as Assistant Surgeon, One Hundred and Second United States Colored Troops. He began the study of medicine in 1860, and graduated from the medical department of the Michigan University at Ann Arbor, in March, 1867. Began the practice of medicine in Little York, Ind., practiced in several counties in Indiana, and was married in 1868, to Miss Rebecca L. Hughes, of Jefferson County, Ind. They have five children—Nettie, Gertrude, Bruce E., Celeste and Arthur. The doctor and family are members of the Congregational Church of Chase. He is Examining Surgeon for pensions.

ROBERT D. STEPHENSON, farmer, school teacher, preacher and stock raiser, Section 14, Township 19, Range 9 west, P. O. Lyons. He came to this place October 26, 1871, there were but few settlers near him at the time. He helped husk the first corn raised in the county. There were droves of antelope, buffalo and deer to be seen on the plains within gun shot, which furnished the principal meat for some time. He has 160 acres of land, eighty-three of it cultivated, sixty fenced for pasture, the balance meadow, native grass. When he came first to Kansas he had to send to Ohio for seed grain and potatoes. He was born in Jackson County, Ohio, April 9, 1827, and was raised there. He enlisted September 8, 1862, in Company H, One Hundred and Seventeenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, he participated in all the duties required of him until April 9, 1863, when he was discharged on surgeon's certificate of disability (is a pensioner). In 1857 he was married to Miss Sarah J. Parks, of Scioto County, Ohio. They had six children—Mary Susan (a precocious child died, age two and half years), Lucina M., Johanna M., S. J. Luetta, Ida A. and Robert S. Stephenson. He again married June 11, 1878, to Mrs. Mary H. Case, a native of Canada. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Chase Circuit, Rice County, and he is local deacon of the same. He was elected County Superintendent of Public Instruction in the fall of 1872, and by re-election has served six years, he has held several township offices. When in Ohio he commenced teaching school off and on from 1848 until 1862. He preached three years, beginning in Burlington Circuit, Lawrence County, Ohio, September, 1854. He located in 1857. Traveled Berlin Circuit, Jackson County, Ohio, 1864, as a supply. His health not being sufficient he did not apply for re-admission to the Ohio Conference (although solicited to do so). He kept store in Jackson County, Ohio, from 1866 to 1870. Lived in Scioto County, Ohio, a part of 1871, and moved from Scioto County to Kansas. His live has been a "checkered" one—raised in the backwood. His father came from Virginia in 1819, settled on congress land. His father's library was a Bible and hymn book, and the library of Robert D. Stephenson, purchased by his father, was a primer, spelling book and testament. He went to school a few days several winters, in all fourteen months. His father said, "them that would make scholars would be scholars whether they went to school or not." He has been associated with the honorable and learned in the past, political social and moral. This way can only be passed once in life. He will and can not pass it again. The great future is before us, let us be ready to enter it with triumphal joy.

W. C. SUMMERS, farmer and stock raiser, Section 34, Township 19, Range 9, P. O. Chase, has 480 acres of land, 125 of which is cultivated. He makes stock raising a specialty. Came to this place in February, 1872. The country was then only a wild prairie, with not a habitation to be seen in any direction for miles. His nearest market was then Ellsworth, thirty-five miles north. There were no roads nor any guide of any kind. He was born in Mt. Sterling, Montgomery Co., Ky., November 14, 1830. Parents with their family moved to Putnam County, Ind., 1835, where he lived until he immigrated to Kansas. Enlisted November 12, 1861, Company C, Fifty-first Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and participated in all the battles of his command, and taken prisoner in a raid near Dalton. Discharged on account of disability contracted in service. Married, 1850, to Miss Mary Lake, a native of Indianapolis, Ind. They have eight children—Ethan B., Elisha L., Daniel T., Mollie F., William C., Sarah E., Laurel A. and Alvin. Has been member of School Board several years.

A. T. YEILDING, dealer in dry goods, groceries, hats, caps, boots, shoes and Yankee notions, Chase. He opened trade in Chase January 15, 1883; occupies a store 22x48 feet, and carries a general stock of $5,000. He came to Rice County, Kansas, November 19, 1873, and followed agricultural pursuits until he began trade. Born in Batavia, Genesee County, N. Y., 1845, where he lived until twelve years old, then went with parents to Finnimore Centre, Grant Co., Wis., where he farmed some time and followed merchandising seven years. Thence came to Kansas. Married, 1877, to Miss May Agnes Greenless, a native of Illinois. They have three children—Charlie, Richard, and a son not yet named. He has served as School District Clerk of his township seven years.

RAYMOND.

Raymond is a station eleven miles northwest of Sterling. Its name was in honor of Emmans Raymond, one of the Directors of the A., T. & S. Fe R. R. Company. This place is somewhat too near the thriving town of Sterling, on the east; the busy, active junction station of Ellinwood, six miles over in Barton County, and is in rather close proximity to Lyons and Chase, to grow rapidly, yet it is steadily gaining in wealth and population. Raymond Township, by the assessor's returns of 1882, had 620 people. The surrounding country is very well improved, and the cultivated farms are quite productive.

In 1882 he raised 600 bushels wheat, an average of thirty bushels per acre, 1,000 bushels of corn, an average of twenty-two bushels per acre. He was born in Meigs County, Ohio, January 3, 1843, family moved to Wayne County, Ill., 1852, where he was raised on a farm. Enlisted January 1, 1864, Company M, Fifth Illinois Cavalry. Was taken prisoner in a skirmish near Collierville, Tenn., but paroled very soon; he participated in all actions of his command. Mustered out 27th of October, 1865. He returned home and followed agricultural pursuits. Moved in 1870 to Mower County, Minn., farmed a year and came to Kansas. Married in 1864 to Miss Clarinda Phillips, of Monroe County, Ohio; they have one daughter—Ida E. Mr. Branch and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Greenbacker in politics.

JOHN B. CALDWELL, farmer, Section 11, Township 20, Range 9, Center Township, P. O. Lyons, has 160 acres of fine land. He came to this place in company with his parents November 23, 1876, and lived with his parents on the southeast quarter of Section 2, Township 20, Range 9, at which place he resides yet. He and his parents were born in Marshall County, W. Va. He was born in Marshall County, W. Va., November 20, 1858, and raised on a farm. He lived in his native place until he came to Kansas. He married February 18, 1880, Miss Nancy C. Wright, a native of Hamilton County, Ind.; they have one daughter—Cora M. He and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the present.

P. V. GERMAN, farmer and stock raiser, Section 18, Washington Township, P. O. Little River, came to Marion County, Kan., in April, 1872; farmed three years, then became Pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church and preached seven years; then, in April, 1882, moved to his present place. He was born in Canada, February 27, 1841; raised in his native country and educated at Albert College, Bellville City, Canada; graduated in 1861. He followed farming in the latter country and working at carpenter trade. Married in 1867 to Miss Mary McCamon, a native of Canada; they have three sons—David H., Robert G. and Ray C. He is a member and active worker in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He will soon locate on Section 26, Township 22, Range 7 west, Washington Township.

GEORGE W. MARKLE, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Lyons, Section 11, Township 20, Range 9 west. He came to his place in Center Township March 1, 1876, and has since followed agricultural pursuits and stock raising. In 1882 he raised 2,000 bushels wheat, which averaged 27 bushels per acre. On one acre particularly there was 54½ bushels wheat. His corn averaged 30 bushels per acre. He has 160 acres land, 100 of which is in cultivation. Was born in Madison County, Ind., April 6, 1840; was raised on a farm, and lived in his native State until he came to Kansas. Married, 1860, to Miss May M. Brown, of same county and State; they have seven children—Forelia, Milton M., Hiram C., William H., Ida May, Friend P. and Joseph F. They are members of the Christian Church. He has served in several township offices. Is a Democrat in politics and a wide-awake farmer.

S. P. MONROE, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Allegan, Section 18, Township 19, Range 9 west, Farmer Township. He came to Rice County, Kan., in October, 1873; made his location in the following March, and has since followed agricultural pursuits. He has 370 acres of land, 240 of which is cultivated; forty-two acres timber. In 1882 he raised 2,030 bushels of wheat, making an average of twenty-eight bushels per acre, 1,500 bushels of corn, an average of twenty-five bushels per acre. He was born in Warren County, Southern Kentucky, July 18, 1829, and was raised on a farm in that county. Went to Macon County, Ill., in 1852, and followed farming until he came to Kansas. Married in 1853, to Miss Elizabeth Wright, of same county, Kentucky, who was raised in Sangamon County, Ill. They have five children—Jonathan S., married and farming near by; James W., married, and also a farmer of Rice County; Ida J., married to William Saint, a farmer close by; Charles E. and Mary E. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1878 he raised forty-two bushels of wheat per acre and the products were heavy all over Rice County that year. He has served as Township Treasurer the past four years and a member of the School Board the past six years.

JOHN B. MOORE, farmer, P. O. Chase, Section 32, Township 18, Range 9, Eureka Township, came to his place in the fall of 1872. Has 160 acres of land, 120 of which is cultivated. He was born in Fulton County, Ohio, December 8, 1845, and was raised on a farm. His parents moved to Illinois when he was a small boy, and settled at Peoria, where he lived until eighteen years old, and followed agricultural pursuits until he came to Kansas. Married February, 1871, to Miss Sarah E. Mann, of Lawn Ridge, Peoria Co., Ill. They have five children—Max L., Leo W., Joseph E., Owen H. and Catharine. They are members of the Congregational Church of Chase. He has served in several township offices. Is a Republican in politics.

NORMAN REED, farmer and stock-raiser, Section 20, P. O. Lyons, has 160 acres of land in Washington Township, 120 of which is cultivated; also has eighty acres in Section 20. He came to his place in the fall of 1870. His nearest neighbor lived four miles away. Nearest railroad market was Ellsworth, thirty miles away. Buffalo and other wild game dotted the plains in all directions, and the skillful pioneers found plenty of native game with which they graced their tables for several years, that affording the only meat food. There were 700 Indians made him a call at one time. He was born in Peoria County, Ill., in 1838 and lived on a farm in his native county until he came to Kansas. Married in 1862, to Miss Candis Smith. They have six children—Delia A., William F., Edward N., Rosa, Clara and Nellie, also Alfred G. and Bennie E. by a former marriage. He has been a Justice of the Peace for several years and a member of the School Board since the organization of the district.

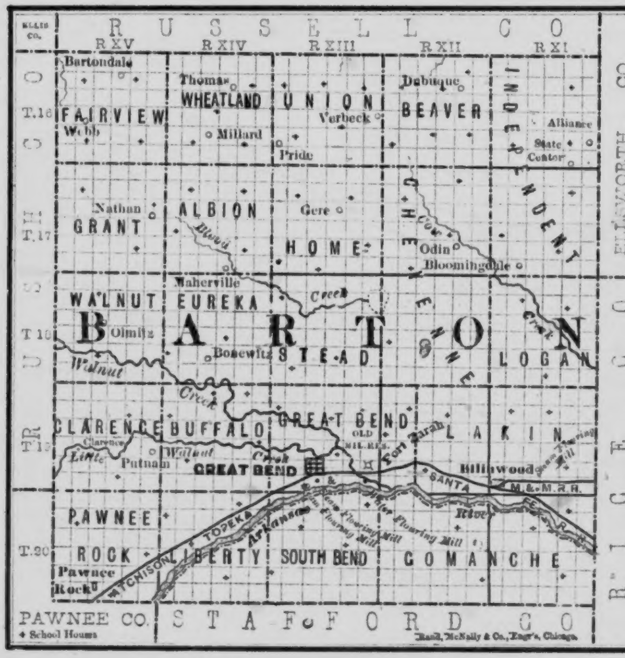
O. Y. SMITH, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Allegan, Section 32, Township 18, Range 9 west, in Eureka Township, came to his place in the fall of 1872. He succeeded in establishing a postoffice in 1873, naming it Eugenia, and was Postmaster six years, that being the first postoffice established away from the railroad in Rice County. He has 400 acres of land, 280 of which are cultivated. In 1882, he raised 2,400 bushels of wheat, being an average of 20 bushels per acre; corn only averaged 12 bushels per acre. He erected his house in the fall of 1873, bringing the brick for chimney from Illinois. He was born in Chenango County, N. Y., April 20, 1824; lived in native county until 1844, and family moved to Peoria County, Ill., in which county and Stark County he was raised on a farm, and lived until he came to Kansas. Married, in 1874, to Mrs. Julia (Brewster) Squier, of Cleveland, Ohio, who was born November 26, 1842. They have one son—Allen P. Smith. By a former marriage, Mr. Smith had two children—Florence M. and Eva L. Smith, and by a former marriage Mrs. Smith had two children—Edith M. and Nettie E. Squier. He and his wife are members of the Congregational Church of Chase. He is Township Treasurer of Eureka Township.

JOHN SWISHER, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Chase, Section 31, Township 18, Range 9 west, in Eureka Township. He came to his place in September, 1878. Owns 305 acres of land, 200 of which are cultivated. In 1882, he raised 4,800 bushels of wheat and 1,000 bushels of corn. He was born in Bartholomew County, Ind., September 29, 1833. Was raised in Warren County, Ind., and lived there until he came to Kansas, following agricultural pursuits. Married, in 1858, to Miss Clarissa J. Crow, of Warren County, Ind. They have four children—Frank E., Lenora, Martha J. and William A. Member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and wife also. He has served as Township Treasurer, and is a Republican in politics.

BARTON COUNTY.

LOCATION, TOPOGRAPHY AND NATURAL RESOURCES.

BARTON County is nearly in the geographical center of the State, being situated exactly midway between the northern and southern boundary lines, and is in the first tier of counties west of a central line drawn from north to south; the east line of the county being a little over 200 miles west of the east line of the State, and a little less than 200 east of the west line. The northern and southern boundary lines of the county are marked by the third and fourth standard parallel lines. Russell County adjoins Barton on the north, on the south is Stafford County, on the east a portion of Rice and Ellsworth counties, and on the west a part of Pawnee and Rush counties. In formation the county is exactly square, being thirty miles north and south by the same east and west. It contains 576,000 acres, or 900 square miles, and for municipal purposes is divided into twenty civil townships. The local government of the county consists of three commissioners, who hold office for three years, each representing a commissioner district, into three of which the county is apportioned.



The surface of the county in general is undulating prairie, the greater portion of it being apparently quite level, but in some places it is quite high. There is no really bluffy land in the county; none of those sudden breaks in the surface, caused by steep acclivities and sudden declivities, which are usually denominated "bluffs," but a general sameness seems to extend over the entire surface of the county. At various distances from the Arkansas River, on both the north and the south side of the stream, the ground takes a considerable rise, varying from eight to twelve feet, and between these rises, on each side of the river, the land is known as "first bottom land.' This first bottom land varies greatly in width, in some places being a mere strip, while in others it extends to a width of several miles. Several miles north of the river there is an almost unbroken line of rising ground, of an irregular circular formation, which embraces nearly all of Ranges 12 to 13 in Township 18, and which forms a regular basin. The land embraced within this basin is known as the "Cheyenne Bottoms." In the center of this basin is a lake covering about 400 acres. Blood Creek empties into this lake, but yet the lake contains no water, it all disappearing either by evaporation or by sinking into the ground. There are a good many sand knolls in the county, located chiefly south of the river, with a few along Cow Creek.

The streams in the county are not numerous, but those it does contain are nearly all always living. The principal stream is the Arkansas River, which enters the county at the south line about six miles east of the southwest corner, and flows in a northeasterly direction until it reaches the town of Great Bend, when it makes a curve and flows south by east, leaving the county at its east line at a point about two and a half miles north of its point of entrance, forming in its course through the county the arc of a circle.

The next stream in importance is Walnut Creek, which enters the county about the center of the west line, and flows in a southeasterly direction, pursuing a very serpentine course, until it empties into the Arkansas River at a point about four miles east of Great Bend, receiving on its way the waters of Little Walnut, the latter entering the county at the west line, about seven miles north of the southwest corner, and running almost due east until it joins the waters of Walnut Creek about a mile northeast of Great Bend. Cow Creek is next in order in point of importance, and has its rise almost at the north line of the county, in Township 16, Range 12, flowing in a southeasterly direction until it leaves the county at the east, in Section 36, Township 18, Range 11 west. This creek is fed by numerous springs. Blood Creek and Deception Creek are not of much importance, a good deal of the time being dry, unless in wet seasons. The course of the former of these creeks is from west to east, and the latter from north to south, both emptying into the dry lake before referred to as being located in the Cheyenne Bottoms. Formerly there was considerable timber along the creeks, but most of it has been cut down by settlers, until now all that remains is confined to small strips on the margins of some of the creeks. About the time when the first settlement was made in the county, there was quite a body of timber on the Arkansas River, in Township 20, Range 14, known as the "Twelve Mile Belt," in which some of the trees measured twenty-one feet in circumference. Of this body of timber, not a solitary tree remains, and all the trees that can be seen on the Arkansas River now, in Barton County, are confined to a strip of timber in the vicinity of Ellinwood. Walnut Creek is fringed with timber nearly its whole length, but in width it is very narrow, being confined entirely to the banks of the creek, which gradually ascend from the water to a height of about twenty feet. This is also the case with Blood Creek. There are a few groves of native timber on Cow Creek, but they are not very extensive, the largest one, and in fact the largest amount of timber in the county in one body, being that owned by Mr. Dalzell, on Section 6, Township 18, Range 11, and which contains eighty acres. This native timber consists of several varieties, including hackberry, ash, elm, box elder, cottonwood and walnut.

In the southern portion of the county, good well water can be had almost anywhere at depths varying from eight to twenty feet, but in the northern portion, and especially in the north tier of townships, it is extremely difficult to find, some wells having been sunk to a depth of 220 feet without striking water.

The soil of the county is a rich loam, the southern portion, or that part south of the Arkansas River being mixed to a considerable extent with sand, while all north of the river is a black loam. It varies in depth from three to ten feet, excepting on the sand knolls, and in some portions of the higher ridges where sandstone is found very near the surface.

The sub-soil differs according to locality. South of the Arkansas River it is sand, north of the river it is clay, while in the northern portion of the county, which forms the divide between the Smoky Hill River and the Arkansas, the sub-soil is a kind of shales. The county is well adapted both to stock raising and agricultural pursuits, forty per cent of its area being bottom land, and the residue beautiful upland. All kinds of cereals can be raised with the smallest possible amount of labor, and it is seldom a failure occurs. The southern half of the county is especially well suited to farming purposes, which is attributable to the fact, that, no matter how dry the season, the soil is always more or less moist, which is accounted for by a constant underground irrigation which takes place by the water of the Arkansas River finding its way through the porous sub-soil for several miles on either side. The smaller kinds of grain, such as wheat, oats, barley and rye, do much better than corn, and are much more certain, for the reason that the smaller grains are, usually, matured before the dry months set in. As showing the adaptability of the county for farming purposes, it may be stated that the wheat crop of 1877, averaged twenty bushels to the acre sown; in 1878, the average was twenty-three bushels, and in 1882, the average was twenty-six bushels to the acre. Corn does not show as well, the average bushels to the acre in 1877, being thirty bushels, and in 1878, only twenty-eight bushels.

For stock raising, the county has superior advantages. The Arkansas River, and other creeks, afford ample facilities and furnish an abundance of good water for drinking purposes, while the limitless supply of rich buffalo grass renders any other kind of feed unnecessary. In some portions of the county, the buffalo grass is being supplanted by blue-stem, and south of the Arkansas River it has nearly all disappeared and blue-stem taken its place. Realizing the advantages offered by the county for stock raising, people are becoming quite extensively engaged in that industry. Many attend to both stock raising and farming, having fine farms on the bottom land, while on the upland they have extensive ranges which are rapidly becoming stocked with cattle.

GENERAL HISTORY.

Barton County was, prior to 1872, attached to Ellsworth County for judicial and revenue purposes, but having, in that year, the requisite number of voters, and the population required by law, to entitle it to organization, a petition was presented to the Governor, asking that the county be organized. The petition having been considered, the following proclamation was issued:

> Whereas, it appears from the records in the office of the Secretary of State, that a census of Barton County has been taken according to law, properly sworn to by three resident free-holders of said county, showing a population of six hundred (600) inhabitants, citizens of the United States, and,
>
> Whereas, more than forty inhabitants, free-holders in Barton County, have petitioned for the appointment of three special County Commissioners, and one special County Clerk, and have selected the town of Great Bend in such county as the temporary county seat, now,
>
> Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Kansas, I, James M. Harvey, have appointed and commissioned the special County Commissioners and Clerk asked for in that petition, and do hereby declare the town of Great Bend the temporary county seat of Barton County.
>
> In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State. Done at Topeka this 16th day of May, A. D., 1872.
>
> JAMES M. HARVEY.

The Commissioners appointed, as mentioned, in the foregoing proclamation, were Thomas L. Morris, John H. Hubbard, and George M. Berry, and the appointee as special County Clerk was William H. Odell. The first meeting of the Commisioners was held at Great Bend, May 23, 1872, and organized by electing T. L. Morris, Chairman. Prior to that time, the county had been but one municipal township, attached to Ellsworth County, but at the first meeting of the Commissioners, the county was divided into three civil townships, Lakin, Great Bend and Buffalo, and each township declared to be a Commissioner District.

An election for county and township officers, and for the permanent location of the county seat, was ordered to be held on the first day of July, 1872, and the designated voting places were: For Great Bend Township, at the postoffice building in Great Bend. For Buffalo Township, at the residence of George M. Berry, on the southwest quarter of Section 32, Township 18 south, Range 14 west. For Lakin Township, at the store of Mr. Burlisson, in Township 19 south, Range 11 west. The election was held on the day appointed, and the officers chosen were:

County Commissioners, M. W. Halsey, John Cook and L. H. Lusk. County Clerk, W. H. Odell. Register of Deeds, T. L. Morris. Clerk of District Court, J. B. Howard. Treasurer, E. L. Morphy. Probate Judge, D. N. Heizer. County Attorney, J. B. Howard. Superintendent of Schools, A. C. Moses. Surveyor, John Favrow. Sheriff, George W. Moses. Coroner, D. B. Baker.

At the same election, the following Justices of the Peace were elected: For Lakin Township, D. P. Foster and A. W. Strong. For Great Bend Township, E. J. Dodge and James Holland, and for Buffalo Township, T. S. Morton and A. Keller. The total vote cast in the county at that election, was 199, of which, for county seat, Great Bend received 144 votes, Ellinwood 22, and Zarah thirty-three, and Great Bend was declared to be the permanent county seat.

At that time Zarah was quite a little village, and was the first town started in the county. It took its name from Fort Zarah, a military post established by the Government, during the War of the Rebellion, in what is now Barton County, and about three miles east of the present site of Great Bend. The town of Zarah was started by a party from Ellsworth in 1870, and was located about a mile east of the fort. In 1871 the military post of Fort Zarah was abandoned, and the barracks torn down, and the land upon which it was located, embracing 3,600 acres, was subsequently thrown upon the market and sold. In 1871, the town of Great Bend was founded, and the Town Company, uniting their interests with those of the railroad company in building up a town, secured for Great Bend all the advantages the latter could give, and Zarah soon disappeared. The election held on July 1, 1872, settled the county seat question, and the Board of Commissioners, chosen at that election met for the first time on the 13th of that month, and organized by electing M. W. Halsey chairman. The board continued in session for several days, and on the 16th of July, 1872, made the following order: "That horses, mules, asses, horned cattle, hogs, sheep, etc., shall not be allowed to run at large in the County of Barton, in the State of Kansas." In August, 1872, dramshop licenses were fixed at $100 per annum.

After the county was organized, a difficulty arose between the authorities of Ellsworth and Barton counties. The latter having been attached to the former for judicial and municipal purposes, the assessors of Ellsworth had assessed the property of Barton and returned their assessment books to Ellsworth County. Between the time the assessment was made and that when Barton County was organized, a number of the citizens of Barton had paid their taxes to the Treasurer of Ellsworth County. Here was where the disagreement arose, the authorities of the latter county holding that, inasmuch as the assessment was made according to law, and Barton County being attached, by law, to Ellsworth when the assessment was made, the taxes should, by virtue of law, be paid to Ellsworth County, and therefore refused to pay over to Barton County the amount of taxes already collected. This position was disputed by the authorities of Barton County, and for a time it seemed as if the matter would have to be carried to a court for settlement, but, finally, an amicable arrangement was entered into satisfactorily to both counties, and their disagreements were adjusted.

Prior to 1870, Barton County was the home of the buffalo, antelope, elk and deer, and for several years after the county began to be settled, these kings of the plain roamed over the prairies of the county in countless numbers. Buffalo were even killed on the town site of Great Bend long after the first settlers had located there, and antelope were seen by the hundred as late as 1875. As the county became more populous all these disappeared.

While Barton County has settled up somewhat rapidly, the increase in population has been gradual and steady, rather than spasmodic and uncertain. The county has had none of those large settlements in colonies which some counties have had, its immigration coming in families and groups and distributing itself over all the county. Those who came, came to stay, and generally did stay, and each year brought its quota of new comers. In 1874 and 1875 a good many Russians settled in the county, locating in the vicinity of Dundee, about seven miles west of Great Bend. Many others came but did not remain in the county, but moved into adjoining counties. A settlement of about one hundred families still remains in the county. The real settlement of the county did not commence until 1872, although a few families had located in the county in 1871. Since that time the population has grown to over 10,000, so that the average increase has been about 1,000 a year.

One of the points of interest in the county, and about the only one to which any particular interest attaches, is a rock in the southwest corner of the county, known as "Pawnee Rock." There is also a village of this name in the same locality. It is the rock, however, that is the interesting point. The rock is at the southern terminus of a ridge, or bluff, that extends for several miles in a northeasterly direction north of the Arkansas River. It is, or was, about 100 feet high, but lately several feet of rock have been taken from the top of it. The top is almost perfectly flat, and is about 240 feet in circumference. In former days it was a great landmark for travelers, and many are the names inscribed on its face, and among them that of R. E. Lee, and under it the year 1845. Some of the names it bears are followed by dates much older than that following the name of R. E. Lee. The rock derives its name from the fact that the various tribes of Pawnees, when they desired to hold a general council, would meet on the top of it, and hence the name "Pawnee Rock," and hence also, the name of the town of Pawnee Rock.

Among the first settlers in the county were J. Renake and H. Shultz, with their families, who came to the county in the summer of 1870; W. W. Halsey, Charles Rowdebush, E. D. Dodge, Thomas Stone, Edwin Tyler and several others, came in 1871, and the following year settlers came by the score.

The first school building in the county was erected in Great Bend, in the spring of 1873, bonds for this purpose having been voted in December, 1872. The first church edifice in the county was a Catholic Church, erected in Lakin Township in the fall of 1877, and the next one was a Methodist at Great Bend, erected in the winter of 1877-78. The first postoffice in the county was established at Zarah in 1871, the first Postmaster being Titus J. Buckbee.

The first marriage in the county was solemnized at Great Bend, in November, 1872, the contracting parties being Jonathan F. Tilton and Miss Addie Eastey.

The first county warrant issued in the county, was issued September 2, 1872, to Thomas L. Morris, and the amount it called for was $34.50, which was paid on the 7th day of May, 1873. The first term of court held in the county was in April, 1873, Hon. W. R. Brown being the presiding Judge, and the first case tried was "A. C. Moses vs. F. Vancil," the suit having been brought by injunction, the matter in controversy being some land to which both parties laid claim.

The first birth in the county was that of George A. Hansher, born October 2, 1871, and the first death was that of a child of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sneck, which occurred in January, 1872. The Sneck family lived about two miles from Great Bend, towards Walnut Creek. When the child died Mrs. Sneck was all alone, her husband having been gone for several days on a buffalo hunt, and had not returned. At that time wolves were very plentiful in the county, and the rudely constructed "shanty" in which Mrs. Sneck was left with her child, being isolated and far from any neighbors, was soon surrounded by a pack of these ravenous beasts. They howled around the house, they jumped at the windows, they scraped at the door, but the heroic mother nobly fought them off, to save the dead child from being devoured. She barricaded the doors and windows, and all night long, while the wolves were howling in their fury without, the mother was keeping guard and vigil over the lifeless body of her child within. After having remained in this terrible condition about twenty-four hours, a man, with a team, happened to pass by, and, learning of her situation, took her and her dead child into his wagon and brought them to Great Bend, where they were taken to the Southern Hotel, at that time about the only house of any kind in town. Next day funeral services were held, and the child interred, and the sermon at that funeral was the first preached in the town of Great Bend. The officiating clergyman was Rev. E. R. Glenn,

The county has made fair progress since it was first organized, and the people are thrifty and industrious. The county is reasonably well supplied with schoolhouses, and has eleven church edifices, with several church societies and organizations that have no buildings, but which hold services in the court-room and in various schoolhouses. The assessed valuation of the county is $1,537,051.68, which is about one-third the actual value, and the bonded indebtedness of the county is $35,000. For the payment of $10,000 of said indebtedness, an equal amount is now in the hands of the County Treasurer. The floating indebtedness of the county, on the first day of January, 1883, was $17,100, a portion of which has been called in and redeemed since.

The people of the county generally are in reasonably comfortable circumstances, and their houses and surroundings indicate industry and a good degree of prosperity. As to who broke the first prairie for farming is a question of some doubt, but it is conceded that John Reineoke and Henry Shultz turned over the first sod on the banks of Walnut Creek for garden patches. It is also conceded by the old settlers that J. P. Bissell, who located early in 1872, on a claim about two miles north of Great Bend, was the first man in the county to raise any wheat, although a great many settlers had patches of sod corn in 1872.

Among the early settlers was John Lyle, who located on a claim west of Great Bend, in the vicinity of Dundee. One day in 1873, while Lyle was plowing corn, a drove of seventeen buffalo came into the field. Unhitching the horse from the plow, he rode to his house, where he got his needle-gun and started after the buffalo. He strung them out over the prairie and succeeded in killing several of them before they crossed the claim of E. L. Chapman, about two miles north of Lyle's, and before they reached Great Bend he had fifteen of the seventeen buffalo killed.

COUNTY BUILDINGS AND COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

With a view of determining the county seat question for all time to come, the Commissioners ordered an election to be held on October 8, 1872, the question to be voted upon being the issuance of bonds to the amount of $25,000 for the purpose of building a court-house and jail. The proposition was carried and plans for the building requested. At the general election held on November 5, 1872, G. L. Brinkman was elected to the Legislature, he being the first person to represent Barton County in the General Assembly of the State. On February 12, 1873, Mr. Haskell presented plans to the Commissioners for a court house and jail, which were adopted, and notices calling for sealed proposals for the work were published in several newspapers of the State. On March 26, 1873, the bids were opened and the contract was awarded to John McDonald, of Emporia, who proposed to complete the work for $24,200. Work was immediately commenced and the building was completed that year. It is a very neatly constructed building, the corners being cut stone and the walls brick. The doors and windows are trimmed with cut stone and the superstructure rests upon a solid stone foundation, the walls of which are raised to a height of six feet above the surface of the ground. The dimensions of the building are 54x80 feet, the whole surmounted by a handsomely-finished cupola of octagon shape. Inside it is very conveniently arranged. The south side of the basement is partitioned off and fitted up as a residence for the Sheriff, while the north side, excepting a room in the northwest corner, which is used for a justice's office, is divided into cells and finished in jail fashion, with iron grated doors and windows. The first floor is divided into six offices three on either side of the hall, those of the Registrar of Deeds, Superintendent of Schools and County Clerk being on the south side, and those of the Treasurer, Probate Judge and Sheriff on the north side. The upper floor is divided into a court-room, neatly finished and furnished, a jury-room and offices for the County Attorney and Clerk of the District Court. It stands in the center of a square containing two blocks of ground, which is well covered with young trees and is surrounded by a neatly-built board fence.

In 1874, the limits of Barton County were enlarged by the Legislature partitioning Stafford County, and adding that portion of it embraced in Townships 21, 22 and 23, in Ranges 11, 12, 13 and 14, to Barton County. This included all of Stafford County north of the south line of Township 23, excepting that included in Townships 21, 22, and 23, in Range 15, which was added to Pawnee County. The south half of Stafford County, excepting that portion embraced in Townships 24 and 25, in Range 15, was joined to Pratt County. It was supposed that Stafford County was wiped out by this act of the Legislature; but not so, although its limits were cut down to the dimensions of two townships in the southwest corner. No doubt the intention of the Legislature was to wipe out Stafford County entirely, but in failing to dispose of the two townships above mentioned, Stafford still maintained its identity, although limited to a strip of land containing only seventy-two sections, or six miles east and west by twelve north and south. However, the territory thus added, Barton County held until 1879, when the matter, after having been fought through the State Courts, was decided by the Supreme Court against Barton County, for the reason that Stafford County was cut down to less dimensions than required by the constitution, and the original boundary lines of Barton County were restored.

The following is the list of county officers for 1883: Anderson Williams, Henry J. Roetzel, John K. Humphrey, Commissioners; Ira D. Brougher, County Clerk; A. C. Schermerhorn District Clerk; Cal Wever, Treasurer; Gustav Toepke, Probate Judge; Myron Gilmore, Sheriff; C. F. Diffinbacker, County Attorney; C. E. Dodge, Register of Deeds; C. C. Wolfe, Superintendent of Schools; C. Q. Newcombe, Surveyor; B. D. Bain, M. D., Coroner.

The following is a list of the names of members who have served in the State Legislature from Barton County: G. L. Brinkman, 1873; J. F. Cummings, 1874; G. L. Brinkman, 1875; C. J. Frye, 1877; G. L. Brinkman, 1879; D. N. Heizer, 1881, and J. D. Bain, in 1883.

SCHOOLS AND MANUFACTORIES.

The first school established in Barton County, was at Great Bend, in 1872, by James R. Bickerdyke, who opened a private school in that year. In the following year, School District No. 1, was organized at Great Bend, and that same year a two story frame building was erected for a schoolhouse, and of this school J. A. McClellan, was the first teacher. There were, in 1882, sixty school buildings in the county, containing in all sixty-seven rooms. The school population of the county in 1882, between the ages of five and twenty-one years, was 3,565, an increase over 1881, of 197. Of this population 1,848 were males and 1,717 females. The number of pupils enrolled in the public schools in 1882, was 2,458, an increase over the preceding year of 194, the enrollment of males being 1,299, and females 1,159. The average daily attendance at the public schools, in 1882, was 1,566 an increase of 225 over 1881. The number of organized School Districts in the county, in 1882, was 88, but many of these had no buildings, the pupils of some districts attending school in districts adjoining. The number of different teachers employed during the year was eighty-four, of which number twenty-four were males and sixty females. The average salary per month paid male teachers in 1881, was $23.99, and the average paid females was $15.06. In the following year, salaries of both male and female teachers, were considerably advanced, and in 1882, the average paid male teachers was $33.12 per month, an increase over the preceding year of $9.13 per month, while the average salary paid females, advanced to $23.71, an increase of $8.65 per month over 1881. School bonds were issued during the year to the amount of $1,600, and the school bonded indebtedness of the county, in 1882, was $26,477. The number of districts that sustained public school for three months, or over, during the year was seventy-five, and the number failing to sustain public school for three months was thirteen. The estimated value of all school property in the county in 1882, was $39,724, and the average number of mills levied for all school purposes, was fourteen. One hundred persons were examined in 1882 to become teachers, and ninety-nine certificates were granted, classified as follows: Grade first 11; grade second 59, and grade third 29. There was a balance in the hands of the district treasurer on August 1, 1881, of $3,546.82 and the amount received from district taxes was $12,066.55; from State and county funds $3,616.15; from sale of bonds $5,044.80, and from all other sources $689.22, making a total of $24,963.54. The amount paid to teachers during the year ending July 31, 1882, was $12,504.72; paid for rents, fuel, repairs, etc., $3,239.82; for district library and school apparatus $139.18; for sites, buildings and furniture, $4,081.22; paid for all other purposes $627.90, making a total of $20,592.84, leaving a balance in hands of district treasurer on August 1, 1882, of $4,370.70. The school buildings in the county are mostly frame, several are sod, and a few are stone.

There are no manufacturing establishments in the county, excepting four flouring mills and one sugar mill. Whatever water power the streams afford can not be utilized, and all the mills are operated by steam. One of these flouring mills is located at Pawnee Rock, in the southwest corner of the county, and was built in 1876, by Bowman Bros. It is a frame structure, three stories high, has three run of stone, and the capital invested in it is $10,000. Another flouring mill is located at Ellinwood, and was erected in 1878, by F. A. Steckel. This, also, is a frame building, and originally had three run of stone, but in 1882 it was greatly enlarged, and new and improved machinery was put in. In addition to making flour by the old system of grinding it also manufactures by the roller process. The capital invested in this mill is $25,000. The "Clement Mill" is located at Great Bend, and was put up by W. W. P. Clement in 1876. It is a frame building, two and a half stories high, and has four run of stone. It represents an invested capital of $12,000.

"Walnut Creek Mills" are also located at Great Bend, and were first erected on Walnut Creek in 1876, by Sooy & Brinkman, where the mill was run by water power. The difficulties experienced in keeping their dam in proper condition caused them to move the mill, and in 1878 it was taken to Great Bend, where it was converted into a steam mill. In 1880 the mill was enlarged to more than twice its original size, and fitted up with the newest and most improved machinery. It is quite a large mill, the main building being frame, and the engine and boiler room brick. It manufactures flour by both the old and new process, having four run of stone and several rollers. Its capacity is three hundred barrels of flour daily. The capital invested in the mill is $50,000, and the proprietors are Sooy, Brinkman & Roberts.

In 1881 quite a large sugar mill was built at a place named Dundee, about seven miles west of Great Bend, by S. A. Lebold & Co. The mill is quite an extensive building, five stories high, three of which are stone and two frame. The mill is operated by steam, and the capital invested is $40,000. The production of the mill in 1881 was 50,000 gallons of syrup, and in 1882 the production was 75,000 gallons.

There is only one creamery in the county, and that has been but very recently built by J. A. Perviance, on Little Walnut Creek, in Buffalo Township. It has not yet been put in operation, but will start in a few weeks.

STATISTICS OF GROWTH.

The county has made considerable increase in material wealth, as will be shown by the following statistics. In 1874, was raised the first wheat ever grown in the county, and two hundred acres was the extent of the amount sown that year. The total acreage of field crops in the county in 1872 was 1,061 acres, of which 722 were devoted to corn, six to oats, thirteen to potatoes and 320 to prairie pasture. In 1873, the total acreage of field crops was 5,461; in 1874, it increased to 6,034, and kept doubling in extent each year thereafter until 1878, when the total acreage reached 81,852 acres. This was increased more than 100 per cent during the next two years, and in 1880, the total acreage of field crops in the county was 166,319 acres, 79,013 of which, or nearly one-half, was sown to wheat. In 1882, the total acreage of field crops in the county was 145,000 acres, a decrease in two years of 21,319 acres. This decrease is accounted for by the fact, that a great portion of Stafford County, which had constituted a part of Barton, had been severed, and set back into Stafford in 1879, but notwithstanding this apparent decrease, the acreage of field crops in Barton County proper, was greater in 1882 than 1880. The number of acres in the county included in farms in 1882, was 263,757, the assessed valuation of which was $1,445,670, this being, according to the system of taxation, about 40 per cent of the real value. The number of farm dwellings erected in the county during the year ending March 1, 1882, was 175, valued at $54,248. The number of taxable acres in the county was 305,074, leaving 270,926 acres untaxable. This untaxable land is part of the Government grant to the railroad company, for which no patents have been yet issued, and school lands. The value of the garden products alone for the year ending March 1, 1882, amounting to $3,272, was more than the value of the entire field crops of 1872. A good deal of attention is given to raising poultry, for which a ready market is found in the States and Territories west. The eggs and poultry sold during the year ending March 1, 1882, amounted to $17,781. The cheese production for the year was 6,550 pounds, and that of butter was 211,192 pounds. For a county which has only had an existence of ten years, considerable advancement has been made in the accumulation of live stock. There were in the county, on March 1, 1882, live stock as follows: Horses, 3,273; mules and asses, 714; milch cows, 3,361; other cattle, 7,744; sheep, 4,034, and swine, 6,988. There are no extensive ranches in the county, and the live stock is pretty generally distributed among the resident farmers. The value of the animals slaughtered or sold for slaughter during the year ending March 1, 1882, was $61,832. The wool clip for the same period was 6,286 pounds. Considerable wealth is also represented in the orchards of the county, and during the last few years horticulture has received a good deal of attention, and promises good results. Last year (1882) the fruit trees in bearing in the county were: Apple, 866; pear, 39; peach, 10,577; plum, 1,950, and cherry, 462. The number not in bearing were: Apple, 16,629; pear, 1,211; peach, 42,135; plum, 1,445, and cherry, 2,838. The county is reasonably well fenced, there being 43,277 rods of fencing of various kinds, divided as follows; Board, 1,785 rods; rail, 860; stone, 359; hedge, 15,428, and wire, 24,845. This would build a fence of one continuous line extending a distance of nearly 136 miles, or more than would be required to build a fence round the entire county. The average cost of this fencing is about one dollar a rod, so that the fences of Barton County represent a value of about $43,277. Artificial forestry is another branch in which the people are taking great interest, and already there are some very fine groves in the county. The number of acres devoted to artificial forestry is 2,229, of which 786 are planted to walnut; 47 to maple; 18 to honey locust; 811 to cottonwood, and 567 to other varieties. The agricultural implements of the county represent a value of $72,481. The assessed valuation of the county in 1882, on both real and personal property, was $1,541,368.68, which, owing to the system of assessing, would indicate the real valuation to be about three times that amount, and for a county whose history embraces only one decade, shows a wonderful advancement in material wealth.

It is just thirteen years since Barton County began to be settled, and the census of 1870 shows the entire population of the county in that year to have been 200. The settlers that came prior to the building of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad through the county, in 1872, were very few, but no sooner was the road completed than people began to come to the county in considerable numbers. By 1875 the population had increased to 2,099, the new comers locating chiefly in the Walnut Valley along Walnut Creek. While this portion of the county was being settled the towns of Great Bend and Ellinwood received a goodly portion of the new comers, and by 1878 the population had increased to 8,251, showing an increase in the three years of 6,152. The abundant crops of that year attracted a great deal of emigration to the county, and during the next two years the population of the county had grown to 10,319, this being the population as shown by the United States census of 1880. From 1880 to 1882 about as many people left the county as came to it owing to the fact that the crops of the former year were extremely light, and those of 1881 were not much better. Another fact that tended to take a great many people out of the county, especially the younger men, was the great desire that seemed to take hold of them to go west to the mountains. Notwithstanding these depopulating agencies the population of the county decreased but very little, as the population in 1882, according to the census taken by the various township assessors, was 10,121, showing only a decrease of 198 in the unfavorable years from the spring of 1880 to the spring of 1882.

GREAT BEND.

The city of Great Bend is located on Section 28, Township 19, Range 13, west of the sixth principal meridian. It is situated immediately north of that point in the Arkansas River where it commences to make the great bend eastward. The town site was located in 1871 by the Great Bend Town Company, composed of C. R. S. Curtis, M. F. Bassett, J. L. Curtis, J. T. Morton, James Israel, A. R. McIntyre, and one or two others. The town site was located under an act of Congress giving to companies that located a town and settled thereon a section of land. Immediately after the town was located the Town Company had erected what is now known as the "Southern Hotel" on the northwest corner of the public square, and this was the first house erected on the town site. Work on the building was commenced in August, 1871, and it was finished that fall. When the hotel was completed T. L. Stone was installed as landlord, being allowed the use of the building rent free for a certain period. The next house put up in town was by Edwin Tyler, a little south of the "Southern," on the west side of the square, between Nagie street and Bassett avenue. It was rather a small building, one part of which he used as a dwelling and the other as a store, he being the first man that ever sold goods in the city of Great Bend. Scarcely any settlers came to the place in the fall and winter of 1871, but early in 1872 they commenced coming at a lively rate.

James Holland came in the spring of 1872, and put up a building on the north side of the square, and as the building was nearing completion, he went East to purchase a stock of goods, and was never seen nor heard of afterwards, the supposition being that he was murdered for his money. In May, 1872, A. S. Allen located in Great Bend, and put up a building on the west side of the square, in which he opened a drug store, and for three years there was no other drug store between his and the west line of the State.

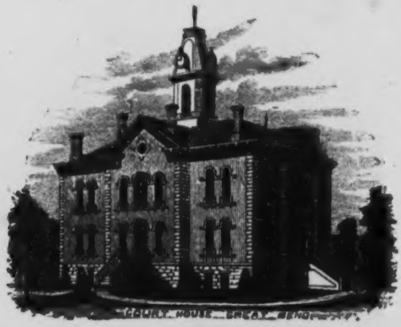
Ed. Markworth, E. L. Morphy and John Cook were among those who came in the spring of 1872 and engaged in business, the former opening up a grocery and provision store on the west side of the square, while the two latter put up buildings and went into business on the east side of the square, Morphy engaging in the hardware business and Cook in groceries. The names given above include the first business men of Great Bend, Ed. Tyler being the pioneer, he having opened his store in January, 1872.

These business men, however, were not the only parties who settled in Great Bend in 1872, because after the railroad had reached the town, which it did in July of that year, a good many settlers came who were not business men, but mechanics, and these put up buildings and added greatly to the town. The Typer family came in the spring of 1872, and that summer erected the "Typer House," on the east side of the square, at the corner of Cowgill street and Peter's avenue. It is a two-story frame building of considerable size, and at the time it was built, was deemed a magnificent hotel for Western Kansas.

The year 1872 closed very auspiciously for Great Bend, and early the following year the town was incorporated and advanced to the rank of a city of the third class, and at the city election held soon thereafter, A. A. Hurd was elected Mayor of the city. Up to that time, no public school had been established in town, but early in 1873, the people having voted bonds for the purpose in the preceding December, a very fine two-story frame schoolhouse was erected, one block west of the public square. It was in that year that the difficulty arose over the town site. The title to the section of land on which the town is located remained in the Government until 1873, but when the town was incorporated and became a city of the third class with a representative head, the Government deeded the section to the Mayor of the city of Great Bend, in trust for the occupants.

About that time, the original Town Company put in an appearance and claimed that the deed was given in trust to the Mayor for their benefit, and that inasmuch as they had located the town site and made improvements thereon, they were, under the law, entitled to receive the deed. After some delay and discussion pro and con, the Mayor yielded, and deeded over the land embraced in the town site to the Town Company. This action on the part of the Mayor greatly enraged the settlers, who talked the matter over amongst themselves, both openly and privately, and the more they talked over it the madder they became, and finally brought suit against the Mayor and Town Company, to have the deed made by the former to the latter set aside, and in December, 1873, a decision was rendered in favor of the occupants. After this, a kind of compromise was made with the Town Company, by which the town site should be re-surveyed and divided amongst all those who were bona fide occupants on September 6, 1872, according to the investments each had made in improvements. The man that had invested $200, received double as many lots as he who had invested $100, and according to this system the land was distributed.

After the distribution was made, part of the compromise was, that the occupants should deed over to the Town Company half of the lots that had been allotted to each, and in this manner the matter was finally settled. The Commissioners appointed to re-survey, appraise and apportion the town-site, were T. S. Morton, E. V. Rugar and J. B. Howard, and the survey, appraisement and apportionment made by the commission was accepted and approved, and filed for record February 2, 1874. It was found that on the 6th day of September, 1872, there were eighty bona fide occupants on the land included within the limits of the town-site of Great Bend, and among these the lots were distributed.



COURT HOUSE—GREAT BEND

In 1873, the court house was built, in the center of the public square, a very magnificent brick building, which added greatly to the appearance of the town. The first stone and brick business house erected in town, was a two story building on the north side of the square, which was put up by Sooy & Brinkman. This was the only substantial improvement made until 1876, although, in the interval, a good number of frame buildings, both stores and dwellings, were erected.

In that year A. S. Allen put up a very neat and well finished two story stone and brick building on the corner of Curtis avenue and Nagie street, the first floor of which he uses as a drug store, the upper floor being divided into offices. About the same time Gray & Baily erected a building of a similar character on the north side of the square, now occupied as a hardware store by W. H. Dodge & Son. A much needed improvement was made that year in the erection of a flouring mill by W. W. P. Clement. The limits of the city were enlarged in 1876, by an addition made thereto by the Arkansas Valley Town Company, and the following year Kincaid's Addition was added, and that year the first church edifice was erected by the Catholics.

The years 1873, '74 and '75, were interesting years in the history of Great Bend, as those were the years during which the cattle trade centered at that point. This trade would usually commence about the first of June, and continue till towards the middle of October. A natural consequence of this trade, was lively times for the merchants while it lasted, and for the orderly and peaceably disposed of the community, a constant dread. The advantages in trade were more than counterbalanced by the disadvantages to society. The class of people that the cattle trade attracted to Great Bend, was that class of thugs and harlots that are a curse and a dread to every community, and when the Legislature in 1876, passed a law fixing the "dead line" thirty miles west of the west line of Barton County, the people of Great Bend felt relieved. This "dead line" is a line beyond which Texas cattle can not be brought, unless they have wintered one winter in the State. The passage of that law had the effect of moving the cattle trade west from Great Bend, and with it went those elements so dangerous to the peace of society.

The year in which the most substantial improvements were made in the city was 1878. In that year J. H. Hubbard and Burton, Moses Bros., built the Union Block on the west side of the square. It is a fine two-story stone and brick building, with two good store rooms beneath, and several offices and Union Hall above. On the north side of the square G. L. Brinkman erected a two story stone and brick building. On Nagie street, G. P. Townsley put up a building of similar material, the lower story of which is fitted up for, and used as, the postoffice, while the upper story is used as the printing office of the Inland Tribune. Directly opposite to this building, on the same street, C. F Wilner built a good two-story stone and brick, which he uses as a furniture store. Adjoining the Tribune building on the west, Troilett Bros. and D. Merton put up, each, a one-story building, having stone walls and brick front.

While these solid improvements were going on, many others of a less substantial character were being made. The "Occidental Hotel," built by C. E. Birdsale, the "Central House," built by John Barth, both frame buildings, were erected in that year. Three elevators were also put up: No. 1 by Fair & Culver; No. 2, by G. L. Brinkman, and No. 3, by Bailey & Moses. The Walnut Creek Mill was also greatly enlarged, and refitted with new and improved machinery.

The only fire of any consequence that ever visited the city occurred in 1878. It took place in the month of September, 1878, and originated in the furniture store on Nagie street. About two o'clock in the morning, one of the men who was sleeping up stairs, for some reason, either real or imaginary, deemed it necessary to light a lamp and go down stairs, but before he reached the foot, he made a misstep, and his descent was greatly accelerated, and in a manner not in the usual course of descending. The lamp preceded him, fell and broke, whereupon the oil instantly became ignited, and the flame soon spread to the loose combustible matter lying upon the floor, and in a short time the whole place was in a blaze. The alarm was immediately given, but before the fire could be extinguished the furniture store, with four others, had perished in the flames. The loss was estimated at $20,000.

In 1879 the town was further improved by a fine two-story stone and brick building, erected by J. W. Lightbody, on the west side of the square, and now occupied by Krouch & Simons as a dry goods store. About the time this building was put up, William Dunaway erected a very fine substantial building in the same block, now owned by Bruesner & Weiss, who occupy the first story as a grocery and dry goods store, the upper story being rented to, and used by, the Odd Fellows as a hall.

The town has made rather slow progress since that time, the improvements that were made being confined to residences, and most of those erected since 1879, were put up in 1882. The latest improvement made of any importance, was the erection of a fine brick schoolhouse in 1882. To build this bonds to the amount of $6,700 were issued. The building is a neat two-story structure, having two rooms above and two below, which, with the original frame building, affords ample accommodation for the pupils that attend.

The first woman that made her home in Great Bend was Mrs. Lewis Frye, and the first child born in the city was Emma H. Shoffer, the date of whose birth was April 20, 1872.

The first Postmaster in the place was E. L. Morphy, and the first City Council was composed of M. S. Kutch, E. Markwort, J. W. Winfield, W. H. Odell, and Edwin Tyler; A. S. Allen being subsequently appointed to fill a vacancy

THE SMALL POX PLAGUE.

The saddest page in the history of Great Bend is that covering the period between December 1, 1882, and February, 1883, a period, which, though short in duration, will long be adverted to as the gloomiest time in the history of the city. About the latter end of November, 1882, a colored man named Gilmore was on his way East from New Mexico, and being sick left the train at Great Bend, and found his way to a one-room "shanty" in the northeast part of the town, the sole occupant of which was an old colored man named John Howell. Here Gilmore was taken down, and next day the county physician, Doctor Frank Lightfoot, was called to see him. When asked what ailed him the doctor said he thought he was getting over a big drunk, and upon his second visit declared Gilmore's malady to be mountain fever. The day after he gave this out as his opinion he took his departure for the far West. Whether he knew Gilmore's disease was small-pox is not known, but he knew, no matter what the nature of the disease may have been, he, being County Physician, it was his duty to attend him, but instead of doing that he immediately took his departure from town.

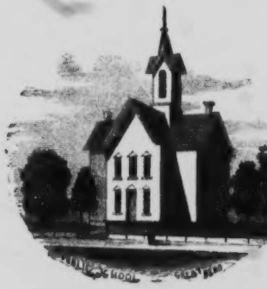
Dr. White was next sent to visit Gilmore, and upon seeing him declared his case to be one of small-pox, and that of the most malignant type. Consternation seized the community, and many fled to escape the dread plague.

Old man Howell's shanty was closely quarantined, but too late, the seeds had been sown, and soon this one and then that one were stricken down. The town was placed under strict quarantine, and for two months a pall as of death seemed to enshroud the city. Nobody came and no one was allowed to go. Business was stagnated and the streets were almost deserted. Mails were stopped, churches and schools were closed, all society meetings were discontinued, and people were prohibited from assembling in groups.

In all there were thirty cases in town, fifteen of whom died. The names of those who died from the fell disease were: Gilmore, the colored man; John Howell, colored, at whose house Gilmore stopped; Brown, a colored man, who resided on the edge of the town; Frank Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Morgan; Ch[illegible]s, son of Mr. and Mrs. Legg. John Alefs lost his wife and two children, b[illegible] every member of the family but himself. Mr. and Mrs. Parker lost two daughters, all the children in the family. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stoffer had two children taken, a boy and a girl, by which bereavement they were left childless.



While the foul plague continued Great Bend was a sad city, and the uncertainty as to whom the next victims would be, or the number that the scourge would carry off before it discontinued its ravages, caused the people to live in a state of constant dread and painful anxiety. The first to die from the disease was Gilmore, the colored man who brought the plague to town, and the last victim was one of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Stoffer. After the last case had developed itself, the town was quarantined for twenty-one days, after which the quarantine was removed and gladness seized the hearts of the people, and joy entered their homes, but yet the page covering that brief period of history is one of sadness.

EARLY REMINISCENCES AND INCIDENTS.

In the early settlement of Great Bend it had some very peculiar characters, and some rather amusing incidents occurred. The man whose peculiarities gave him the greatest notoriety was T. L. Stone, first proprietor of what is now known as the Southern Hotel. "Tom" was a great big, burly fellow, with a huge, bushy mustache, and when dressed in his open-breasted red shirt, with the sleeves rolled up to his shoulders, and his old army sash wrapped around his waist, into which would be stuck a couple of revolvers, he was a very fierce-looking character, and well calculated to strike terror to the heart of the young and inexperienced in the western mode of life. Notwithstanding his fierce look and blustering manner, he was altogether inoffensive, and possessed a good, kind heart. One or two incidents that occurred in the "Cottage," of which Tom was then proprietor, will tend to show the character of the man, and the ludicrous scenes that frequently occurred in those early days in Western hotels.

One day a couple of Englishmen who were out on a buffalo hunting expedition stopped at the "Cottage" for dinner, and when dessert was reached they asked for a nut cracker. Tom went out, and in a short time returned with a large stone and shoemaker's hammer, and slapping them down on the table in front of the Englishmen, said: "There's your —— nutcracker."

The following incident will show how Tom taught a fellow how to eat hash. A kind of snob of a traveling man came along one day and put up at the "Cottage." It so happened that one of the chief articles of diet on that particular day was "hash," and when the traveling man's was laid before him he demanded beefsteak, and said he would not eat "hash." The waiter went out and told Tom, and the guest, thinking that the steak would be forthcoming in two or three minutes, sat waiting the waiter's return, when in stepped Tom with his characteristic red shirt on and sleeves rolled up, and in his hand a huge carving knife. As soon as he entered the dining-room he demanded, in stentorian tones, where that —— —— was that said he would not eat hash. Instantly the traveling man seized his knife and fork, and all at once, to the intense merriment of others who knew Tom, discovered that hash was quite palatable food.

As illustrative how justice was administered, the case of "T. Vancil vs. E. L. Stone," tried June 7, 1873, before E. J. Dodge, a Justice of the Peace, will be sufficient. The plaintiff's bill of particulars was as follows:

> "The plaintiff claims judgment against the defendant in the sum of $40.00 and costs of suit, for this that the said defendant did on or about the —— day of May, 1873, wilfully and unlawfully kill a certain hog or swine, the property of this plaintiff and worth the sum of forty dollars."

The evidence in the case was as follows, and is copied verbatim from the original papers now on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of Barton County:—

> George Eldred sworn says: "I see the hog the day it was killed; I see it was dangerous to run at large and told Ed Stone. I went to it and he would snap and bite and froth at the mouth. I have seen mad hogs in Wisconsin, I never see one eat that was mad."
>
> Mr. Kutch sworn says: "I see one day last month a hog raising thunder out on the prairie, falling down and getting up, etc., etc. There was no dogs there. About an hour after I see the hog running down a × (across) the □ (square) and Ed Stone shooting at him. I never see a mad hog."
>
> C. Moses sworn says: "I see Ed Stone driving a hog a × the □, yanking his head around, trying to stand on his head. I see Ed Stone shoot the hog two or three times. If the hog was well he was worth $35 or $40, but as he was he was not worth a dam. I would give nothing for him."
>
> T. L. Stone sworn says: "I first see this hog down by the Typer House. He was frothing at the mouth and shaking his head. To some men this hog would be worth $10, and to some men $50. As the hog was at that time I would not give 25c. for him, but would give 25c. to have him killed. I never see a hog have the hydrophobia."
>
> J. H. Hubbard sworn: "The first time I see the hog he was chasing my buffalo calf, he afterwards went out towards the schoolhouse and Ed Stone drove him back onto the □. I see Ed Stone shoot at the hog several times. I see another man shoot at the hog. I sold a hog as big as he was for $11."
>
> John Hartley sworn: "I don't know anything about killing the hog. I see Ed Stone shoot at the hog and the hog jumpt after he was shot at."
>
> Mrs. J. C. Martin sworn: "In the morning I see the hog at Mr. Hubbard's calf, next the hog chased me to the house from the prairie."
>
> J. C. Martin sworn: "I see the hog frothing and foaming at the mouth and would have shott him if I had had a gun. I thought he was mad. I never knew a mad hog to eat."
>
> E. L. Stone sworn and says: "I noticed the hog back of the Typer House and tried to drive him up, and it run at me. I went to drive him up and he did not want to come. Hubbard and George Moses advised me to shoot the hog and I did shoot him five or six times. I am City Marshal, or was."
>
> T. Vancil recalled: "The breed of the hog that Ed Stone killed was Poland and Big-boned China, and more valuable than common hogs. He was a male hog and I kept him for a stock hog. I was offered yesterday $40 for a hog of the same variety."
>
> Mr. Turning sworn says: "I have had a good deal of experience with hogs. A male hog will froth and foam at the mouth thousands of times when they get out and when they are not mad. I have handled thousands of hogs, wild and tame. A male hog after being shut up and then let out will act wild and mad when there is nothing the matter with them."
>
> "The city records offered in evidence, claiming hogs to be a nuisance and not lawful commoners."

> "I find by reviewing the testimony in this cause by T. Vancil evidence, that on or about the —— day of May He, Vancil, was the owner of a certain hog or swine which He valued, and held to be worth $40, and that he see Mr. E. L. Stone shoot said hog, and kill him.
>
> "Mr. Quincy, under oath, said he knew Mr. Vancil's hog, that said swine was worth $30 in Quincy, and was worth $40 here.
>
> "Frank Philips, under oath, said: 'I see the hog in question the evening it was shot or killed. I am acquainted with the value of hogs; said hog was worth $40 or $50. I see two dogs chasing and worrying said hog; did not see anything the matter of the hog.'
>
> "Mr. Turning, under oath, said: 'I have always noticed male hogs will froth and foam at their mouth, more or less. I see Ed. L. Stone shoot a hog, said to be Vancil's, severa times. I see another man shoot once or twice.'"

> "The hydrophobia is a disease occasioned by the bite of a rabid animal, and so called from the great dread that those who suffer from it manifest at the sight of water. The dog, cat, fox and wolf are the animals among whom this disease is most common, and among whom it is natural, and always originates in the canine or fenine family; but there is perhaps no animal to whom it is not capable of being communicated as it is to man. An animal possessed with the hydrophobia will neither eat or drink. It has not been claimed, or any attempt to show, that this hog had been bit by any animal possessed with hydrophobia. In regard to the City Ordinance referred to—that ordinance is all right. It is a very good law, and no well regulated city would be without it, and the mode the City Council have devised and adopted to abate that nusance is also a good one. (i.e.) 'The City Marshal shall take up, and empound, and advertise, and if not redeemed, sell such swine to the highest bidder, and pay the charges.' I cannot understand that the City Council has any power to delegate to the marshal rights and privileges which they have not got themselves, (i. e.) to destroy summerly property belonging to the residents of this city, without even notifying the owner. It is therefore ordered and adjudged by the Court, that the said T. Vancil have and recover of the said Ed. L. Stone, the sum of $40 and cost of this suit."

While Justice's Courts were conducted in a rather peculiar manner, the method of conducting funerals was equally peculiar. There came to Great Bend, in 1872, an attorney named Godfrey, who had fallen into rather dissipating habits. One night, during the winter of 1872-73, while in an intoxicated condition, fell down, and being unable to get up, lay where he fell the greater portion of the night, and when discovered was nearly lifeless. At that time there were but few houses in town, but Doctor Baine had a small office on the north side of the square to which Godfrey was taken, and where he died on the Wednesday following. His relatives were notified by telegram of his death and sent word that they would be on for the remains. The next day a terribly severe storm set in of wind and snow, by which all the cuts on the line of road were filled and travel completely stopped for several days.

The Sunday after Godfrey died the people congregated in the postoffice, as was their wont, where they cracked jokes, told stories, and spun yarns, helping themselves at intervals from some whisky barrels that stood at the rear end of the store in which the postoffice was located. In a short time they began to feel a little mellow, and while in this state, one fellow, named Kutch, in referring to Godfrey, said, "we have stood this thing long enough, we had better plant him." This proposition met with the approval of the crowd and in a short time two lumber wagons were hitched to and drove around to Dr. Baines' office where the remains of Godfrey were still lying. He was then lifted into one of the wagons, and as many men as could crowd into that and the other wagon got in, and started for a place north of town where a grave had been dug for two or three days. Quite a number followed on horseback. The ground was covered with snow which had drifted considerably during the storm. Accompanying the cortege, went a dog belonging to some of the party, who happened to come across a jack rabbit lying in the snow which the dog killed. A little farther along another rabbit was started, to which some of the horsemen, leaving the funeral procession, gave chase. A third one was started, and the excitement among the men increased, and between chasing rabbits and following the corpse, the grave was finally reached, which was found to have drifted full of snow.

After shoveling out the snow, and lowering the remains of Godfrey into the grave, another attorney, named Copeland, whose habits were not the steadiest, said it would be appropriate and becoming to make a few remarks, and as there was no minister of the gospel in town he, upon that occasion, would officiate in that capacity. He began his address, and just as he had reached the most touching portion, a fellow named Baker cried out "By———, the dog is after another jack rabbit," and away the crowd went pell mell, helter-skelter, over the prairie and after the rabbit, leaving Copeland to finish his address to the silent, dreamless sleeper.

This occurred in the early days of Great Bend, but all is changed now. There are now churches and ministers in the town, and, religiously and morally, the people of Great Bend give evidence of as much advancement as do those of sister cities.

CHURCHES, SOCIETIES AND THE PRESS.

Up to the year 1877, the town was without a church edifice, although the Catholics, Methodists and Congregationalists had had organizations since the fall of 1872. In the fall of 1877, the Catholics erected a frame church on Baker avenue, and in the winter following, the Methodists put up a very neat frame edifice on the corner of Nagle and William streets. In 1878 the Congregationalists built an elegant frame church on Stone street. The Methodist Church in Great Bend was organized in the spring of 1872, by Rev. A. Hartman, and has now a membership of 135, and its church property is valued at $1,100. The present pastor is Rev. M. L. Gates. The Congregational Church was organized in the fall of that year by Rev. H. A. Brundige, and has now a membership of sixty, its church property being valued at $2,000. The present pastor is Rev. I. R. Pryor. The Catholics have no resident pastor, but hold services once a month. The value of their church property is $2,400. The colored Methodists have an organization of twenty members, and a small building of trifling value, and so, also, have the colored Baptists. The Christians have an organization, but no building, and hold services in the court room, and so with the German Lutherans, who meet for worship in the schoolhouse.

Valley Lodge, No. 95, I. O. O F., was organized under dispensation, July 11, 1872, and was chartered October 8, 1872, with six charter members. The first officers of the lodge were: J. H. Hubbard, N. Schermerhorn, J. V. P. C.; D. N. Heizer, O. D.; J. K. Humphrey, O. G.; D. Turner, Adjt.; E. L. Chapman, Q. M.; C. J. Mackinroth, S. M.; and E. Pinney, chaplain; The membership of the Post on January 1, 1883, was 105, and the present officers are: C. M. Smith, P. C.; A.C. Schermerhorn, S.V. P. C.; Parker Corbin, J.V. P. C.; D. N. Heizer, O. D., D. N. Robinson, O. G.; Edwin Tyler, Adjt.; George Mitchell, Q. M.; J. W. Savage, S. M.; and A. B. Miller, chaplain.

The first publication in the county was the Arkansas Valley, which was established at Great Bend in 1872, in the interest of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co. Its editor was A. J. McFarran. Its life was short.

Barton County Progress.—This was the next publication to make its appearance in the county, and was established at Great Bend in 1873, by H. P. Shults, who was sole editor and proprietor. This paper expired after a few months' existence.

Great Bend Register.—This was the next venture in the newspaper line, made in the county. It was established in 1874, by the Great Bend Publishing Company, with A. J. Hoisington as editor. In 1875 the paper passed into the hands of Mr. Hoisington, who became sole editor and proprietor, and who, since that time, has remained at the head of the paper as sole editor and owner, and in whose possession it still continues. The paper is an eight column folio, Republican in politics, and has a circulation of 1,300.

Inland Tribune.—The paper known by this name was established by C. P. Townsley, at Great Bend, in August, 1876, and was, and continues to be, published by him as sole editor and proprietor. It is a seven column folio, weekly paper, Republican in politics, and has a circulation of 800.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The town of Great Bend is very beautifully located on an elevation between the Arkansas River and Walnut Creek, the land on which the town is situated sloping gradually from the center towards the valleys of these streams. It is a good trading point, and is supported by a wide extent of territory, and carries on a very good business. There are thirty-four business houses in town, of various kinds, as follows: General merchandise, 8; grocery stores, 7; hardware, 3; drug stores, 2; dry goods, 2; boots and shoes, 2; harness and saddlery, 2; bakeries and restaurants, 3; furniture stores, 1; jewelers, 1; millinery establishments, 1; and dealers in agricultural implements, 2. There are two banks in town, 3 lumber yards, 3 grain elevators, 2 flouring mills, 3 livery stables, and adjacent to town is a good brick-yard, at which a very excellent quality of brick is made. The various professions are well represented in town, and the stores, generally, are well fitted up and well stocked. In the resident portions of the city there are some very fine dwellings, but none whose size or finish render them particularly striking; but all have an appearance of neatness, cleanliness and comfort.

ELLINWOOD.

The town of Ellinwood is located on the north bank of the Arkansas River, on Section 32, Township 19, Range 11, west of the sixth principal meridian. The town site was located in the fall of 1871, by the Arkansas Valley Town Company, of which Adam Speare was president. The site was platted and surveyed by John H. Cummings.

The records do not show when the plat was filed, but they do show that the signing of the plat was acknowledged in Suffolk County, Mass., on the 6th day of September, 1873, before George L. Goodwin, a Notary Public. To survey, plat and locate the town site, was about all the company did in 1871, and little or nothing was done towards building until the following year, the only house erected being a small frame building, by William Misner, which was occupied in the latter part of the year by A. Burlisson, as a store, he being the first man to start in the mercantile business in the place.

The original town of Zarah stood about half way between Great Bend and Ellinwood, and when the latter town was started, most of those located at Zarah moved their buildings and business to Ellinwood. In 1872 Rugar and Greever moved their building from Zarah to Ellinwood, and converted it into a hotel, for which purpose it was used for a few months, when it was purchased and occupied by Landis & Williamson, who re-converted it into a store and began merchandising. That same year J. L. Roberts moved his house and livery barn from Zarah to Ellinwood, where he went into business, as did also George Towers, with his house and blacksmith shop. That same year, R. A. Avery built the Avery House, which may be said to be the first regular hotel in town.

Among the people who settled there that year, aside from those mentioned, were D. J. Whitten and G. W. Hollinger, with two or three others. In 1873, Reynolds & Hubbard opened up a grocery and provision store, and that year several families arrived, among them that of Isaac Bacon, Andrew Barngrover, and Wallace Bay, the latter locating just outside the limits of the town site. A great many young men came, who entered claims close to or adjoining the town site, who boarded in town, and added considerably to the population.

The place was yet without a school, but in 1873, a one-story brick schoolhouse was erected, which has been considerably enlarged since that time, by two good sized additions having been made thereto. Several dwelling houses were also put up that year, and the place was commencing to look like quite a village. The town made but little development until after the advent of the railroad, in the summer of 1872, but in the spring following people commenced to arrive, most of whom, however, located upon homestead claims in the country surrounding Ellinwood, and a few remained in town.

In 1874 the place grew quite rapidly, and many improvements were made, especially in the number of dwelling houses erected. One very desirable improvement was made that year by F. A. Steckel, who, immediately upon his arrival, put up a good frame building on Washington street, in which he opened a general merchandising store in connection with the sale of drugs. The grasshopper destruction of 1874, was a severe check to immigration, and the following year was one of but little progress. Although little, if anything was added to the town in 1875, yet a grand, useful and very desirable improvement was made, in the construction of a very elegant and substantial iron bridge across the Arkansas River.

From 1875 until 1878 the growth of the town was exceedingly slow, the most that was done being the erection of a few unpretentious dwellings, and one building put up as a drug store by Mr. Rader. The immense crops of 1878 gave new life to immigration, and turned the attention of emigrants towards Kansas, not a few of whom found their way to Ellinwood. That year saw the going up of the first substantial business house in town, in the shape of a solid two-story brick building on Washington street, which was built by Joseph Harnish. The first floor of this building is now occupied as a store; while part of the upper story is occupied as a printing office by the Ellinwood Express, and part by the city as a council chamber. Other improvements of that year were two good frame store buildings put up by Mathias Rader.

Besides quite a number of dwelling houses that went up, an elevator, built by Brinkman Bros., was among the improvements of 1878. Since that time the growth of the place has been gradual but steady, and those that have been made are much superior to those of the earlier years. The only church in the town up to 1879, was one erected by the Catholics in 1877, but the former year witnessed a very good edifice put up by the German Lutherans. In 1881, Deupree Bros. built a one-story brick building, which they occupy as a bank. Two elevators were also put up, one by V. S. Musil, and one by Williamson & Ashton.

The year 1881 was chiefly remarkable for the completion of the branch of the A., T. & S. Fe road from Florence to Ellinwood, where it connects with the main line. The building of this branch was quite an advantage to the place, as it caused the putting up of a good stone round house, with stalls for nine locomotives, and was the means of causing a good many employes of the company to locate in the town.

The first person that taught school in Ellinwood was Miss Carrie Bacon, and the first church society organized was the Presbyterian, by Rev. Philander Reed, in 1872.

The A., T. & S. F. Railway Company has assisted to a great extent in advancing the town and furthering its improvement. The construction of the branch from Florence, resulting as it did in the building of a round house and blacksmith shops by the company, was of great benefit to Ellinwood. The company also built a five mile side track, and opened up an extensive material yard, or depot, where rails, ties, fence posts, and other material is stored, and from which other points along the line are supplied, as necessity demands.

The first marriage that took place in the town was that of William H. Misner and Miss Martennye J. Hawlett, who were married on July 8, 1874, by Rev. Philander Reed.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Pap Thomas Post, No. 48, G. A. R., of Ellinwood, was organized May 5, 1882, with thirty-seven charter members. The first officers of the Post were: W. H. Misner, P. C.; W. W. Shannon, S. V.; W. H. Blair, J. V.; O. M. Dotson, Surg.; G. W. Ashton, Adjt.; A. Johnson, O. D.; A. B. Lynch, O. G.; G. W. Barngrover, Q. M., and John McDowell, chaplain. On January 1, 1883, the Post had a membership of seventy-four, and its present officers are: J. T. Spring, P. C.; J. K. Bennett, S. V.; W. N. Halsey, J. V.; O. M. Dotson, Surg.; G. W. Ashton, Adjt.; Enoch Beneflel, O. D.; C. Wiegandt, O. G.; J. H. Craig, Q. M.; W. H. Blair, S. M.; A. A. German, Q. M. S.; John McDowell, chaplain.

Ellinwood Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Ellinwood, organized U. D. 1882. F. P. Dunn, W. M., and T. L. Powers, Sec'y.

The Ellinwood Express was established at Ellinwood, in Barton County, early in 1878, by the Ellinwood Express Company, with Thomas L. Powers as editor and manager, which position on the paper he still occupies. The Express is a six-column folio weekly, Republican in politics, and has a circulation of about 500.

Ellinwood is a live town, containing about 600 inhabitants, four-fifths of whom are Germans. It is almost a German town exclusively, and everything is conducted according to German ideas. The business men, with scarcely an exception, are all German. They have their saloons, where they meet for conviviality, and their brewery where their beer is manufactured. The people, generally, are frugal, industrious, and prosperous, and manifest a spirit of considerable enterprise. There are two churches in the town, one German Catholic, and one German Lutheran; three hotels, Commercial, City and Avery House. Business is represented by five general merchandising stores, two drug stores, two hardware, two millinery establishments, one jeweler, one dealer in agricultural implements, two harness shops, one bank, two lumber yards, several restaurants, one furniture dealer, and various other establishments engaged in miscellaneous business. Ellinwood became a city of the third class in 1881, its first Mayor being F. A. Steckel. The town is located on the A., T. & S. Fe road, 209 miles west from Topeka, the State capital; 269 from Kansas City, and eleven miles east of Great Bend, the county seat of Barton County.

HARVEY COUNTY.

LOCATION AND GENERAL FEATURES.

HARVEY County is situated on the eastern line of the central belt of counties in the State, about seventy-five miles north of the Indian Territory, and about one hundred and ten miles south of the Nebraska State line, being only about thirty miles in a southeasterly direction from the geographical center of the State. It is bounded on the north by McPherson and Marion; east, Marion and Butler; south, Sedgwick, and on the west by Reno County. The county contains fifteen congressional townships, is thirty miles from east to west, eighteen from north to south, and ranks fourth in being one of the smallest counties in the State. Harvey is also the center of population in the "Garden of Kansas," and its chances are favorable that with its superior advantages it will become, eventually, the center of population in the State.

The surface soil of Harvey is similar to that of other counties in the immediate vicinity, being a rich, black sandy loam, strongly impregnated with gypsum and lime, and varies in depth upon the uplands from two to ten feet, and upon the bottoms from three to thirty feet. The subsoil is very porous and underlaid with gypsum, which accounts for its remarkable productiveness. The entire county slopes gently to the southeast, about one-half being upland and the remainder being equally divided between first and second bottom.

Harvey is one of the best watered counties in the State The great Arkansas River flow through the southwestern corner, while the Little Arkansas enters the county from the north and flows southeast through the townships of Alta, Garden, Halstead, Lakin and Sedgwick. Tributary to this stream, and watering various parts of the county, are Turkey, Black Kettle, Kisawa, Sand, Jester, the three Emmets and Gooseberry creeks. In addition to these there are Doyle, Wildcat, Gypsum, Gester and two branches of the West White River, important tributaries of Walnut River. These streams are, in all seasons of the year, fed by numerous springs and minor tributaries. Between the two rivers are found several beautiful lakes, which afford abundance of pure water. From ten to fifteen feet on the bottoms, which never overflow, and from twenty to forty feet on the uplands, is the usual depth for sinking wells.

With an altitude of 1,500 feet above the sea level, and its latitudinal location being traversed from east to west by the 38th parallel of north latitude, Harvey County has a climate similar to that of Central Kentucky, Southern Virginia and Delaware. No malaria is noticeable, and with short winters and summers soothed by the everlasting Kansas zephyr, diseases peculiar to damp climates are never contracted. From the nature of the soil and climate, all products common to the North and South can be raised here, including grains, cereals, grasses and fruits.

A few statistical points as to Harvey County's prosperity show that out of 345,600 acres, 208,472 acres are in farms; assessed valuation on taxable property in county, $2,183,141.64; value of animals slaughtered, 1879—$42,141; 1881—$120,493; wool clip, 1878, 8,040 pounds; 1879, 13,134 pounds; 1881, 32,116 pounds; artificial forest in county, 2,500 acres. In 1874 there were 1,568 acres planted in winter wheat, which yielded 25,068 bushels, and in the same year 3,590 acres of spring wheat, yielding 48,104 bushels. In 1882 there were 49,748 acres in winter wheat, yielding 1,243,700 bushels, and only 443 acres of spring wheat, yielding 5,316 bushels. In 1874, out of 13,178 acres of corn planted, 65,890 bushels were harvested. In 1882, out of 61,839 acres planted, 1,236,780 bushels were harvested. In 1874, 2,757 acres of oats in cultivation, yielded 68,195 bushels. In 1882, 4,536 acres in cultivation, yielded 337,440 bushels. Other products have increased in proportion. Population in 1875, 5,046; in 1880, 11,454; increase in five years, 6,408; in 1882, 11,486; increase in seven years, 6,440.

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

From various sources it has been shown that H. Nieman, who took up a claim on the West White Water in the present township of Richland, in June 1869, was the first bona fide settler in what is now known as Harvey County. It has also been shown that certain parties had located claims prior to that date, but were not actual settlers. Mr. Nieman was followed in July of the same year by Wm. Lawrence and Hubbard Wilcox, who settled in the immediate vicinity. In the fall of 1869 Wm. McOwen, Charles Schaefer, John N. Corgan, W. T. Wetherel, John Wright and S. Decker located on and in the vicinity of what is now Sedgwick City.

The early settlement of Harvey County by townships, as given by Judge R. W. P. Muse, in his history of Harvey County, is to the effect that Lakin Township, was settled early as June, 1869, by Messrs. Kimball and Howard, who located on Section 7; Macon Township, at the mouth of the three Emma creeks, in the summer of 1869, by Geo. F. Perry, Wm. Cleveland, M. Alexander and Seth Goodley, who established a cattle ranche; Richland Township was inhabited by Messrs. Nieman, Lawrence and Wilcox, until June, 1870, when A. G. Richardson, present County Commissioner, came and purchased the claims of Lawrence and Wilcox, and made a permanent location. Other settlers in the township were C. S. Fink, July 3 1870; R. W. Denny, September 18, 1870, and Joel and Jesse Parker, H. W. Bailey, B. P. Parks, S. Saylor, T. Ezra, R. Smith in October, 1870; Darlington Township—Edward Doty, Thomas Winn, July, 1870; C. E. Berry, August, 1870; E. Marks, O. B. Hildreth, Wm. Geary and I. Stockwell, on Section 4, in October, 1870; they were followed by O. B. Gingress and Jas. Allen and others in the fall of the same year; Garden and Alta townships were first settled by a French colony of ten persons, who located in Alta Township, on Turkey Creek, in 1869-70. In the fall of 1870 the settlement was augmented by Palmer and Daniel Heath and others. On the Little Arkansas River, in Garden Township, an Irish settlement was formed early in 1870, and increased September 12, 1870, by F. P. and A. E. Munch; Newton Township—in February, 1871, A.W. Baker, Miles Davids and Joshua Perkins; Highland Township—in March, 1871, by John Hengst, C. W. Patterson, J. V. Sharp, H. Beery and F. Livingston, followed in April by J. S. and F. W. H. Hackney, J. C., W. E. and J.M. Johnston, R. T. Elwood, J. L. Caveny, W. Davis and others; Lake Township—in March, 1871, by Jas. McMurray, Jas. Patterson, John Gorgas and others; Burrton Township—by John W. Blades and others in April, 1871; Emma Township—in April, 1871, by Wm. and Chas. Bean, E. C. Munger, G. Webster and others; Walton Township—in March, 1871, by Theodore Kline and family; Halstead Township—in September, 1870, by John N. Corgan, who had sold his claim where Sedgwick City now stands, and located near present town of Halstead. He was followed in October by G. L. Cooper, J. Schoonover, A. Olson, Allen Miller, L. D. and A. Brewer; Pleasant Township—in January, 1871, by John Harlan, J. and P. Ray, L. B. Owen, D. E. Sheldon; in February, H. D. and C. Kettle, D. Denny, S. Chamberlain, S. A. Powell.

By consulting the biographical department of this work the reader will find many other names of the early settlers of this county, who joined the hardy class of pioneers and left their Eastern homes to face the disadvantages and hardships of a frontier life. This county was then but a "wild sea of waving grasses," the monotony of which was now and then relieved by the sight of immense herds of cattle, controlled by Texan cow-boys, on their way to the nearest shipping point—Abilene. At this time large herds of buffalo—controlled by no one—were found in the western portion of the county, especially in the immediate vicinity of where Burrton now stands, between the two Arkansas rivers. The last one was killed in the county in 1875, in the Prouty neighborhood, in Macon Township. Harvey County has been largely settled by that thrifty class of foreigners, the Mennonites. The immigration commenced to this county early as 1872. To induce this, committees were sent here from various counties and States to ascertain facts necessary for a future settlement. They are found in almost every portion of the county, but particularly in Halstead Township. As a class, they are valuable additions towards promoting a steady growth in all business pursuits, but more so from an agricultural point of view.

The first birth in Harvey County was that of Rosa A., daughter of Charles Schaefer, August 12, 1870, in Sedgwick Township. The first male birth in the county also occurred in Sedgwick, February 13, 1871, being that of Henry, son of P. M. Morgan. Sedgwick, being the oldest settled town in the county, claims the first school building, erected in 1870; the first flouring mill, erected in 1871, by the Sedgwick Steam Power Company, and the first death, that of an unknown man, by shooting, in the fall of 1870. The first celebration of our nation's independence occurred at Richardson's Grove on the West White Water, July 4, 1871. Seventy persons were present. Religious services were held early as July, 1871, at Newton, by Rev. Mr. Overstreet, of the Presbyterian denomination. The first passenger train entered Newton, July 17, 1871. June 16, 1871, a severe wind and rain storm swept over Harvey County, and assuming the violence of a hurricane, destroyed much property. October 30, of the same year, a terrific storm of hail, sleet and snow passed over the county from the North, destroying hundreds of cattle and occasioning much suffering. The gloomiest period in the history of Harvey County, occurred in August, 1874, at which time that terrible scourge, the grasshopper, made its appearance. This pest in countless millions were first noticed August 7, and but a few days had passed when not a vestage of vegetation of any kind was to be seen. Many were obliged to abandon their hard earned homes and seek employment, to support their families. All business was practically suspended. But with the retreat of the insect came a renewed determination by the people not to falter in the advancement of the county, and to-day the result is noticeable by the intelligent observer.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad was completed through the county during the summer of 1871. The road enters the county in the northeast corner and runs in a southwesterly direction to Newton, from which place its course is nearly due west. It passes through the townships of Walton, Highland, Newton, Macon, Halstead and Burrton, and leaves the county eight miles north of the southern boundary. Its principal stations are Walton, Newton, Halstead and Burrton.

Early in June, 1871, the Wichita & Southwestern Railroad Company was organized, with the following officers and directors: J. R. Mead, Pres.; William Griefferstein, Treas.; H. C. Sluss, Sec'y; S. H. Kohn, J. M. Steele, S. C. Johnson, C. H. Smith, George Schlieter, C. F. Gilbert, T. J. Peters, F. J. Fulton and R. W. P. Muse. At an election held August 11, 1871, bonds to the amount of $200,000 were voted for and carried by 330 majority. Newton being made the initial point, the contract was let, and the road completed to Wichita in a few months. Sedgwick City, in Harvey County, is the principal station.

The Memphis & Newton Railroad Company was incorporated August 15, 1872, but at this point the corporation became defunct. September 1, 1872, the Newton, King City & Ellsworth Railroad Company was organized. In 1873 a preliminary survey was made from Ellsworth to Newton, after which the road followed the fate of its predecessor.

The St. Louis & San Francisco railroad enters the county at Sedgwick City, and running northwest strikes the main line of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway at Halstead.

COUNTY ORGANIZATION

Although Harvey County was settled as early as 1869, the question of its being organized as a county was not agitated until the fall of 1871, when a Republican convention was called to nominate a county ticket for Sedgwick County, and this being a part of that county, delegates were elected to attend the said convention, to be held at Wichita. At this convention, the number of delegates from Newton was cut down from seven to three, and being dissatisfied with this, the Newton delegates, followed by the Black Kettle and Grant township delegates, withdrew and nominated a separate ticket, which was partially elected. This increasing the feeling for the organization of a new county, a meeting was held at Newton, December 13, 1871, at the office of Muse & Spivey, for the purpose of effecting a distinct organization. Among those present were J. T. Davis, R. M. Spivey, L. E. Steele, C. S. Bowman, James Sprague, J. C. Johnson, D. Ainsworth and R. W. P. Muse. A plan was adopted to form a new county, to consist of sixteen congressional townships, ten to be taken from Sedgwick County, three from McPherson County, and three from Marion County, with Newton as the county seat. According to this plan, the territory embraced in the limits of Burton, Halstead, Darlington, Lake, Lakin, Macon, Newton, Pleasant, Richland, Sedgwick, Alta, Highland, Emma, and Garden townships, was organized by an act of Legislature, February 29, 1872, and named Harvey, in honor of James M. Harvey, then Governor of Kansas.

Gov. Harvey appointed the following named county officers to officiate in their respective positions until their successors could be duly elected and qualified, to wit: County Clerk, H. W. Bailey; County Treasurer, C. D. Munger; Probate Judge, A. Markwell; Register of Deeds, R. H. Brown; Sheriff, W. B. Chamberlin; Coroner, C. C. Furley; County Attorney, C. S. Bowman; Clerk of District Court, J. B. Cunningham; County Surveyor, W. Brown; County Superintendent, Ellen Webster; County Commissioners, A. G. Richardson, Amos Prouty, and J. R. Skinner.

The first election for county officers was held May 20, 1872. At this election Newton was made the county seat. All of the county officials appointed by Gov. Harvey were elected, with the exception of John R. Skinner, County Commissioner, whose place was filled by the election of B. Thompson, of Halstead Township. At a meeting of the County Commissioners, held May 24, 1872, to canvass the vote cast May 20, it was found that the poll books of Sedgwick and Newton townships showed on their face a fraudulent vote, and it was voted by the Board that they be rejected, which was done, and the result was shown as above stated.

At the first regular meeting of the Board of County Commissioners, held April 16, 1872, it being mustered in by C. S. Bowman, Notary Public, A. G. Richardson, was chosen Chairman. The principal business transacted was that of dividing the county into civil townships and giving them appropriate names. The county was divided into municipal townships, each being the size of a congressional township, and were named as follows: Newton Township, from the city of Newton, the county seat; Darlington Township, in honor of its early settlers, who came from Darlington, La Fayette Co., Wis.; Sedgwick Township, after the town of Sedgwick; Lakin Township, in honor of D. L. Lakin, then Land Commissioner of the A. T. & S. Fe R. R.; Lake Township, from the beautiful lakes it contains; Burton Township, was changed from Valley, in honor of the town of Burton, Halstead Township, in honor of the city of Halstead; Emma Township, after the three creeks of the same name, so called in memory of a "beautiful young lady" who died and was buried on the bank of one of the streams; Alta Township, in memory of a deceased daughter of Judge R. W. P. Muse; Macon Township, after a county of that name in Illinois; Walton Township, in honor of one of the stockholders of the A. T. & S. F. R. R.; Garden, Richland, Highland and Pleasant townships, so named from their location and quality of soil. A petition to annex Walton and Highland townships was circulated by John C. Johnson, which was signed by three-fourths of the voters in the two townships. On the presentation of the petition to the State Legislature, by Representative H. A. Ensign, and a committee from Newton, composed of J. T. Davis, H. C. Ashbaugh, L. E. Steele, C. D. Munger, R. M. Spivey and J. B. Dickey, a bill was passed March 5, 1873, which authorized the annexation of the two townships to Harvey County.

At the November election, in 1872, U. S. Grant received 563 votes, and Horace Greeley 187 votes, for president. The following county officers were elected: Dr. H. A. Ensign, Representative; D. W. Bunker, Clerk; C. D. Munger, Treasurer; A. Markwell, Probate Judge; H. W. Hubbard, Register of Deeds; Dr. S. Foster, Coroner; C. S. Bowman, Attorney; J. B. Cunningham, District Clerk; L. H. Hamlin, Surveyor; F. L. Faats, Superintendent of Public Instruction; B. C. Arnold, A. G. Richardson and T. B. Floyd, Commissioners. At an election held November 4, 1873, A. G. Richardson was elected Representative; I. N. Stout, Coroner. The County Board of Commissioners refused to canvass the votes cast for the election of the other county officers. At this election bonds were voted to the amount of $3,000, for the purpose of establishing a County Poor Farm, $2,000 in bonds were issued and Harvey County now has an excellent institution for that purpose. By a decision of the Supreme Court, October 3, 1874, a new Board of County Commissioners, composed of Amos Prouty, J. Hollister and T. R. Oldham, assumed control of the county affairs. At the November election, in 1879, bonds to the amount of $6,000 was voted for the purpose of erecting a county jail, which was subsequently done. The vote on the Prohibitory Amendment in Harvey County, November 2, 1880, stood, for, 1,[illegible] against, 858.

We make the following extracts from a "History of [illegible]arvey County," compiled by Judge R. W. P. Muse, who in speaking of the condition of the early county records, says: * * "The time elapsing between the organization of the county, and the fall of 1875, may be classed as the dark period in the history of Harvey County." He still further adds, in referring from this time to September 6, 1875, that "nearly all important papers which should have been filed in that office (County Clerk's), are missing, and even the minutes of the meetings of the County Commissioners, have been imperfectly kept, or entirely omitted. * * * * All this while the affairs of the county had been carelessly and badly (if not criminally) conducted. It was openly charged that a "Tweed Ring" had been formed with headquarters in some of the county offices. It was also charged, and generally believed, that large amounts of money had been wrongfully issued in the shape of warrants and paid out without the sanction of law. It was further reported that the County Commissioners, or at least, a majority of them, had met and cancelled, and destroyed some $10,000 of this redeemed scrip, and no sufficient record of the amount thus issued and destroyed, had been kept. Excitement ran high—indignation meetings were held and efforts made to have the books of the county investigated, and if found as charged, to punish the guilty parties, but as the books had been loosely kept in many instances, no record was made whatever of important transactions, it was found up-hill business to commence proceedings against the suspected officials, and the matter was finally dropped."

The official county roster for 1882-83, is as follows: Clerk, John C. Johnson; Treas., H. W. Bunker; Reg. of Deeds, H. Mathias; Dist. Clerk, W. J. Puett; Probate Judge, J. H. Campbell; Supt. Pub. Ins., H. C. McQuiddy; Surveyor, James Dawson; Attorney, W. E. Lathy; Sheriff, John Waler; Coroner, H. A. Ensign; Commissioners, D. W. Woodward, W. D. Tourtillott, A. G. Richardson.

COUNTY SCHOOLS AND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Owing to the imperfect records found in the County Superintendent's office, it has been impossible to get any correct data, concerning the schools of Harvey County, prior to 1877. In 1877, there were in Harvey County 66 organized school districts, and 2,485 persons within the school age; 1,703 pupils were enrolled, and 81 teachers employed, at an average salary of $33 for males, and $25.50 for females. During that year six schoolhouses were erected, making the total number fifty-nine. To build these six school houses, $10,409 in bonds were issued, making the total bonded indebtedness $45,389. For school purposes $27,266.13 was received, $20,183.59 of which was paid out for expenses. In 1882, there was 67 organized districts in the county, and 4,140 persons of school age; 3,309 pupils were enrolled, and 88 teachers employed, at an average salary of $36.59 for males, and $31.09 for females. Bonds were issued to the amount of $7,775, which made the bonded indebtedness $34,539.30. With sixty-six school buildings in use, and including all school property, represents a value of $72,100. Of the $37,891.96 received for school purposes, $32,629.35 was expended in promoting the educational interests. In addition to the public schools, there are many private schools, under the auspices of the Mennonites and other denominations, in which both the German and English language are taught. Considering her size, Harvey County is unsurpassed in her school facilities.

The Harvey County Agricultural and Mechanical Society was incorporated with a capital stock of $3,000, November 14, 1872, with A. G. Richardson, Pres; E. Commons, Vice-Pres.; D. Ainsworth, Treas.; and H. C. Ashbaugh, Sec. The society purchased eighty acres of land one and one-half miles west of Newton, and held the first fair in October, 1873. In 1874, during the grasshopper scourge, no fair was held. From 1875 to 1878 fairs were held on grounds north of the city. In 1879, a forty-acre tract was purchased one mile southwest of the city, and a fair held. In the spring of 1880, the Golden Gate printing office was burned, and with it the records of the society. A new charter was obtained, and the society entered upon its present organization. Present officers: H. A. Ensign, Pres.; W. H. Cole, Vice-Pres.; A. B. Lemmon, Sec.; E. L. Parris, Treas. The Board of Directors, numbering eighteen members, include many of the successful men in the county.

NEWTON.

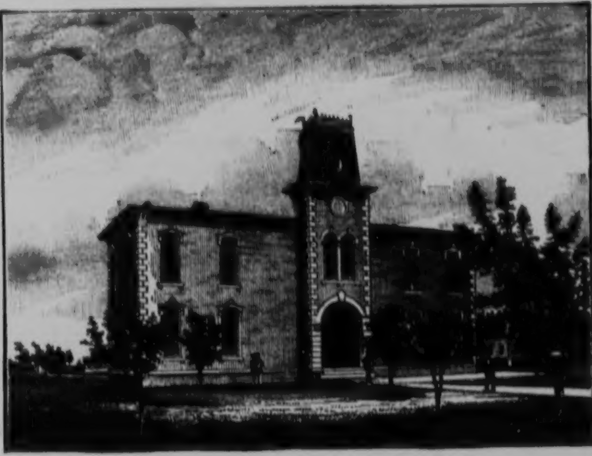
Newton, the metropolis and county seat of Harvey County, is geographically located in the center of the eastern portion of the county, on the east bank of Sand Creek. Besides being the principal station on the main line of the A., T. & S. F. Ry., east of Emporia; it is the inital point of the Caldwell Branch of that road. With its natural advantages, together with the enterprising class of citizens with which it is largely peopled, and surrounded by a thrifty class of farmers; it has, from a small village, grown to a city of the second class. The business portion of the city is built up in a substantial manner with handsome stone and brick blocks, which would be a credit to larger cities, and in the suburbs are located fine private residences, amply testifying to the taste and refinement of its inhabitants.

GENERAL HISTORY.

The present town site of Newton twelve years ago, was unoccupied. The habitation of man had not yet been built, and the broad and fertile prairies around, were untrod, save by a few hardy pioneers, en route West. When Judge R. W. P. Muse made his first trip to this point, May 10, 1871, he found occupying a tent on the west bank of Sand Creek, the late John Sebastian, and on the town site were located Peter Luhn, Joel T. Davis, L. E. Steele, H. Lovett, Isaac Stockwell, Robert Walton, Dr. Gaston Boyd, H. W. Hubbard, E. L. Lapham, W. A. Russell, S. J. Bentley, J. J. Barker, B. C. Arnold, Louis Foy, J. T. Davis, J. Rynierson and a few others. R. M. Spivey, David and William Maxwell, —— Bennett, James Millis and W. P. Sterm arrived during the month of May, 1871. The greater portion of those above mentioned located in March of the same year.

The first frame building on the town site was moved from Darlington Township, the latter part of March, 1870, and was used as a blacksmith shop, by Messrs. Stockwell and Walton. The next building was erected by Peter Luhn, and known as the "Pioneer Store." About this time Davis and Steele erected a building and opened a bakery. Early in May, 1871, H. Lovett, S. J. Bentley, Muse & Spivey erected frame structures. After this new buildings went up daily and the future of the town was assured.

On the completion of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, July 17, 1871, Newton became the shipping point of the immense herds of Texas cattle which prior to this time had been driven to Abilene on the Kansas Pacific Railroad. In anticipation of this important event the population of the place was greatly augmented by the arrival of large numbers of "the only original cow-boys," saloon men, gamblers, "soiled doves," and roughs of every nationality and color. In harmony with their surroundings and character all went armed in the most approved border fashion. In that part of the city known as "Hyde Park" no less than fifteen buildings were erected and devoted to "social amusement," in which these characters figured conspicuously. Nearly every other building in the business portion was occupied by saloons, which would be named "Do Drop In," "The Side Track," "Gold Rooms," and other appellations suggestive of the times. The "cow-boy reign," which practically continued from June, 1871, to January 1, 1873, was an epitome of what has been and is now being enacted where that element predominates. As a matter of fact many persons were killed and wounded during that time, but the number has been greatly exaggerated. A careful review bearing on this point by Judge R. W. P. Muse, in his "History of Harvey County," places the total number killed as twelve. As many conflicting statements have been made on this number it has been impossible to alter the number with accuracy. It is possible and highly probable that several shooting scrapes occurred in which parties were dangerously wounded and reported killed; while it is admitted by all that the numerous shooting affairs that occurred during the "reign" were lamentable events, detrimental to the best interests of the city, it is also shown that they were confined to the rough element. Pages might be devoted to a detailed account of the various shooting scrapes occurring during that time, but a mention of the "general massacres" will prove sufficient. The affair, which terminated in the death of five of its participants and the wounding of as many more, occurred on the night of August 9, 1871, at the dancehouse of Perry Tuttle. On account of some prior difficulty between McCloskey and Jim Anderson, the latter, on the evening mentioned, entered the dancehouse with a number of his companions and shot McCloskey, who returned the fire after he was down, wounding his antagonist so badly that he afterwards died. Standing near the door was a young man, evidently in the last stages of consumption, who was a personal friend of McCloskey's. Seeing his friend down he turned and locked the door, preventing egress. Then drawing his "shooting iron" he fired into the Anderson crowd, killing three outright and wounding three or four more. As the young man, Riley, appeared to have everything his own way the affair terminated at this juncture. In this connection the first death occurred June 16, 1871, in which two cow boys, Snyder and Welsh, got into a difficulty in front of Gregory's saloon and the latter was killed.



PUBLIC SCHOOL BUILDING, NEWTON.

After the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad was completed to Dodge City and a branch to Wichita the cattle trade turned to these points, and Newton was soon free from a large proportion of the desperadoes and roughs who had so long infested it. After the return of law and order the city did not recover from the effects of its early days for nearly two years, and to still more increase the retrogressive movement a disastrous fire occurred on the evening of December 8, 1873, destroying the east side of block 38, the best business portion of the city. In April, 1875, the population of the city was 769, and of the township 293, a large decrease from the returns of 1872. During the spring and summer of 1875 the town sprang into and entered upon a new life, and in 1878 boasted of a population of over 2,000. Present estimated population (1882) 5,000.

MUNICIPAL HISTORY.

Prior to its incorporation as a city of the third class, February 22, 1872, Newton practically had no government of any kind, and even after its incorporation, during the "cow-boy reign," the majesty of the law was unheeded. At the first city election, held April 1, 1872, L. E. Steele, S. Lehman and R. C. Arnold constituted the board of canvassers. The following were elected: Mayor, James Gregory; Councilmen, E. Chamberlain, D. Hamill, Isaac Thayer, B. C. Arnott, Jno. Winram; Police Judge, M. J. Hennessy. At the first meeting of the City Council, held April 3, 1872, E. Lunn was appointed Clerk pro tem; G. Chamberlein, Treasurer; D. Skelly, Attorney; W. Brooks, Marshal; Chas. Bowman, Assistant Marshal. H. B. Lynch was appointed Clerk, in July, 1872. By a proclamation of the Governor, Newton was made a city of the second class, January 22, 1880, and, February 5, of the same year, was divided into three wards. The following named gentlemen have officiated as Mayor: 1873, H. C. McQuiddy; 1874, R. M. Spivey; 1875, J. H. Dickey; 1876, H. W. Bunker; 1877, O. B. Edgett; 1878-9 S. Saylor; 1880-1, R. C. Love; 1882-3, R. W. P. Muse.

Present city officers are: Mayor, R. W. P. Muse; Council, J. W. Helwig, H. W. Hubbard, C. L. Berry, E. B. Fowler, James Geary, R. Collins; Clerk, J. W. Edwards; Treasurer, E. L. Parris; Attorney, C. Bucher; Police Judge, Wm. Shaver; Justice of Peace, D. Feiger; Constables, R. H. Ransom, M. D. Stimmel.

Postoffice—Was established in the summer of 1871, W. A. Russell being appointed first Postmaster. He was succeeded, September 13, 1872, by William Brown, who occupied the position until October 30, 1873, when A. C. Fredericks was appointed. In 1879, H. C. Ashbaugh, the present Postmaster, received the appointment. During Frederick's administration, the office became a third class office. At this office the money order system was established, July 1, 1874, A. C. Fredericks purchasing money order No. 1, July 6, 1874.

THE PRESS AND THE SCHOOLS.

The Newton Kansan, the first number of which appeared August 22, 1872, under the editorship of H. C. Ashbaugh, was the first newspaper published in Harvey County after its organization. The paper, an eight-column folio, has been under the same management to the present time, and is Republican in politics, progressive in ideas and identified with the progress and welfare of home interests.

Newton Republican.—The first number of this paper appeared August 11, 1875, as the Harvey County News, under the management of J. E. Duncan and A. W. Moore. Duncan remained as editor until December 29, 1875. On the 28th of April, 1876, J. S. Collister purchased a half interest of Moore, and the paper was run by the new firm until December, 1876, when Moore retired, leaving Collister, who published it until the summer of 1879, he then sold his interest to C. G. Coutant, who changed the name to its present appellation. In November, 1879, the paper passed into the hands of R. W. P. Muse and R. M. Spivey, who continued its publication until June 10, 1881, when it passed into the hands of Hon. A. B. Lemmon, its present editor and proprietor. The name of the paper indicates its politics. In April, 1881, the paper was enlarged from a nine column folio to a six column quarto, its present size. The Republican is known as being one of the leading papers in the Arkansas Valley.

Newton has under the existing management one of the best school systems in southern Kansas. The first steps toward promoting her educational interests were taken August 10, 1872, when the people voted $5,000 in bonds for the erection of a brick schoolhouse. The first public school was opened August 26, 1872, by Miss Mary Boyd, and from this date educational interests have been well looked after, as the present school system will amply testify. The contract for the new building was let September 19, 1872, to W. K. Jackman, who completed it the following season. On the incorporation of the city, into a city of the second class, in January, 1880, it was divided into three wards, in which have been erected handsome and substantial structures for educational purposes. Prominent among the rest are the north and south side buildings, which are a credit to cities of ten times the size.

CHURCHES.

First Presbyterian Church was organized July 7, 1872, by Rev. J. P. Harsen, with seven members, namely, F. L. Vesta, W. R. Johnson, J. C. Johnson, James M. Johnson, Mrs. Mary Johnson, D. L. Payne and —— Calderhead. During the first two or three years the church had no regular pastor. Rev. A. E. Garrison became pastor in March, 1875, and remained until the close of 1878. In April, 1879, Rev. James H. Clark became pastor and remained until the spring of 1882. In November, the present pastor, Rev. E. J. Brown, assumed charge. The membership has increased as follows: 1872, 7 members; 1874, 12 members; 1875, 31 members; 1876, 37 members; 1877, 56 members; 1878, 66 members; 1879, 64 members; 1880, 104 members; 1881, 108 members; 1882, 102 members. During the pastorate of Rev. Garrison, the present church edifice, a frame structure, 35x50 feet, was completed at a cost of $5,000. The church has always maintained a Sabbath school. The membership of which is now 137.

Methodist Episcopal Church, was organized in the spring of 1872, by Rev. M. M. Haun, as a Mission, which embraced all of Harvey County, and included six appointments. In March, 1873, the Newton organization numbered thirty members, under the pastorate of Rev. L. F. Laverty, who remained two years. The first church edifice (now occupied by the Episcopal denomination) was a frame, 26x46 feet, and was dedicated August 3, 1873, the total cost being $2,000. Rev. Laverty was succeeded in 1875, by Rev. E. C. Brooks, who remained two years. He was succeeded by the following: Walter Oakley, one year; W. A. Dodson, one year; E. C. Brooks, one year; W. W. Woodside, one year, and Rev. N. Asher, present pastor, two years. A new stone edifice, 46x55 feet, is in process of erection, and will be completed in the spring of 1883, at a cost of $7,500. The Sabbath school has average attendance of 150 pupils. Present number of church communicants, 175.

Church of the Immaculate Conception (Catholic).—The first services of this denomination in Newton, were held by Rev. F. P. Swembergh, in 1871, in tents and car used by the construction men, in building the railroad to this point. In the latter part of 1872, Father Swembergh organized a church with four families, and commenced the erection of a stone edifice. The first building was 24x40 feet, and was completed in 1874. In 1879 an addition was made in the form of a cross, and a Parochial School established with thirty-five pupils—present membership, sixty-five. During the same year, the parsonage was built. Value of church property, $4,000. Since the establishing of the church at Newton, Father Swembergh has been in charge. Present membership, from eighty to one hundred families.

St. Matthews Church (Episcopal.)—Prior to its organization, services were held by Rev. A. Beattie, D. D., until an organization was effected in 1879. A stone edifice, 30x50 feet, was erected during the same year, at a cost of $2,500. The building was used until 1882, when on account of its imperfect construction it was torn down, and the Methodist Church purchased. The first regular pastor, Rev. Jas. Newman, officiated until October, 1880, when he was succeeded by the Rev. R. C. Talbott, who remained four months. The organization was then without a regular pastor until July, 1882, when Rev. T. L. Allen assumed the pastorate. The organization is the only one of this denomination in the county. Present membership, sixteen.

First Baptist Church was organized in the fall of 1877, by Rev. A. S. Merrifield, with about forty-three members. A frame edifice, 30 by 40 feet, was erected during the same year at a cost of about $1,400. Rev. Mr. Merrifield remained as pastor until December 1, 1882, since which time the church has been supplied by Rev. L. T. Bicknell. Present membership, 160.

Evangelical Association (German) was formed June 18, 1879, with seven members, by Rev. C. F. Erffmeyer. In the spring of 1880 the church was admitted into the Conference. A frame church edifice, 26 by 32 feet, was erected in the fall of 1879, at a cost of $2,200. September 28, 1882, this building was totally destroyed by a cyclone, while a meeting of the church was in session. All the inmates escaped without serious injury. Rev. Mr. Erffmeyer was succeeded in April, 1882, by Rev. Mr. Kiplinger, the present supply. The denomination now uses the Baptist Church. Present membership, 40.

An organization of this denomination was effected in January, 1881, with ten members, six miles west of Newton, in Macon Township, by Rev. Erffmeyer. Meetings are held in schoolhouse, District 15; Thomas Patterson, class leader. Present membership, 13.

Mennonite Church (German) was organized in 1879, with about ten members, by Elder L. Sudermann (supply), who is the present pastor. A frame church edifice, 26 by 32 feet, was completed in the spring of 1881, at a cost of $2,000 with lot. Present membership, 58.

An organization of the German Lutheran persuasion is located here, but from absence of records or reliable data a sketch is withheld.

Newton can well claim the finest depot and hotel building in the State, if not in the West. The structure known as the Arcade Building was commenced in the spring of 1880, and completed in the spring of 1882, by Muse & Spivey, at a cost of not less than $75,000. It is built of stone, veneered with brick, and has a frontage of 137½ feet on Main street and 300 feet parallel to the railroad track. It is three stories high, with basement, and is constructed according to the most approved plans of architectural science. In it are located the A., T. & S. F. R. R. waiting rooms, offices, etc. In May, 1882, the Hotel Arcade was opened by its lessee, F. Harvey; William H. Phillips, manager. The hotel, besides including one of the largest railroad eating houses on the road, contains over 120 rooms. The building is not only a credit to Newton, but to the enterprising men who erected it.

Opera House Block was erected in 1878, by Seaton, Muse, Spivey & Co., at a cost of $20,000. The building is a two-story stone structure, 50x85 feet. The second floor is used for theatrical purposes, being provided with a stage and dressing-room. Seating capacity, 1,000. G. W. Seaton, manager.

MANUFACTURES.

Newton City Mills, owned by Elias Wood, were erected in October, 1875, by E. Wood & Co., the citizens of Newton contributing $1,000 towards the enterprise, which was completed at a cost of $14,000. The mill is a three-story frame, and has a capacity of fifty barrels daily.

Monarch Steam Mills were built in 1879, by D. Hamill, present proprietor. The mill is a brick structure, 40x50 feet, with five floors. Original capacity, three run of buhrs. Present capacity, five run of buhrs, and two sets of rolls, or 150 barrels daily. The enterprise required an outlay of $30,000.

Newton Fence Factory, established in July, 1882, by H. Dills, who uses the Fry patent. Five men employed, and two machines in use. Besides these industries, Newton has a foundry—Globe Iron Works—a creamery, to be opened in the spring of 1883, and the usual complement of cigar factories, carriage and furniture works. Newton has, although only ten years old, progressed rapidly in its manufacturing interests, and before another decade has passed, its manufacturing industries will make it one of the leading cities of southwestern Kansas.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

H. C. ASHBAUGH located in Newton in July, 1872, and established the Kansan, the sole paper in the county for several years. In March, 1879, he was appointed Postmaster, having previously held various offices in town and city. Mr. Ashbaugh was born in Worthington, Ohio, August 27, 1844, and at the age of four years moved to Iowa with his parents. At the age of eleven he commenced learning the printer's trade at West Union, Iowa, continuing at the case a large share of the time until the spring of 1861. September 23, 1861, he enlisted in Company H, Forty-fifth Illinois Infantry, and served in that regiment until the fall of Vicksburg, when he was transferred to the printing department of the army by Gen. McPherson, where he remained until nearly the close of the war, afterward settling for a time in Mercer County, Ill., where he published a paper called the New Boston Herald. In 1865 he went to St. Louis and worked on the St. Louis Republican until the fall of 1869, thence to Wilton Junction, Iowa, and bought the Wilton Chronicle, which he ran eighteen months; thence to Newton, Iowa, where he purchased a half interest in the Newton Free Press, and where he remained six months; and subsequently, the Des Moines Valley Reporter, at Bentonsport, Iowa; coming from the latter place to Topeka, and thence to Newton, Kan. Mr. Ashbaugh was married at Rock Island, Ill., April 27, 1870, to Emily E. JOHN C. JOHNSTON, County Clerk, was born in Indiana County, Pa., July 1, 1846. During the war of the Rebellion he served in Company A, Sixty first Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and served with his regiment in the Third Brigade, Second Division, Sixth Army Corps in the Army of the Potomac. Was in a number of engagements, among others the Wilderness and Spottsylvania Court House. In the last engagement he was severely wounded with a fragment of the largest sized field shell, which tore his cheek entirely away. This was about sunrise on the morning of May 10, 1864. He was left on the field lifeless and supposed to be dead. In the evening his company commander, who was a friend of his father's, sent a detail of four men with a stretcher, with orders to get his body and bury it, and to mark the spot so that if his father wished he could have the body sent home. When cutting away his belt and accoutrements he came to and when told what the orders were he coolly informed the detail that "he guessed he was not the chap they were looking after." He was removed to the operating table, a mile in the rear. The surgeon at first refused to dress his wound, but on passing him the second time he insisted on having his wound dressed. The surgeon placed him on a table and examined his wound and informed him that they might as well cut the head off as to try to patch up a gash of that kind. He told the surgeon if he could put on a better head than the old one to go to work. He was then placed under the influence of chloroform and the bones removed. When he came too the sun was almost down and when asked to be sent to Fredericksburg the surgeon, after looking, reported the ambulances all filled. Just then the supply wagon for the ambulance train was passing when he requested to be allowed permission to ride in it. The surgeon admiring his pluck asked the driver if he would take him on his load of feed. He said "yes, jump on." They helped him on and he made the trip to Fredericksburg that night. The distance was sixteen miles and a good part of the way was over a corduroy road. He landed about daylight. It was then raining hard and the town was full of sick and wounded, estimated at 30,000 men. He was left lying on the sidewalk with several others who were in a dying condition. The sun came out after the rain fearful hot and he remained lying on the sidewalk too weak [illegible] get on his feet until noon, when the steward of his regiment passing recognized him and helped him into the fourth story of an unfinished tobacco warehouse where he remained until the evening of May 22. Most of the time was spent lying on the floor on one-half of a rubber blanket, with his shoes tied together with the strings, the toes touching each other, and placed under the blanket for a pillow and about three yards of shelter tent thrown over him. At that time it was impossible to get supplies from Washington on account of bushwackers capturing the trains. On the evening of May 22 he started for Alexandria. The train was detained over night near Acquia Creek landing and in the evening of the 23d of May he landed at Methodist Church Hospital, Alexandria, Va. He remained in the service until after the surrender and close of the war in 1865. He returned to his native home and in March, 1871, he immigrated to Kansas, locating some four miles northeast of Newton. In 1879 he was elected County Clerk and re-elected in 1881. Mr. Johnston is Second Lieutenant in Company K, Second Regiment Kansas State Militia, and a member of the G. A. R., also a member of the First Presbyterian Church. R. W. P. Muse

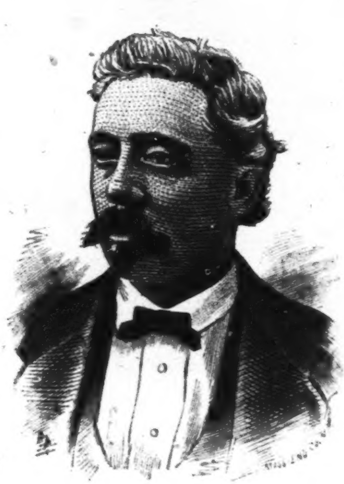
JUDGE ROBERT W. P. MUSE, was born in Harrison County, W. Va., April 22, 1821, and when fourteen years of age went to Savannah, Ga., where he attended school at White's Academy, and also at Beard's High School in St. Mary's; returning to Ohio, he completed his education at Howe's Academy, at Zanesville, at which place he commenced the study of law, completing his legal education in the office of the Hon. Isaac Parrish, at McConnellsville. He was admitted to the bar at Newark, Ohio, in 1845, and commenced practice at McConnellsville, the same year. In 1848, he was elected Prosecuting Attorney of Morgan County, to which office he was re-elected in 1850. He removed to Zanesville, in 1852, and purchased the Zanesville Aurora, which paper he edited and published as a daily and weekly journal for four years. Selling his paper he resumed the practice of law in that city, which he continued until the breaking out of the great Rebellion, when, with characteristic promptness he recruited a company for the three months' service, and tendered his services to Governor Dennison, who promptly accepted them and assigned his company to duty as Company A, Fifteenth Ohio Volunteers. His regiment was at once sent into West Virginia, where they assisted in re-building the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, from Wheeling to Grafton, the Rebels having destroyed it. His regiment was at Phillippi, and supported Heckman's Battery, which there fired the first shot of the campaign. Having surprised the enemy in camp they defeated them and drove them back to Rich Mountain, where they again routed them and followed them to Carricksford, where they again defeated them, killed their commander, Gen. Garnett, and so utterly demoralized the Rebel command that they disbanded. Returning home at the expiration of his term of enlistment (three months) the Judge at once raised another company for three years service, and again entered the army as Captain of Company A, Sixteenth Ohio Volunteers. Was promoted to Major, and served with his regiment in all the engagements in which it participated until 1863, when he resigned his commission and returned home and resumed the practice of law at Zanesville. He was elected Probate Judge on the Union ticket the same year, to which office he was re-elected in 1866. Declining a re-nomination, in 1869, he moved to Kansas, locating at Abilene, where he purchased considerable property. In 1871, he moved to Newton, (his present home) and took charge of the Land Department of the A., T. & S. F. R. R., at that place. He also engaged in the lumber business and began building up the city, and has done much to improve his city and county. He edited and published the Newton Republican for several years, and has occupied a prominent part in the politics of the State and County, having been elected presidential elector on the Hayes ticket, in 1876, and again on the Garfield ticket, in 1880, on which occasion he was also elected to bear the vote to Washington. He is the present Mayor of the city and is largely interested in the Harvey County Saving's Bank. The Judge has retired from active law practice, and is now engaged in building and improving his property in Newton. He has large property interests in Newton and Harvey County. Owns one-half of the Arcade Block, the finest building of the kind in the State, costing over $60,000, and has done much toward making Newton the beautiful and prosperous city which it now is. The town only ten years old now having a population of nearly 5,000. He is the author of the History of Harvey County, is an able writer, a fluent speaker and a man of untiring energy, is a member of the Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, also of the I. O. O. F. Judge M. is emphatically a self-made man, having worked his way through his scholastic course, and in everything which he undertakes displays an unflagging zeal which insures success, is ever ready to aid any project which will benefit the people, and is independent and outspoken in advocating what he deems to be right, and denouncing that which he believes to be wrong.



S. A. Newhall

In 1861, he enlisted in Company G, Twenty-sixth Regiment, Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and served with his company and regiment in all the campaigns and battles, commencing at Island No. 10, participated in the battles of Corinth, Iuka, Vicksburg and Jackson, Miss., and in the Atlanta campaign from Mission Ridge, through where for ninety days they were under fire more or less, and from there to sea, under Sherman, and north through the Carolinas, and ending with the battle of Bentonville, where he was wounded; was also wounded at Iuka, and was mustered out at Louisville, Ky., in 1865. Was married in 1850, and his wife died in 1863. Was married again in 1866, to Miss Belletha Miller. They have one child—Ada. He is now Treasurer of School Board.

HON. SAMUEL RITTER PETERS was born in Walnut Township, Pickaway Co., Ohio, August 16, 1842. His father was Lewis S. Peters, who was one of the early settlers of that State, and who is still living in that township and county. His mother was the daughter of Henry Ritter, also an early settler; she died in September, 1861. The early life, until reaching the age of seventeen, was spent on the farm, attending the district school during the winter months. At the age of seventeen, he entered the preparatory class in the Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware, Ohio. Here he remained until in October, 1861, having reached the Sophomore year, when he enlisted in the Seventy-third Ohio Infantry, as a private in Company E. In March, 1863, he was promoted to Second Lieutenant; in March, 1864, he was promoted to First Lieutenant, and appointed Adjutant of the regiment, and in January, 1865, he was promoted to Captain, and assigned to the command of Company A. June 8, 1865, he was mustered out of the service. His regiment was a part of the army of Virginia, in the early period of the war, and afterward, a portion of the army of the Potomac in the Second Brigade, Second Division, Eleventh Army Corps. In September, 1863, his Corps was transferred to the Army of the Cumberland, and was reorganized, forming with the Twelfth Army Corps, the Twentieth Army Corps of Sherman's army. With the exception of about two months in 1862, when absent from the regiment on recruiting service, he was present with his regiment in every engagement in which his corps participated, and never lost a day's duty. In September, 1865, he entered the law department of the University of Michigan, and graduated in March, 1867. He at once located in Memphis, Scotland Co., Mo., and began the practice of law. In August, 1868, he purchased the Memphis Reveille, a radical Republican paper, and continued as its editor, until his removal to Kansas, in March, 1873. He resumed the practice of law in Marion Center, Marion Co., Kan. In 1872, he was a Delegate from Missouri, to the National Republican Convention, at Philadelphia, being an ardent supporter of Gen. Grant for renomination, and also of Henry Wilson, for the position of Vice-President. From 1870 to 1872, he was a member of the Republican State Central Committee of Missouri, and a firm and unyielding opponent of the Brown and Schurz faction of the party. After his removal to Kansas, he continued to practice law until he became Judge of the Ninth Judicial District, to which position he was appointed, March 8, 1875. In November, prior to this, he was elected to the State Senate, and resigned his position in that body, to accept the appointment as Judge. In November, 1875, he was elected Judge of the District, and was again re-elected in 1879, both times without opposition. In September 19, 1876, he removed to Newton, it being a more central point in his district. In June, 1872, he was nominated as one of the Republican candidates for Congressman at large, and in November was elected, receiving the largest vote cast for any one candidate in the State. The reapportionment of the State into seven Congressional Districts, in March, 1883, placed him in the Seventh Congressional District. Judge Peters was married at Circleville, Ohio, April 18, 1867, to Amelia C. Doan, a native of that place. Fletcher Bright Peters, born April 18, 1868, is their only child. REV. FELIX PROSPER SWEMBERGH, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church at Newton, was born June 2, 1845, in the town of Cassel, France. His early life was spent among the primitive Flemish people, who inhabit this region, so rich in beautiful scenery and active life. There he received his primary education. He subsequently entered the Imperial Lycee of Lille, whence he turned his steps to the petit Seminaire of Cambray. At the close of his classical and philosophical education he pursued a medical course of study at Paris, whence, at the end of two years, he resumed his theological studies at the Seminary of the Foreign Missions, attending the lectures of the celebrated Dr. Freppel, at the Sorbonne. The Garibaldian war against Papacy took him to Italy, where he arrived on the day of the battle of Castelfidardo; too late, however, to take an active part in the defence of the Holy See. He then entered the Colonial Seminary of the Holy Ghost, Paris, from which he graduated August, 1865. His next move was to the Vicariate Apostolic, of Kansas, where he was received by Rt. Rev. Dr. Miege, S. J., and assigned to the new Catholic Seminary of the Assumption, at Topeka. Too young for ordination, he divided his time between teaching and reviewing his theology, until sacred orders were conferred upon him. As deacon he rendered valuable services to the pastor of the church, and the early settlers of Topeka will not soon forget his sermons. He was ordained Priest on the 29th of June, 1868, and remained at Topeka, as assistant to Rev. J. H. Defouri, and vice-president of the Seminary. July, 1869, he was removed to Solomon City and assigned to the duty of attending to the scattered settlements of the frontier, north and south of the K. P. R. R., west of Abilene. Coming in contact with the worst elements of humanity in those days, when the Indians, Wild Bill and kindred characters held high carnival among the early settlers, he so worked his Master's cause as to earn the good will and respect of all. He often journeyed alone across the then bleak prairies that stretch from the Smoky Hill to the Arkansas rivers as far as Forts Sarah, Larned and Dodge, penetrating even into the Indian Territory, in the wake of Custer's dragoons, nothing daunted by the mutilated skeletons on the Indians' war path. In the year 1870 we find him at Prairie City, where he builds a residence. In 1871 he erected the Catholic Church at Ottawa, every vestige of which a destructive tornado swept away. In 1872 he is again entrusted with the care of the frontier settlements, with headquarters at Wichita. All southwestern Kansas becomes the field of his labors. Having built a residence at Wichita, renovated the church, and laid the foundation of another church at Newton, he is sent, March 1873, to Lawrence, whence, almost immediately, he is removed to Emporia, with charge of all the missions west of Florence. The next year he takes up his residence at Great Bend, attending, not only the settlements along the line of the A., T. & S. F. R. R., west of Florence, but also holding divine services in the Indian Territory and the Pan Handle of Texas, where he is the first minister of any denomination to preach the gospel. A sketch of his career in the southwest would prove greatly interesting. In 1875 he moves his headquarters to Newton, where, in a short time, he succeeds in building up a large congregation. As the school was his first care at Prairie City and Witchita, so at Newton. He lost no time in building a schoolhouse, which, since its erection in 1880, has had an average attendance of seventy pupils. The Church of the Immaculate Conception of the B. V. M., at Newton, of which he is now the pastor, was organized in 1878, when the church edifice was built. It was afterward enlarged to its present proportions, 30x80 feet, in the shape of a cross, and surmounted by a steeple. The congregation numbers 100 families, and a new church is in contemplation. While attending to the duties of the parish, the Reverend Father did not neglect his outside missions, building the churches of St. Patrick, at Florence; St. Rose, of Lima, at Great Bend; St. Theresa, at Hutchinson; St. Joseph, at Ellenwood, and St. Peter and Paul, five miles north of Ellenwood; besides paving the way for many other church buildings afterward erected by worthy successors when the missions, becoming too numerous, were divided. Literally night and day, not being one day in any one place, he labored with constant energy, winter and summer alike. After Col. A. S. Johnson and C. B. Schmidt, no man in Kansas has done more for the settlement of the country than the subject of this sketch, gathering Catholics everywhere and persuading them to settle in communities according to their nationality. Many of the settlements along the A., T. & S. F. R. R. owe their origin to Rev. Felix P. Swembergh. In the midst of all his labors, the Rev. Father found still time for literary pursuits, as some of his printed essays on Colonization, and other subjects prove. He became the editor of the Catholic Tribune, of Kansas City, which position temporary ill health has made him since resign. As a speaker, Father Swembergh, though at a disadvantage from his foreign birth, has cause to be proud of his efforts. As a gentleman, a scholar, a friend of humanity, he is respected by all classes of society.

WATSON, grain dealer, located at Valley Falls, Jefferson Co., Kan., in May, 1865, after remaining there until March, 1866, he moved to Topeka and was engaged in the grocery business in that city until September, 1869. He was then appointed Indian trader, and after remaining a short time at Fort Sill, returned to Wichita, and staid at that place until the spring of 1870. He was then at Topeka until the fall of 1872, then at Texas a short time, and then located again at Wichita where he remained until he came to Newton in 1875. He has been engaged in grain dealing since locating in this place. He is a native of Northwood, Rockingham Co., N. H., where he was born June, 21, 1844, and which was his home until 1864. From 1864 until the close of the war he was in service in the Quartermaster Department. He was married at Wichita, Kan., in July, 1874, to Mollie E. Munger, a native of Topeka, Kan., and has two children, Mabel and George P. Mr. Watson is a member of A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, and also of Eastern Star Chapter. Mrs. Watson is a daughter of Darius S. Munger, who located the town site of Wichita.

DAVID S. WELSH, livery, was born in Montrose, Susquehanna Co., Pa. From an early age his home was in Elmira, Chemung Co., N. Y., until he took a trip to the West, spending some time in Wyoming Territory and at Colorado Springs. He was married in Elmira, N. Y., February 25, 1874, to Ella McCray, a native of Elmira, and has three children, John Wallace, Bert Watson and Frank Sharp. Mr. W. is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

J. C. WELSH was born in Flanders, Morris Co., N. J., December 18, 1835. He removed with his parents to New Milford, Susquehanna Co., Pa., when he was nine years of age, and that place remained his home about eighteen years. He then moved to Elmira, Chemung Co., N. Y., and for four years prior to removal to Kansas was in the oil regions of Pennsylvania. Mr. W. was married in Montrose, Bridgewater Township, Susquehanna Co., Pa., July 22, 1852, to Mary E. Lewis, a native of New York, who died January 18, 1881, leaving two children, David S. and Charles J. Mr. Welsh came to Newton, Kan., in April, 1882, and engaged in business in the place the following June, having previously visited Colorado and Cheyenne, W. T., prospecting. He is dealing in stock to some extent and has erected slaughtering houses near the creamery, in connection with his business. He is a member of A., F. & A. M. and of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

NICHOLAS WOLF, merchant tailor, located in Newton July 15, 1878, and has been continuously engaged in his present business since that time. He was born in Bavaria, May, 1850. In 1870 he came to America, located in New York City, and remained there four years. From New York he went to Savannah, Ga., remaining there several months, after which time he came north and located in Kansas City. He soon left the city to seek a home in Kansas, and on arriving at Newton immediately went into business on a very small scale and now stands at the head of his trade. Mr. Wolf learned his business in Nuremburg, Germany.

G. YONKERS came to Emporia in January 1878, being connected with the A., T. & S. F. R. R. at that point until January, 1879. He then located in Newton, as cashier and assistant ticket agent of the same company, and remained in that position until September of the same year, when he was assigned to duty as agent of same railroad at Wellington. He remained three months at Wellington, and three or four months at Wichita, and then went to Burlington and kept the books for the material yard until October, 1880, being material agent two months of the time. He returned to Newton in 1882, and December 15 of that year, took a position as book-keeper with the Lehman Hardware and Implement Co., being also secretary of the company. SEDGWICK CITY.

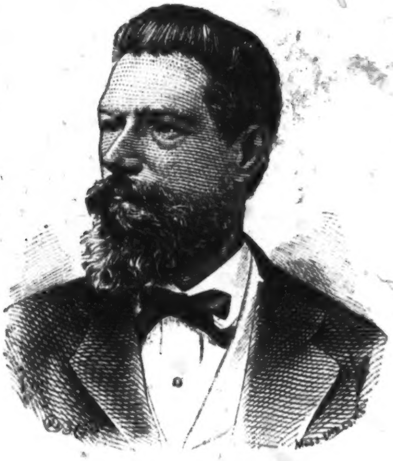
Sedgwick City, the oldest town in the county, is located ten miles southwest of Newton, on the Caldwell branch of the A. T. & S. F. Railroad, and is the initial point of the St. Louis & San Francisco road in Harvey County. Located as it is, on the Little Arkansas River, and its remoteness from other competing points, it has a large scope of country from which to draw trade. It is now the second city in the county, both in point of population and business.

For the names of the first settlers in Sedgwick and vicinity, and the early events that transpired, we would refer the reader to the pages on which may be found the general county history. Sedgwick City was laid off in June, 1870, by the Sedgwick Town Company, T. S. Floyd, president. The original town site, which consisted of eighty acres, was laid off by John Corgan, in the interests of T. S. Floyd. The first store in Sedgwick, if not in the county, was erected and opened by William H. McOwen, in July of the same year. Judge R. W. P. Muse, his first customer, purchased the first goods sold in the county. The postoffice was established in the summer of the same year, T. S. Floyd Postmaster. After officiating eighteen months he was succeeded by O. Y. Hart, who remained in office until August, 1872, when C. H. Goodell, the present Postmaster, received his appointment. The money order department of this office was established in July, 1877.

In the first schoolhouse erected in the county, in September, 1870, C. S. Bullock and wife were the teachers. In 1875-6, the present handsome brick school building was erected at a cost of $4,000.

The Sedgwick Gazette, the first paper published in the county, was issued January 19, 1871, by P. T. Weeks. After a few months it passed into the hands of T. S. Floyd, who published the paper up to the thirty-second number, when it was discontinued, and the office and fixtures sold to parties in Wichita.



T. S. FLOYD.

The first number of the Sedgwick Jayhawker was issued May 20, 1882, by Mark F. Hobson, the present proprietor and editor. The paper, as its name signifies, is a Kansas institution, and is devoted to the interests of Sedgwick and vicinity. It is an eight-column folio, and independent in politics.

A building was erected in the fall of 1870 by Mrs. Susan McClung, and opened as a hotel. In the winter of 1871-2 the hotel was destroyed by fire, and afterwards rebuilt, and after passing into the hands of different parties was sold, and is now occupied as a private residence.

The Citizen's Savings Bank was organized in 1872 by P. M. Morgan, W. M. Congdon, J. Cox, W. H. Hurd, A. G. Leonard and others, with an authorized capital of $10,000. The first officers were, W. M. Congdon, president; W. H. Hurd, cashier. The institution passed into the hands of T. R. Hazard, the present manager in 1879, from which time it has been operated as a private bank.

In 1871 there was built by the Sedgwick Steam Power Company the first flouring mill in the county. T. S. Floyd, the president, was the prime mover in the affair. The building was a frame structure, and its massive(?) machinery was propelled by a sixteen-horse power engine. Six months later a windmill was substituted for the motive power. In a short time its capacity was increased and a forty-horse power engine purchased. In 1881 the mill was torn down to give place to a new three-story brick structure, 36x40 feet, erected by Adams, Foote & Hatfield, at a cost of $10,000. The mill started with four run of buhrs. In the spring of 1882 the firm name was changed to Wier, Foote & Co. Capacity, fifty barrels daily.

Sedgwick was incorporated as a city of the third class, March 18, 1872. Its first municipal election was held April 1, 1872, and was presided over, as a canvassing board, by T. S. Floyd, A. McClung and W. H. Hurd. The following gentlemen constituted the first list of city officials: Mayor, T. S. Floyd; Councilmen, M. A. Mathias, W. B. Chamberlain, O. M. Sherman, O. Y. Hart and Chas. Schaefer; Police Judge, F. T. Morris; Clerk, H. Goodell; Treasurer, P. N. Morgan; Marshal, W. H. Hurd. The city worked under the charter granted it until July 17, 1877, about which time it was discovered that on account of a clerical error in making out the charter nearly three quarter sections of land were left out, and was not included in the town site. This discovery led to a suspension of the city affairs until February 22, 1881, when a meeting of the old council was held and resolutions adopted to reorganize, and an election of city officers to be held April 3, 1882. At this election S. B. Cretcher was elected Mayor; Jas. Cox, R. W. Hall, E. N. Green, J. M. Massey and P. M. Morgan, Councilmen; N. A. Mathias, Police Judge. The Council subsequently appointed A. G. Stone, clerk; T. J. Miller, Treasurer, and C. E. Green, Marshal.

Plymouth Congregational Church, was organized in April, 1872, by Rev. J. M. Ashley, who remained as pastor about three years. He was succeeded in the order mentioned by Revs. John Foster, ten months; John Velter, two years; I. M. Fry, one year and a half; G. M. Dean, one and a half years; M. M. Tracy, the present pastor, from November, 1881, to date—1883. The church edifice, which is a frame, 20x36 feet, was commenced in 1872, and completed in the fall of 1873, at a cost of $1,500. Present membership, fifty.

Lakin Congregational Church, was organized eight miles west of Sedgwick, in the spring of 1875, by Rev. J. M. Ashley. The organization is in what is known as the Anderson neighborhood, and has been supplied by pastors from Sedgwick. Regular services are held in the Lakin schoolhouse.

Methodist Episcopal Church, was organized in 1872 by M. M. Haun, who ministered to the organization two years. He was succeeded by the following, in the order mentioned: Revs. John Harris, one year; G. W. Kanavel, two years; I. N. Bundy, one year; J. W. Cane, one year; D. W. Cameron, two years; P. P. Wesley, two years; J. D. Bodkins, the present pastor, from April, 1882. Services were held in the schoolhouse until 1874, when the Congregational Church was occupied for two or three years. The organization then purchased the McClung Hotel, fitted it up and occupied it until the present church was completed, in 1880, at a cost of $2,500. Present membership, 115.

Sedgwick Lodge No. 139 A., F. & A. M., was instituted October 16, 1873. First officers were W. H. Hurd, W. M.; G. P. Schouten, J. W.; P. M. Morgan, S. W.; P. Roff, treasurer; Chas. Schaefer, secretary. Its present officers are, Chas. Schaefer, W. M.; F. M. Watts, S. W.; L. J. Adams, J. W.; J. M. Cox, treasurer; A. G. Stone, secretary. Regular meetings are held on Tuesday evenings, on or before full of moon, at Masonic Hall. Present membership, forty.

Sedgwick Lodge No. 177, I. O. O. F., was chartered October 13, 1880, with eight members. First officers: Wm. Rieman, N. G.; M. Bartley, V. G.; S. B. Cretcher, treasurer; C. Kace, secretary. Present officers: Jos. Rigut, N. G.; J. H. Harvey, V. G.; H. A. Hartman, treasurer; F. George, secretary. Regular meetings are held every Saturday evening at Masonic and Odd Fellows' Hall. Present membership, thirty-five.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

W. M. CONGDON, lumber dealer and real estate, came to Kansas and located in Sedgwick City in June, 1871, and engaged in the lumber business with a capital of about $5,000; his capital invested in the business in 1883 is probably $20,000. He also owns 400 acres in Sections 22 and 23 in Sedgwick Township, 220 acres in cultivation, where he has eighty head of fine cattle and 150 head of sheep. He also owns a timber claim in Lakin Township of 160 acres, where he has a large grove of cultivated timber and fifteen acres in orchard. Mr. Congdon was born in Rutland County, Vt., October 4, 1829, and came from native place to Kansas. Was married in February, 1854, to Miss Rachael H. CAPT. W. H. HURD, proprietor of Aberdeen Stock Farm, situated two and one-half miles west of Sedgwick City, is extensively engaged in raising "blooded" cattle; his present herd consists of 225 head, including two imported Angus bulls, some fine thoroughbred short-horn cattle, and a very large flock of sheep. His farm is well improved and well fitted up for the business in which he is engaged. Capt. Hurd is a native of New Hampshire. Was born May 19, 1843, attended the graded and high schools of his native city, Keene, till he was sixteen, when he entered a printing office to learn the printers' trade. When the War of the Rebellion broke out, although but a boy of seventeen, he enlisted; first for three months, and then for three years, in Company A, Second New Hampshire Volunteers, and was constantly with his regiment in all the principal engagements of the Army of the Potomac till the battle of Savage Station, when he was wounded and taken prisoner. After lying in Libby Prison a few weeks, he was taken to Belle Isle, where he remained until November 14, 1862, when he was exchanged and returned to his regiment in time to participate in the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, where he was complimented in general orders for bravery and gallantry in action. In November, 1863, on recommendation of his company and regimental officers, he was ordered before an examining board for promotion. In December he was commissioned First Lieutenant and placed in command of the first camp of colored troops enlisted in the District of Columbia. He aided materially in the organization of the Twenty-third United States Colored Troops, and to him was due in no small degree the efficiency and excellent discipline of this regiment. When Grant made his advance across the Rappahannock, Capt. Hurd's regiment was ordered to the front and continued actively engaged in all the great battles of that army. While in front of Petersburg he was commissioned Captain. At the battle of the Mine where his command acted with great coolness and bravery, sustaining great loss, he was severely wounded. After a short leave of absence he returned to his regiment, and was on the first skirmish line to enter Richmond, after the head of the Confederacy had fled. After Lee's surrender, this command was sent to Texas, where Capt. Hurd was recommended for promotion to Major, and was acting as such when his regiment was ordered to Washington and mustered out of service early in 1865. He returned to his old home, where he married and then started West, as he said, "to grow up with the country," stopping three years in Illinois. He finally located on the Little Arkansas River just below where Sedgwick City now stands, in the early summer of 1869; here he took a claim and under adverse circumstances began to make a home. He early interested himself in the location and improvement of Sedgwick City, built the first schoolhouse in the Arkansas Valley and the first frame house in Sedgwick City. Was one of the incorporators of the Citizens' Savings Bank and Cashier for four years. In 1876, his health failing, he retired from the bank, and since then has turned his attention to stock raising. In 1872 he built the first brick residence in Harvey County. It is delightfully situated at the head of Commercial avenue, where with the sharer of his life work and three bright children, can be found one of the pleasantest homes in the Arkansas Valley. He also owns a summer residence at Geuda Springs.

Charles Schaefer

CHARLES SCHAEFER, merchant and grain-dealer, owns a half interest in the firm of Schaefer & Finn, general merchandise and grain-buyers. Mr. S, is one of the early settlers of Kansas and has had a very eventful life. He was born in Prussia, December 23, 1842, and came to the United States with his mother in 1848; his father had come two years before and located at Dayton, Ohio. He had to leave his native country on account of the part he took in politics. His mother died on their arrival in New York, and his father sent him to some relatives in St. Louis, Mo., where he was sent to school, but being of a restless disposition, one morning in 1852, he got on board of a steamboat and landed at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and being a bright, active boy, he got employment as chore boy for two years; and when the First United States Dragoons were sent to Fort Union, N. Mex., he went in the employ of the Surgeon and drove a buggy across the plains, and was with the first command of note that crossed the Rattoon Range, where they were met by Kit Carson and Lieut., now Gen. Davidson, who conducted them to what is since Maxwell's ranch, where they remained a few months, and went on from there to Fort Union, where the troops were distributed to their different stations. He remained in the State for a year, when, becoming dissatisfied, he went to Santa Fe and got employment in a drug store, but disagreeing with his employer he came all the way from Santa Fe on horseback to Kansas City. After remaining a short time, started back with a train for Santa Fe, but falling out with the party when near Fort Larned, he joined a party of Mexicans and went with them to Socoro, N. M. During the trip the Indians corralled them and compelled the Mexicans to fight. From there he went to Texas and enlisted, October 16, 1860, in Company E, Third United States Infantry, under Capt. Clitz, and was stationed at Fort Clark, Tex. Went from there to Brownville, where he was ordered to turn over arms to the Texas authorities, but Capt. Clitz refused, and went to the mouth of the Rio Grande, when, through the aid of Fitz John Porter, who was Assistant Adjutant General, got on board a steamer and went to New York. From there his command was sent to re-inforce Lieut. Slemmer, at Fort Pickens, and was in the battle on Santa Rosa Island, where they defeated and routed the enemy. For bravery in this engagement he was promoted to Sergeant, and was in command of a rifle gun in two successive bombardments, and was wounded by a shell; and from there his command was sent to the army of the Potomac, and landed at White House Landing the night that Stewart's Cavalry raided that place, and was assigned to the command of Fitz John Porter, and participated at Mechanicsville, Gaines Mills, Savage Station, White Oak Swamps, Malvern Hill, second Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and occupied Little Round Top at the battle of Gettysburg, where he was wounded in the knee. After his recovery he was on recruiting service at Wheeling, Va., and Chicago, Ill., and returned to his command in front of Petersburg, and was promoted to First Sergeant, and was detailed as Regimental Quartermaster Sergeant. After the close of the war he was sent to Fort Leavenworth, and remained in the Quartermaster's Department until his discharge, July 27, 1867. After his discharge he was employed in the clerical force in the Quartermaster's Department at Fort Harker, and in 1868 was appointed trader at Fort Zarah, and when the post was abandoned in 1869, came to Section 20, Sedgwick Township, and engaged in the cattle business, but his stock took the Texas fever and died, and he went into the grocery business, building the first house (a log shanty) that was built in Sedgwick City. He married in Washington, D. C., in August, 1865, Miss Maria M. Rivallissa, a native of New Mexico. They have five children—Charles G. W., born January 25, 1869, near Great Bend, in what is now Barton County, being the first child born in that county; Rosa A., born August 12, 1870, being the first child born in Sedgwick Township, Harvey County; Eisleben J., John F., and Earl. Is a Mason, and master of the lodge at the present time.

HALSTEAD.

This enterprising city, bearing the name of one of the most prominent journalists in the Eastern States, is located on the south bank of the Little Arkansas River, ten miles in a westerly direction from Newton, the county seat. It is also the junction of the St. Louis & San Francisco and the main line of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway. The city, besides supporting the usual number of business enterprises, has the largest flouring mill in the county, two elevators with a capacity of 15,000 and 12,000 bushels respectively, and a feed mill.

In the spring of 1872 a settlement was made in the vicinity of what is now known as Halstead, by Samuel Leeper, James Popkins, Frank Brown, David Patrick, and John Corgan, who located earlier. In the summer of the same year the first attempt was made towards laying off a town site, by Capt. John Sebastian, a large stockholder in the A., T. & S. Fe R'y, who laid off a town site one and one-half miles east of the present site. In the fall of 1872 the Halstead Town Company was organized with H. D. Allbright, president. A tract of 480 acres was purchased, and in the spring of 1873 the present town site of Halstead was laid off. The foundations of the first building in the town site were laid in March, 1873, by G. W. Sweesy, who had located eighty rods from the town site in the fall of 1872. This building was when completed a two-story frame, 32x42 feet, and is still used as a hotel, known as the Sweesy House. The next building was moved from Sedgwick City by O. Y. Hart, and used for store purposes. Fred Eckert moved his drug store from Sedgwick and opened the first stock of drugs. He was followed by Fred Brewer, who opened a general store. At this time the town suspended building operations and remained dormant until the spring of 1874, when John Lehman, Jacob Deidieter, B. Warkentine, Peter Wiebe, M. S. Ingalls and others moved in and established business enterprises. From this time on the town had a slow but steady growth until 1880, since which time it has grown rapidly and is now one of the important business centers of the county.

Among the early events may be noticed the first marriage in the spring of 1873, the contracting parties being Mrs. Mary J. Collier and O. Y. Hart; the first birth, a child of David Eckert, in the spring of 1874; the first death, May 25, 1874, was that of John Ashford, who "died with his boots on," being killed in a difficulty over a claim in the vicinity of Halstead. The first religious services were held in the Sweesy House, in the spring of 1873, by Rev. John Harris, of the Methodist persuasion. The first and only disastrous fire occurred March 8, 1879, in which three buildings, occupied by Lehman Bros., M. S. Ingalls and the Zurheimath printing office were destroyed, occasioning a loss of $7,000. A schoolhouse 28x36 feet was built in the winter of 1873-4, Miss Laura Bell Walker being the first teacher. This building was occupied until 1882, when the present brick one was completed at a cost of $6,000.

Municipal Organization.—Halstead was incorporated as a city of the third class, March 12, 1877; at the first city election, held March 24, 1877, the vote was canvassed by James Ryan, Henry Ruth and G. W. Brainine, and resulted as follows: Mayor, H. H. McAdams; Councilmen, C. S. Brown, O. Y. Hart, John Lehman, J. E. Ruth and M. S. Ingalls; Police Judge, James Ryan. Appointed officers: G. E. Terry, Clerk; W. M. Tibbot, Treasurer; W. C. Hinkle, Marshal. The present (1882) officers are: G. W. Sweesy, Mayor; Jacob Linn, H. B. Ruth, N. C. Groom, C. Philbrick, John Lehman Councilmen; G. W. Cutter, Police Judge; G. E. Terry, Clerk; J. W. Tibbot, Treasurer; T. B. Van Horn, Marshal.

The Press.—The first number of the Zurheimath, a paper published in the German language, was issued June 6, 1876, by the Western Publishing Company, David Goerz, editor. The paper was published at Halstead until 1879, when the printing office was burned. Since that time the publication office has been located at St. Louis, Mo., with David Goerz, of Halstead, as editor. In January, 1882, its name was changed to the Bundesboten, its present appellation. The paper is the official organ of the Mennonite churches in this portion of the State. Circulation, 2,000.

The first number of the Halstead Independent was issued in April, 1881, by Joseph F. White; June 10, 1881, the firm name became White & Hebron, July 8, 1881, Mr. White retired, leaving W. S. Hebron proprietor until August 26, 1881, when G. W. and M. V. Sweesy took charge. January 1, 1882, G. W. Sweesy retired, leaving M. V. Sweesy the present editor. The Independent is a seven-column folio, Republican in politics and under its present editorship is fast being recognized as an active exponent of county interests, the city of Halstead in particular.

The Postoffice was established in the spring of 1873, George W. Sweesy being appointed Postmaster, which position of trust he has retained up to the present time. The Money Order Department was opened at this office July 1, 1877—Money Order No. 1 being purchased by D. and H. B. Ruth.

The Bank of Halstead was incorporated February 3, 1882, with an authorized capital of $100,000, $10,000 paid up. Its corporators were: M. S. Ingalls, B. Warkentine, J. H. McNair, Jacob Linn and R. M. Spivey, who also constitute the Board of Directors. Officers: M. S. Ingalls, Pres.; B. Warkentine, Vice-Pres.; J. H. McNair, cashier. The institution commenced business March 10, 1882, and their first statement issued July 12, 1882, shows their resources and liabilities to balance at $48,922.52. At the January meeting, 1883, the cash capital was increased to $20,000, which fact testifies to its prosperity.

Methodist Episcopal Church, was organized during the summer of 1873, by Rev. Jno. Harris. Services were first held in the Sweesy House, after which the schoolhouse was used. In the fall of 1882, a handsome and substantial brick edifice, 35x55 feet, was erected at a cost of $4,200. Rev. B. C. Swarts, present pastor. Present membership, ninety.

Mennonite Church (German), was organized in the spring of 1875, with sixteen members, by Rev. V. Krehbiel, who remained three years. He was succeeded by the present pastor, Rev. D. Goerz. Present church is a frame, 38x44 feet, erected in 1878, at a cost of $1,500. Present membership, seventy-five.

Methodist Episcopal (German) Church, was organized in the fall of 1878, with eleven members, by Rev. H. Hoffmann. A church building, 26x40 feet, was erected in 1882-3. The Society was incorporated in 1882, under State laws. Rev. J. G. Vogel, present pastor. Present membership, twenty-one.

Halstead Lodge No. 46, A., F. & A. M., was instituted under dispensation, in September, 1881. A charter was granted February 15, 1882. First officers: N. C. Groom, W. M.; J. A. Lucas, S. W.; W. C. Hinkle, J. W.; T. Logan, Treas.; W. D. Hover, Sec'y. Present officers: N. C. Groom, W. M.; W. C. Hinkle, S. W.; T. Logan, J. W.; T. Wilson, Treas.; A. J. Miller, Sec'y. Regular communications held on first and third Saturday evenings at Masonic and Odd Fellows Hall. Present membership, forty-six.

Halstead Lodge No. 163, I. O. O. F., was instituted under a charter dated October 13, 1880, with seven members. First officers: W. M. Munch, N. G.; J.

A. Spare, V. G.; A. J Miller, P. G.; A. E. Miks, Treas.; W. C. Hinkle, Sec'y. Present officers: Jas. Ryan, N. G.; M. Covert, V. G.; Geo. Kirk, Treas.; W. C. Hinkle, Perm. Sec'y.; A. J. Miller, Rec. Sec'y. Regular meetings held every Wednesday evening at Masonic and Odd Fellows Hall. Present membership, sixty.

Halstead Mills—The largest flouring mill in the county, was built in the summer of 1874, by Keck, Warkentine & Co. The building was a four-story frame, 30x48 feet, and the machinery was propelled by water-power until 1877, when the dam was destroyed. The original cost of the mill, which had three run of buhrs, including the dam, was $18,500. In 1878, it passed into the hands of its present proprietors, Eisenmeyer & Co., and was moved to its present site and enlarged, and run by a 120 horse-power engine. In 1881 the machinery was increased to five run of buhrs, and five sets of rolls, giving a capacity of 200 barrels daily.

R., and has just been appointed Deputy Sheriff.

I. W. TIBBOT & BROS., general merchants. This firm is composed of three brothers, I. W., W. M. and J. B. Tibbot, natives of Iowa, and very successful business men. They came to Kansas in 1857, in their boyhood, and located in Jefferson County in 1864. Although quite young, they engaged in freighting across the plains to Denver and other points, and had a great many narrow escapes, the Indians being very hostile that year; at one time they camped only four miles from a camp that was attacked, and all massacred. After this they engaged in clerking, and followed it until they organized the present business in July, 1875. At that time J. W. was a mercantile trader for a wholesale house, and W. M. came in person and started the business in a small way, the actual cash capital at starting, was from $300 to $500. But I. W., who still continued in his situation, turned in his salary to increase the business. In 1877 the business had increased so that I. W. gave up his situation and located here, and by their united efforts, their trade has rapidly increased. In 1880, another brother, J. B., who had been in California, came to Halstead and associated with his brothers in the business. At the present time they have an immense business, with a capital of $15,000, and their gross sales for 1882 was $60,000. They also own their business building, which is double. The dry-goods department is 24x65, and the grocery 20x44. The also hold 100 shares in the bank, and each owns a fine residence. All are married and have small families. They are all members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. I. W. is a Mason, and W. M. an Odd Fellow, and J. B. is a member of the order of Knights of Honor.

H. S. WENBAN, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Halstead, owns 160 acres, 130 in cultivation, all enclosed, dwelling 14x20, with L 12x20. Wheat average for 1882, was twenty-two bushels per acre; has five horses, sixteen head of cattle, and five hogs. Was born in Ohio, December 19, 1843; enlisted in April, 1861, in the first call for three month's troops, and was afterward organized as Company A, Twenty-third Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, for three years, and was with his command in West Virginia, and participated in the engagements at Carnifax Ferry and Giles Court House, and was transferred to East Virginia, and in the engagements at South Mountain and Antietam, Md., and from there back to West Virginia, where they were in a number of minor engagements and skirmishes, and mustered out in July, 1864. In 1870, he moved to Indiana, and came from there to Kansas in 1871, and located on his present farm. Was married September 22, 1866, to Miss Maria A. Wade, a native of Ohio. They have six children—Fanny M., Jessie A., Carre L., Sion W., J. Emery and Flora. Has been a member of the School Board.

WILLIAM WHITE, farmer, Section 32, P. O. Halstead, owns 160 acres, all in cultivation, and hedged on the north; small orchards with good frame dwelling, costing over $1,000, two granaries 10x20 and 9x18; has six horses and mules, four cows and five hogs. Raised in 1882, 3,185 bushels of wheat from 104 acres, and has raised wheat for nine years with a gross average of between fifteen and twenty bushels per acre. Was born in Ohio, September 9, 1826, and came to Missouri when a child with his parents, and came to Kansas in 1872, and took his present farm as a homestead. In July, 1846, he enlisted in Company H, Extra Battalion Missouri Volunteer Cavalry, and served with his command for over a year in the Mexican war, in New Mexico, and participated in a number of skirmishes and Indian fights, among them Tonas and El Moro, and mustered out in 1847 at Fort Leavenworth, then in the Indian Territory. In 1861, he again entered the army as First Lieutenant of Company C, First Missouri Volunteer Cavalry, and served with his command principally in Missouri and Arkansas, and participated in the fight at Prairie Grove and Jenkins' Ferry, and a number of skirmishes with Quantrell's men. His command was at Little Rock, Ark., at the time of Banks' advance up the Red River, and was ordered to form a junction with him, which they attempted, having to drive the forces of Price and Marmaduke before them, but Banks was on the retreat before they reached him, and the Rebels threw a heavy force against them, driving them back to Little Rock; they were for forty days continually skirmishing under fire and losing one-half of the command. In 1864, his regiment veteranized, when he was promoted to Captain of Company A, of the veteran organization, and was mustered out at Little Rock, Ark., September 1, 1865. He was married March 21, 1849 to Miss Emeline High, a native of Tennessee. They have seven children—Christopher C., Sumner H., Laura F., Joseph F., Ida E., Rosa M., and Hattie B. Has been a member of the School Board.

BURRTON.

One of the most enterprising towns on the main line of the A. T. & S. Fe Railway is the city of Burrton, located eighteen miles west of Newton, and one and one-half miles east of the Reno County line. With a population of 400 inhabitants and its well-earned reputation as a shipping point, Burton has a bright future.

Burrton was laid off as a town site in the summer of 1873, by the Arkansas Valley Town Company, the town plat being filed for record September 6 of that year. Before the town was laid off, J. H. Gresham opened a store in a building adjoining the town site on the east. Immediately after the town was laid off, A. W. Ballard erected a blacksmith shop, this being the first building on the town site. The next building was erected by Messrs. Hunt and Moore, in October, 1873, and opened as a general store. J. H. Gresham then moved his store on the town site. These two stores were the only ones in the place for a period of two years. In the spring of 1874, Dr. J. L. McAtee built the first residence, and was the first actual settler. He was followed by G. A. Thompson and J. E. Howard, in the order mentioned. The first hotel was opened by A. A. Woodruff, in 1874, in the building now known as the Burrton House. The first birth was that of Bert, a son of A. A. Woodruff, in 1874. The first death occurred in the spring of 1875, being that of R. Dunlap, who died from natural causes.

The postoffice, which was established July 1, 1873, J. J. Hunt, Postmaster, was first located in the store of J. H. Gresham, and on the completion of Hunt & Moore's store it was moved on the town site. Mr. Hunt officiated as Postmaster until December 24, 1879, when the present incumbent, John Goodwine, received the appointment. Money order No. 1, was purchased by C. P. Taylor, July 27, 1879. The building known as the "old schoolhouse" was erected in the winter of 1873–74, at a cost of $1,200, J. G. Lane being the first teacher. In the spring of 1880 the new building was completed at a cost of $1,500. Both buildings are in use.

In the winter of 1877 the Burrton Mills, a three-story frame, were erected by a stock company. Six months later the mills passed into the hands of Kinney & Hubbard, the present proprietors, who equipped the structure with three run of buhrs, and a forty horse-power engine. The mills now have five run of buhrs, which give it a capacity of 100 barrels daily.

The private banking enterprise of G. A. Vanderveer was established July 8, 1881, and continued under his management until May 19, 1882, when J. E. Howard assumed its management, under the name of the Bank of Burrton.

The Burrton Telephone was established November 2, 1878, by J. A. Collister, of the Harvey County News. Mr. Collister transferred his interest to A. C. Bowman, who in turn sold his interest to G. F. White, who run it until the spring of 1881, when it became defunct. The Burrton Monitor was established and the first number issued May 20, 1881, by a stock company, G. A. Vanderveer, editor. January, 1882, Miles Taylor assumed the editorial chair, and remained as editor in that capacity until January 1, 1883, when he purchased the paper, and is its present proprietor and editor. The Monitor is a seven column folio, is Independent in politics, and has an extensive circulation in Harvey, Sedgwick and Reno counties.

Burrton was incorporated as a city of the third class September 3, 1878. At the first city election, held September 11 of the same year, W. H. Kinney was elected Mayor; J. A. Moore, W. H. Riggs, Thomas Praster, H. C. Palmer and Joseph Jarrett, Councilmen; J. J. Hunt, Police Judge. The Council subsequently appointed John Goodwine, Clerk; R. W. Weymouth, Treasurer; and J. L. McAtee, Marshal. The officers for 1882 are J. A. Moore, Mayor; W. L. Dailey, James Cross, Thomas Collins, A. G. Provine, and W. H. Wilson, Councilmen; A. Perry, Police Judge; Miles Taylor, Clerk; H. Emerson, Treasurer; and Charles Horn, Marshal.

First Presbyterian Church.—Was organized February 13, 1874, by Rev. R. M. Overstreet, who held services in Burrton early as October, 1873, with eight members. The church was organized three miles east of Burton, in the Pagu schoolhouse. Mr. Overstreet remained as pastor until May 1877, when he was succeeded by Rev. J. T. Phillips, who ministered unto the church until November, 1878. He was succeeded by Rev. D. Kingery, the present pastor. Regular services are held in the new schoolhouse, at Burton.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—Was organized in June, 1873, with seven members, at the then called Ballenger schoolhouse three miles west of Burrton, in Reno County, by Rev John Harris. Six months later the organization moved to Burrton and held services in the schoolhouse. The following pastors have officiated to date: Rev. John Harris, one year; G. W. Kanabel, one year; ——— Presby, six months; M. M. Haun, one year; W. W. Woodside, two years; S. Ward, one year; C. B. Mitchel, one year; G. Hamilton, one year; and G. H. Matthews, the present pastor, since March, 1882. Present membership seventy.

Christian Church.—Was organized in 1874 by Rev. J. Ellet, who has remained its pastor up to date, with eighteen members. Services were held in the old schoolhouse until the fall of 1879, when the present church edifice was completed. The building is a fine structure, 36x48 feet, and cost $1,200. Present membership forty-five.

Baptist Church.—Was organized in the Boss schoolhouse, two and one-half miles west of Burrton, in Reno County, in September, 1876, with sixteen members. In the fall of 1877 the membership had increased to forty-two members. Old Father Camp, the organizer of the church, remained two years. He was succeeded by Rev. D. Rowe, who remained two years. Rev. A. Post, the next pastor, officiated one year. Rev. J. H. Howgate, present pastor. In 1877 a frame church building was erected and in 1880 was moved to Burrton Present membership twenty-three.

The Universalists have an organization here, but owing to absence of records, the sketch is withheld. Rev. T. W. Woodrow, of Hutchinson, present pastor.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

G. W. BOTSFORD, contractor and builder, was born in Pennsylvania, July 4, 1837; came to Iowa, in 1841, with his parents who were the pioneers of that locality. In 1861, he enlisted in Company K, Fifth Regiment Iowa Infantry, and served with his command in the West, participating in the early campaign in Missouri, New Madrid and Island No. 10, Shiloh, siege of Corinth, Iuka and Corinth, where he was severely wounded by gun shot in the thigh and transferred to the Invalid Corps and mustered out July 17, 1864. Came to Kansas in 1865, and engaged in the selling of nursery stock, at Atchison, in the fall of 1866 located in Labette County, and engaged in farming, and went from there to California, and spent four years, returning and located in Burrton in November, 1882, and engaged in present business. Was married in 1858, to Miss Jennie Pool, who died February 14, 1865, leaving two children—Sarah and Margaret. Was married again in 1872, to Miss Rachael A. Culbertson, who died in 1873. Is a member of the G. A. R.

LEICESTER DAY, farmer, Section 20, P. O. Burrton, owns 160 acres, 100 under cultivation twenty-five acres fenced with barb wire. Small grove and dwelling 24x28 feet, one and one half stories, and stable, carpenter shop and outbuildings for stock. Was born in Vermont, in 1823, and when eleven years of age moved with his parents to Ohio. In 1855, he moved to Wisconsin. In 1861, he enlisted in Company F, Seventh Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and went with his command to the army of the Potomac, and being a mechanic, was detailed in McDowell's Construction Corps, and was never actively engaged, although under fire a number of times while constructing bridges and laying pontoons and was present in most of the engagements from second Bull Run to Petersburg. In laying the pontoons at Fredericksburg, was under heavy fire, and at Gettysburg, being then in the Pioneer corps, he helped carry General Reynolds off the field, when he was killed by Rebel sharpshooters. In the advance of General Grant's army in 1864, was continually on the front laying bridges for the artillery, and in many a close place, and was mustered out near the Weldon R. R. below Petersburg, September 3, 1864. Came from Wisconsin to Kansas and located on his present farm June 30, 1871, and the nearest house was four miles away and had to haul his supplies from Peabody, then the end of the R. R. and lived for quite a time in his wagon, until he got his house up. When the R. R. arrived at Newton, the buildings of Hutchinson in Reno County also commenced shortly after, and he being on the direct road between the two places, kept a stage station, called the half-way house, and had a great deal of custom. Has had as many as thirty-eight teams at one time over night. When the town of Burton was laid out, being a carpenter, he erected a number of the buildings in the town, and for three years kept a hotel and feed stable and narrowly escaped being burnt out by prairie fires which destroyed a great deal of property in this vicinity. Was married December 30, 1844, to Miss Christine Curley, a native of Sparta, N. Y. They have eight children—Malvina A., Elmina D. Catharine M., George, Riley, Pluma J., William W., Hannah Ida, and Giles L. Was on the School Board two terms in Wisconsin and the second Treasurer of Burton Township.

G. W. FLICKINGER, blacksmith and wagon maker, was born in Perry County, Pa., January 5, 1830, where he learned his trade and lived until 1856, when he came West and was employed in the Agricultural Implements Works of John Deere, at Moline, Ill. Made the plow that was sent to the World's Fair, at Vienna, also the plow that took the premium at the Centennial Exposition, at Philadelphia, and was employed there until he came to Kansas, in 1878. In January, 1865, he enlisted in Company G, Forty-seventh Regiment Illinois Volunteers, and joined his command near Mobile, Ala., and participated in the taking of Fort Blakely and Spanish Fort; after the surrender, was employed in the secret service for a time and was mustered out in February, 1866. Organized his business of blacksmith on coming to this place in 1878, and is also engaged in buying grain and feeding stock for shipping, and has from $3,000 to $5,000 invested in his business. Owns five lots, a business house and shops in Burton and 160 acres on Section 6, used as a stock ranch. Was married in 1852, to Miss Sarah Curts, a native of Pennsylvania. They have five children—Flora, Susan, Amos, Alice and Clara. Is a member of the I. O. O. F., and A. O. U. W., first past master made in Illinois, and also past arch Druid of the first lodge organized in Illinois. Was a member of the Board of Supervisors of Rock Island County, Ill., one term, and member of the City Council of Moline, Ill., two terms.

ISAAC H. HANEY, farmer, Section 20, P.O. Burrton, owns 160 acres, 150 in cultivation, ten acres in pasture; one and one-half miles of hedge; dwelling, 16x24, L 10x24, kitchen, 10x16, porch, 10x24; barn, 24x32. Has fifteen acres bearing orchard, five acres cultivated timber; also one mile of cottonwood hedge. His farm is in a fine state of cultivation. Has seven horses and mules, ten head of cattle and thirty hogs. Also owns property in Burton valued at $1,500. Was born in Ohio, August 14, 1836, and moved with his parents to Wisconsin, when a child nine years of age. In July, 1862, he enlisted in Company H, Twenty-fifth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, but was discharged for disability in the same year. Enlisted again in 1864, in Company B, Forty-third Wisconsin, and with his regiment, served in Kentucky and Tennessee, and resisted Hood's advance from Bridgeport, Ala., back to Franklin and Nashville, and was taken sick after the Nashville fight and sent to the hospital at Quincy, and mustered out for total disability in the spring of 1865. He came to Kansas in December, 1871, and located his present claim after traveling over portions of Harvey, Sedgwick and Reno counties. Homestead entry was made January 3, 1872. He then returned to Wisconsin and sold what effects he could not bring with him, and started to Kansas, March 21, with his family, in two wagons, with fifty-six dollars in money. After a hard and laborious trip over muddy roads, he landed on his present farm, with his family of himself and wife and two small children, with only $2.50 and nothing to live upon. The prospect was gloomy, but they went to work in earnest. His wife hired to work out and he engaged at freighting from the end of the railroad to Hutchinson, and in a short time had enough to build a small house, and in the spring broke ten acres of ground. About this time his horses, not being acclimated, gave out, so he had to go to work on the railroad for three months. In the fall, he put up a sod stable, and still worked on the railroad and, by overwork, cleared $85 in two months. When the road reached Fort Dodge he left and returned home, and on his way saw the whole county filled with an immense herd of buffalo. The next spring he put in a crop and hunted buffalo, and got his meat and fifty dollars from this source. This year the grasshoppers ate him out. He got a job wherever he could of any description. When the Mennonites came in, he hauled lumber for them at a very low rate and managed to get enough to live upon; having two teams, he put his little boy, only seven years old, on one, and he took the other, and managed in this way. When the aid came for those who were in need, he never applied for or received any, and the only thing he ever got in this way was a government overcoat, as he felt entitled to that as an old soldier. Since that time he has been steadily advancing in means, every year doing something more on his place; and while his teams were resting at noon he was planting out trees, and at night while others were in bed, he was making improvements on his place. Was married, July 2, 1863, to Miss Malvina Day, a native of Ohio. They have two children—Estella and Alva. He is a member of the G. A. R., and has served on the School Board for three years, having been one of the first board on organization of the district.

D. IGO, merchant, was born in Pennsylvania in 1839, and made it his home until 1861, when he enlisted in Company E, Eleventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and with his command served in the army of the Potomac, and participated in all the general engagements from Bull Run to Antietam, where he was severely wounded and discharged from service on account of wounds. When he made his advance into Pennsylvania in 1863, he joined the First Battalion Pennsylvania Cavalry State Troops and operated in conjunction with the regular troops in the engagement at Gettysburg. In 1864 he re-enlisted for one year in the Two Hundred and Eleventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer, First Lieutenant Company I, and was in the campaign and in front of Petersburg until the end of the war, and was mustered out in June, 1865. In January, 1866, he moved to Iowa, and in 1868, to Michigan. Came to Kansas in 1873, locating in Mitchell County and engaged in farming. Came to Burrton in 1881, and engaged in the grocery and queensware trade; he has a good trade and carries a stock of about $1,000. His sales for 1882 amounted to over $7,000. He was married in 1866, to Miss Martha Matthews, a native of Pennsylvania. They have three children—Paul, Jane and Mabel.

E. JOHNS, lumber merchant, was born in Ohio, in 1841, and when ten years of age his parents moved to Indiana, where he received the benefit of a good common school education. In 1862, he went to Illinois, and in July of that year enlisted on a call for three months troops in Company C, Seventy-eighth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and with his command was sent to Kentucky to operate against John Morgan, and was captured with a portion of his command and paroled and mustered out in the fall of the same year. Came to Kansas in 1878, and located in Burrton, and connected himself with the Kansas Lumber Company (which was organized in 1877) as managing partner; having a capital of about $25,000 in lumber, hardware, farm implements and machinery of all kinds, and dealers in grain. The monthly average business is about $8,000. They also have branch houses at Mount Hope and Garden City. Mr. Johns is a practical lumber dealer of twenty-three years experience, and the business here is a decided success. He was married in 1867, to Miss Mary D. Brisben, a native of Ohio. They have four children—Charles C., Emma B., Carrie A. and Mary H. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and the G. A. R. and a member of the School Board.

CAPT. JOHN R. PARKER, insurance agent, was born in Mason County, Ky., in 1829, and when fourteen years of age went to Galveston, Texas, and ran on a steamship between that port and New Orleans for a number of years, and then for a time was a flatboat pilot from Louisville, Ky., to New Orleans. In 1842, he left the river and was engaged for some years in merchandising in Leavenworth, Ind., and in the store boat trade on the river. In 1852, he superintended a large plantation at Island No. 10. In 1859, he went to Mississippi and took charge of a cotton plantation near Fort Gibson, and when the war broke out in 1861, joined the Black Horse Cavalry in Vicksburg, as First Lieutenant, and drilled there for three weeks until he got a favorable opportunity, and left clandestinely and came north and reached Cincinnati, Ohio, in April. On the call for three months troops, he enlisted in Company G, Third Ohio Cavalry, but not being able to muster as cavalry, he enlisted in the three years call in Company I, Thirty-ninth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, under Col. Grosbeck, and was mustered in July 4, 1861, and served four years, three months and eight days, and was engaged in thirty-one battles of the war; among these, New Madrid, Island No. 10, Shiloh, in the Atlanta Campaign, March to the Sea, and through the Carolinas; his last fight being Bentonville, N. C. He marched to Washington and attended the Grand Review, and was mustered out at Washington City, in 1865. On the organization of Company was made Second Sergeant November 16, 1861; was made Orderly of the company June 10, 1862; was promoted to Second Lieutenant August 2, 1862; promoted to First Lieutenant April 8, 1863; promoted to Captain and Brevetted Major for gallant and meritorious service on the field of battle at Corinth, Miss., October 4, 1862. Has in his possession five army commissions, eleven commutations signed and sealed by Government and State Officials. After the war he engaged in the dry goods business at Napoleon, Ohio, and other places until 1868, when he was appointed Station Agent on the Wabash Railroad, near Toledo, Ohio, and in 1870 went to Sheldon, Ill., and engaged in merchandising, and came to Kansas in 1871 and located near Peabody, Marion County, and engaged in farming. In the fall of 1874 he was appointed Under Sheriff of Marion County, and held that position until 1876, when he came to Burrton and started a hotel and sold out in 1877. Was four years Township Constable, and is now engaged in insurance. Has been a Mason since 1856. Is adjutant of the G. A. R. and Trustee of Methodist Episcopal Church and is Clerk of School Board. He was married in 1866, to Miss Sarah Back, a native of New York. They have two children—twins—Willis and Wilson.

DR. I. N. PHILLIPS, proprietor of livery stable, was born in Ohio, in 1820, and when eight years of age, moved with his parents to Indiana, and obtained a good common school education, and in 1839, commenced the study of medicine in Thorntown, Ind. In 1841 and 1842, he attended lectures at the Rush Medical College, Chicago, under Prof. Brainard, and graduated from that institution in 1842, and commenced the practice of medicine, in 1844, in Thorntown, Ind., and continued there in practice until the spring of 1852, when he located in Champaign County, Ill., and was engaged there in his profession until he came to Kansas in 1857, and located at Humboldt, Allen County, and practiced medicine there for a period of nineteen years. In the early settlement of the county the horse thieves were very bad, and a person could scarcely keep a horse, and the doctor organized a vigilance committee of the law-abiding citizens, and the result was that the horse thieves were his deadly enemies, and he was compelled to go heavily armed and resort to stratagem in various ways to elude them. If called professionally to go north, he would start in the opposite direction and make a detour to avoid them, as he knew they would ambuscade him if they could. Being near the border, they were very much annoyed by guerrilla bands during the war, and at one time about 500 of them came in and captured the citizens of the place, and the doctor with them, and sacked and burned the town, then released them. In the spring of 1876, he moved to Reno County, and located on a farm south of Hutchinson, and continued the practice of medicine until the 20th of May, 1882, when he made his last visit. He then came to Burton, Harvey County, and started a livery, feed and sale stables, with a capacity for thirty horses. He has five rigs and stock sufficient for the present trade, which is steadily increasing. Was married in 1840, but his wife died in 1863, leaving five children—Margaret E., Sarah J., Roseline J., Woodford W., William H. Was married again, in 1864, to Miss Delila Lewis, a native of Pennsylvania. Was divorced from her March, 1876, then married Miss Hart. They have two children—Hannah E. and I. N. Is a Mason and a member of the Ancient Order of I. O. O. F. Was Trustee of Sumner Township, Reno County, for three years, while residing there, and a member of the School Board a number of years.

WALTON.

The town of Walton is located seven miles east of Newton, on the A., T. & S. F. R. R., and being near the divide between the Cottonwood and Arkansas Rivers, is situated on the highest ground in Harvey County. The place, which has a population of about 250 souls, has an excellent location as a shipping point, being surrounded by a good farming country, settled up by a substantial class of farmers. Its business industries comprise two general stores; two groceries; one drug store; two dry goods stores; one elevator; two grain warehouses; one livery stable; two hotels; one blacksmith shop; one shoe shop. A first-class flouring mill is needed.

Walton was laid off as a town site, in December, 1871, by William Mathews. The original town site consisted of twenty-five acres, which has subsequently been increased to forty acres. The first building was erected by Mathews during the same winter, and used as a dwelling. The next building was erected by Baldwin and Glynn, and after its completion was occupied by B. C. Johnson, as a general store. The third building was the railroad section house, which was followed by a stone building, erected by Holley and Fell. Messrs. H. B. Childs, T. J. Hawley and F. Sanders, were also identified with some of the first buildings.

On account of there being some difficulty in obtaining a perfect title to the lots, the place remained dormant until 1876, since which time a steady growth has marked its progress. Early in the year J. F. Watson became proprietor of the town site, and March 11, 1876, he filed a plat of the town.

The postoffice was established in 1871, Mrs. E. Peck as Postmistress. The office was then located eighty rods west of the present town site, and subsequently moved to its present location. Mrs. Peck was succeeded, in the order mentioned, by R. Horton, H. B. Childs and T. R. Oldham, the present incumbent.

In 1871 a frame schoolhouse, 18x20 feet, was erected by subscription, for educational and religious purposes. The first school was held by Mrs. M. J. Sharron. In 1876, another frame building, 20x30, was erected by the District. These buildings proving inadequate, a new building was erected in the fall of 1882, at a cost of $2,500. In the first school building was held the first religious services, by Rev. B. C. Johnson, of the Methodist Protestant persuasion.

An organization of the Presbyterian persuasion was effected in 1871, but after several years of existence it became defunct. The United Presbyterian Church was organized in 1872-3, with fifteen members. Services were held in the schoolhouse until 1877, when the present church edifice was completed, at a cost of $1,500. Rev. J. T. Wilson, present pastor. Present membership, 175. The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in 1876, by the Presiding Elder at that time, with twelve members. Present church edifice was built in 1880, at a cost of $1,500. Present pastor, Rev. A. J. Bixler. Present membership, twenty-five. The First Baptist Church was organized four miles east of Walton, in the Hutching's schoolhouse, in 1876, by Rev. C. Wyman, the present incumbent. In June, 1882, by an official act of the church, the organization was moved to Walton. In December, of the same year, work was commenced on a church edifice, which will be completed in the spring of 1883. The Christian Church was organized two and one-half miles south of Walton, at the Mitchell schoolhouse, in 1874. In 188:, the organization was moved to Walton. Rev. I. Sumner, present pastor.

Was born in Pennsylvania, July 20, 1840, and in 1849 moved with his parents to Illinois, and in 1861 enlisted in Company G, Forty-sixth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Col. John A. Davis, and participated in the engagements of Fort Donelson, Shiloh, siege of Corinth and Big Hatchie; in the latter engagement he was very badly wounded, being shot through both thighs, disabling him entirely from active life, rendering one of his feet partially paralyzed, and while in hospital had to fight the doctor off with his crutch to prevent him from cutting off his leg, and was discharged for disability in 1863. In 1871 he came to Kansas, and located his present homestead, but shortly after moved to Hutchinson, Reno County, and engaged in the livery business, and while there was elected Justice of the Peace, and served six years. He was also Under Sheriff of Reno County for four years, and while in that capacity had a great deal of very dangerous duty to perform, arresting horse thieves and desperadoes. While Justice of the Peace he studied law, and was admitted to the bar, and commenced the practice of law, first in Hutchinson, and then located in Nickerson, but becoming dissatisfied, came to his farm in the fall of 1881, and has made it his home since. Was married December 10, 1867, to Miss Sarah J. Riddle, a native of Pennsylvania. They have six children—Claude D., Harry L., Charley C., William A., Cora M. and Meda. Is a Mason, Knight Templar, and member of I. O. O. F. and the Encampment.

JAMES McMURRY, farmer, Section 32, P.O. Burrton, owns 320 acres, eighty-five in cultivation, a small orchard and a large grove of cultivated timber, dwelling, 18x28, two stories; barn 20x60, with stock yards and sheds. Makes stock raising and feeding a specialty, and has at present 175 head of graded and domestic cattle and 100 head of hogs. Was born in Westmoreland County, Pa., in 1817, and in 1849 moved to Illinois where he engaged in farming and raising stock, and came from there to Kansas in the spring of 1871, and located on his present farm as a homestead, and was the first to locate in Lake Township. When he came here he had to haul the material for his house and improvements eighty miles. His nearest neighbor was fifteen miles, but in a few months others coming in, the country improved rapidly. After the organization of the township, he was elected Justice of the Peace and occupied that position for three years and was for seven years a member of the School Board. Was married in 1839 to Miss Elizabeth Moore, a native of Somerset County, Pa. They have ten children—Jonathan, Nancy, Chambers, George, Asher, Hartman, Amos, Peter, Maggie and Melissa. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

THOMAS J. MATLOCK, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Burrton, owns 480 acres in this township, 100 in cultivation, with a small orchard, five acres in cultivated timber, 160 acres fenced with barbed wire; dwelling 14x24, L 14x20, barn 17x36, with stock yards and sheds, and windmill, pumps and large stock scales. He also owns 160 acres in Sedgwick County, with 100 acres in cultivation, and dwelling 12x24. He makes a specialty of raising corn, cattle and hogs, and has at present 118 head of graded and domestic cattle and thirty hogs. Was born in Iowa in February, 1846, and made it his home until he enlisted in 1862, in Company E, Nineteenth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and was with his command in Missouri for one year, then at the siege of Vicksburg and at Fordouch Bayou and at the battle of Prairie Grove. Was severely wounded by a gunshot through the leg and captured and kept a prisoner for ten months at Shreveport, La., and Fort Tyler and Marshal, Texas, where he was exchanged July 22, 1864, and returned to his command at New Orleans, La., and participated in the final engagements of the war at Goodes' Landing, siege of Spanish Fort and surrender of Mobile, and saw the last gun of the Rebellion fired by the confederacy, and was mustered out July 10, 1865, and got his final discharge at Davenport, Iowa, July 25. After the war he returned to Iowa, and came from there to Kansas in March, 1871, and homesteaded his present place March 13. Was married March 26, 1868, to Miss Mary J. Thompson, a native of Iowa. They have four children—Lena, Nellie, George M. and Alice M. Mr. Matlock has always taken an active part in politics and educational matters and anything that tended to the welfare of his locality, and has been a member of the School Board since the organization of the District, and taught school for six consecutive winters, and served as Township Trustee for three terms. When the question of voting bonds for another railroad was raised in the county, in 1881, he took an active part against it, believing it was not to the interest of the farmers to have a heavy bonded debt hanging over the county, thereby creating a feeling in some localities which has been against him politically. He thinks this locality as good a country as can be found for combining farming with stock raising, and he has been very successful in his business.

JAMES M. PARKER, farmer, Section 34, P.O. Burrton, owns 160 acres, 40 in cultivation, small orchard, and 4 acres of cultivated timber, 80 acres fenced with barbed wire for pasturage, and two miles of hedge; small frame dwelling, granary and corn cribs, and stock yards and sheds, and windmill pump. Makes stock raising a specialty; has 50 head of good cattle and 30 head of hogs. Came to Kansas in 1867 and located in Johnson County, and came to his present place in July, 1871. Was born in Illinois in 1844, and when a child moved with his parents to Indiana, and in 1863 enlisted in Company F, Seventh Regiment Indiana Cavalry, and participated in a number of engagements in Mississippi and Missouri, among them Guntown and Ivey Hill, and followed Price on his raid into Missouri and back into Arkansas, and was mustered out in the fall of 1865, when he returned to Indiana and came from there to Kansas. Was married February 28, 1878, to Miss Elizabeth Wimp, a native of Kentucky. They have one child—William. Is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has served as Constable and Road Overseer.

JOHN W. SHIVE, farmer and stock raiser, Section 20, P. O. Burrton, owns 800 acres, 170 in cultivation, 320 fenced with barbed wire and 160 with hedge; a fine-bearing orchard of 6 acres, with every variety of fruit as well as grapes, and 5 acres with cultivated timber, with many of the desirable kinds of forest trees in a most thrifty state; small frame dwelling, stables, sheds for stock, wind mill pump, etc. Makes stock a specialty, and has 240 head of grades and 140 hogs. Came to Kansas in 1871 and made his homestead entry of his present residence. Was born in Kentucky August 1, 1841, and in 1861 he enlisted in Company K, Ninth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, and was with his command in the Department of the Tennessee, and participated in a number of minor engagements and in the battles of Shiloh and Stone River; at the latter place he was severely wounded and unfitted for active service, and was transferred to Second Battalion, V. R. C. After his recovery he was transferred to the Invalid Corps and was on duty at Louisville and New Albany during the balance of his term of service; and was discharged in December, 1864. After his discharge he went to school and fitted himself for school teaching and made that his occupation for a time, and when he first came to Kansas he taught school in the winter and improved his farm in the summer, until his farm interests became of such magnitude that they occupied all his time. Was married November 27, 1873, to Miss Mary Byers, a native of Iowa. They have two children—Joseph T. and Eads Elliston. Is a Mason and member of the Baptist Church, and is now serving as Township Treasurer. Mr. S. thinks that all kinds of trees will grow in this locality, and that after the ground has been cultivated a few years that the growth is much more rapid than when the soil is new. He has soft maples over one foot in diameter, nine years old, and his fruit trees show a marvelous growth. He also thinks the future grass crop for stock will be the alfalfa and orchard grass, as he thinks they will do well here.

IRA SAYLER, stock raiser and farmer, Section 14, P.O. Burrton, owns 160 acres, 80 in cultivation, 6 acres in timber, small house, barn, stable, corn crib, stock yards, sheds, etc. Makes fine stock a specialty; has 48 head of cattle, 30 head of which are thoroughbreds and the rest fine grades. Also is dealing in fine horses and sheep as well as hogs. Was born in Ohio in 1853, and came from his native place to Kansas. Is a member of the Knights of Pythias.

FIELDON TAYLOR, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Burrton, owns 400 acres, 110 in cultivation, with dwelling and stable, stock yards, sheds, etc. Makes stock a specialty; has now seventy head of cattle and forty hogs. In 1862 he enlisted in Company E, Nineteenth Regiment, Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and [illegible] participating in a number of engagements among them, Siege of Vicksburg, Morganza, was wounded at the battle of Prairie Grove and captured and kept a prisoner of war for ten months, at the prisons of Shreveport, La., and Fort Tyler and Marshall, Texas, and exchanged July 22, 1864, and returned to his command at New Orleans and engaged in the fight at Goodes' Landing, Spanish Fort, and surrender of Mobile and saw the last shot fired by the Southern Confederacy, which was directed at their Brigade headquarters. After the war he returned to Iowa and came from there to Kansas. Was married March 5, 1857, to Miss Elizabeth Whittaker, a native of Indiana. They have seven children—Hannah L., Mary E., Robert H., Ulysses S., Eda G., Charles H., and Alpha A. Mr. T. takes an active part in educational matters and is now Director, and has held some position on the School Board ever since the district was organized. Is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and a life member of the Andersonville Survivors Association.

J. W. WILLIAMSON, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Mount Hope, Sedgwick County, owns 160 acres, forty-five acres cultivated; small orchard; dwelling 12x20, with L 14x14. Was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, in 1839. In 1863 he enlisted in Company I, One Hundred and Thirty-third Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry for one year. He joined his regiment at Bermuda Hundred, Va., and was in a number of skirmishes, and on picket duty in front of Petersburg during the siege, and was mustered out in the fall of 1864. In 1872 he came to Kansas and located here, and commenced improving his place. In 1873 he was elected Trustee of Lake Township. When the grasshoppers ate up his crops in 1874, he went to Kansas City and worked at his trade of coopering and returned in 1875 and remained until 1877, when he went back to Ohio with the intention of probably remaining there, but the country looked so different to him and was so unsatisfactory that, after staying there eighteen months, he returned to Kansas and located in Wyandotte, and remained there until the spring of 1882, when he came to his place and now is satisfied to remain here. Was married in 1869 to Miss Sarah A. Johnston, a native of Indiana. They have two children—Claude and Ralph. Mr. W. is a Mason and his wife a member of the Baptist Church.

J. P. WEST, farmer, Section 32, P.O Burrton, owns 160 acres, 60 in cultivation; forty acres fenced with barbed wire; an orchard of 200 trees; dwelling 24x30; granary 20x30; has twenty head of cattle. MORRIS COUNTY.

DESCRIPTIVE AND TOPOGRAPHICAL.

MORRIS County is situated in the center of the eastern half of the State. This county is bounded on the north by Davis County, and a portion of Wabaunsee; on the south by Chase County and a part of Marion; on the east by Lyon County and a portion of Wabaunsee, and on the west by a part of Dickinson and Marion counties. The county contains eleven civil townships, and in shape is square, except that in the northeast corner its square formation is broken by the southwest corner of Wabaunsee County, while in the northwest corner, a strip about two miles wide and four miles long is taken from the square and added to Dickinson County. The county contains 700 square miles, or 448,000 acres, and, except at the points where its square formation is broken, is twenty-four miles from north to south, and thirty miles from east to west.

The surface of the county, in most part, is rolling prairie. Along the Neosho River, however, and especially in the vicinity of Council Grove, the banks of the stream rise to considerable height, these elevations occurring sometimes on one side of the stream and sometimes on the other. From the top of these elevations the land rolls away in gentle undulations, without being marked by abrupt acclivities or sudden declivities. The highest point in the county is supposed to be at Council Grove, and viewing the face of the country from this, it presents a surface resembling, somewhat, that of a great sea or ocean rolling onward in gradual swells. The extreme western portion of the county, however, while the uplands have not acquired that altitude to entitle them to be termed "bluffy," is considerably broken, and does not possess that regularity of surface presented by other portions of the county. The ridges, or watersheds, have an east and west direction, and while sufficiently sloping to afford excellent drainage, are not so abrupt in their descent as to cause any loss of soil by a too precipitate flow of water after heavy rainfalls. The face of the county is considerably scarified by numerous streams and creeks, on nearly all of which are fine belts of timber. Along these streams and creeks are valleys, which vary in width from about one-half to two miles, and the land in these valleys is denominated "bottom" land. Not quite one fourth of the land in the county is comprised in these bottom lands, the proportion being about as 18 to 100.

The timber along the streams and creeks consists of oak, hickory, walnut, cottonwood, hackberry, elm and sycamore, and their average width is between one-fourth and one-half a mile. Away from the streams, that sameness of scenery which characterizes large expanses of prairie is interrupted and diversified by numerous artificial groves of forest trees, ranging from ten acres and upwards, the longest containing about sixty acres.

The character of the soil is generally rich and deep, and in ordinary seasons is very productive. The subsoil is limestone, which is located at a depth of from two to five feet beneath the surface, although in some places, but these are few, it is visible on the top of the earth. Occasionally a gravel knoll is found, but taken altogether the soil is good. Less than one-fourth of the county is denominated "bottom land," being that portion located along the streams and creeks. In these low lands the soil is extremely rich and exceedingly fertile. Its depth is much greater than that of the higher lands, reaching from four to ten feet, while on the uplands the average depth ranges from two to five feet. There is little, if any, superiority in quality, the only difference being that the bottom lands have the advantage in resistance to drouths. Either on uplands or lowlands all kinds of cereals can be raised abundantly when visited by a moderate rainfall.

Grasses of all kinds grow to great luxuriance in all parts of the county, and of this yield there is never a scarcity, be the season what it may, unless when burned up by scorching "siroccos," which are of very infrequent occurrence. If the superiority of the county for stock-raising purposes is excepted, its chief adaptability is agriculture. In addition to these it offers superior advantages for dairying and cheese making, which follow as a natural consequence from its wide ranges of excellent pasturage. The opportunities offered for the successful establishment of these branches of industry have not for some reason or other, but chiefly from lack of railroad facilities, been taken advantage of, and farmers content themselves by cultivating and raising the usual cereal crops and by giving some attention to stock.

These pursuits, it is true, are those which most closely adhere to the adaptability of the soil, and hence to these the greatest attention is given. Wheat, oats, corn, rye, flax and barley are sure crops under anything like reasonable circumstances; nor is this the case alone with the bottom lands, as the upland farms are cultivated to great success and yield abundantly.

Horticulture and arboriculture can also be successfully pursued, as the soil is well adapted to forestry and the cultivation of orchards. The statistical history will show that the people are becoming awakened to the great importance attached to both these branches, which, though not pertaining to farming proper, are elements which the farmer cannot disregard without great disadvantage to himself. All that needs to be done to have fine orchards and beautiful groves of forest trees is for the people to plant the seed, and in a very few years the soil of Morris County will furnish the fruit-laden orchard and the sylvan grove.

WATER COURSES AND THEIR NAMES.

The county is well supplied with water, creeks and streams being but a few miles apart. The Neosho River is the principal stream, and to this nearly all the lesser streams in the county are tributary. The upper portion of the river may be divided into the East and West forks of the Neosho, the former rising in Highland Township and running north for a few miles, when its course becomes easterly until it reaches Parkerville. Before it reaches Parkerville, however, it receives the water of Level Creek, a small stream running in an easterly direction through the upper portion of Highland Township. From Parkerville the course of the river is south by east, receiving on its way the waters of Haun Creek and Crooked Creek, which enter it from the south and about a mile apart. Both of these creeks take their rise in the north of Elm Creek Township, one in Section 6 and the other in Section 4. Flowing now in a southeasterly direction, and at a point about five miles from Parkerville, the Neosho receives the water of Lard's Creek, which is a stream of considerable size, and which takes its rise in Ohio Township close to the northern boundary line of the county, and a little below this it receives the tribute of Gilmore Creek, which, rising in Elm Creek Township, flows in an easterly direction until it empties into the West Fork of the Neosho as it passes through the southwest corner of Neosho Township. About one mile from this point Slough Creek adds its tribute. This creek rises a little north of the center of Ohio Township, and is about twelves miles in length, its course being due south. In the northeastern portion of the County Munker's Creek, and Middle Creek, after being fed by several smaller streams, form a junction, and these constitute the East Fork of the Neosho. The two forks unite at the south side of Section 3, in Council Grove Township, and at this point it may be said the Neosho River proper begins. Still continuing its southeast course its waters are swelled by those of Big and Little John creeks, which have their rise in Warren Township and run in a southerly direction until they empty into the Neosho a few miles south of the City of Council Grove. Its last northern tributary in the county is Rock Creek, quite an important stream, and which has its rise in Wabaunsee County, and which enters Morris County at the dividing line between Warren and Valley townships, and from thence it flows due south along the eastern boundary of the county until it mingles its waters with those of the Neosho at a point near the village of Dunlap. After the junction of the two forks is formed, its southern and western feeders are Canning Creek, Elm Creek and Four Mile Creek, which flow almost in a northeastely direction, and Indian Creek, which runs in a due easterly course along the southern boundary line of Valley Township and the county. After having been fed by these different streams and creeks, the Neosho leaves the county at a point about two miles north of the southeast corner, and one mile south of the village of Dunlap. In Diamond Valley Township, which is the southwest township of the county, there is quite a stream, named Diamond Creek, which flows in a southeasterly direction, whose tributaries are Six Mile Creek, and two or three smaller creeks of but little importance. In the northwest township, there is a stream of considerable size, named Clark's Creek. This creek is about fifteen miles in length and has its rise at the boundary line between Clark's Creek and Diamond Valley townships, and runs almost due north, receiving on its course the waters of the Mulberry and Shoemaker creeks, which are its tributaries, and passes out of the county at Skiddy, a point on the northern boundary line between Morris and Davis counties. In addition to these numerous water courses, there are several very excellent springs in the county, the two most important being Diamond Springs and Hill Springs, so that with the clear running streams and creeks, and her various bubbling springs, the county is well supplied with an abundance of good, pure water.

As it may be somewhat of a curiosity with some as to how the different streams and creeks received their names, we will now give their origin as believed to exist according to the facts, or as established by tradition. The Neosho river was named by the Kaw Indians long before Kansas was thought of as a land of settlement for the white man. The tradition, as it came from the Indians, is that about three fourths of a century ago, a party of Indians traveling westward from the Missouri River, had been long suffering for water, and had come to stream after stream, only to find them dried up. At length they came upon a stream containing water, and in their delight at finding it they cried out Ne-o-sho, which, being literally translated, means Ne, water; o sho, stream-in, or as put in plain English, "Stream with water in it." Hence the name Neosho.

Rock Creek, which is the next largest stream in the county, was originally named and known by the Indians as Ne-co-its-ak-ba, which means "Dead Man's Creek." This name was given to it by the Indians on account of the terrible slaughter that once took place upon its banks between two tribes of hostile Indians. The modern name of "Rock Creek" was given to it by westward bound travelers an occount of the rocky bluffs that line its banks.

The name "Munkers 'Creek" indicates its origin. It was named after J. C. Munkers, who was the first white man to settle upon its banks.

"Elm Creek" takes its name from the magnificient elm trees by which it is bordered.

When Gen. J. C. Fremont in 1846, was exploring the "Great American Desert" to find a way to the West, he had in the company under his charge a man who was known by his comrades as "Big John." At a point where the old Santa Fe trail crossed the creek, there is a bluff of considerable size from which flows a large spring of beautiful clear water. While Fremont was in this region, Big John, on one of his foraging expeditions, discovered this spring, which is located near the head of the creek, and hence the name of "Big John Creek," by which it has since been known. The rocks about the spring have inscribed upon them the date of its discovery, and by whom discovered.

Travelers on their way to Santa Fe over the old trail, while passing through that portion of Morris County now known as Diamond Valley Township, once came upon a cluster of magnificent springs which they hailed with as much delight as the poor pilgrim hails an oasis in the desert. So pure, clear and sparkling was the water that they named them Diamond Springs, and thus the stream flowing from them derived the name of Diamond Creek.

About 1836 an exploring party under the charge of Lewis and Clark, had found its way as far west as Morris County and encamped on the bank of a stream in the northwestern portion of the county, to which they gave the name of Clark, and hence the present name of "Clark's Creek." "Lard's Creek" is named after the first settler upon its margin, William F. Lard. "Slough Creek" takes its name from the sloughy character of the land along its course. "Canning Creek" and "Gilmore Creek" are named after first settlers in their vicinity. "Four Mile Creek" is thus named because it is just four miles south from Council Grove.

EARLY HISTORY.

The history of Council Grove may be said to be the history of Morris County, as it has been the scene of almost every interesting incident that has transpired in the county, not only since its organization, but for long before. The point from which commences the history of the county ante-dates Territorial days, and begins as far back as 1847.

What is now Council Grove has been mentioned by travelers as far back as 1820, but this mention has no bearing whatever upon any of the facts, incidents, happenings and transactions that go to make up the history proper of the county, all of which transpired in 1846, and subsequent thereto It may assist the reader to a better understanding as to how Council Grove comes to figure so conspicuously in Kansas history to state here, that by a treaty concluded with the Indians in 1825, the United States Government procured the right of way for a public highway from the Missouri River to the eastern boundary of Mexico, which, having been established, passed into history as the "Santa Fe Trail." This trail ran through Morris County, and part of it now constitutes the Main street of Council Grove.

Until 1847 the territory now embraced in Morris County was held by the various Indian tribes as neutral ground, upon which all had a right in common to hunt on its soil and fish in its streams, and the wooded belts along the Neosho and its tributaries formed excellent hunting fields. A treaty was made with the Kaw tribe of Indians in the latter part of 1846, or early in 1847, by which a tract of land twenty miles square was obtained for a reservation, which included the land on which is built the town of Council Grove.

In the spring of 1847 the Kaws were moved on to the land embraced within the limits of the reservation. Up to this time not a white man was settled upon the soil of Morris County. In the fall of the same year, one Seth M. Hays, a citizen of Westport, Missouri, having obtained a license from the Government to trade with the Indians, came to the Kaw reservation and established his trading post at Council Grove. Other traders followed soon after, the next that arrived being the Choteau Brothers, in 1848, and a trader named Kennedy in 1849

The Santa Fe Trail to New Mexico having been established, a contract was let by the Government, in 1849, to Waldo, Hall & Co., to carry the United States mail to Santa Fe, a point seven hundred miles west of the Missouri River. For a number of years after the trail was opened Council Grove was the only trading post between Independence, Mo., and Santa Fe, and, as a consequence, became a point of considerable importance to westward bound travelers.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, with a commendable desire to cultivate and enlighten the mind of "Lo, the poor Indian," did, in 1850, enter into a contract with the Government to establish a school for the education of the Kaws. To further the plan of enlightenment, the Board of Missions did, in the same year, erect a stone mission or schoolhouse, at Council Grove, and sub-contracted with T. S. Huffaker to teach the school, who acted in the capacity of teacher until 1854, when the school was discontinued. Besides the mission school several other buildings were put up in 1850, and among them a depot for the storage of government supplies and other military material. The Mail Company also put up several buildings, and all the inhabitants of Council Grove at that time, and, in fact, in Morris County, were those either in Government employ or in possession of permits from the same, numbering some twenty-five in all.

At that time the Kaw Indians on the reservation numbered about 1,700, and the agent of the tribe resided at Westport, Mo., the law at that time not requiring these gentlemen, to whom was entrusted the care and overseership of the Indians, to reside upon the agency. Things at the "Post," as it was called, moved along peacefully and quietly until 1854 each year adding a few to the population, and as a trading post Council Grove was well known. Seth M. Hays built the first house that was erected, not only in Council Grove, but in Morris County, which was a log store on the west bank of the Neosho River, on the old Santa Fe trail, near to the east end of the bridge which now spans that stream, and directly opposite the ground on which now stands the Commercial House.

In 1854, Kansas became a Territory by the passage of the act by Congress known as the Kansas-Nebraska bill. Soon after the passage of the bill, Mr. Reeder was appointed Governor of the new Territory of Kansas, and soon thereafter, with a full corps of staff officers, arrived at Council Grove, which he contemplated making the capital. In this he failed, however, owing to the fact that the land required for that purpose could not be obtained from the Indians.

Up to this time no attempts at settlement had been made in any other portion of the county than Council Grove, but in 1854 we find that one J. C. Munkers took a claim, and settled upon what is now known as Munkers' Creek, in Neosho Township.

About one of the first official acts of Gov. Reeder was to order an election for members of the Territorial Legislature. In the election proclamation, the Territory was divided into election districts, and the district of which Morris County then formed a part, placed two candidates in the field, one of whom was A. I. Baker, and the other Mobillon McGee.

At that time party excitement ran high, one party being designated as "Free-state" men, and the other as "Border Ruffians." The Territory at that time was not divided into counties. The Free-state men put forth Baker as their candidate, and the "Border Ruffians" placed McGee in nomination. The real issue was whether Kansas should, ultimately, be admitted to the Union as a free or slave State, and as both the free States of the North and the slave States of the South had been planting colonies over the populated portions of the Territory, preparatory to the struggle that was sure to take place for the ascendancy, the agitation and excitement attending the first Territorial election was exceedingly high, and but very little friction would have been required to create a blaze.

The election was held on the 30th day of March, 1855. Baker was fairly elected, and received his certificate of election from the Governor, but McGee, on some trumped-up cause, contested the seat with him, and the border ruffian element being largely in the ascendancy in the Legislature, Baker was denied the seat and McGee was seated. The Legislature that convened shortly after, by virtue of this election, divided a large portion of the Territory into counties, and according to the division thus made, the county of Wise (now Morris), was created.

The system adopted by the Legislature for organizing the counties was very simple and easily carried out. In many instances several counties were formed into one district with only one organization, so that the several counties constituting one district would be, virtually, nothing more than municipal townships. Thus Wise (Morris), Breckinridge (Lyon), Madison (Greenwood), were comprised in one district, and the place designated by law for the transaction of business pertaining to the district was Columbia, in Madison County, a point about two miles east of the present city of Emporia, so that for judicial and revenue purposes, Wise County occupied the position of a municipal township attached to Breckinridge County.

The same Legislature that divided the Territory into counties and districts also appointed the several Boards of Supervision for the government of each. Those appointed for the district above described were T. S. Huffaker, C. H. Withington, and Harmon B. Elliott. The law provided that the chairman of the Board should be ex officio Probate Judge, and Mr. Huffaker, of Morris, having been appointed chairman, became thereby Probate Judge.

THE DROUTH OF 1860.

Owing to the belief that prevailed in the greater portion of the country that no corn could be raised in Kansas on account of the severe drouths that visited the "Great American Desert," of which Kansas was considered a part, no attempt was made to raise this cereal until five years after the first white settlers had located in Morris County. The first corn planted in the county was on the farm which was opened for the benefit of the Kaw school in 1851. The rainfall that year was plentiful, and, contrary to expectations, the yield was large. The success of this crop gave the settlers encouragement, and the following year corn was planted extensively. It proved almost a failure, and for the next six years that followed, owing to scarcity of rains and hot winds, not more than half a crop was raised, and some seasons it fell far short of even this.

In 1858 and 1859 the crop was tolerably fair, and 1860 gave promise of abundant crops and a glorious harvest. Throughout the spring the weather was all that could be desired, and the promising crops filled the hearts of the people with gladness. The cup was only raised to their lips that it might be dashed to the ground before they tasted of its sweetness. May came and went, but no rain. June was fast passing away, and yet not the slightest indication of rain was visible in the clear, blue sky. Towards the latter end of June the fierce and scorching siroccos set in, and by the first of July all vegetation was utterly ruined, and the face of the country that in the beginning of May gave such bright promise of yielding an abundant harvest, was so burned and parched that it resembled one great Sahara. Nothing green was visible; not a blade of grass, not a leaf on a tree or bush but what was scorched and withered. Wheat, oats, corn, garden vegetables, berries, vines, fruit, everything, was all dried up and burned to a crisp. Cattle and other animals sought shelter and protection from the scorching winds by seeking pools of water in the beds of the streams, and standing or lying in them during their prevalence, and men would remain shut up in their houses, unless actually compelled to go out, while they continued to blow, which, usually, would be from 10 A. M. to about 5 P. M.

Not a single bushel of corn was raised in Morris County that year. This was a very severe stroke upon the settlers, all of whom had but limited means and depended upon their crops for a livelihood. Some became discouraged and moved away, and that they did so was not to be wondered at, because very few care to meet starvation, and this was what threatened them if they remained. Others, and by far the greater number, remained, determined to put the capabilities of Kansas soil to a further test. Some would say that "one swallow did not make a summer," adding that, "it was a strange country that had no drawbacks." The question that was uppermost in their minds, however, and one that caused them considerable anxiety was: "How can we procure subsistence during the year, and seed for next season?" To men in their situation this was a very serious and perplexing question, and one extremely difficult of solution. Want became so pressing, and poverty so pinching, that appeals for aid were made to the liberally disposed of other States, not only for the people of Morris County, but for those of the entire State. The appeals were not made in vain, and the supplies came pouring in by the train loads. All the relief supplies were sent to Atchison, which was made the distributing depot for all other parts of the State, but Morris County being then on the extreme frontier, and one hundred and seventy miles from the base of supplies, her people had great difficulty in obtaining relief. The only way of getting to Atchison was by team, and oft and again did poor and needy settlers find their way to Atchison only to discover that they had their pains for their labor. This was a most trying time for the settlers, and during the fall and winter of 1860, and the first half of 1861, the people suffered great hardships. For the first five months of 1861 the people were fed by charity. Food, clothing, and provisions were furnished by the liberal people of the East, and also seed wheat, oats, corn, potatoes, etc. Had it not been for this timely succor most of the settlers would have been compelled to abandon their homes, as they were utterly destitute of absolute necessities, and without means to buy. It was some years before the county recovered from the effects of this blow, and the tide of immigration that had set in towards the county began to recede.

INDIAN TROUBLES.

Prior to the organization of Kansas into a Territory, and for a long time subsequent thereto, great trouble was experienced arising from the uncertainty which existed as to what was the true boundary of the land set apart for the Kaw Reservation. Settlers were commencing to come in considerable numbers, and, being ignorant of the boundary lines of the Reservation, many of them took claims and settled within the prescribed limits. This caused no little amount of trouble between the settlers and the Indians, which, on certain occasions, threatened to be serious. This state of affairs coming to the knowledge of Gov. Reeder, he, shortly after his appointment as Governor of the Territory, requested the authorities at Washington to furnish him with a correct and authenticated map of the Territory, on which would be clearly defined and marked the lands embraced within the Indian Reservation. In due time the request was complied with, and the Governor received one of "Eastman's Maps," which was duly certified as being correct by Col. Manypenny, the then Commissioner of Indian Affairs. The location given to the Kaw Reservation by this map was west and south of Council Grove. This indicated that the lands lying between Council Grove and the eastern boundary line of the county were open for settlement by the whites, and being thus understood, many settlers made claims and located in the vicinity of Rock Creek, and also in the Neosho Valley north and south of Council Grove, under the impression and belief that in so doing they were locating upon the public domain.

Each year brought its complement of settlers, and in those days of trouble and uncertainty, each sought a location as near to the center of population as possible, and as a consequence, the lands located along the Neosho River were eagerly sought and readily taken. Two causes, and, probably, a third, contributed to the desirability of these lands. The first, doubtless, was the heavy belt of timber on either side of the stream; the second, the choice and fertile soil of the valley; and the third, their proximity to Council Grove, which, by this time, was a point of considerable importance as regards trade, and, also, as considered, in point of population. Council Grove being then the extreme western trading post, and being surrounded upon three sides by Indians, who, however peaceable they seemed might, at any moment, be moved to acts of hostility, had a tendency to cause the settlers to avoid isolation, and to make their settlement as compact as the circumstances would admit of.

Year by year the Indians beheld their territory encroached upon by the whites, and their best hunting grounds gradually slipping from their control, and soon began to exhibit signs of restlessness. This spirit of restlessness developed itself in 1857, by loud complaints being sent to the Great Father at Washington, in which the grievances of the Indians were set forth. On these being made known to the authorities, the then agent for the Kaw tribe, John Montgomery, was ordered to have the lands of the Reservation re-surveyed and the boundary lines distinctly marked. The survey made in accordance with this order unsettled things generally, as according to the boundary lines of the Reservation as established by this survey, its limits extended five miles west of Council Grove, and fifteen miles east, and ten miles north and ten miles south, so that had Council Grove been located five miles further to the east, it would according to the Montgomery survey, have been the exact center of the Kaw Reservation.

The result of this survey was, that all the settlers who had located on any portion of the territory embraced within the twenty miles square defined in the Montgomery survey as the Kaw Reservation, became trespassers upon Indian land and were notified to leave. This promised to give rise to serious complications between the whites and Indians, and also between the settlers and the Government. The people had taken their claims and made settlement in good faith, having all due respect for the lands embraced in the Reservation as described by the Eastman authenticated map, furnished by the Government to Governor Reeder, and without any intention whatever, of perpetrating any wrong upon the Indians; and when notified to surrender their claims after having made valuable improvements thereon, became justly indignant and exasperated. It was now their turn to send up their grievances to Washington, which they did, and upon proper presentation of their case to the authorities, Commissioners were appointed to appraise the value of improvements made, and award compensation in accordance therewith. This was done, and each settler was awarded what was considered adequate compensation for the improvements he had made, and thus the threatened complications were, for the present, overcome. Had they received the full face value of their awards, the compensation would have been reasonably fair, but the United States Treasury being at that time in a somwhat depleted condition they were given what was known as "Kaw Land Scrip," from which they only realized about fifty cents on the dollar. The year 1859 will long be memorable in Morris County. At that time the population of the county was about 600, most of whom were settled either in Council Grove, or its immediate vicinity. The Indians, though apparently friendly, would occasionally, whenever good opportunity presented, steal the settlers' horses and whatever else they could lay their hands upon, if they thought they could do so without detection. In their practice of these peculations, they had stolen two horses, and these were demanded of them by the whites, and also that the thieves should be surrendered for punishment. While the settlers were never without their apprehension of trouble from the Indians, yet at this particular juncture they little thought it was so near at hand. At an early hour on the morning of June 2, 1859, the whole community was thrown into commotion, if not consternation, by a band of about one hundred Kaw Indians, who came galloping into Council Grove all painted, feathered, and fully equipped for war. The older settlers, who had been taught by experience the meaning of these warlike indications, saw at a glance that the savages were bent on mischief, and that great danger was impending. Taken thus unawares for a short time they were at a loss how to act, but they knew they were at the mercy of the Indians. If they were fearful of the consequences, they knew enough not to make their fears known to the newer settlers, lest an alarm might be created that would lead to a panic, and they also knew enough to present as bold a front as possible to the Indians, and thus the wiser heads determined to await further developments.

On came the Indians down Main street from the west until the head of the line came in front of the store of S. M. Hays, where a halt was ordered. Their leader was Ah-le-gah-wah-ho, who, about a year before, had been deposed as chief of the tribe and another put in his place. After halting his warriors, the leader rode up to Mr. Hays and, still sitting on his pony, addressed him as follows: "You sent for these two horses which my boys stole from a Mexican trader. You sent us word that we must not only give up the horses, but that we must turn over to your people the two men who stole the horses, that your people may punish them. The horses you can have, but the men you can't have without a fight." Hays controlled himself as best he could, well knowing that if a fight should ensue the Indians would have all the advantage, as they had come fully prepared for such an emergency. Ah-le-gah-wah-ho, taking his silence for fear, began to taunt and insult the whites, and to heap abuse upon them for interesting themselves about a Mexican, who was not a white man, and who was no better than an Indian, and also told them very plainly that they should not meddle with what did not concern them. The abuse was too much for Hays and he lost his temper, and told his clerk to reach him two revolvers that were lying behind the counter in the store.

While this parley was going on, the Indians had broken their formation; some went galloping through the cross streets while the main body gathered around their leader, and completely filled Main street in front of Hays' store. When Hays had received the revolvers from the clerk he fired them into the air in front of the Indians, in doing which he had a double purpose, one was to frighten the Indians, and the other to warn the settlers to get armed and be ready for whatever might occur. The Indians only wanted a pretext to commence the fight, and instead of being frightened by the firing of Hays, some of the more impetuous among the warriors cried out, "Hays is shooting at us, shoot him." On hearing this, Hays retired within his store and shut the door, but two or three white men who were on the street became targets for the Indians. Whatever words were exchanged between the Indian leader and Mr. Hays, was done through Mr. T. S. Huffaker, who acted as interpreter.

Some of the young bloods among the Indians, more fiery than the others, on hearing the cry, "shoot him," fired, and one man by the name of Charles Gilkey, who was standing beside the interpreter, received a dangerous arrow wound in the lower part of the neck. Another young man by the name of Parks, while in the act of crossing the street received a dangerous bullet wound which stretched him senseless on the ground. Everybody supposed that Parks was killed. Mr. Huffaker, who had been the Indian school teacher from 1850 to 1854, and who spoke the Kaw language fluently, and who was greatly respected by the tribe, on seeing what had been done, and knowing well that still greater danger was threatened, told the Indians that they had killed one man and probably mortally wounded another, and that they had better leave town as soon as possible, as the white people would surely avenge the outrage and injury.

The Indians instautly wheeled their horses and galloped out of town, and in less than an hour's time all their tents, which before had been visible on the high ground south of Elm Creek, which runs immediately south of Council Grove, were struck and packed, after which the tribe took up its march in the direction of Four Mile Creek, where, in addition to artificial means of defense they could also have the advantage of those which, in this locality, nature offered.

No sooner had the Indians left town than the whites assembled to counsel together as to what was best to do. Messengers were sent all over the country and into neighboring counties to apprise the people of what had happened, and to warn them of the impending danger, and for as many of them as possibly could come, to hasten to Council Grove as soon as possible. The whites decided upon a war, and, if necessary, to prosecute it to extermination. Of those present a company consisting of forty men was immediately organized, of which H. J. Epsey was elected Captain, and W. H. White, Lieutenant.

Immediate war was decided to be inevitable, all believing, as expressed in council, that if the Kaws were allowed to go unpunished for the outrage committed by them that morning, there would be no safety for the whites thereafter. The company, forty strong, armed with various kinds of weapons, some with rifles, some with shot-guns, and some with revolvers, marched off in the direction of where the Indians had taken up their position. They found the Indians prepared to meet them, having sent all their squaws, papooses and old men off to a safe distance. When within about two hundred yards or so of where the Indians had posted themselves, the company halted for further deliberation.

The Indians were about four hundred strong, and had posted themselves to the best advantage. They tantalized the whites after they had halted, and beckoned them to come on. Notwithstanding their paucity of numbers and inferior arms, many of the whites were very anxious to be led against the red men, although to have done so, could only have resulted in their utter destruction. Were it not for their earnestness in the matter, the idea of forty men, poorly armed, insisting on being led against four hundred savages, all well armed with rifle, bow, and tomahawk, and all trained to fight from boyhood, might be set down as Quixotic. It may speak well for their bravery, but is a poor recommendation of their discretion.

Wiser counsel prevailed, however, and a few of the older settlers who clearly saw the terrible consequences that would result from too hasty action on the part of the company, interposed, and asked the officers to postpone further action, while some one authorized to speak for them, went forward to communicate with the Indians, and, if possible, avert further bloodshed. In doing this, another object would be accomplished, inasmuch as it would give the settlers from the surrounding country and adjacent counties time to reach Council Grove, form, and march to their assistance. The older heads among the settlers saw that to undertake to carry out the desire of those who were anxious for immediate fight, would only lead to useless slaughter, and would put in jeopardy the life of every white person within a radius of twenty miles, very wisely counseled delay. This was the trying moment for the settlers of Morris County, because not only their own lives and those of their wives and children, but the lives of those in adjoining counties depended upon their action.

When the word of what had been done and was going on went abroad, the settlers were not slow in responding to the call, and in a short time they commenced to assemble in Council Grove as fast as horses could carry them. Those who had wives and children, brought them with them, deeming it safer to have them in town than to leave them unprotected at home. All the women and children were placed in the Kaw Mission, a substantially built stone building, 36x50 feet, and two stories high, which was erected in 1850, as a schoolhouse, in which to educate these same Indians they were now going to fight. That afternoon about 150 men organized and marched to reinforce the company of forty men that had gone down in the forenoon.

Having decided to communicate with the Indians, the next thing to be considered was who would be the man to undertake it. The man that would undertake it would risk his life in so doing, but T. S. Huffaker seeing that the slightest mistake would bring on a conflict, volunteered to be the negotiator between the whites and the Indians, than whom no man was better qualified for the undertaking. Having taught the mission school from 1850 to 1854, many of the Indians had set under his instructions, and he was perfectly familiar with all their habits and customs, and also with their language, and, in addition to these the Indians looked upon him with a kind of reverence.

There was a space of about two hundred yards between where the whites halted and where the Indians had taken up their position, and from where they were stationed the Kaws could see that the whiteswere being rapidly reinforced, because as parties arrived at Council Grove from the more distant places they immediately hastened to join their brother whites where the danger was most threatening. The whites could now press their demands with a show of strength which if not sufficient to insure compliance, would cause the Kaws to treat with seeming respect, at least, any person sent by the whites to treat with them. Mr. Huffaker was authorized to go to the Kaws and demand in the name of the whites the surrender of the two Indians who had that morning shot Gilkey and Parks, to be dealt with as should be decided upon by a council of whites. The settlers preserved their line formation and as Mr. Huffaker proceeded slowly down towards the Indians each man stood ready to advance at the first indication of treachery towards him.

Mr. Huffaker was met by the chief to whom he made known the proposition he was authorized to make, whereupon a council of Indians was held and the decision arrived at was that they would surrender the Indian who shot Parks, but not the one who shot Gilkey, as they could not tell by whom he was wounded. This was only a device to save the Indian by whom Gilkey was shot, because they knew at the time that he was sitting with them as one of the council. He was a young chief, much loved and honored by his tribe and their great desire was to save him if possible. Mr. Huffaker told them he would go back and notify his people of their decision.

By this time the number of whites had increased to be about equal that of the Indians, and Mr. Huffaker knew that every minute's time gained was to the advantage of the whites. He returned to the Indians and told them that nothing short of a surrender of both Indians would satisfy his people. On hearing this the Indians offered $8,000 and forty ponies as satisfaction for the shooting of Gilkey, but Mr. Huffaker refused to entertain the proposition.

On hearing this ultimatum of the whites the young chief who was guilty of the shooting arose and left the council, but returned in a short time all armed and prepared for fight. Addressing the council he said that inasmuch as they had about decided to surrender him to the whites, thereby sanctioning his death, he would sell his life as dearly as possible, and signified his intention of first killing his own chief and then the white man who demanded his surrender. This address was a little too late in coming, because had a fight ensued then the advantage in numbers and arms was on the side of the whites. The fiery speech of the youth had no effect towards stirring up the older warriors, but still they hesitated to give him up. They tried every way to save the young chief, but to no purpose. They increased the money offer to $10,000, but Mr. Huffaker told them that money was no object. They had committed an outrage upon the settlers, and had shed the blood of two of their people, and unless both were given up his people were determined to fight.

"You may kill some of us," said Mr. Huffaker, "but it will be the last of your tribe, because white men will come who will avenge us, and even now soldiers are on their way from Fort Riley. Now, I shall walk to my people and remain there while I count twenty, and will then walk back half way to where I shall set this stick, and there I shall again connt twenty, and if both Indians are not surrendered by that time, I shall return to my people and upon you rest the consequences."

Having thus conveyed his intentions to the Indians Mr. Huffaker turned around and deliberately walked back to where the whites were standing in line, resting upon their arms. Having counted twenty he slowly walked back to where he had set the stick and again counted twenty, but no sign was given by the Indians to indicate their willingness to comply with his demand. Believing the Indians meant to fight he turned again to rejoin the whites, and had gone but a few steps when the Indians called to him and told him the two guilty ones should be given up. They were then brought forth, bound and tied, and delivered over to the whites. They were tried in no court, no judge heard their case, no attorney plead for them, no jury deliberated upon their guilt or innocence, they had wantonly shed the blood of two white men who had done them no injury, and, according to the Western notions of dealing with such offenders, justice demanded that they should suffer death. This was the verdict, and in compliance therewith both were hung where the lumber yard now stands, on the south side of Main street, between the river and the court house.

The Indians came and took away their remains, and whether they merited such condign punishment or not, it was certainly a pitying sight to see the mother of the young chief cut and lacerate her head, neck and breast, and with the blood that flowed from her self-inflicted wounds rub the post on which her son had breathed his last. Some time after this the United States grand jury took cognizance of the matter and indicted for murder several of the parties supposed to be implicated in the hanging. They were tried, but nothing came of it beyond the expense and inconvenience they suffered in consequence thereof.

SALE OF THE KAW LANDS.

Up to this time and for some time subsequent Morris County had been exceedingly slow of settlement. Three causes contributed to this result. First, Kansas was still considered by many as part of the "Great American Desert," altogether barren and unproductive. Second, it was the home of various tribes of Indians who were either openly or secretly hostile to white settlement; and third, and the one that bore most against the settlement of Morris County, was the uncertainty that attached to the Kaw Reservation lands. If people located upon desirable claims they had no certainty of being left in peaceable possession. They did not know but that after having made valuable improvements it might be discovered, as had been the case once before, that they had settled upon Indian lands and would be dispossessed.

Ever since 1854 promises had been made by the Government, or by parties speaking for it, that the Indian title to the lands would be extinguished and that they would be thrown open for settlement, but years of feud, strife and uncertainty had passed without anything in this direction having been done. The effect that this state of uncertainty had upon the settlement of the county will be better understood when it is known that nearly one-half of the entire land in the county was embraced within the Kaw Reservation. The Indians were desirous of parting with their title to the lands, and had repeatedly expressed a willingness to dispose of them and move further west, but no notice had ever been taken of their offers.

In 1859, one Alfred B. Greenwood was appointed Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and was either sent, or came upon his own motion, to negotiate with the various tribes of Indians for their lands. Whatever schemes or plans were gotten up by the agents of the Government for their own benefit in connection with these lands, is no part of this history, and will only be mentioned in a passing manner, in order that the work may be better understood. Without notifying the local agent, stationed upon the lands, of his coming, Greenwood one day made his appearance at the old Kaw Agency, four miles east of Council Grove, and immediately called a council of the Indians, to whom he made known the contents and stipulations of a treaty that purported to have been prepared at Washington.

Some of the Indians came to Council Grove and apprised the citizens of what was going on at the agency, and instantly nearly every one in the place hastened to the spot to prevent what they considered a gross and outrageous swindle. The settlers presented their case to the Commissioner and insisted upon a modification of the treaty, and, to some extent, succeeded; but their demand to have a provision inserted recognizing the rights of those who had settled upon the lands prior to the Montgomery survey, was not conceded. The treaty was signed, and among its many provisions was one providing for the sale of 150,000 acres of the land to the highest bidder. The bids were to be submitted under seal, and a commission was to be appointed by which the lands were to be appraised. When the appraisers were appointed the settlers presented a statement of their case to them, and succeeded in having the lands appraised at a maximum of $1.75 per acre, the minimum being fixed at seventy-five cents.

The treaty made by Greenwood with the Indians gave rise to great dissatisfaction among the whites, and a public meeting was called to give expression to their feelings upon the same. It was decided by the meeting to send a delegate to Washington to prevent, if possible, the ratification of the treaty by the United States Senate, and Judge Elmore was chosen the delegate. When the treaty came up for ratification in the Senate, it was amended so that all settlers who had made improvements upon their lands prior to 1857, licensed traders, and all other persons lawfully residing upon the lands, should have their claims adjusted by the Secretary of the Interior, and that they should have the lands upon which they had settled and made improvements, at the appraised value of $1.75 per acre.

Another difficulty now arose, which relates more particularly to Council Grove history than to that of Morris County. Under the law that gave parties the right to organize themselves into town companies, those who had made improvements upon the land known as the "town site" formed themselves into a town company, and claimed the land in common, except one, and he was the agent of Jacob Hall. His refusal to take part in the organization arose from the fact that Hall claimed a section of land by virtue of act of Congress, as mail contractor, and the section that he claimed embraced that included in the town site. After the Greenwood treaty had been amended and ratified by the Senate, the Town Company immediately presented its claim for the land to the Secretary of the Interior and asked for a patent. They now learned for the first time, that Hall had anticipated them, and had made application for the same land, basing his claim upon the act of Congress, and ignoring the treaty recently made and ratified. From these opposing claims arose a fierce and bitter contest, both sides employing the ablest counsel they could procure. The contest was a protracted one, but finally the land was awarded to the Town Company and they received patents therefor. For a long time this decision was supposed to have settled forever all disputes between Hall and the Town Company over this land, but Hall dying about seven years afterwards, his heirs brought suit for the recovery of the land, which suit is still pending, or was until recently, in the Circuit Court of the United States.

RESULTS OF THE GREENWOOD TREATY.

Several years later, in 1862, renewed trouble arose on account of this Greenwood treaty. By the provisions of the treaty a commission was appointed to allot the lands to the several members of the Kaw Indians, giving to each forty acres. The land to be thus allotted was denominated the "Diminished Reserve," and upon this some white people had settled as early as 1856, and though they had been regularly warned off about every year since the Montgomery survey in 1857, they persisted in holding their claims. The admonitions and warnings of the Government were utterly disregarded, until finally the Government sent a company of soldiers to remove them. Knowing well the utter inutility of resisting United States troops, the settlers offered no further resistance, but quietly packed up their goods and departed from the Reservation. The following day the soldiers, also, took their departure, but they were not gone over twenty-four hours when the settlers all moved back on to their claims.

The Government finding that, in order to keep the settlers out of possession and to prevent a conflict between the whites and the Indians, it would be necessary to establish a military post, made a proposition to the settlers to pay them for their improvements, which was accepted, and thus the complications that arose over the Diminished Reservation were peacefully settled and amicably adjusted.

During 1861 and 1862 the population of the county remained about stationary, neither increasing nor diminishing, although the vote cast in 1862 was a little less than that of 1861, which, doubtless, can be accounted for by the fact of a number of the people going into the army. There is, probably, no county in the State that has experienced such trouble over the Indian lands within its boundary as has Morris County. They have been a perpetual drawback to the county almost to the present time, and frequently gave rise to difficulties that threatened serious results. Thus in 1862 we find the "Kaw Trust Lands" coming up as a bone of considerable contention. Under the Greenwood treaty, these lands were to be advertised for sale and the bids were to be made under seal. The settlers having received, through a friend in Washington, a copy of the appraisement, bid in every instance the exact price fixed by the appraisers. Month after month passed by but still the settlers heard nothing from their bids. They called upon their representatives in Congress for information, but could receive no satisfactory answer.

While in this state of doubt and uncertainty as to the disposition of the lands, it was brought to their knowledge that some parties had overbid them a few cents on the acre, and such a storm of indignation broke forth that showed they were in no spirit to be tampered with. They demanded of their Senators and Representatives in Congress an explanation of the facts connected with the bids, but these gentlemen could not enlighten them. Through a friend in Washington they ascertained that one Robert Corwin, of Ohio, was the highest bidder for about seventy of the choicest claims, he having bid from one to ten cents an acre more than the settlers.

On learning this the wrath of the people knew no bounds, and they instantly made their case known to Hon. J. N. Lane, who was at that time United States Senator from Kansas, and to Hon. A. C. Wilder, who was then Representative in Congress. These gentlemen immediately addressed a communication, of which the following is a copy, to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs:

> WASHINGTON CITY, D. C.,
>
> Sir: We have just been informed that the sealed bids for the Kaw Trust Lands have been opened, and develop the fact that the hardy actual settlers upon such lands are about to be robbed by a heartless speculator who has never been upon said lands. That said speculator, intending to filch from the settlers their homes and hard earnings, has overbid them a few cents on the acre in the expectation of obtaining the title to some seventy-five farms, proposing to sell the same to the settlers at an advanced price or drive them from their homes, many of whom are now in the army battling for their country.
>
> In the name of these, our constituents, and as their representatives, we do solemnly pray you to accept the bids of the actual settlers and reject the bids of the heartless speculator, and if, in discharge of your official duty, this cannot be done, award the lands to the settlers at the advance price bid by the speculator, giving them a sufficient time to signify their assent to the same. In behalf of the people of Kansas, and in the name of justice, we file this, our solemn protest, against permitting one acre of the land of the actual settlers going into the hands of the cormorant speculator, who has bid thereon, until the actual ler has had a fair opportunity to purchase the same.
>
> Yours truly,
> J. N. LANE.
> A. C. WILDER.
>
> HON. W. P. DALE,
> Commissioner of Indian Affairs,
> Washington, D. C.

In order to give better and more forcible expression to their indignation, a meeting of the settlers was held at Council Grove, on April 4, 1863, and in the preamble and resolutions adopted they pledged themselves to stand together as one man in favor of the settler. They resolved that any person, either at home or abroad, who attempted to rob a settler of his claim was no better than a robber, and should and would be treated as such. The Interior Department at Washington was strongly condemned and denounced. They resolved that the robberies committed upon the Government and the Indians by Corwin and others in building contracts were a disgrace to the nation; that they had reason to believe that Corwin received $20,000 from Stevens' contract for putting up buildings for the Indians; that they would defend their rights to their lands to the utmost extremity, and before yielding to heartless speculators and robbers they would destroy their improvements and would pursue any other course that would render the locality extremely disagreeable and uncomfortable for speculators or their agents. The people were thoroughly aroused and in earnest, and any effort to enforce the award to Corwin would surely have caused bloodshed. The opposition to the lands being awarded to Corwin was so great and promised to be productive of so much trouble that all the bids submitted for the "Trust Lands" were rejected, and on August 31, 1863, the lands were again advertised, and bids were to be received until October 5 following.

In 1860 and 1861, one Robert Stevens, who had previously entered into a large contract with the Government to build houses for the Indians, finished his contract, having erected in all one 150 stone houses, but as the old settlers of Morris County still characterize the job as a huge swindle, and as it has little bearing upon the history of the county, we will say nothing concerning it further than that after the houses were completed the Indians used them for stables and dwelt in their tents.

BORDER TROUBLES.

We now arrive at that period when events took place that not only startled the settlers of Morris County, but the people of the whole country, the year that ushered in the War of the Rebellion. After the commencement of hostilities between the North and the South, the people of the county were kept in a constant state of feverish excitement by perpetual threatened invasion from hostile Indians on the south and west, and by incursions of guerrillas and bushwhackers from Missouri, who, after committing all manner of violence in the eastern portion of the State, were working westward to the mountains and plains of New Mexico and Colorado where they could prey upon trains crossing the plains, and murder all the defenceless people who favored the Union. It was during one of these bushwhacking raids in 1862, by the gang known as Bill Anderson's, that Judge Baker, one of the most respected citizen of the county, and his brother-in-law, George Segur, were murdered at Baker's home on Rock Creek.

At the commencement of the war, the Anderson family, the male portion of which consisted of the old man and two sons, Bill and Jim, lived in Kansas and not a great way from Baker's. They were natives of Missouri, and had moved to Kansas in tho e ante bellum days when it was thought Kansas could be made a slave State by colonizing largely from the South. The people of the neighborhood looked upon the family as hard characters, and it was an open secret that they had committed several murders. To kill, steal, and plunder was their business, and they became quite a terror to the community. The breaking out of the war opened up to them grand opportunities for carrying on their hellish business, of which they were not slow to take advantage. About this time several other desperate characters joined them, and among them one Lee Griffin, and a notorious scoundrel, named Reed. They established their headquarters at Council Grove, and from this point would sally out and commit all manner of depredations, including murder, rape and horse-stealing. In one of these marauding excursions they stole two horses from Mr. Segur, who was father-in law to Judge Baker.

On hearing of this, Baker, with several others, started in pursuit and overtook the party on the Santa Fe trail, some distance west of Council Grove. The horses were recovered, and Baker swore out a warrant of arrest against the Andersons. This coming to the knowledge of old man Anderson, he swore he would take Baker's life, and arming himself with a rifle, and with murderous intent, he went to Baker's house. Baker having been previously informed of Anderson's design, met him prepared, and before the latter could carry out his murderous purpose Baker shot him dead.

The following night the young Andersons, with Griffin and Reed, went to Baker's house, intent on killing him, and called him out, but Baker, apprehensive that something of the kind would occur, had secured a friend or two to stay with him, and when he made his appearance he did so fully prepared and determined to sell his life as dearly as possible. Finding themselves thwarted in their purpose to kill Baker that night, they retired to the brush where they lay concealed watching for an opportunity to dispatch their victim. After thus waiting for a week or two without finding the opportunity they sought, they departed for Missouri, the resort during the war of guerrillas, bushwhackers and cut-throats.

More than a month passed by without anything being heard of the Andersons and their gang, and a faint hope began to be entertained that they had seen the last of them in the neighborhood, when on the morning of the second day of July, 1862, the Andersons were discovered skulking in the vicinity of Baker's house. They had returned the evening previous, and with them was another villain, a stranger, unknown to anyone in the community. Learning of Baker's absence from home, the Anderson gang secreted themselves in the neighborhood, leaving the stranger to watch Baker's house and apprise them of his return. On the evening of July 3, Baker, with his wife, returned from Emporia, which fact was immediately communicated by the stranger to the Andersons.

At that time Baker kept a supply store near the Santa Fe trail, which stood about seven or eight rods from his house. The Andersons were not long in perfecting their plans. The stranger was sent to Baker's house, instructed to tell him that he was "boss" of a train that was camped a short way off, and that he desired to purchase some supplies. Baker never having seen the stranger before, and this being a usual occurrence, was entirely free from suspicion, but yet in those unsettled times when every man on the frontier went armed, he took the precaution to buckle on a pair of revolvers, and thus prepared, and accompanied by his brother-in-law, George Segur, he went with the stranger to the store. It was now well into evening, so that under the darkness the Andersons could station themselves close to the store without running much risk of detection.

Baker had just about finished putting up the stranger's order when the Andersons, with their partners in crime, rushed into the store and fired, wounding both Baker and Segur in the first discharge. Taken thus by surprise, and being outnumbered two to one, Baker and Segur in their wounded condition sought shelter in the cellar, where the murderers sought to follow them, but Baker, firing through the cellar door, wounded Jim Anderson in the leg, breaking his thigh bone. The Andersons then withdrew from the building and set fire to it. In the cellar Baker told his brother-in-law that he was mortally wounded and could not live long, and advised Segur to escape through the cellar window, which, after much difficulty, he succeeded in doing. While the store was being devoured by the flames, the desperadoes watched outside lest Baker should escape, and thus one of the most respected citizens of Morris County was burned to death in the cellar of his own store by this gang of cut-throats, after having been mortally wounded at their hands. Segur died from his wound on the following day. After finishing their hellish work in Morris County, the murderous gang returned to Missouri to ply their nefarious business of guerrilla warfare and bushwhacking.

Although Col. S. N. Wood had, by authority of the Secretary of War, and of the Governor of Kansas, organized the "Morris County Rangers" in the early part of the year 1863, guerrillas were not deterred from making plundering and murderous incursions into the country. Thus we find that on the 4th of May, 1863, Dick Yeager and his band of guerrillas encamped in the vicinity of Council Grove. No doubt his intention was to sack the town, but the people armed themselves and posted sentinels each night and frustrated his plans. After domineering over the citizens for some time with high hand, and using threats and insults, he withdrew with a portion of his band to Diamond Springs, where, without either ceremony or provocation, they shot and killed a citizen named Augustus Howell, and severely wounded his wife.

Another thing that tended to save Council Grove and its people from the ravages of Yeager, was the fact that Capt. Rowell, with a company of the Second Colorado Regiment, was stationed close to the town to guard the mails and Santa Fe trains. Throughout the year 1854, the people were kept constantly on the alert. Now it would be a guerrilla raid that would call them to arms, and now a visit from hostile Indians. Many were the depredations committed this year by marauding bands of both whites and Indians, but the people, knowing the insecurity of life and property in those harassing years, were always on the qui vive, and while the depredations perpetrated in the adjoining counties were quite serious, Morris County escaped with but few, and these were of a trifling character.

In the year 1867 occurred the lynching of one of the guerrillas, and the affair caused a great deal of excitement in Council Grove. In the fall of 1866 a man named McDowell came from Missouri and made Council Grove his stopping place. As was subsequently ascertained, McDowell, during the war was a guerrilla and bushwhacker, and when the war closed, having no desire to cultivate the arts of peace, became a desperado, and many are the dark deeds laid to his charge. Of these he boasted, and seemed to take pride in telling how many men he had killed in his time. People paid very little heed to his boasting at the time and set it all down to braggadocio. At that time one W. K. Pollard kept a livery stable in Council Grove, and one day McDowell went to the stable and hired a team for the ostensible purpose of going to Junction City. As the sequel proved, in hiring the team he had no other object than to steal it. Not returning that day Pollard became suspicious and started after him next morning. On reaching Junction City he found that McDowell had gone farther, and was, by that time, probably out of the State. His next step was to procure a requisition from Gov. Crawford, after which he started in pursuit of the thief, and succeeded in overtaking him at Nebraska City, where he arrested him and brought him back to Council Grove. Here he had a preliminary examination and was held for trial at the District Court.

In all probability he would have been tried by ordinary process of law but for a little transaction that took place that changed the aspect of affairs. While McDowell was under confinement it so happened by some mysterious agency that the Deputy Sheriff of Shawnee County, one Cunningham, put in an appearance, and whatever freemasonry existed between McDowell and Cunningham will never be known, but certain it is that Cunningham secretly passed McDowell a revolver for the evident purpose of securing his escape by shooting the guard. Cunningham was detected in the act, however, and before McDowell had an opportunity of using it for any purpose it was taken from him. If ever Cunningham stood upon the brink of eternity it was then, for no sooner was it made known what he had done than he was surrounded by as an indignant and determined a set of men as ever cast a noose around the neck of a villain. He trembled with fear, and well he might, for he was facing a crowd of resolute men, never to be moved by threats, and, in his case, not easily moved by appeals for pity. The rope was prepared and certain doom seemed to await him, but through some mysterious and unacountable agency, known only to the initiated, he was saved, but never will he be so near the grave again until he enters it, as he was upon that occasion. He immediately left town, nor did he stand upon the order of his going.

The more the people thought and talked of what had taken place, the more exasperated they became, and that same night a body of disguised men surrounded the guard, seized McDowell and carried him to the center of the bridge that crosses the Neosho River at Council Grove. He begged and pleaded and screamed for mercy, but all his begging, pleading and screaming fell upon deaf ears, for he was about to taste of that kind of mercy that he, by his own boasting, had shown to his helpless victims when they appealed to him. A rope was brought, one end of which was fastened around his neck, after the fashion usually adopted in such cases, and the other was made secure to the railing of the bridge. Up he was lifted and over he was dropped, and there he was left dangling until the next morning, when he was taken down and an inquest held on his body by J. T. Stevenson, a Justice of the Peace, and a verdict rendered according to the facts—death by strangulation.

A few days after this occurred, the whole community was thrown into considerable excitement by a rumor that a party of Quantrell's band and Bill Anderson's, to which McDowell had belonged, were on their way to wreak a terrible vengeance upon the people of Morris County, and Council Grove in particular. It turned out to be mere rumor, however, but the excitement was none the less for all that.

THE CHEYENNE OUTBREAK.

This occurred on the 3rd of June, 1868. Like a thunderbolt bursting from a clear sky, and without the least note of warning to indicate what was about to happen, four hundred Cheyennes burst upon the town all armed and painted for war. When the Indians reached the west end of the town, they divided their forces, one-half following along Elm Creek to the south of town while the other continued to march along Main street. The people were taken completely by surprise, and could not surmise what the approach of so large a body of Indians, all painted, bedecked and mounted for war, meant, unless it was the indiscriminate slaughter of the whites. The fears of the whites were greatly allayed when the Chief of the Cheyennes told them they had nothing to fear as it was the Kaws they were after and not the whites. Notwithstanding this assurance, the settlers, knowing the treacherous nature of the red men, were not altogether at ease and held themselves in readiness for whatever might happen. The Kaw tribe was at that time stationed about two and a half miles east from Council Grove, on Big John Creek, and the agent for the tribe was Major E. S. Stover.

The cause for the Cheyennes being on the war path may as well be stated here. During the year previous, the Kaws and Cheyennes lived at peace with each other, and visited the wigwams of each other in a friendly manner. Not far west from Council Grove both tribes herded their ponies within easy distance of each other and between the two

> "All seemed as peaceful and as still
> As the mist slumb'ring on yon hill."

The Cheyennes had about one hundred ponies in their herd, with eight or ten Indians to watch them, and the Kaws had about fifty ponies in their herd with only one of the tribe to watch them. From where the Kaws were at that time encamped, on the high land on the south side of Elm Creek, they could see anything that transpired on the plains where the ponies were being herded. One day the Kaw who was herding the ponies of his tribe saw several Cheyennes come toward where he was stationed, and thinking they were coming for no other purpose than to make a neighborly visit, and exchange a friendly pipe, he lay couched upon the grass awaiting their approach. Before the unsuspecting Kaw had an idea of what was going to happen, his spirit was sent to the happy hunting ground, and all the Kaw ponies driven off. The Cheyennes thought they were unobserved, but a party of Kaws had been watching their movements from the high ground where they were encamped. Their natural cunning told them not to drive the Kaw ponies directly to their own herd, and they therefore made a wide detour to the south and west, expecting thereby to reach their own camp, and at the same time, throw the Kaws off the trail.

This stratagem might have been successful had it not been for the observations taken from the camp. Comprehending at a glance the object and movement of the Cheyennes, the Kaws instantly mustered a party of their own warriors and intercepted the Cheyennes, whom they set upon and killed seven out of eight. The Kaws not only recovered their own ponies but captured about forty of those belonging to the Cheyennes, and thus between ponies and scalps, they returned triumphantly to camp. They celebrated the affair by a war-dance, at which many of the people from Council Grove and surrounding country were spectators. It was to avenge this act on the part of the Kaws that the Cheyennes appeared in the streets of Council Grove on the morning of June 3, 1868.

About two miles from Council Grove, on the east side of the Neosho River, was established the headquarters of the Kaw Agency, the agent, as already mentioned, being Major Stover. On hearing of the approach of the Cheyennes, the Kaws took up a position in the brush along the margin of Big John Creek. The Kaws were greatly inferior in numbers, but vastly superior in arms. The Cheyennes were mounted, while the Kaws were on foot.

As the Cheyennes approached, Major Stover rode out and met their chief and several of their braves between the two contending lines, and held a consultation with them in the interest of peace. Nothing would satisfy the Cheyennes but the scalps of seven Kaws and forty of their ponies, to which Major Stover would not listen.

While the consultation was being held, some of the more fiery and impetuous of the Indians exchanged shots. Among the Kaws was a brave who was looked upon as a kind of leader, named Bill Johnson, and when the firing commenced, Bill cried out, "Take care, Major Stover, you'll get hurt. Major Stover go away, you'll get hurt, I say." Nothing was accomplished by the parley between the Major and the Chief; the Cheyennes would be satisfied with nothing but the scalps and the ponies, and these being refused they determined to exterminate the Kaws.

The Major, finding his efforts to secure peace fruitless, returned to where the Kaws were posted in the brush, and it is said the first and only command he gave them was, "Give them h—l, boys." The Cheyennes were extremely wary about attacking, and the Kaws being dismounted and greatly inferior in numbers, were just as determined not to be drawn from their advantageous position. The Cheyennes would form in line out in the open ground, and then, facing to the right, would make a charge in Indian file, and when the head of the line would come within shooting distance of the Kaws, (they were mostly all armed with revolvers), the first man would fire and wheel to the left, and so on throughout the line, each warrior following his leader until they had formed quite an extended circle, and in this fashion they would ride and fire; always sure, as they approached the Kaws to throw themselves well over on the opposite sides of their ponies.

This kind of running fight was kept up for several hours, when the Cheyennes, fearing to attack the Kaws in their position, and being unable to draw them out into the open ground, retired from the field. The casualties were, three wounded, one of whom died the following day. There is good reason to believe that the Cheyennes had designs of perpetrating outrages upon the whites, because, instead of returning to camp, they moved up to the Solomon Valley, where they killed quite a number of settlers and committed other depredations

PROGRESS OF THE COUNTY.

Shortly after the close of the war, in 1865, a good many settlers, seeking homes in the West, located in the county, and this year and the one that followed were very prosperous years for the people. In 1866, however, the county, but particularly Council Grove, had quite a blow aimed at its prosperity. Up to this time Council Grove had carried on quite an extensive business, being the last trading post for trains going west, and the first point reached by trains coming from the west. Situated thus, and being located on the great and only highway between the Missouri River and New Mexico, its trade was immense. It was the rendezvous for all trains crossing the plains, and was the headquarters of the Santa Fe Coach Line. Everything contributed to make it a place of great prosperity, and the prosperity it shared was felt more or less throughout the county. Just at this point of its prosperity, however, the Kansas Pacific Railway was completed almost to Junction City, in Davis County, a point about twenty-five miles north of Council Grove. To this point the Stage Company moved its entire outfit, and Junction City was now to realize the trade heretofore enjoyed by Council Grove. The Santa Fe trail was virtually deserted, and the long trains that were wont to form at Council Grove, now formed at the county seat of Davis County, and, instead of following the Santa Fe trail, moved westward over the Smoky Hill route. The people of Council Grove did not allow this vast trade to pass from them without an effort to retain it, and offered liberal inducements to the Stage Company to prevent them from moving, but all to no purpose; to Junction City they went and the business of Council Grove was staggered by the blow. Compared with what it had been, Council Grove now became a quiet town. During this year, 1867, a slight shock of earthquake was felt in the county, and the scare created thereby was equal to any occasioned by either savage or guerrilla. Although the removal of the Stage Line Company, and the loss of business consequent thereon, was a severe blow to Council Grove, merchants continued to do a reasonably fair business. It is true their transactions were not nearly as great, but the business was steady, and when balance sheets were struck at the close of 1867, dealers found that they had done reasonably well during the year. In fact it was a year of remarkable prosperity all over the county. A great many new settlers had located in the county during the year, the winter was exceedingly mild, and the spring of 1868 opened out very auspiciously. People were now commencing to realize a feeling of security, and all fear of Indian outbreaks or raids of bushwhackers had about vanished. In this year occurred the Cheyenne outbreak, which caused a great deal of excitement. But after it was all over, the inhabitants of Morris County found out that they were a great deal more frightened than hurt.

The year 1869 was rather a quiet year, and had it not been for the shooting and killing of William Hess by William Polk in a difficulty that arose over some frivolous matter, would have been quite uneventful. Polk immediately fled, but was afterwards captured in Illinois and brought back to Cottonwood, where he was tried and acquitted. Settlers were now pouring into the county thick and fast, and 1870 was marked by such a flow of immigration into the county as, up to that time, had never been realized. Large herds of cattle were driven into the county to fatten on its rich, nutritious and abundant grasses, and everybody felt happy under prosperity. Towards the end of the year, however, a small speck of war showed itself on the horizon, which, for some time, created considerable excitement. This arose from the fact that the vigilantes of Butler County, which joins Morris County on the south, had hung, for some real or supposed cause, a man named James Smith, and two brothers named Booth. These men had been at a former time residents of Morris County, and when it came to the knowledge of the people that three of their citizens had been hung by the vigilantes of an adjoining county, they were ready to wreak a terrible vengeance upon their neighbor. Satisfactory explanations were made, however, and the people quieted down and the thing was soon forgotten. In 1871 new comers flocked into the county by the hundred. They came singly and in groups, and even by whole colonies, some of which numbered fifty families to the colony. Nothing occurred in the county of unusual interest until the fall of 1873, when the entire western portion of the county was swept as by a besom with a devastating prairie fire. The fire originated in the neighborhood of White City, on the northern boundary line of the county, and spread with terrific rapidity over that portion of the county above mentioned, lapping up with its fiery tongue in its mad career, houses, barns, out-buildings, cattle, farm implements, hay-stacks, and in some instances, human lives, and leaving nothing but desolation and devastation in its wake. The damage entailed upon the settlers by this fire was immense, and very many of the people lost all they had saved and accumulated by years of toil and hard labor. The history of the county from that time to the present is without any incident of special interest or unusual occurrence, and pertains more to its material growth and advancement, and, consequently, can be shown better by statistical history than by narrative.

WAR RECORD.

At the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion, the population of Morris County, all told did not exceed 800 souls, and the returns of the election for 1861, show that the voting population that year was only 158. Among the settlers were quite a number from Missouri and other slave-holding States, and, as a consequence, they divided upon the issue of the war according to their proclivities. Those who favored the Union were largely in the ascendency, and during the early days of the war, about fifty men from Morris County enlisted in the Union army, most of whom went into the Eleventh Kansas, which was recruited by Gen. Thomas Ewing, then of Kansas, but now of Ohio.

As the war continued, men kept enlisting until Morris County had furnished 125 soldiers, which, for a county that was, by some, considered "disloyal," on account of the Southern people among the settlers, was pretty good evidence of their loyalty. When it is borne in mind that, in 1861, the voting population was only 158, it will be seen that nearly every loyal man in Morris County, capable of bearing arms, went to the war to fight for the Union and Liberty. In addition to this, one John Delashmitt came from Iowa and enlisted in Morris County a company of Kaw Indians for service in the Union army, which numbered eighty men.

In 1863, the people were so harassed and kept in such a continual state of excitement by guerrillas and bushwhackers, that S. N. Wood, who had gone out as Lieutenant Colonel of the Second Kansas, at the commencement of the war, but who had resigned and returned home early in 1863, received authority from the Secretary of War and the Governor of Kansas, to organize a military force, to be known as the Morris County Rangers. If there were any enlisted men in this organization, we failed to find a record of their names, but the following is a list of the officers:

Morris County Rangers, Cavalry.—Captain, S. N. Wood; First Lieutenant, James Cairey; Second Lieutenant, Theodore Jones; Third Lieutenant, W. R. Terwilliger; Ensign, J. H. Black.

Neosho Guards, Cavalry.—Captain, W. T. Lard; First Lieutenant, J. E. Bryan; Second Lieutenant, J. A. B. Bear; Third Lieutenant, Samuel Brown; Ensign, A. J. Crawford.

Clark's Creek Rangers, Cavalry.—Captain, Charles Guenter; First Lieutenant, Henry Baxter; Second Lieutenant, Courtney Holmes; Third Lieutenant, John Warnecka; Ensign, S. Atchison.

Neosho Rangers, Cavalry.—Captain, S. D. Price; First Lieutenant, T. J. Lambert; Second Lieutenant, M. Clairey; Third Lieutenant, M. Clevenger; Ensign, G. W. Black.

Council Grove Guards, Infantry.—Captain, R. B. Lockwood; First Lieutenant, J. Stenger; Second Lieutenant, James Phinney; Third Lieutenant, N. C. Aiken; Ensign, William Lane.

FIRST THINGS.

First Justices.—H. J. Epsey appointed by Governor Geary in 1858. The next shown by the records is Thomas White in 1859, and William Mansfield and Abraham Pollard in 1860. Clark's Creek Township, Marion Walters and W. M. Patton, 1860; Neosho Township, William Downing and Porter Fisher, 1860; Diamond Valley Township, A. F. Dickinson and Wesley Lyon, 1868; Elm Creek Township, S. Corey and G. W. Coffin, 1871; Parker Township, G. W. Churchman and Thomas Eldridge, 1871; Ohio Township, H. C. Abernethy and D. E. Welden, 1872; Highland Township, Detroit Burton, 1866; Valley Township, H. H. Knox and W. H. Martin, 1874; Rolling Prairie Township, Erie Johnson, 1874; Warren Township, H. P. Watts and E. Johnson, 1881.

First Business.—The first store opened in the county was by S. M. Hays, at Council Grove in 1847, followed the year after by Choteau Bros., and in 1852 by Columbia Bros. In 1861, at the same place, Aiken & Thacher built a large steam grist and saw mill. Parkerville, a general store was opened by Eastman & Thomas in 1870, and at the same place in 1871, C. G. Parker erected a steam grist and saw mill. Skiddy, general store by College & McDaniels in 1870. White City, general store by Thornley & Dunbar in 1872. Dunlap, general store.

The first hotel in the county was built in 1856, at Council Grove, by Charles Gilkey.

First Church Buildings.—The first church building erected in the county was the Methodist Episcopal, South, at Council Grove, in 1868; Congregational at the same place in 1871; Methodist at the same place in 1878. Methodist Church at White City in 1878. Methodist at Parkerville in 1880. Baptist Church at Skiddy in 1882. African Methodist Episcopal at Council Grove in 1879.

First Schools.—Council Grove, 1857, teacher, Miss Sarah Stevenson; Warren Township, 1868, teacher, Miss Amanda Harlow; Clark's Creek Township, 1859, teacher, Edson Baxter, at that time only fourteen years old; Elm Creek Township, 1868, teacher, Mrs. Bates; Neosho Township, 1859, teacher, Miss Sallie Fisher; Ohio Township, 1871, teacher, Mr. Lacy; Highland Township, 1871, teacher, Henry Corbin; Parker Township, 1866; White City, 1873, teacher, Adam Dixon; Parkerville, 1871, teacher, William McCullom; Skiddy, 1873.

First Marriages.—T. S. Huffaker and Eliza Ann Baker, May, 1852, in Council Grove; Elm Creek Township, William Wiggins and Miss Berry, 1869; Ohio Township, A. F. Park and Mary J. Davidson, 1871; Warren Township, Thomas Roberts and Margaret Eden, 1871; Highland Township, James P. Kendall and Jemima K. Burton, March, 1867; Clark's Creek Township, William Parker and Caroline Atkinson, December, 1859; Neosho Township, William Horner and Miss Black, 1859.

First Postmasters.—The first Postmaster in the county was T. S. Huffaker, in 1854; Diamond Valley, Samuel Shaft, 1863; Neosho, B. Thomas, 1880; Elm Creek, L. M. Hill, 1866; Clark's Creek, Mr. Gilman, 1859.

First Things in General.—The first Commissioners appointed for the District, at that time, composed of Wise, Breckinridge and Madison counties, were: T. S. Huffaker, who was Chairman of Board and Probate Judge, C. H. Withington and H. B. Elliott, who were appointed by Governor Reeder in 1855. The first elected officers of the county were: W. B. Harrold, J. H. Ritchie and John Hammond, County Commissioners; Charles Columbia, Treasurer; S. N. Wood, County Attorney; A. J. Collier, Sheriff; Richard Ult, Assessor; A. C. Stewart, Coroner, and M. Conn, County Clerk. The first white child born in the county was Lucy Columbia in 1852. First resident white woman in the county was Mrs. Mitchell. First man sent from the county to the Territorial Legislature was Christopher Columbia. First District Court was organized in 1858, with Hon. Rush Elmore as presiding judge. The first term of the court was held in October, 1858, and the place of holding it was in the old log cabin built by S. M. Hays in 1847. The court officers were: William Weir, of Wyandotte County, was prosecuting attorney; L. McCarthy, clerk, and W. B. Harrold acted as sheriff. The place where the jury deliberated upon their verdict was under the shade of a tree that stood in the yard. The first case that appears of record in the county is entitled, "William Polk vs. J. J. Hawkins," the nature of the suit being for possession. The first instrument recorded in the county, as shown by the books in the office of Register of Deeds, bears date November 10, 1858, and is a deed made by S. Park to Samuel B. Bay, conveying forty acres in Section 24, Township 19, Range 7, which is now included in Lyon County. The first teachers' [illegible] 'd in the county was in 1864, at Council Grove.

COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

Up to 1858, the county had no separate and distinct organization, but still formed a municipal township of the district composed of Wise, Breckinridge and Madison counties. In 1858 an election was ordered to complete the organization of the county, at which H. J. Epsey was elected Probate Judge and T. S. Huffaker, Harvey Munkers and Lewis Baum were elected Supervisors, but the latter gentleman failing to qualify, Thomas White was appointed to fill the vacancy. W. H. White became Justice of the Peace, N. S. Brazleton Surveyor, and Joseph Kempton was appointed Clerk of the Board.

Prior to this time there had been but one voting precinct in the county, but now that the county was fully organized, the Board of Supervisors at their first meeting in 1858 established three additional precincts, one at June Baxter's, on Clark's Creek; one at William Downing's, on the Neosho, and one at Coun's Ranch, on Diamond Creek. The first question submitted by the Board for the people to vote upon, was one on which they were to decide whether hogs should be restrained from running at large. The election was held in October, 1859, and the porcine race were restrained by fourteen majority.

In the early settlement of the county, the prevailing sentiment of the people was strongly Southern, and hence the Territorial Legislature of 1855, by which the Territory was divided into counties, named nearly all the counties after Southern celebrities. Thus came the names of Breckinridge, Madison, Davis, etc., and thus what is now Morris County was named Wise, after that Southern celebrity who, afterwards, as Governor of Virginia, sent John Brown to the gallows. By 1859, the tone of public sentiment had changed, owing to the large immigration that had set in from the Eastern, Middle and Northern States.

In this year, Hon. S. N. Wood was representing the county in the Legislature, and as the hanging of John Brown had aroused the indignation of all liberty-loving people, he had a bill passed by which the name of the county was changed from Wise to Morris, in honor of Thomas Morris, who was United States Senator from Ohio. The county officers chosen to hold their respective offices until November, 1860, were as follows: Probate Judge, James A. Robbins; Commissioners, W. B. Harrell, J. H. Richey and Jonathan Hammond; Sheriff, A. J. Collier; Assessor, Richard Utt; Coroner, A. C. Stewart; County Clerk, M. Conn; Treasurer, Charles Columbia, and County Attorney, S. N. Wood, and this concludes the history of the county while Kansas was a Territory.

Kansas became a State and was admitted to the Union as such in 1861. After its admission, the State was divided into representative districts, and Morris, Chase and Butler counties constituted the Thirteenth District. A. J. Chipman was the first man who represented the county in the State Legislature, and S. N. Wood had the honor of being the first State Senator from the county. The first election held in the county after Kansas became a State was in the spring of 1861, at which B. F. Perkins was elected Probate Judge; R. B. Lockwood, Clerk of the District Court, and T. S. Huffaker, Superintendent of Public Instruction. These officers were to hold their respective offices until January, 1862.

In November, 1861, a regular election was held, at which a full county ticket was elected. The officers chosen at this election were: Representative, Charles Columbia; Probate Judge, T. S. Huffaker; Clerk of the District Court, R. B. Lockwood; Commissioners, Jonathan Hammond, J. H. Richey, and C. R. Rhodes; County Clerk, John F. Dodds; Sheriff, A. J. Collier; Treasurer, R. B. Lockwood; Register of Deeds, John F. Dodds; Assessor, J. C. Munkers; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Lew Whitsitt; Surveyor, J. B. Collier; Coroner, Allen Crowley. The total vote of the county at this election was 158.

The present county officers are as follows: L. McKenzie, Fay Parsons, F. M. Wierman, Commissioners; John Sims, Sheriff; A. Moser, Jr., County Clerk; R. M. Armstrong, Clerk of the District Court; W. H. White, Treasurer; Jesse Hammer, Probate Judge; J. E. Drake, Register of Deeds; A. G. Campbell, Superintendent of Public Instruction; E. I. Prothrow, Coroner; J. M. Miller, County Attorney; Seneca Tyler, Surveyor.

Organization of Townships.—From 1855, when the eastern portion of the State was divided into counties, until 1860, Morris County comprised but one municipal township, and was known as Council Grove, and was attached to Breckinridge, now Lyon, County, for judicial and revenue purposes. The organization of Morris County was completed in 1858, and at a meeting of the Board of Commissioners, held March 17, 1860, the county was divided into three civil townships, viz.: Council Grove, Neosho, and Clark's Creek.

In April, 1868, another township was created, from territory taken from the south of Clark's Creek Township, and to the township thus created was given the name of Diamond Valley.

Parker Township was established on the 5th day of September, 1870, and was made out of territory taken partly from Neosho and Clark's Creek townships.

Elm Creek Township was organized September 9, 1871, the territory comprising which having been taken from Council Grove and Diamond Valley townships.

Ohio Township was created February 9, 1872, and comprises territory once embraced in Parker and Neosho townships.

Highland Township was set off January 13, 1874, and was taken from Clark's Creek, Diamond Valley, and Parker townships.

Rolling Prairie Township was organized April 15, 1874, out of territory taken from Clark's Creek and Parker townships.

These constitute the eleven civil townships of the county, as now organized, their geographical position being as follows:

A line drawn through the center of the county, from east to west, would leave Valley, Council Grove, Elm Creek and Diamond Valley townships south of said line, and also a strip about three miles wide from the south of Highland Township. The position of these townships, in the order named, is from east to west. All the other townships in the county are north of said center line.

COUNTY SEAT CONTEST.

Like many other places, Morris County has had its vexations, anxieties and tribulations over the question as to where the seat of justice should be located. From the time the county was organized until 1871, Council Grove held it by undisputed possession. This was the year in which Parkerville was incorporated, and scarcely was the town organization completed when it entered the lists to contest the county seat question with Council Grove. Petitions were widely circulated and submitted to the County Board of Commissioners, who ordered an election, so that the people might decide the question for themselves. The fight waxed hot and warm, the friends of the contesting points putting forth every effort that would add to their chances of success. Nor were they altogether particularly scrupulous about the means employed to secure victory, as they furnished abundant evidence to prove that "for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain," there are others peculiar as well as the heathen Chinee.

Voters were colonized in large numbers for the occasion, and were furnished temporary work at good wages, so as to hold them until after election. There were about as many herders scattered over the prairie as there were cattle, and if their flocks and herds were few, it was nobody's business, as American citizens their votes would count. When the result of a hard fought battle stands trembling in the balance, the general commanding must not stand hesitating between honor and expediency as to the employment of certain means, while the victory passes from his reach. Just prior to the election, a stranger would be struck to see the number of men employed on the streets under the Street Commissioner.

Other strategems were resorted to, which shows that those who were directing affairs were not barren of ingenuity. People would come down from Parkerville to Council Grove, and inveigle away as many of the peripatetic voters as possible, and, in like manner, the people of Council Grove would operate in Parkerville.

On the night before election a number of laborers in Council Grove were thus enticed to go to Parkerville, and among them was one Irishman, who had been indulging rather freely in the "cratur." When they arrived at Parkerville, the descendant of Erin was taken to a hotel and assigned to a room. Pat was not altogether reliable, for in his frequent potations he would give a whoop and "hoo-rooh" for Council Grove. After plying him with whisky, they undressed him and put him to bed, after which they left him, taking his clothes with them. About the time the matutinal rooster began to crow, Pat woke with a terrible thumping in the head. His mind was all confused, and it was a few minutes before he became sufficiently collected to comprehend the situation. He then got out of the bed and began to look for his clothes, but they were gone. He looked under the bed, behind the door, behind the washstand, but not a stitch of them could he find. Pat, however, was a man of good natural resources, and inasmuch as some one had stolen his clothes he could see no wrong in stealing somebody else's. Acting upon this principle he stepped out into the hall in his nether garments, and as many of the bedroom doors were open, the weather being warm, he had no trouble in clothing himself. The hour was early and not a sound was heard in the whole house. Pat went his rounds, taking a pair of pants out of this room, a vest out of that, a coat out of another, a hat out of the next, and last a pair of boots, which he did not put until he reached the street. It was nothing but a fair exchange, thought the son of Erin and he had got the best of the bargain. He then started out on foot for Council Grove, distant about twelve miles, and on reaching town he met Mr. Nichols, the Street Commissioner, for whom he had been working, and to whom he told his experience, adding, "Be jabers, they thought to get me to vote for Parkerville, and though they trated me moighty dasent, as you may see, here I am to vote for Council Grove." How the contest was conducted may be ascertained from the fact that there was nearly a vote cast for every man, woman, and child, in the county. At that time the population of the county was 2,225, and the vote cast on the county-seat question was 1,312, of which Council Grove received 899, and Parkerville 413, so the former place was declared to be the seat of justice of Morris County, and remains so in this year of grace—1882.

RAILROADS, ETC.

In September, 1865, the people of the county voted to the Santa Fe Railway Company, bonds to the amount of $100,000, thinking thereby to secure the building of the line through the county. The total vote cast in the county was ninety-six, all of which, except six, were cast in favor of the bonds. The company did not accept them, however, and constructed its line about twenty-five miles south of the county. On June 29, 1867, another vote was taken on a proposition for the county to take stock to the amount of $165,000 in the Union Pacific, Southern branch, at which 195 votes were cast, of which number 174 were for the proposition and 21 against. This road is known in Kansas as the Missouri, Kansas & Topeka Railway, and was built through the county in 1868. Its course is diagonal, running from the northwest to the southeast, and passes through Skiddy, White City, Parkerville, Council Grove, and Dunlap. This road furnishes all the railway facilities the county has at the present time, but the people are very sanguine that they will have a direct east and west line in the course of a year or two, as bonds have been voted to aid in its construction and the line has been surveyed.

No mineral yet discovered in the county, although in 1874 a party prospected for coal in the vicinity of Council Grove, but after having bored down to a depth of 305 feet without discovering any indications of either bituminous or anthracite, gave it up as a failure, since which time the experiment has not been repeated. There is, however, in the county an abundance of superior magnesian and other kinds of limestone, suitable for building purposes, and also for making an excellent quality of lime. In Rolling Prairie Township, in the northern portion of the county, some very fine clay for pottery purposes has been found, and in Council Grove Township, at a depth of about 200 feet, a very thick vein, eight feet it is said, of pure gypsum has been discovered, but neither the clay nor the gypsum is utilized.

Aside from the steam flouring mill at Council Grove, the steam grist and saw mill at Parkerville, the grist mill at Dunlap, and two cheese factories in Parker Township, there are no manufacturing establishments in the county, nor are there any water privileges in the county to encourage the erection of any. A steam woolen factory or two might, however, be operated with profit to the owners, as the wool raised in Morris and adjoining counties would furnish an abundance of raw material to be manufactured, and the encouragement thereby given to the raising of sheep and the growing of wool would add greatly to the wool production. Aside from this the county has nothing to recommend it to those seeking fields for manufacturing enterprises, except that it offers superior advantages for the manufacturing of cheese and making of butter.

SCHOOL AND OTHER STATISTICS.

The people of Morris County are not behind that of any other in the attention given to the eduation of the youth, and in furnishing ample facilities for the advancement of education. School taxes, although the heaviest the tax-payer is called upon to pay, are always paid cheerfully, and hence it is that a stranger passing through the country sees the prairie dotted with so many schoolhouses. There are in the county sixty-three school districts, and sixty-two schoolhouses, of which seven are built of stone, fifty-three are frame and one is built of logs.

The population of the county between the ages of five and twenty-one years in 1882, which is considered the school age, was 3,482. The number of pupils enrolled during the year 1882, was 2,509. The average daily attendance was 1,539. There were employed during the year seventy teachers, of whom thirty-one were males and thirty-nine females. The average salary per month paid to teachers was, males, $32.15, and to females, $28.75. The amount expended was $18,338.09. The County Superintendent reports the school rooms well supplied with maps, charts, dictionaries, globes, and all other apparatus necessary to advance the pupils, assist them in their studies, and give them a clearer understanding of the subjects involved in their lessons.

The first white school taught in the county was at Council Grove, in 1857, the teacher being Miss Sarah Stevenson. Mr. T. S. Huffaker, however, had been employed as early as 1850, to teach the Kaw Indians, in the Mission building, and while thus employed, several white children attended his school.

For reasons already mentioned in this history, the growth in population of the county has been rather slow, and not anything like what the superior agricultural advantages of the county would warrant. Any person who has read the narrative history of the county will readily understand how the county has been so backward in settlement. It will there be seen that the "Eastman" survey, made prior to the creation of Kansas into a Territory, placed the lands of the Kaw Reservation west of Council Grove and embraced a tract twenty miles square. This embraced more than half of the county, and left only the eastern portion subject to settlement.

Again in 1857, when a dispute arose as to the boundary lines, of the reservation, and a new survey was ordered, which is known as the "Montgomery Survey," the location of the reservation was changed so that the town of Council Grove became the center north and south, and all the territory in the county east of Council Grove, and to a point five miles west, was declared to be within the Kaw Reservation. The result of this was that all who had settled upon this territory were declared trespassers, and had to leave. Thus we find that in 1860, thirteen years after the first white settlers had located at Council Grove, the entire population of the county numbered only 770. The "Montgomery" survey left only the western portion of the county subject to settlement, but the war coming on put a stop to immigration. After the war closed immigration set in again, but the large tract of choice lands held by the Indians was a great drawback to settlement. We find, however, that in 1870 the population of the county had reached 2,225, showing an increase in ten years, although virtually five, because from 1860 until 1865 immigration had almost ceased, of 1,455. All difficulty over the Indian lands having been amicably settled, and the Kaws moved away to the Indian Territory, the flow of immigration set in with greater force.

In the five years from 1870 to 1875, the population had increased 2,372, nearly double as much as it had in the ten years preceding 1870, thereby raising the population of the county in 1875, to 4,597. From 1875 to 1878, the increase in population was 1,059, or a total of 5,656, while during the next two year we find the increase to have been 2,766, as according to the census of 1880, the population of the county was 8,422.

By a comparison of figures, we find the material growth of the county to have been much greater than its growth in population would seem to indicate, although the same causes that operated against the one, also militated against the other. We find that in 1874 the total acreage of field crops was 19,117.25; whereas in 1880 it was 75,956.20, or nearly four times greater. If we take the value of products as a basis for comparison we find that they aggregated in 1874 $163,616.35, and in 1880 $901,997.69, showing the increase in six years to be $738,381.34.

We do not think it necessary to compare one year with the other to show the ratio of increase in material growth, as the latest statistics obtainable being those returned to the County Clerk by the assessors of the respective townships will sufficiently show that, in material growth, the county is advancing rapidly. By these returns we find that the number of acres sown to winter wheat in 1881 was 4,164; rye 782; spring wheat sown in 1882 1,896 acres; corn 41,426 acres; oats 9,588 acres; Irish potatoes 722 acres; sweet potatoes 41 acres; sorghum 656 acres; flax 1,215 acres; broom corn 68 acres; millet and Hungarian 2,677 acres; pearl millet 42 acres; timothy 113 acres; clover 156 acres; rice corn 76 acres; prairie meadow 2,040 acres; prairie pasture 15,420 acres, making a total of 81,032 acres. If we take the product of the two leading articles, wheat and corn, the value of the yield of these alone, at a reasonable estimate, will be $113,625.

In 1881 there were cut in the county 777 tons of tame hay, and 31,346 tons of prairie hay. The value of the garden produce marketed during the year was $2,854, and the value of poultry and eggs sold was $5,771. Of cheese there was made during the year 1881, in family and factory, 1,490 pounds, while of butter there was made 174,188 pounds. There were clipped in the county during the year, 30,047 pounds of wool, valued at $9,091.

The value of agricultural implements in the county was set down at $53,008, and the value of horticultural products at $1,468. The value of animals slaughtered, or sold for slaughter, during the year ending March 1, 1882, was $144,963.

There were in the county, in 1881, 4,046 horses; mules, 317; milch cows, 4,154; other cattle, 8,787; sheep, 7,977, and swine, 9,150, the aggregate value of which was $685,673.

There were nearly 200 farm dwellings erected during the year, at an aggregate cost of about $160,000. There were in bearing 15,123 apple trees; 401 pear trees; 47,057 peach trees; 1,566 plum trees, and 5,634 cherry trees. The number not in bearing was 49,452 apple trees; 2,706 pear trees; 49,268 peach trees; 2,714 plum trees, and 11,536 cherry trees. Another item representative of considerable value is that of fencing. It is safe to say that each rod of fence in a county will represent $1.50 in value. Now, there were in Morris County, in 1881, 19,364 rods of board fence; 28,493 rods of rail fence; 42,575 rods of stone fence; 92,904 rods of hedge fence, and 68,454 rods of wire fence, making in all 251,790 rods of fence in the county, which an average of $1.50 per rod represents a value of $377,685.

It is estimated that the number of acres in farms is 150,000, or about one-third of the land in the county. When one-third of the county is capable of producing and representing such immense wealth, what must it represent when fully developed? And it must be said of Morris County that it contains very little waste land, as by far the greater portion of it probably four-fifths, is well adapted to agriculture, and capable of being improved.

COUNCIL GROVE.

A great deal of the history of Council Grove is embraced in the narrative history of the county, some of which it will be necessary to repeat in order that the history of the organization and growth of Council Grove as a city may be the better understood. The city is located on the Neosho River, and is 170 miles west of the Missouri River. The greater portion of the city, probably three-fourths of it, is situated on the west bank of the stream. The land upon which the city is built was once part of the territory embraced within the Kaw Reservation. The first white person that settled in Council Grove was Seth M. Hays, who came in 1847 to establish a trading post for the purpose of trading with the Indians.

The first house built in Council Grove was by him, which was a log cabin, and which stood on the north side of the old Santa Fe trail, and but a few rods from the west bank of the river. This cabin served the double purpose of being both a dwelling and a store. In the following year, 1848, Mr. Mitchell came to the Grove as Government blacksmith, and with him came his wife, and to her is due the credit of being the first white woman that ever resided in Morris County. In 1850 E. Mosier succeeded Mitchell as Government blacksmith, and he brought his family with him.

During 1849, 1850, 1851 and 1852 several other traders found their way to the Grove and put up trading establishments. As a trading point it was well located, being on the great public thoroughfare known as the Santa Fe trail, and being also the last point west where parties bound for Old or New Mexico or the territories farther west could purchase supplies. Being the last point westward it was, by reason thereof, the first trading point eastward from Santa Fe, so that, in point of trade, it had a double advantage.

From 1849 to 1854 was a very prosperous period for Council Grove, and the reputation it had acquired as a trading post made it a point well known, at least to all those who meditated a trip across the plains.

It may be worth noting, before proceeding farther, how the place obtained its name, which, as told by the early settlers, was in the following manner. People from the States who were engaged in trade with Mexico and emigrants bound for the far West would meet here and make up trains, and then council together as to what should be done to secure the greater safety while traveling across the plains. Hence the name "Council," and the fact that their place of councilling was in a beautiful grove on the bank of the river furnished the word "Grove," and to these two facts the city is indebted for its name. At that time all danger to be apprehended from Indians lay west of this point, and it frequently occurred that the distance from Council Grove to danger was not very great.

In 1854 the men doing business in Council Grove were S. M. Hays, Choteau Bros., Columbia Bros. and C. H. Withington; and these, with a few employes, and several men in the employ of the Government, constituted the entire settlement, not only of Council Grove but of Morris County.

In 1858, the Legislature passed a special act by which the Town Company of Council Grove was incorporated, the incorporators being T. S. Huffaker, Christopher Columbia, S. M. Hays and Hiram Northrup. Under the corporate authority thus conferred, the town site was surveyed, and although Council Grove had an existence as a trading post since 1847, its corporate existence dates only from 1858. In 1860 there were but two stores in town, one conducted by S. M. Hays and the other by M. Conn. The first hotel in the town was built by M. Gilkey in 1856, on the south side of Main street, directly opposite the log cabin erected by S. M. Hays, in 1847. The first house built in the town, aside from the log cabin referred to, was erected by Baker & Sewell. Although from its first start the place had done considerable business, yet its permanent growth was rather slow. Its business was derived chiefly, if not wholly, from the Indians and from trains traveling over the Santa Fe trail, all of which had to pass through Council Grove, the main street of which is part of the old trail. When it is understood that the population of the entire county in 1860 was 770, it will be seen that Council Grove at that time could not have had many inhabitants.

For the next year or so the population rather diminished than increased, owing to the terrible drouth of 1860, which left Kansas waste and desolate. In 1866, the prosperity of the town received another serious blow by the removal of the Stage Line Company to Junction City, thereby cutting off its heretofore prosperous trade with the West and with the trains crossing the plains. On the 30th of April, 1869, the town was raised by virtue of an act of the Legislature to the grade of a city of the third class. In June, 1870, the first election was held for city officers, at which R. B. Lockwood was chosen Mayor, A. J. Hughes, City Attorney, and S. M. Strieby, City Clerk. Prior to being raised to a city of the third class, the town government consisted of a board of trustees. In July, 1870, a savings bank was instituted, and commenced business with the following officers: G. M. Simcox, president; T. S. Huffaker, vice-president, and J. W. Simcox, cashier. The bank was a company affair, whose management was under the direction of a board of directors.

On the night of May 14, 1870, occurred one of the most appalling disasters that could befall a community. It was not one of those catastrophes by which, in a few hours, many are impoverished and many more rendered homeless by some accidental conflagration, or the demon-like work of some incendiary, but one of those touchingly sad and heart-rending occurrences that falls like a pall over a neighborhood and awakes a chord of sympathy even in the most adamantine heart. It was on the evening of the anniversary of the organization of the Methodist Sabbath School at Council Grove, and to commemorate the event, exercises were held in Huffaker's Hall, over the room now occupied by Mr. Rigdon as a grocery store. The exercises were largely attended, and among those in attendance were J. B. Somers and Mrs. Annie Baker Somers, his wife, and in their company was Miss Susie Huffaker who was the first white child born in Morris County. Somers and his wife had been but recently married, and were staying, temporarily, at the home of Mr. Huffaker, on the east side of the river, and in going to the exercises Miss Huffaker accompanied them. For some time previous considerable rain had fallen, and the river was well up, but still fordable.

Early that evening, however, one of those terrible storms set in, the approach of which comes with the suddenness of a thunder clap, and whose fierceness suddenly awakens people to a full realization of what terrible danger lurks in the fury of the elements. Impenetrable darkness seemed to envelop the earth and it was only by the momentary flashes of light, occasioned by the red and lurid lightning, to be succeeded by darkness more dense, that things became visible. Peal after peal of thunder sent forth their startling sounds and rolled away until the rumbling noise resembled the roars occasioned by the firing of some hundreds of pieces of artillery in some distant battlefield. Water fell in torrents, and as it rushed down the hillsides and through the ravines seeking the Neosho it sounded like a great cataract. In a short time the river was full to its capacity and fording at any point was utterly impossible. It was on this evening and while the storm was yet raging that Mr. Somers, before the exercises were over, left the hall and went to the livery stable kept by P. B. Roberts, and induced him to hitch up a double-seated buggy for the purpose of taking himself, wife and Miss Huffaker home. The storm was not yet over when Roberts drove up to the hall, and Somers and his wife and Miss Huffaker got into the buggy. Somers directed Roberts to cross at the ford north of town by the old Mission School. Some of his friends, on hearing the directions he had given the driver, remonstrated with him against undertaking to cross the ford upon such a night. They pointed out to him the great danger he would incur by taking such a step, told him of the swollen condition of the river, begged him to give up the idea of crossing at the ford and urged upon him to cross on the bridge. All the advice given was unheeded by Somers and telling the driver to cross at the ford they started. The river was very high and constantly rising, and the approach to the ford from the west was very steep. The horses went dashing through the darkness and going down the descent from the old Kaw Mission had acquired unmanageable speed. Into the water they plunged furiously, but scarcely had they entered it when the buggy was upset and its four inmates thrown into the angry stream. A wild shriek of despair rent the air and in a short time, through darkness and storm, men and women were hurrying towards the scene of the disaster.

Soon large crowds were gathered on either side of the river, but to aid them was impossible, for with that last despairing shriek they were carried by the rushing waters far beyond the reach of human succor. It was a wild night, and although the fury of the storm had, to some degree, abated, it still raged with considerable wrath. Rafts were constructed and search made for the bodies, although upon such a night it was a hopeless task. All night long people kept watch along the banks of the river, and lanterns moving to and fro shone like so many ignes fatui through the darkness. Many were the prayers that went up from sorrowing hearts that night on the banks of the Neosho for those that had perished. Fruitless was the all-night search, and when the morning of the 15th broke in not a trace of the lost had been found, nor were their bodies discovered until the afternoon of that day when they were taken out of the water and restored to their mourning relatives. This sad disaster fell like a pall over the entire community, and gloom and despair seemed to have entered every household. The victims of the catastrophe were all well known and much respected and had a large circle of relatives in Morris County.

The sad fate of Miss Susie Huffaker was for a long time very deeply felt, and even now, twelve years after the sad accident occurred, those who speak of her mention her name with feelings of deepest tenderness. She was a young lady possessed of high talents and rare accomplishments, and her always happy and joyous disposition made her a great favorite in the community. Within a few rods of where she was hurled to her untimely end she first saw the light of day, having been born sixteen years before in the Kaw Mission building that stands at the end of the west approach to the ford, and in which her father had endeavored to teach the Indians from 1850 to 1854. She was a great favorite with the Kaw tribe, and to show the great respect they bore her and her family, about 300 of the tribe attended her funeral. It was a sad, sad accident, and many were the stricken hearts that were left to mourn.

By enactment of the Legislature, in 1862, where two or more school districts consolidated they could form a graded school. By virtue of this law a graded school was established in Council Grove in 1868, of which F. P. Nichols was the first principal. A very fine school building was erected and the school was prospering finely when, on November 9, 1875, the town was visited by a fire which destroyed not only the school building, but Shamleffer's mill and other property, entailing a total loss of $35,000. No steps were taken to rebuild the schoolhouse until the present year, and there is now in course of construction a very elegant stone building for school purposes which will be ready for occupancy about the close of the year.

Council Grove is the seat of justice in the county, and the court house is a commodious solid stone structure, built with the double object of convenience and durability. Here all the county officers have their offices, all of which are large and well ventilated.

The town is beautifully located, the greater portion of it being situated on the high level land lying between the west bank of the Neosho and Elm Creek, these two streams, forming a junction almost at the limits of the corporation. Although the town is surrounded by a large tract of rich and beautiful country, its growth has been somewhat slow, which, doubtless, is attributable to the doubtful and protracted litigation that has but recently terminated, over the title to the land embraced in the town site. The business houses of the town are mostly constructed of brick or stone, although several inferior frame buildings are still in use.

In East Council Grove there is a large steam flouring mill, two small stores and one hotel, the Neff House. In the west part of the town there are nine grocery stores five dry goods and clothing, one boot and shoe store, one hardware exclusively, three drug stores, one millinery and dry goods, one furniture, two hardware and groceries combined, three restaurants and confectioneries, two jewelers, three livery stables, one lumber yard, three hotels and four churches.

The Farmers' and Drovers' Bank was incorporated March 20, 1882, by W. H. White, president; H. W. Gildemister, cashier; P. S. Jones, vice-president; and six others, A. W. Hinchman, B. R. Scott, James Watkins, J. W. Dumm, Jacob Barth and J. M. Henson, who, with the president, vice-president and cashier, compose the board of directors. The bank has a paid-up capital of $50,000, represented by 500 shares, consisting entirely of Morris County capital, its stockholders being all residents of that county. Council Grove has now a population of about 2,000.

THE PRESS, CHURCHES AND SOCIETIES.

The first newspaper started in the county was in 1859, and was named the Kansas Press. S. N. Wood was editor and proprietor. In 1861, Wood sold to A. I. Baker, who changed the name of the paper from the Kansas Press to the Council Grove Press. After running the paper for about a month or so Baker suspended publication, nor was it revived again until 1863, when Col. S. N. Wood, having returned from the army, re-took possession of the paper and resumed its publication. It remained under his management until 1865, when it passed into the control of Rev. J. E. Bryan, who, in the same year sold it to one E. F. Campbell, who published it as a Democratic paper until 1866, under the name of the Council Grove Democrat, at which time it was removed to another county.

In 1868 W. H. Johnson established and published the Advertiser, which was Republican in politics, but in 1870 the press and material were taken to Salina, in Saline County. Before the discontinuance of the Advertiser, S. M. Hays had started, in 1870, an opposition paper, named the Democrat, which he continued to publish until October, 1871, when he sold out to John Maloy and J. H. Dyer. Under this management it was continued, with John Maloy as editor, until 1872, when Maloy purchased Dyer's interest. From this time until 1876 the paper was published regularly with John Maloy as sole editor and proprietor. During this year Maloy sold a half interest to F. H. Dunn, and under their joint management the paper was conducted until January, 1877, when Maloy severed his connection with the paper and sold his half interest to Dunn.

In 1871, the Republicans having no organ, procured the services of one H. R. Gregory, and started the Chronicle, which was published until late in 1872, when it was discontinued.

In 1872, the Morris County Republican was established, with J. F. Bradley as editor and proprietor, but after a few months he sold to Peter Moriarty, under whose management the paper was published until his death in 1875, when it passed into the hands of his son, F. A. Moriarty, by whom it was edited until September, 1875, at which time the Republican and Democrat consolidated (strange mixture), and the new paper was published under the contradictory name of Republican and Democrat, with Moriarty and Dunn as editors and proprietors. Under this name and management the paper was published for several months, when Moriarty bought Dunn's interest, after which the name Democrat was dropped and the paper resumed its original name of Republican under which it is still issued. On the 28th of May, 1881, Mr. Moriarty sold the paper, press and material to O. S. Munsell, who, as editor and proprietor, continues to publish regularly under the name of Republican. Its circulation is 900, has a large advertising patronage, and is issued on Friday of each week.

Morris County Times.—This paper was established in Council Grove, September 5, 1879, by E. J. Dibble, who was and continues to be, sole editor and proprietor. In October, 1871, the name of the paper was changed to the Kansas Cosmos, and under this name it continues to [illegible]lished. In politics it is Democratic, has a circulation of 850, its advertising colu[illegible]berally patronized, and is published on Thursday of each week.

[illegible]st Episcopal Church, South.—This was the first religious society established in [illegible]. It was organized in 1857. It was organized with eight members. The pastor [illegible]e was Rev. J. H. Pritchar . Their place of assembling for worship was the old mission building where they met twice each month. The present membership is eighty-seven, and pastor is Rev. H. L. Anderson. They now meet for worship in a neatly built church edifice which was erected in 1869. A Sabbath school, which is largely attended is conducted in connection with the church.

Presbyterian.—Organized in 1859, with eight members. The pastor was Rev. Mr. Nash The following year the pastor left and the organization became disintegrated. It was not reorganized until 1874, when Rev. Timothy Hill organized a society at Council Grove, and one in Ohio Township. In 1875, another society was organized at Parkerville, by Rev. G. A. Irvin. The three societies number about 125 members. They have no church edifice, but the society at Council Grove rent a hall which is used only for divine service. The pastor is Rev. G. A. Irvin who officiates for all the societies.

Congregational.—This society was organized in Council Grove, in 1862, with a membership of seven. The pastor was Rev. C. G Morse. In 1872, the society erected a very beautiful brick church edifice. Its present membership is thirty-five, and the pastor is Rev. L. Armsby. There is also an organization of this church at White City, with a membership of sixty, whose pastor is Rev. W. D. Webb. This society has now in course of erection a frame church building.

Christian Church.—This is the strongest organization in the county. It was first organized by Rev. Solomon Brown, in 1859. It has four organizations in the county. One at Council Grove, with a membership of twenty-six; one in Elm Creek Township with a membership of ninety; one in Ohio Township with a membership of fifty-five, and one in Neosho Township with a membership of forty, making a total membership in the county of 211. They have no church edifice. The officiating pastor is Rev. W. F. Parmeter.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—This is a separate and distinct organization from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The first organization of this church in the county was at Downing's schoolhouse, several miles from Council Grove, and in 1860. It was organized by Rev. Mr. McNulty. Since that time four other societies have been organized, one at Parkerville, one at Skiddy, one at Council Grove and one at White City. The society at Council Grove has a membership of sixty, and a few years ago erected a very fine stone edifice as a place for public worship. The pastor is Rev. J. W. Wilson.

Baptist Church.—The first organization of this church in the county was effected at Council Grove in 1870, the membership at that time numbering fourteen. The pastor was Rev. Thompson Dean. The growth of the organization has been slow, its membership now numbering only thirty-one. The present pastor is Rev. C. King. It has no church edifice.

In connection with all these churches, Sabbath schools are conducted, which are largely attended. For a number of years all the churches in Council Grove consolidated for Sabbath school purposes, and the scholars all attended one school, which was known as the Union Sabbath School; but of late years each church has conducted its own Sabbath school.

Society of Friends.—This society has quite a strong organization in Valley Township, which was formed in 1867. The organization was formed by a colony of Friends who located in Valley Township about fifteen years ago. They have a very fine stone meeting house, where they meet regularly every Sabbath for worship.

Roman Catholic.—This church is not numerically strong in the county, probably not exceeding, in all, 100 members. The county comprises one parish, and it is only at intervals that services are held.

African Methodist (colored).—This church society was organized in Council Grove in 1871. At the time of organization it had fourteen members. The first pastor was Rev. W. Carter. The society has grown until now it numbers thirty-six members. The present pastor is Rev. J. Meyers (colored). The society has a frame church building.

Baptist (colored).—This church has a society in Council Grove of twenty-five members. Its organization is of recent date. The society has a pastor, Rev. John Davis (colored), but no church building.

Agricultural Society.—In 1873, a number of citizens in the neighborhood of Parkerville, deeply interested in the pursuits of agriculture and stock raising, organized in accordance with the requirements of law, a county agricultural society, which has been in existence since that time, and which has been conducted very successfully and is now in a very prosperous condition. The published premium list of the society shows very liberal rewards offered to exhibitors, and their annual fairs are well attended and always characterized by good display of stock, and articles exhibited, the greater portion of the latter being of an agricultural character. Their annual fairs generally hold for four days. They have a very fine fair ground close to the town of Parkerville, with excellent accommodations for fair purposes and every convenience for those who attend. The fair grounds are valued at $1,000, and the improvements made thereon at between $400 and $500. The grounds are enclosed by a board fence except on the river side. There is a good half-mile track on the grounds, and sufficient trees to furnish ample shade. A good well and the river furnish an abundance of water.

Council Grove Exposition Company.—This is a company formed for the same purpose as the Agricultural Society, and is a rival to the regular County Society. It was organized in 1879, by gentlemen in and about Council Grove. This company also has a fair ground located on the east side of Neosho, and about a mile from the business portion of the town. The grounds are enclosed with a board fence, inside of which is a race track. The company holds annual fairs, or expositions, at which premiums are offered, stock and other articles exhibited, and business conducted just as at a fair.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JOHN R. APPLINGTON, attorney at law, was born in Polo, Ogle Co., Ill., November 15, 1855, living there until May, 1880, when he located in Council Grove, and engaged in the practice of law and the real estate business. He received a high school education at Polo, Ill. He followed teaching school a few years, and the study of law, graduating at the Union College of Law at Chicago. He was married in Ottawa, Ill., in June, 1879, to Miss Kate A. Smith.

R. M. ARMSTRONG, Clerk of the District Court, was born in Lancaster County, Pa., October 3, 1841, residing there until May, 1865, when he came to Kansas, locating at Council Grove, where he engaged in the mercantile business until January, 1877, when he took charge of the office of Clerk of the District Court, to which he had been elected. He is now serving his fourth term, having been three times re-elected. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge of Council Grove. He was married at Council Grove, Kas., December 7, 1871, to Miss Mary C. Strieby, who came to Council Grove in 1864, from Darlington, Beaver Co., Pa., where she had previously resided. She received her early education in the same school building at which John Brown was educated, and the building still stands, but is being converted into a railroad depot.

DR. A. G. CAMPBELL, County Superintendent of Schools, son of George Campbell, Esq., of Scott Township, Adams Co., Ohio, was born April 27, 1847. Is a self-made man. When a boy he had the opportunity of attending the common school only; in 1865 he commenced teaching school, teaching during the winter and attending school in the summer, until 1870, when he came to Kansas, locating at Council Grove, where he taught one year. In 1871 he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. J. H. Bradford, meantime clerking in the drug store. In 1876 he bought a half interest. In the spring of 1878 he bought Dr. Bradford's interest. In the fall of 1880 he was elected County Superintendent on the Republican Ticket, and in the fall of 1882 was re-elected without opposition. In November of that year sold his drugs to J. W. Collin to more fully attend to his official duties. He is a member of the lodge and encampment of I. O. O. F. of Council Grove. On October 5, 1878, he was married to Miss Lizzie McIntyre, of Adams County, Ohio. They have one little girl, Anna Grace.

JAMES C. CARPENTER, blacksmith and wagon maker, was born in Wayne County, N. Y., December 11, 1832, and reared in Jackson County, Mich. In 1852 he crossed the plains, engaging in mining in California two years. He then returned to Michigan, and soon afterwards moved to Dallas County, Iowa, where, at the breaking out of the late civil war, he enlisted in Company C, Thirty-ninth Iowa Infantry, serving until the close of the war. Was at the siege of Vicksburg, doing guard duty at Corinth, and afterwards along the railroad in Tennessee. Was with Sherman in his march to the sea, going thence with Kilpatrick's command north, through the Carolinas. After his discharge he returned to Iowa, where he remained until 1870, when he moved to Kansas, locating on a farm near Council Grove, to which place he removed about 1875, and engaged in general blacksmithing and wagon and plow making, which he has since carried on. He does a business of $4,000 per year, employing from two to four men. He is also interested in thoroughbred horses, having one Hamilton and one Clydesdale stallion, and other stock. He has also been engaged in farming during the past two years. He was married in Polk County, Iowa, September 2, 1858, to Miss Elizabeth Fenner. They have two children—Jesse and Ida. He has been Treasurer of the School Board several years, and is now a member of the City Council of Council Grove. Is a member of the A. O. U. W. Lodge and Select Knights of the same order at Council Grove.

MARKS BROS., proprietors Eclipse Livery Stable. This stable was built in 1879, by E. C. McLoon. It is a two story frame with basement, with a capacity for feeding forty head of horses. It was purchased by the present proprietors in January, 1881, who keep for livery business twelve head of horses and six vehicles. In addition to their livery business they have a large ranch of 2,300 acres in one body on Four Mile Creek, in Edin Creek and Valley townships, all under stone fence. Of this ranch 500 acres lying in the valley are in cultivation and separated from the upland by two stone fences running parallel to the general course of the creek, making a large pasture on each side of the ranch. The other improvements are also excellent, consisting of three dwellings and one large stone barn 72x32 feet and sixteen feet to eaves. The interior arrangement of this barn is good, affording storage for a large amount of corn, wheat and oats, for each of which is a separate bin containing from 1,000 to 2,000 bushels. One floor is reserved for the wagons, buggies and farm implements and another for a workshop and tool house, besides allowing room for thirty-five tons of loose hay. The stable affords shelter for twenty head of horses in single stalls. There is also a cattle shed 160 feet long, nine feet high and twenty-four feet wide, built of stone, above which is to be built a barn for hay. The orchard covering twenty acres has fruit of all kinds, comprising apple, peach, cherry, apricot and many other standard small fruits. The proprietors of this ranch are largely interested in live stock, keeping on hand 200 to 300 head of cattle and 100 to 200 head of hogs and seventy-five head of horses. They ship all their own stock direct to market. Alfred J. Isaac Sharp

HON. ISAAC SHARP, attorney-at-law, was born in Lancaster County, Pa., May 5, 1832. His father, Dr. Samuel Sharp, was a distinguished physician, descended from Samuel Sharp, a member of the Society of Friends who came from England with William Penn, and settled in Chester County, Pa., where Dr. S. was born. Samuel Sharp, the pioneer with Penn, was a surveyor, doing much work for the latter, including the laying out of Philadelphia. The mother of Isaac Sharp—her maiden name being Catharine Caroline Dugan—was a native of County Donegal, Ireland, immigrating to America when four years old, with her parents, and settling in Pennsylvania, where she married Dr. Sharp. They had six children, of whom the subject of our sketch was the third. All except Isaac and a brother, Joseph L., a resident of Council Grove, died when quite young. Isaac Sharp received his primary education in the common schools of Pennsylvania, and completed it at the Pennsylvania State Normal School, where he graduated. When seventeen years of age he began teaching school, continuing seven years, and during the last two years of that time he studied law under Thaddeus Stevens and Jacob B. Armvage. In 1856 he be an practicing law in Lancaster County, and was there elected Justice of the Peace; resigning that office the next year. He then moved to Kansas, settling in Wyandotte County. In the spring of 1858 he went out on the plains with other parties, making headquarters on Sharp's Creek—named after the first settler in what is now McPherson County. He then engaged in hunting game from Northern Nebraska to Texas, and west to the Rocky Mountains, and in trading with the Indians. He became familiar with the language and habits of several tribes. He also made a large collection of fossils and minerals which he sold to a scientific man representing an Eastern college, for $4,000. In 1862 he moved to Council Grove and resumed the practice of law, to which he has devoted his attention, practicing in all the State and Federal Courts. In 1875 he was sent to Washington by the settlers of the Kaw Indian reserve, to secure the passage of an act to place that land on the market. He not only succeeded in doing this, but also got the price lowered. Mr. S. has always been a firm adherent to the principles of the Democratic party, giving that ticket his influence and support. He has twice been a delegate to National Democratic Conventions, being a Vice-President in both, and was one of the committee appointed to inform the nominees of their nomination by the convention held at New York City, in 1868. In 1870, he was the Democratic candidate for Governor of Kansas; but was defeated, though running over 2,000 votes ahead of his ticket. He has also been closely identified with local interests in Morris County; serving twelve years on the School Board, at Council Grove; taking a active part in the building up of the Public Schools. Has also been a member of the City Council of Council Grove, several terms, and was twice Mayor of the city, and twice a member of the Board of County Commissioners, being Chairman of that body both terms; at the same time he was elected to the Legislature, serving in the Judiciary Committee of the Session of 1868, and drafted the laws relating to taxation and settlement of estates, and also represented the Committee on enrolled bills. He is also a member of I. O. O. F. lodge, at Council Grove. Was grand master of the State, and has attended all the sessions of the Grand Lodge during the past twenty years. Has frequently been chosen to deliver the annual address at different points. He was married in Lancaster County, Pa., December 28, 1854, to Miss Emeline, only daughter of Thomas and Mary Armstrong, a lady of good education and refinement. They have had twelve children, of whom only two, Elwood and Jessie, are living.

WILLIAM F. SHAMLEFFER, Mayor of Council Grove, was born in Baltimore, Md., January 23, 1843, remaining until the spring of 1863, when he located at Council Grove. Two years later he engaged with other parties in the mercantile business, which he continued until 1874. His firm did a very extensive business, amounting to $150,000 per year, in furnishing outfits and supplies for the Indian trade and New Mexico. Mr. S. has also taken a very active and prominent part in public matters. He was appointed Treasurer of Morris County to fill a vacancy and was elected for the succeeding term. He is now Mayor of Council Grove and a member and Secretary of the School Board. He has also been identified with several public enterprises. Was a member of a company which located the town of Augusta and helped to build the first house in that town in 1868. Was Treasurer of the Chicago, Kansas & Texas Railroad, and assisted to work up franchises to the extent of $1,000,000; also took an active part in obtaining franchises for M. K. & T. R. R., and is now an incorporator and director of the Topeka, Saline & Western Railroad, and has done much to secure the success of that road. He is past grand of the I. O. O. F. lodge and a receiver of A. O. U. W. at Council Grove. He was married at Council Grove, Kan., October 21, 1868, to Miss Maggie Munkres. They have three children—Fannie, Leonard, Byron. He is the proprietor of the Morris County mills at Council Grove, which were built in 1876 by the grange and purchased by Mr. S. and brother who now operate them. They have three run of stone and all modern improvements and a capacity of 300 bushels of corn and wheat each per twelve hours. It is run as a merchant and custom mill and does a business of about $50,000 per year. Mr. S. deals extensively in live stock, keeping an average of thirty head of cattle and shipping from $2,500 to $3,000 worth of hogs per year. His facilities for feeding stock are very complete.

ALBERT W. SIMCOCK, Postmaster, was born at Council Grove, Kan., September 23, 1857. He was appointed Postmaster February, 1879, having acted as assistant postmaster for two years. Prior to the time he entered the postoffice, he was employed as a clerk in an attorney's office and in a dry goods store, and for a short time kept a book and stationery store. He is a Republican and an active worker for the interests of that party. He is also a member of the I. O. O. F. and A. O. U. W. lodges at Council Grove.

JOHN SIMS, Sheriff, was born in Greene County, Mo., January 6, 1844, where he resided until the close of the war, when he went to Texas remaining until 1870, engaged in stock raising. He then came to Council Grove, where, for several years he was employed as a clerk in a store. In 1876 he engaged in farming, continuing it three years, when he became interested in lumber business, which he followed until January, 1880. During the summer of 1882, he entered into business with John Heaston, forming the firm of Heaston & Sims, successors to Heaston & Martin, dealers in agricultural implements, carrying a stock of $7,000 and doing a business of $25,000 to $30,000 per year. Mr. Sims was elected Sheriff of Morris County, in the fall of 1879, and is now serving his second term. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge and A. O. U. W. Lodge and Select Knights of same order at Council Grove. He was married at Council Grove, Kan., July 5, 1871, to Miss Eliza Simcock. They have four children—Emma, Ida, James Wesley and John.

SIMCOCK & SEWELL, dealers in a general line of groceries, queensware, etc., opened trade under present firm name January 1, 1883. The above business was established by G. M. Simcock and E. M. Sewell in the fall of 1879. E. M. Sewell first came to the old Sac and Fox Indian agency, then in the Indian Territory, sixty miles east of Council Grove, in 1846, where he embarked in the Indian trade until 1854, thence settled on Rock Creek, eight miles east of the latter place, where he followed farming and stock raising until 1861, when he removed to the village and engaged as a clerk until 1868, from which time until 1874 he was backwards and forwards between here and the Indian Territory trading with the Indians of several different tribes. In 1874 he moved on to a farm six miles south of Council Grove and lived there until the spring of 1879, and engaged in the grain business until he became a member of the above firm. He was born in Butler County, Ohio, May 10, 1832. His parents moved to Tazewell County, Ill., in 1835, where he lived until 1838, when he went to Van Buren County, Iowa. He was raised on a farm. Married in 1856 to Miss Margaret Baker, a native of Iowa. They have three children—Clyde B., Robert E., and James G. He is a member of the Blue Lodge, A., F. & A. M., and a Democrat.

JOHN THOMAS STEVENSON, retired, was born in Versailles, Woodford Co., Ky., October 21, 1816, living there until 1854, when he moved to Andrew County, Mo., where he resided until the breaking out of the war, when he was driven into the Confederate army. He was captured in 1862 and held a prisoner until the close of the war, when he moved to Council Grove, where he has since resided. Mr. S. learned the tailor's trade in Kentucky, following that vocation until a few years ago. He held the office of Justice of the Peace at Council Grove thirteen years and then entered mercantile business, which he carried on five years, when he retired from business. He has long been identified with the I. O. O. F. order and instituted the lodge at Council Grove, being one of its charter members. He was married at Versailles, Ky., March 15, 1836, to Miss Susan P. Stone. They have five children living—Elizabeth W. Sarah Ann, Blackburn Kincaid, George S. and Agnes A.

C. H. STRIEBY, blacksmith, has been in present business at Council Grove since 1857, when he located in the town. He does a general blacksmith business and horseshoeing, employing two men continuously, and during a portion of the time two additional hands. He was born in Beaver County, Pa., May 22, 1836, living there until twenty years old and then learning his trade, which he has since followed. He came to Kansas in 1856, working at his trade in different places one year. He then located at Council Grove, where he married in 1865 Miss Harriet E. Wright, a native of the State of New York. They have five children living—Henry, Robert, Edna, Frank and Ellen. He is a member of the Masonic order.

SAMUEL M. STRIEBY, wagon-maker and carpenter, does a general wagon-making and repairing business, also does an extensive business building and carpentering, employing two to thirteen hands, his entire business amounting to $4,000 per year. He has built a number of business houses and residences at Council Grove for speculative purposes. For twelve years he carried on an undertaking establishment in connection with his other business and was also in the lumber business a short time. He was born in Beaver County, Pa., February 15, 1841, residing there until 1861, when he enlisted in Company K, Tenth Pennsylvania Reserves, serving nearly three years in the Army of the Potomac. He took part in a number of the principal battles fought by that army and was wounded at the battle of the Wilderness. In 1864 he was discharged on account of disability. He soon afterward came to Kansas, locating at Council Grove. He was elected Register of Deeds on the first straight Republican ticket elected in Morris County. Has since been a member of the city Council and Township Trustee. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. order, and has held all the official positions in the lodge at Council Grove. He was married at Council Grove, Kas., in 1875, to Miss Agnes A. Stevenson, daughter of J. T. and Susan P. Stevenson. They have two children, Charles Cook and Andrew Hughes.

D. C. WEBB, dealer in dry goods, clothing, millinery, etc., has been in present business at Council Grove the past seven years, carries a general stock of clothing, boots and shoes, hats and caps, dry goods, notions and millinery, amounting to $20,000 to $30,000, doing a business of over $50,000 per year and employs eight to ten clerks. He has a similar store at Strong City, carrying a stock of $18,000 and doing a large and growing business. He is also interested in real estate in Morris County, having four farms of 160 acres each, 350 acres of the whole being under cultivation. He is also a stockholder and director in the Morris County State Bank. He was born in Lafayette, Ind., in 1834; when twelve years old he left his home and went to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he obtained employment in a store as errand boy; in 1849 he went to South America, stopping on the way a short time at the cities of Havana and Kingston, on the islands of Cuba and Jamaica. He being at this time sixteen years old, settled at Peno Blanco, on the Isthmus of Panama, thirty miles from Chagres, on the Chagres River, where he built a hotel and was engaged in keeping hotel, the nearest white man at the time being ten miles from him. His customers were travelers crossing the Isthmus, going to and from California. He sold his hotel after keeping it less than one year, when, in connection with an elder brother, they built the Railroad Hotel, which was the first hotel built and completed in what is now the city of Aspinwall; they also built during the same year, in Aspinwall, a storehouse, and were engaged selling clothing, provisions and groceries. They sold their real estate and merchandise in Aspinwall during the winter of 1851 and 1852, and returned to Cincinnati, Ohio, where they had built for them a large side-wheel steamboat, especially built for the cotton trade in the South. The first trip up Red River, in Louisiana, the boat was sunk, and was a total loss. The two brothers then went to Guyandotte, W. Va., where, for about a year, they were engaged in the mercantile business. Not meeting with much success, for the want of sufficient capital to do business, they sold out, the elder brother, R. H. Webb, went to California, the other back again to Cincinnati, where he again found employment, either as salesman or book-keeper, in the mercantile business, until 1857, when he entered into business for himself at Mound City, Ill. Since that time he has been continuously engaged in the mercantile business He was married in Decatur, Ill., in 1858, to Miss Mary A. Seamans. They have two children living, both are now married, Minnie M. Freyschlag and Norah Webb Fisk. Mr. Webb was a member of the order of Odd Fellows, in Mound City, Ill., and is a member of the Masonic order, the Blue Lodge, the Chapter, the Commandery, also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

D. C. Webb

SENECA TYLER, County Surveyor, was born in Syracuse, N. Y., July 31, 1842. He received his education at Hartford, Conn., graduating from the high school of that place. He there received his early training in civil engineering and was afterwards employed as civil engineer on the canals in the State of New York, and on railroads in Wisconsin and Minnesota, following the business of civil engineer most of his life. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company D, Twentieth Iowa Infantry, serving until August, 1865, in the Army of the Frontier, and participated in the siege of Vicksburg and vicinity, Mobile, and in Florida and Texas. He moved to Kansas in 1871, locating in Cowley County, where he engaged in farming and land surveying. In 1878 he removed to Morris County and engaged in farming. In July, 1882, he was appointed County Surveyor of Morris County, to fill a vacancy and was elected for succeeding term in November following. He was married at Davenport, Iowa, March 1, 1870, to Miss Hannah M. Hubbard.

JAMES WATKINS, Deputy Sheriff, was born near Huntsville, Madison Co., Ala., in 1826, afterwards moving to Missouri, where he remained until 1856, when he came to Kansas, locating at Lecompton. However, on account of the border troubles then existing, he returned to Missouri, where he remained until 1863. He again came to Kansas, locating at Council Grove. During the next two years he was connected with the Santa Fe Mail Company, running a supply train from Council Grove to points west. In 1865 he purchased an interest in what is now the Commercial Hotel, which he enlarged, and, in partnership with another party, ran about four years. Since that time he has not been engaged in regular business. He is now Deputy Sheriff, a position he has had most of the time for several years; has also been a member of the City Council of Council Grove. He is largely interested in town property, being one of the heaviest real estate owners in Council Grove, is also a director of the Farmers & Drovers Bank, of which he is a stockholder. He is a member of the Masonic order. He was married at Liberty, Clay Co., Mo., in 1865, to Miss M. A. Faulconer. They have six children living, Eva May, Hasie Bell, Era C., Todd, Ivy, Ona.

HON. WILLIAM H. WHITE was born in Lexington, Ky., August 27, 1847, living on a farm until seventeen years old, when he began clerking in a store at Council Grove, remaining there three years, having removed from Kentucky to Andrew County, Mo., when an infant and coming to Kansas when ten years old. In 1867 he began dealing in live stock, pursuing that business four years; then for seven years he had a general store. In 1877 he was elected Treasurer of Morris County, serving two terms. In 1882 he was elected representative to the Legislature from Morris County. Mr. White is a Democrat, supporting State and national Democratic tickets, but in county matters he supports men rather than party. He has also been identified with other public interests, having been a member of the City Council and is president of the Morris County Fair Association, also president of the Farmers and Drovers Bank. He is a member of the Masonic lodge at Council Grove. He was married at Council Grove, Kan., to Miss Sarah J. Hammond, March 8, 1874. They have two children living, Bertha and Clarence.

PARKERSVILLE.

This town is situated on the Neosho River in Parker Township, and about ten miles a little west of north from Council Grove. It was incorporated in February, 1871, the incorporators being C. G. Parker, J. A. Rogers, G. W. Clark, H. Daniels and W. M. Thomas, and these, by the articles of incorporation, were made the first trustees of the town. The following spring an election was held for town officers, at which J. A. Wallace was chosen Mayor.

It is a very neat little burgh and a good deal of taste is exhibited by the manner in which the houses and their surroundings are kept. It once had pretensions to be the seat of justice and disputed the field with Council Grove for this honor. Having been defeated it resumed the tenor of its way, and the people turned their attention to making the town as attractive as possible and to compete for the trade of the surrounding country. The inhabitants are a spirited people and support a live and ably edited newspaper.

It has the same railway facilities as Council Grove, both being located on the M. K. & T. road which runs diagonally through the county from northwest to southeast. There are in the town one store devoted to dry goods and groceries, two to drugs and groceries, one to hardware and groceries, one to groceries exclusively, and also two cheese factories. There are likewise two harness shops and a wagon shop. There is, besides, a steam grist mill, with saw mill attached, which was erected in 1871 by C. G. Parker. He it was who also built the first residence in town. The first store in town was put up by Eastman & Thomas, in 1870. The town has a very fine stone schoolhouse, two stories high, which was erected in 1871, and the first teacher in town was G. McCullom. In 1880 the Methodist organization of the place put up a very handsome stone edifice, and take the place for all in all, it bears an air of neatness, taste, thrift and prosperity. Its population is between 200 and 250.

Council Grove and Parkersville are the only incorporated towns in the county.

Morris County Enterprise.—This paper was established in October, 1877, by V. C. Welch, who has been and remains its sole editor and proprietor. It is published at Parkersville, in Parker Township, and is Republican in politics. Its circulation is about 500, has quite a good local advertising patronage, and is issued on Thursday of each week.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—This society organized at Parkersville, in 1880, with sixty members, which, since that time has increased to eighty-five. They also have a neat and commodious edifice built of stone, where they meet for worship. The pastor is Rev. C. Atkinson. The organization at White City was formed about 1874, with forty members, the first officiating pastor being Rev. Mr. Glendenning. The present membership of the society numbers sixty-five, and the pastor is Rev. Mr. Ward, who also officiates at Skiddy. The society has a very neat frame church building and is in a very prosperous condition. The organization at Skiddy numbers between thirty and forty members, and having no church building they meet for worship in the schoolhouse.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

LEVI BRIGHAM, P. M., and railroad station agent, was born in Dunkirk, Chautauqua Co. N. Y., January 6, 1824. After attaining his majority, he went to Pennsylvania, where for ten years he was in the lumber and mercantile trade. In 1851, he crossed the plains to California, engaging in the water business two years, having one of the three wells in San Francisco at that time. Returning to Dunkirk, he went to Tennessee, where he engaged in railroad building for a time; afterwards, removing to Kentucky, he had charge of coal mines about a year, when he again returned to New York, where, for a year or two he engaged in merchandising. During the War he engaged in farming, and at its close he moved to Rockford, Ill., where he farmed until 1871, when he was appointed station agent of the M., K. & T. R. R., at Parkersville. A year later, he was appointed Postmaster. Both of these positions and that of express agent, he still holds. He was married at Lockport, N. Y., in 1844, to Miss Mary E. Hutchinson. They have six children—Helen, Hanson, Flora, Frederick, Levi and Fidello. His family are identified with the Episcopal Church.

HIRAM CAMPBELL, was born in Chester County, Pa., February 21, 1838, living there until fourteen years old, when he went to Virginia, where he learned the milling business with his father. At the end of four years, he went to Philadelphia, where he was employed in a large merchant mill until the breaking out of the War, when, in 1861, he enlisted in Company F, of the regiment known as Baker's California Regiment, and afterwards as the Seventy-first Pennsylvania, serving nearly four years in the Army of the Potomac, and taking part in the various battles on the Peninsula and Virginia. After the close of the War, he returned to milling, which he followed until the fall of 1875, when he engaged in the hardware business which he now carries on, having a stock of $2,000 in farming implements and $4,000 in hardware, stoves and tinware, and doing a business of $12,000 per year. He is a member of the Masonic order. Is also Mayor of Parkersville.

J. F. CRESS, was born in Lee County, Va., May 1, 1840, living there until 1857, when he removed to Kansas, remaining one year in Douglas County, and the following year he removed to Morris County, where he has since resided, engaged in farming and stock raising, making a specialty of farm stock. He has two farms, one in Parker Township, in Section 16, of 160 acres, 100 acres under cultivation, the rest pasture and timber, and all under fence. The other is in Highland Township, consisting of 240 acres in Section 22; 100 acres under cultivation, the rest pasture land. On this farm are two miles of hedge fence, good orchard and other substantial improvements. His livery stable in Parkersville is one of the best stables in the State, being a large two-story building of cut stone, above, (front being Masonic Hall), 52 feet front and 80 feet deep, with a capacity of thirty head of horses in single stalls, 2 000 bushels of grain and twenty tons of hay. He employs in his livery business twelve to eight horses, besides upwards of fifty head that he has for sale, and three trotting and draft stallions. He makes a specialty of raising farm horses. Mr. Cress is a prominent member of the Masonic order, being the present Master of Parkersville Lodge. He is also a member of I. O. O. F. order, and has been a member of the Union Baptist Church since 1865. He has also held a number of civil offices, such as Mayor, member of Council several years, and School and Township Treasurer the past eight years. He was married, near Lawrence, Kas., October 6, 1863, to Miss Eliza E. Williams. They have eight children—Alba M., Banna F., Parker W., Everett L., Blanche V., Dicy A., Myrtie A. and Loyd E.

H. S. DAY, was born in New Richmond, Ohio, March 19, 1841. When the late War broke out, he enlisted in Company C, Twelfth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, in April, 1861, and served until July, 1864, when he was discharged. He then engaged in business, manufacturing and selling perfumery and fancy goods in New Richmond, until the fall of 1870, when he came to Kansas and homesteaded 160 acres of land, in the north side of Morris County. He assisted in organizing Ohio Township, and was its first Township Trustee elected. He engaged in real estate and immigration business at Parkersville, in 1871, devoting a part of his time to that until his homestead was opened up, and since 1879, has devoted all his time to real estate and immigration business, making several trips to Eastern States each year in that interest. He is an enthusiastic Kansan, and has rendered valuable services to Morris County in opening up her lands and securing good citizens. He believes Kansas to be the greatest State and Morris her finest county. He was married in New Richmond, Ohio, January 15, 1865, to Miss Nannie Lindsey. They have three children—George, Maggie and Walter. Since his residence in Parkersville, he has held the office of Justice of the Peace two terms, and Police Judge two terms. Besides this, he rents a section of land for grazing purposes. He was married at Parkersville, in November, 1877, to Miss Clara Carter. They have two children—Mary and Julia.

V. C. WELCH, proprietor and editor of the Morris County Enterprise. The paper was established January 1, 1878, by D. O. McCray, is Republican in politics, and issued every Thursday. On the first day of July of that year it passed into the hands of V. C. Welch, who has since published it, making it one of the best county papers published in the State. V. C. Welch was born at Fairfield, Iowa, August 3, 1855. During the following year his parents moved to Knoxville, remaining until 1861, when they removed to Osceola, where he received the first rudiments of an education. In the winter of 1862-63, his father, Dr. S. S. Welch, enlisted in the Eighteenth Iowa Infantry, serving until the war had closed. After the latter's return from the army, he removed to Kingston, Mo., where the subject of this sketch learned the printer's trade, which he has since followed, except a term of two years, which he spent in completing an academic course. He came to Kansas to reside permanently in 1877, locating at Hartford, where he was connected with the Hartford Enterprise until the Morris County Enterprise was established at Parkersville, of which he was foreman until he became publisher. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M. Lodge at Parkersville. He was married at Hartford, Kan., January 22, 1879, to Miss Laura Medaris. They have one child—Perl.

WHITE CITY.

This village is located about five miles north of Parkersville, on the M., K & T. Railroad. In 1869 a colony was organized in Chicago, under one Rev. Mr. Pierce, with the object of making themselves homes in some of the Western States. While in course of formation a correspondence was opened up between Mr. Pierce and Mr. Somers, of Council Grove, the latter gentleman at that time being agent for a large amount of railway lands. When the colony was about ready to start westward, Mr. Somers proceeded to Chicago to see to the completion of its organization, and to accompany it to Morris County. It numbered about forty families. The place first selected for its location was only about three miles from Parkersville, but afterwards it moved about two miles further to the north to land owned by T. S. & W. J. Mackenzie, who took an active part in organizing the colony. In 1871 the Mackenzies had the town site surveyed, and shortly thereafter building commenced. The first house built in the village was by Thomas Eldridge, in 1872, and the first store erected was by James Thornley and W. N. Dunbar, in 1872. In 1873 a good school was built, the first teacher in which was Adam Dixon. There are now in the village three general stores, one drug store, one grocery store, one millinery shop, two wagon shops and two elevators. Three or four years ago the Methodists put up a frame church building, and the Congregationalists have now in course of erection an edifice of like material. It depends for support upon the agricultural country surrounding it, and is quite a shipping point for grain. Its population is about 200.

SKIDDY.

This is the name of another village still farther north, which is located on the boundary line between Morris and Davis counties, and on the line of the M. K. & T. Railway. The place is also known as, and sometimes designated, Camden. It was started in 1870 by a mixed colony from Pennsylvania and New Jersey, which was organized by one W. E. Tomlinson. It has only one store, general in character, which was built in 1870 by J. R. College. The Baptists, who are quite numerous in Skiddy and the surrounding country are now, 1882, finishing a frame church building for purposes of worship. The inhabitants of the village number about 120.

The Baptists have quite a strong organization at Skiddy, in the northern portion of the county, and also one at White City, of which the membership is thirty-five. At White City they have no church building, but at Skiddy they are in the act of finishing a very neat frame church building. The organization at Skiddy was formed in 1872, and the first pastor was Rev. Mr. Phillips. The present officiating pastor for the society of Skiddy and also the one at White City is Rev. Mr. Howard. A society known as the Union Baptists exists in Highland Township, and two or three years ago erected a very fine church building.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

WILLIAM K. BIGHAM, manager of lumber and coal business at White City, Kas. (for the Badger State lumber t Hannibal, Mo.), was born at Hamilton, Ohio, April 12, 1842. Lived there until 1859, when he moved to El Paso, Ill.; farmed until September, 1861. Enlisted in Company G, of the Fourth Illinois Cavalry, served three years as Quartermaster Sergeant. Since July, 1882, up to April 4, 1883, he has bought and shipped 525 car loads of grain and fifteen cars of live stock from White City. He first came to Clay County, Kas., in 1857, with his parents and lived on a farm until he embarked in trade. He was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1852. His parents moved to Kansas in 1857. He came to White City in May, 1878. He was married in 1880 to Miss Minnie Schilling, a native of West Virginia. They have one son—Frank J. Is building warehouse 24x40 for corn and oats.

WILLIAM SCHILLING, dealer in general merchandise, White City, opened trade in White City in the fall of 1877, with a stock of about $2,500, now carries an average stock of $10,000, and employs four clerks in the business. He was appointed Postmaster and took charge of the office in 1879. Was born in London, England, November 7, 1836. Came to America in February, 1849, settling in Greenbrier County, W. Va., where he clerked in a store some time, and finally engaged in the oil business where he made a start financially. He was married in August, 1857, to Miss Elizabeth J Deitz, of West Virginia. They have nine children—Louisa C., Minnie E., Charles R., James, Sidney A., William H., Hattie M., Ida and Frederick. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of White City. He is a member of the Blue Lodge, A., F. & A. M., of Parkersville, same county, Kansas.

DUNLAP.

This is the name of a small village in the southeastern portion of the county and located on the M. K. & T. Railway. It has a population of between 100 and 150, and carries on quite a business. The place has two or three stores and a grist and saw mill. The place is named after Joseph Dunlap, the founder of the town and the first white settler in Valley Township. Colored people form a large per cent of the population.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

MRS. N. AMSBAUGH, merchant, has been doing business in Dunlap the past four years, since August, 1879, dealing in dry goods, groceries and general merchandize. Makes butter and eggs a specialty, a large quantity of each bought and sorted and shipped to all portions of Southern and Western markets. The brand under which all butter is shipped, Neosho Valley Creamery, being well and favorably known. The entire business done amounting to about $60,000 per annum.

W. H. AMSBAUGH, the business manager of the concern or firm of N. Amsbaugh, was born in Johnstown, Cambria Co., Pa., February 9, 1843. When about nine years old went with his parents to Moline, Ill., where he remained several years. He afterwards lived in Davenport and Maquoketa, Iowa, and did an extensive business in grain and live stock at those places; removed to Dunlap in 1879. Was married at Maquoketa, Iowa, in 1873, to Mrs. Nancy Oake.

BULEN & KIDD, merchants, have been doing business here as a firm since the fall of 1882, dealing in general merchandise, consisting of dry goods, groceries, etc., carry a stock of $2,000, doing a business of $7,000 per year. E. D. Bulen was born in Sennett, Cayuga Co., N. Y., December 16, 1844, moving to Ashtabula County, Ohio, with his parents when nine years old. He early espoused the principles of the Republican party and has since continued a firm adherent and supporter of that party. In 1864 he enlisted in Company C, Sixtieth Ohio Infantry, serving until the close of the war. Was taken prisoner on the Weldon railroad in Virginia and held until the following February, when he was paroled. During the remainder of his term of service was Acting Orderly. About 1868 he moved to Michigan, remaining two years, and then moved to Kansas, engaging in farming in Osage County until 1872, when he moved to Dunlap where he opened a small store, which he has since carried on, increasing the stock as the demand required. In the fall of 1882 he associated with himself in the business Mr. C. E. Kidd. Mr. Bulen was appointed Postmaster during Grant's second term, and still holds that position. He is a member of the Masonic order and the Knights of Honor and of the G. A. R. He was married in Osage County, Kan., in 1871, to Miss Frank Killim. They have four children living—Jessie L., Guy D., Clyde F. and Avis M.

H. M. COBURN was born in Utica, N. Y., July, 1853, living there until ten years of age, when he went with his parents to Jones County, Iowa, remaining until 1870. He then moved to Kansas, locating at Americus, engaging in farming until 1880, when he began clerking in the store of E. D. Bulen, where he still remains. He has a farm of eighty acres, one and one-quarter mile northwest of Dunlap, sixty acres in cultivation, twenty acres in native timber. He is a member of the Masonic Order.

JOSEPH DUNLAP, farmer, section 14, P. O. Dunlap, was born in Adams County, Ohio, September 1, 1828, living there until about twenty-five years old. In December, 1850, he married Miss Julia A. Nicholas, daughter of Capt. Enos Nicholas, a native of Virginia. They have one child living—John G., now a resident of Dunlap. In 1853 he moved to Illinois, and afterwards to Missouri, and thence to St. Paul, Minn., where he resided until 1858, when he removed to Kansas, settling at the old Indian Mission, on Big John Creek, in Morris County, holding the position of Indian Trader for six years, first under Col. Dickey, and afterwards under Mr. Farnsworth, who was succeeded by Major S. S. Storer. Mr. Dunlap located the buildings at the Mission. After giving up his position of Trader at the Mission he moved to his present residence, engaging in farming and raising live stock, which he has since followed. He has a fine farm one-half mile from Dunlap, consisting of 160 acres, of which 100 acres are under cultivation. The rest is timber and pasture. He also deals in live stock, chiefly in horses, keeping about twenty head on hand, besides thirty to forty head of cattle. Mr. Dunlap is the original proprietor of the town site of Dunlap, which he laid out. He has held the office of Sheriff of Morris County, and ten years he was Deputy U. S. Marshal; also held the position of Lieutenant, in Kansas State Militia, under Gov. Kearney. Mrs. Dunlap taught the first school in Morris County, at the old Indian Mission.

C. E. KIDD was born in Frederick County, Va., April 6, 1843, remaining until the fall of 1857, when he went with his parents to Indiana. When about sixteen years old he began clerking in a store, continuing until 1864 in Indiana, and then went to Ohio, where he obtained employment in the same business four years. He then came to Kansas, locating in Pottawatomie County, on a farm, remaining until the spring of 1874, when he moved to the vicinity of Dunlap. He then engaged in farming until the fall of 1878, when he engaged in the hotel business at Dunlap, two years. During the next year he again engaged in farming until the fall of 1882, when he entered into partnership with E. B. Bulen. He was married in Pottawatomie County, Kan., in 1870, to Miss Mary E. Edwards. They have three children—Lida B., Charity Alice and Luther C. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Dunlap.

FAY PARSONS, farmer and grain dealer, Section 24, P. O. Dunlap, was born in Bennington County, Vt., August 13, 1828. When sixteen years old he went to Milwaukee, Wis., where, until 1851, he was employed in grain business. He then moved to Dubuque, engaging in grain and lumber trade. In 1873 he moved to Kansas, engaging in buying wheat along the Cottonwood River, west from Emporia, for St. Louis mills, being the first grain dealer operating west of Emporia. In May, 1876, he located on his farm near Dunlap, where he has since resided. His farm, consisting of 160 acres, lies one-half mile south of Dunlap; is well improved, almost wholly under cultivation, and one of the most profitable farms in Morris County. During past four years it has yielded a rental of over $1,000 per year. Mr. Parsons was married in Sedgwick County, Kan., in 1873, to Miss Rose Altha Chase. They have four children living—Cyrus, Stephen B., Frederick, Maude S. He has been a member of the Republican party since its organization. He has been three times elected Commissioner of Morris County.

JOHN C. PICKETT, farmer and stock raiser, Section 3, Township 17, Range 8, P. O. Council Grove, came to this place in 1876. He first settled near Emporia, Kan., in October, 1858, on a farm, where he followed agricultural pursuits and his trade of carpenter and builder, until he came to his present home. He has 120 acres of fine agricultural lands, forty-five of which is cultivated. He was born in Chatham County, N. C. October 20, 1829, lived in native State until 1852, when he went to Hamilton County, Ind., and worked at his trade until he came to Kansas. Was married in 1853, to Miss Alice Hadley a native of Hamilton County, Ind. They have one son and a daughter—Elihu F., born January 27, 1857, and Mary E., born April 4, 1859, now married to Mr. Thomas Crippin, a farmer living near by. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. P. is now serving his second term as Justice of the Peace.

J. B. SHOWERS, M.D., came to Dunlap in the spring of 1880, and commenced the practice of his profession and has built up a large practice. He commenced the study of medicine while a boy of fifteen years of age and made that his whole desire; first starting with Dr. Harris, of Bellefonte, Pa., from there to Illinois with Dr. McKiney, of Mendota, Ill., from there to Wisconsin, with Dr. Jinkins, of Portage City, then back to Illinois. Graduated in the spring of 1880, practiced a while in Decatur, then moving to Kansas and locating at Dunlap. Being a poor boy part of this time he was obliged to work on a farm to make a living. He also controls a large stock of drugs at Dunlap. He was married April 21, 1880, to Miss Lida Chapman, of Decatur, Ill., and moved to Kansas soon after. He is a member of A. O. U. W., of Dunlap.

He was born in Plymouth, England, June 14, 1845, and was reared at Bristol. Was there married in 1868, to Miss Eleanor Thomas. They have one child living—Leonard William. He came to America in 1870, locating first at Chicago, and afterwards at Champaign, Ill., and other points in Illinois, and in Michigan, being employed as hotel steward. He is a member of Council Grove Lodge, No. 36, A., F. & A. M., and of the Knights of Honor Lodge at Dunlap.

McPHERSON COUNTY.

LOCATION AND NATURAL FEATURES.

McPHERSON County is one of the central counties of Kansas, and is one of the best wheat producing sections in this portion of the State. The county is principally watered by the Little Arkansas, a branch of the Arkansas River. The Smoky Hill River passes through the northwestern and northern parts of the county. Gypsum Creek runs through the northeastern portion—through Delmore, Battle Hill and Gypsum townships—into the Saline River. The tributaries of the Smoky Hill River flow in a generally northern and southern direction. Turkey, Crooked and Emmett creeks, branches of the Little Arkansas River, drain the entire southeastern portion.

McPherson County is situated just west of the Sixth Principal Meridian, and is one of the most prosperous counties beyond that line in the State. According to the reports sent to the State Board of Agriculture, the face of the country is thus divided: Bottom land, 5 per cent; upland, 95 per cent; forest, (Government survey) 1 per cent; prairie, 99 per cent. Average width of bottoms one mile. The surface of the country is generally undulating, sufficiently rolling, in short, to drain well. In the northern part, along the Smoky Hill River and Gypsum Creek the country is somewhat hilly. Besides being drained by the rivers and streams heretofore mentioned, the water supply of the county is maintained by a tolerable supply of springs. Well water is obtained, on the bottoms, at a depth of from ten to forty feet; on the high prairie from twenty to one hundred feet.

Native timber is very scarce, the principal varieties being cottonwood, ash, elm, willow and oak. The result is that unusual attention has been paid to tree culture, and many maple and cottonwood groves afford plenty of fuel to owners. A great number of entries under the timber culture act have been made. The average width of the timber belts is not more than five rods.

The soil of McPherson County is of a dark loam, from two to three feet deep, intermixed with a little sand. The subsoil consists of a porous clay, which retains moisture and stores it away for use in hot weather, when it is drawn to the surface.

In the southeastern part of the county fair limestone has been found, and in the northern part an abundance of second rate sandstone. Gypsum also abounds in the north. A few salt springs have been reported, and mineral paint of a poor quality. No coal, of consequence, has been discovered.

EARLY HISTORY.

Coronado's Expedition, taken in 1542, from Mexico to the northern boundary of Kansas, enables many localities in this State to justly lay claim to be considered historic ground. He is supposed to have entered the present State of Kansas, in the vicinity of Barber County, and marching, with his followers, in a generally northeasterly direction, to have entered the present limits of McPherson County from its southwestern corner, passing by the big lake, thence up the Turkey Creek via King City and Empire until he reached the Gypsum Valley which he followed down until he reached the Smoky River. Upon Gypsum Creek he is said to have located the "Diamond Fields of Quivira"—"crystallized gypsum fields."

"In 1823," says the McPherson Independent of January 24, 1878, "the first wagon train from Missouri to Santa Fe passed through Kansas, but it is probable that it did not pass through McPherson County, but would more naturally follow the Arkansas Valley. In 1825 was established the 'Santa Fe Trail,' traces of which can yet be seen three miles south of the city of McPherson. This trail was established by Major Sibley, under an act of Congress, and this was before any settlements were made in Kansas and two years before Fort Leavenworth was established. Along this trail were located numerous ranches for the accommodation of travelers, and of this class a ranch called Fuller's Ranch was located on Turkey Creek, where Empire now stands, as early as 1855. John N. Corgan, who now lives in Delmore Township, this county, passed through here in 1856 with an expedition under Gen. Joe Johnston, who afterwards attained distinction as a General in the Rebel army. Johnston then commanded the Second United States Cavalry. Ranches were located by the Government and the land was given to the party who would keep the ranch. Mr. Corgan says that in passing through this county in 1865 he stopped at Fuller's Ranch for dinner. It was then kept by a man named Charley Fuller, and who lives at Marion Center now. This man furnished good accommodations, and, as scarce as women were in those days, he had two women to cook and wait at table. These women were French and their names were Clara and Norma Nomo. Clara afterwards married a man named Henry Schonfeldt and Norma a man named Smith, a butcher at Fort Dodge."

The first settler in McPherson County who remained long enough to be called a settler was Isaac Sharp; who lived upon Sharp's Creek (after whom the creek was named) during the winter of 1859-60. He settled upon what is now known as the Maxwell estate. He traded with the Indians, trapped and hunted. He came from Pennsylvania, and brought with him his father and mother. The latter died and was buried upon the creek. Mrs. Sharp was, without doubt, the first white woman who resided in McPherson County. When the war of the Rebellion broke out, the Western Indians became troublesome and Mr. Sharp deemed it imprudent to remain longer at his new home. He removed to Council Grove, in this State, where he now lives as an attorney-at-law. Strange as it may seem, the first resident of the county was a Democrat. He ran for Governor of the State of Kansas in the fall of 1870, and the county of which he had the honor of being the first settler, out of a total of 198, gave him one vote. Shortly after Mr. Sharp came to the county, a man named Lewis settled upon the Smoky below Marquette, on the farm now owned by Solomon Stephens. He was also a trapper and a trader, but made some improvements upon his claim, and a strip of land plowed by him can yet be distinguished, although nearly gone back to the native sod. A man named Peters also came to Sharp's Creek shortly after Mr. Sharp. He died and was buried upon the creek. From the time of the removal of Mr. Sharp from the county until the settlement in 1866, there were only occasional visits of traders and trappers. Messrs. D. H. Page, J. Lehman and A. C. Spillman hunted and trapped in this county, and Mr. Alex. Campbell, now Postmaster at Salina, made frequent trips here. He killed the buffalo for the hides, and with the same knife that he took off the skins, ripped the calico for the breech clout of the noble Indian.

In 1865, what was known as the Stone Corral, was built and owned by a man named Wheeler. It was located on the Little Arkansas River, at the crossing of the old Santa Fe trail. Here it was that during the next year, Col. Grierson, of the United States Seventh Cavalry, encamped with his troops, building huts in which to live. Lieutenant Colonel, afterward Gen. Custer, was the officer under Col. Grierson, and in 1876, he led this same Seventh Cavalry into the jaws of death. The stockade, which was made the headquarters of the regiment in 1866, was built of cottonwood logs set upon end.

During this year, 1866, the settlers commenced to arrive quite plentifully. In January, Milton Harper, Jefferson Harper and S. Delano settled upon Sharp's Creek; and in April, Solomon and David Stephens, a short distance above the mouth of the creek. In May, ten Swedes, the first in the county, located near the Smoky Hill. They were A. Klingberg, F. Lundstrum, J. E. Ericson, A. Lend, J. F. Huldquist P. Ahlquist, N. Sponberg, G. Johnson, B. Johnson and Andrew Hanson. The same month, H. B. Tolle and Sanford and Lowell Reese settled upon Gypsum Creek, and D. B. Ray, Robert Minns, J. G. Maxwell and family, and E. R. Falley, upon Smoky River and Sharp's Creek. In July, G. W. and S. D. Shields settled upon the Smoky near where Lindsborg now is, and in October, William Brown located upon Sharp's Creek.

In March, 1867, John F. Hughes, J. M. Claypool and H. Weber settled upon the Smoky River. It was during October of this year, that the Pawnee Indians made a raid along Gypsum Creek, murdering a Mr. Temple, and hiding his body in a ravine, where it lay for some time.

In June of the next year, there was a great Indian scare among the settlers of Sharp's and Gypsum creeks and the Smoky River, but it was not grounded upon anything except the ghosts of tomahawks and scalps.

It was during this year that the Swedish Colony, among whom were John Rodell, W. P. Johnson, Olof Thornburg and Gustav Johnson, purchased 13,000 acres of land of the K. P. R. R. Co., and settled near the present town of Marquette. Other arrivals of 1868: John Roos, A. Holt, G. Swenson, Charley Johnson, N. Nordlund, P. Westman, N. P. Swenson, O. Carlson, Frank Cross, Anderson, Bellows, D. H. Page, Joseph Lehman, L. N. Holmburg, on the Smoky River; Charles Sorrison, S. F. Tolle, F. M. Fraziure; Swan Nelson and R. Seikl, on Gypsum Creek.

In August, 1868, the Chicago Swedish Company sent agents to McPherson County to purchase land; being attracted hither by letters which L. N. Holmburg had published in Swedish papers. The Chicago Land Company also made heavy purchases. It was the Swedish Company which located Lindsborg in 1868, N. P. Swenson being its first settler. During this year, the first postoffice was established at Sweadal, named by the Swedish Company, Mr. Holmburg, Postmaster; the first couple, F. Lindstrum and Miss Larson, who were married by him; and Mr. Holmburg also opened the first store in the county at Sweadal, during this year.

On August 19, 1869, was born Andrew Brown, son of William Brown, on Sharp's Creek, the first child born within the limits of McPherson County.

September 4th was born Lewis E. Stephens, son of David and Mary Stephens, the second child.

One of the first women to come into the county, if not the first, was Mrs. John G. Maxwell.

Among the settlers of 1870 were: B F. Patten, Battle Hill Township, June 1; Ranson & Burk, New Gottland Township; Messrs. Geary, Fihan, Savage and Parrott, Turkey Creek Township; Thomas Lockard, Little Valley Township; Cornelius Drum, Empire Township, came May 24, 1871; J. P. Grant and A. Shellert, McPherson Township, 1871; John Lindenberger, Lone Tree Township, spring of 1871; Soldiers' Colony, Ashtabula, Ohio, King City Township, May, 1871; J. C. Mahan and brother, Mound Township, May, 1871; D W. Minturn, Spring Valley Township, summer of 1872; Daniel Sitts, Groveland Township, 1872; A. S. Wilson, J. G. Snow and J. W. Boyce, Hayes Township, 1872; D. T. McFarland, Superior Township, 1872; A. Haight, A. Oldfield and E. Shaw, Canton Township, 1873.

In June, 1872, the town of McPherson had been surveyed, and this event may be said to close the early history of the county.

In September, 1873, the first Mennonite settlement was made in the southern part of the county, the colony making the purchase of a large tract of land from the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R. Co., besides buying from homesteaders.

In February, 1873, the colony from Ashland, Ky., located three miles east of McPherson, hauling the timber for their houses from Salina. Most of the families arrived in March, among the best known settlers being James Dean, Thornton Dean. T. J. Matthews, J. R. Dean, T. J. Dixon, D. Hodge, R. A. Barnes, W. G. Doughty, T. D. Wickersham, John Davis, S. N. Gray, L. Dale and D. H. Murrain.

INCIDENTS OF PIONEER LIFE.

In September, 1868, the Osage Indians, who were raiding the country in the vicinity of Sharp's Creek, carried off Mrs. Bassett and a child only a few days old. The poor mother was so weak that she could not ride, and was left, with her babe, upon the prairie. When found by her husband and some neighbors, who were absent at the time, they were in a pitiable plight, the baby dying from exposure.

During this year, also, many of the Shawnee and Kaw Indians were attacked by the cholera, which proved to be of a peculiarly fatal character. Many of them died, and their bones are now found in the vicinity of Sharp's Creek.

In the spring of 1870 a military company was organized for protection from the Indians. L. N. Holmburg, Captain; Sol. Stephens, First Lieutenant; G.W. Shields, Second Lieutenant.

August 20, 1870, the body of a man, supposed to be that of E. W. Broomfield, was found near Big Lake, Superior Township, by a Mexican herder, and buried by a number of herders, among whom was John F. Hughes. There were evidences of foul play about the body, the head being crushed in by what might have been an ax, and a rope being tied about the neck. In October a coroner's inquest was held, and the testimony went to prove that a man answering to Broomfield's appearance stopped at the house of Joseph Mullen, in company with James Wickersham. He was searching for a ranch location, the time being about August 1. The Coroner's jury found evidence against Mr. Wickersham sufficient to cause his arrest in October, in Saline County, where he then resided. When the case was brought up for trial before Esquire Maxwell, of Sharp's Creek, the testimony then presented was not sufficient to hold the prisoner and he was discharged. Many of the settlers were very indignant at the result and threatened hanging, but Wickersham's friends presented a "double-barreled" shot-gun front and the man escaped unharmed. A band was organized in Saline County to lynch him, and soon after his discharge he left the country for the South.

Other crimes and supposed crimes and casualties have occurred, such as the killing of C. Morris by James Savage, on Turkey Creek, during the fall of 1871; the death of Robert Keiser, caused, supposably, by poison, administered by his wife and her paramour; the drowning of County Commissioner James Weir, in Turkey Creek, in October, 1872; the shooting of James Wickersham by James Abercrombie. while plowing on the farm of Ben Dale, seven miles east of McPherson, June 8, 1876—no fatal results, however; the terrible wind storm of June, 1876, which passed over a portion of Saline County, south and west of Salina, and just north of Lindsborg, the first storm of the kind which ever visited Kansas, etc., etc.

One of the last buffalo seen in this locality wandered, with dignified mien, through the center of McPherson Town, July 22, 1873. The last of the shaggy monsters in this county was killed by G. W. Gandy, six miles west of McPherson, in 1875.

An event of general county moment was the cyclone which raged June 17, 1876. It passed over the northern portions thereof, blowing down many houses and injuring several persons, but killing no one. When it crossed the Smoky Hill River large trees were twisted off or uprooted.

ASHTABULA COLONY AND KING CITY.

In January, 1871, E. L. King, president, John W. Hill, vice-president, J. U. Fellows, secretary, and J. R. Williams, treasurer, organized a colony in Ashtabula, Ohio, for the purpose of locating a town in Kansas. Messrs. E. L. King, John W. Hill and Smith Edwards, were appointed a locating committee. They traveled a thousand miles over the State, and were returning homeward without having made a location, when they came into McPherson County, and decided upon the site of King City. The locating committee returned to Ohio, and about the last of May, the president of the company and about twenty-five others, started for Kansas. By June, 1872, the town contained twenty-five houses, and it is probable that if the tier of townships had not been struck off from the southern part of the county, King City would have obtained the county seat. When this was accomplished, however, in the winter of that year, its fate was a foregone conclusion. King City was surveyed by County Surveyor J. D. Chamberlain, in February 1875, it being located upon the west half of the northwest quarter, and the west half of the southwest quarter of Section 26, Township 20 south, of Range 3 west of the sixth principal meridian. The city is now virtually defunct.

"On June 22, 1871," says N. S. Hoisington, "I came to what is now known as King City. When I arrived at the woods on Turkey Creek, where the Ashtabula colony had stopped, I found tents, covered wagon boxes, and shanties in which were also a few people who were not natives of Ohio. During the night of my arrival I experienced one of the most violent storms of wind, rain and hail I ever witnessed. The shanty in which I was sheltered, with its inmates, was nearly blown down the bank. Every man during that night was busy holding on to his tent poles. H. D. Fellows were the proprietor of the shanty in which I was housed, his boarders furnishing the provisions. Himself, N. S. and D. B. Hoisington, and D. D. Carpenter were all camped together. In Norman Allen's tent to the south were Mr. Allen, Mrs. Mertz (cook), Miss Mary Allen, Charles Allen, and N. D. Allen. In William Morgan's tent to the northwest were the proprietor, Jeff Beales, and William Firkey. West of Norman Allen's tent was that owned by John Sample, which was occupied by himself and wife, Nellie Sample, and John Drake. L. B. Carr and R. B. Holbrook lived together in a covered wagon box just to the southwest. Near the old road which led to King City were Albert G. Smith and ——— Gilotte, who used to run a breaking outfit, and they turned over a good many acres of sod in and around King City. Jack Thomas, who married Norman Allen's daughter, was also one of these early pioneer's—and a jolly fellow who kept us all good natured. Our camp was just fifteen miles from the Little Arkansas River. A mile and a half north was the 'Brickyard Boarding House,' where lived the proprietor of the yard, William Nelson, and his family and 'hands,' of which I was one. The brick, however, proved to be of no use outside a building, since the first rain that come would wash them all to pieces. A spot one-half a mile from the camp was selected as the site of King City. George Crissy built the first store and did a flourishing business in groceries, provisions, etc. The building was afterwards moved to McPherson Centre. Across the street (just 150 feet) R. O'Dell built a hotel, and across the way from the hotel D. B. Hoisington had his blacksmith shop. South of Crissy's store Norman Allen, of Michigan, built the first residence, and north of the hotel Charles Anderson built another house. D. D. Carpenter, John Carpenter, Mr. Bonnell and others afterwards built residences, and Dr. S. S. Gregg held forth as a physician in a little office between the blacksmith shop and Mr. Carpenter's house. These were all the buildings on Main street. On the street east of Main Charles Zang built a house and storeroom, and George Galvin and Harry Morris also made some improvements. South was another hotel built by William West and Fred. Albright South of this was another residence belonging to Mr. Camp, and south of Norman Allen's place was a house which had been moved into town by Barney Reichard. L. M. Holmberg also moved a building into King City. He, with S. E. Granger, soon started a good general store. Charles Anderson followed with a few groceries and agricultural implements. After a time John W. Hill and H. A. Hendry built a large store and put in a stock of drugs and medicines. Overhead was the public hall in which Harvey Williams organized the first Sunday school, and in which the village school was also taught. Old Father Shelly used to preach in William West's hotel once every two weeks. * * After the two tiers of townships were taken from the south of McPherson County, however, and the county seat removed to McPherson Centre, King City fell to pieces."

POLITICAL ORGANIZATION AND HISTORY.

Peketon, Pekton or Peckton County (the reader has his choice of names) was established in 1860, by the passage of the following bill, introduced by S. N. Wood:

An act to establish Peketon County. Section 1.—That all that territory west of the sixth principal meridian and south of Township 16, in Kansas Territory, be and the same is hereby erected into a county, to be known by the name of Peketon County.

That the temporary county seat of said county shall be at Beach Valley.

That Ashel Beach, A. C. Beach and Samuel Shoff be and are hereby appointed Commissioners to divide said county into election precincts, fix places for holding elections, and make all necessary arrangements for the first election in said county.

As the west line of Peketon County was then the Rocky Mountains, it is not recorded that Messrs. Beach and Shoff ever undertook to divide it into election precincts. But February 17, 1865, Peketon County was abolished, and McPherson County was made a part of Marion County, which extended from the west line of Chase County to the present western boundary of Kansas.

In 1868, Solomon Stephens and L. N. Holmburg were appointed Justices of the Peace—the first officers in what is now McPherson County. The next year (1869) occurred the first election for the township, now the county of McPherson, and the following ticket met with no opposition:

Trustee, D. H. Page; Treasurer, David Stephens; Clerk, John F. Hughes; Justices of the Peace, J. G. Maxwell and L. N. Holmburg; Constables, R. D. Bagley and David Ray.

McPherson was regularly organized as a county in the spring of 1870, a mass meeting being held at Swedal. Gov. Harvey's proclamation is as follows:

Whereas, It appears from the records in the office of the Secretary of State that a census of McPherson County has been taken, according to law, by three resident freeholders of said county, showing a population of over 600 inhabitants, citizens of the United States; and

Whereas, More than twenty inhabitants, freeholders in McPherson County, have petitioned for the appointment of three (?) special County Commissioners and one special Clerk, and have selected and named a place as the temporary county seat of said county; now

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Kansas, I, James M. Harvey, have appointed and commissioned the special County Commissioners and Clerk asked for in that petition, and do hereby declare Swedal, Section 30, Township 17, Range 3 west, the temporary county seat of McPherson County.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State.

[L. S.]
JAMES M. MARVEY.
(Attest.)
THOMAS MOONLIGHT,
Secretary of State.

McPherson County was organized with 738 inhabitants. Only two Special Commissioners were appointed—John H. Johnson and Samuel D. Shields; John Rundstrum, Clerk. They took their oaths of office before L. N. Holmburg, Justice of Peace. The first meeting was held March 24, 1870, and S. D. Shields was made Chairman. The county was divided into Gypsum, Turkey Creek, Smoky Hill and Sharp's Creek townships. At the same time an election was ordered to be held on May 2, for the selection of township and county officers, and the location of the county seat. The result was as follows: Total number of votes cast, 172; for Section 17, Township 17, Range 3 west (Swedal), 97; Section 26, Township 17, Range 4, west, 18; Section 28, Township 17, Range 4 west, 57. County Officers elected: Commissioners—T. E. Simpson, James Weir and John Ferm. Clerk—J. R. Fisher. Treasurer—Solomon Stevens. Probate Judge—Nathan Bean. Register of Deeds—S. D Shields. Sheriff—M. E. Harper. Coroner—John Rundstrum. County Attorney—D. H. Page. Clerk of the District Court—S. J. Swenson. Surveyor—J. D. Chamberlain. County Superintendent of Public Instruction—O. Olsson. Mr. Simpson was made Chairman of the new Board.

Swedal, the county seat thus selected, was located about one mile and a half southwest of the present site of Lindsborg. In September, however, the County Commissioners resolved to meet at the latter place, a town which had already been located some two years. Their first meeting at the new county seat was held on the fifth of that month, when the first tax levy was made, 7½ mills for State purposes, 1 for school and 10 for current expenses of the county—total 18½ mills.

At the first general election held in McPherson County, James M. Harvey received 197 votes for Governor; D. P. Lowe, for Representative in Congress, 197; J. H. Prescott 185 for State Senator, and Olof Olsson 117 for the Legislature. Nathan Bean was chosen Probate Judge.

In April, 1873, a petition was filed for the re-location. It was signed by 483 voters, and a special election was accordingly ordered for June 10. Upon that day McPherson received 605 votes, New Gottland 325, King City 3 and Lindsborg 1; McPherson's majority over all, 276. In May the McPherson Town Company had offered, as an inducement for the location of the county seat at this point, the free use of rooms for ten years, and the donation of two squares of land on the town site. The offer was accepted the next month, the County Commissioners selecting blocks 56 and 65. Thus the county seat was established at McPherson, and has remained here since. The Town Company built a plain, two-story, wooden court house, but the County Clerk and Treasurer occupy quarters in the new Opera House block. A structure commensurate in appearance with the prosperity and importance of the county is about to be erected.

Officers for 1882: County Clerk, J. A. Flesher; Treasurer, E. R. Walt; Register of Deeds, James B. Darrah; Clerk of District Court, D. B. Jeffers; Superintendent of Public Instruction, John A. Meyers; County Attorney, D. P. Lindsay; Probate Judge, C. O. Spencer; Sheriff, Wallace Gleason; Surveyor, Jeff Tourney; Coroner, A. J. H. Jansenius, M.D.; Commissioners, J. W. Bean (Chairman), John P. Grant and Edward Swander.

The poor farm consists of 160 acres of land, situated four miles southwest of McPherson, which was purchased by the county in the spring of 1875. In July, 1880, proposals were received for erecting a poor house, 28x40 feet, two stories in height. The contract was awarded to Jex & Nelson, of Marion Center. The building was completed in January, 1881. The value of the property is about $6,000.

An affair which created much excitement, and a mystery which has never been cleared up, was the robbery of the County Treasury, on the night of March 1, 1875. The robber or robbers made away with $3,500, but no trace of them has ever been found.

In preceding pages a history has been given of the early political formation of McPherson County, and also its later history. Some intermediate particulars, however, have been omitted that the regular chain of political progress might not be broken.

In November, 1871, O. Olsson was elected Representative; J. R. Fisher, Clerk of the Board of Commissioners; S. Stephens, Treasurer; S. D. Shields, Register of Deeds; J. D. Chamberlain, Surveyor; H. Wickstrum, Sheriff; S. S. Gregg, Coroner; M. M. Collin, John Ferm and J. P. Stromquist, Commissioners.

1872—T. E. Simpson, Representative; J. M. Underwood, Probate Judge; C. W. Bouks, County Attorney; J. R. Wright, Clerk of the District Court; P. Wickersham, County Superintendent; J. W. Sanborn and E. M. Mills, Commissioners.

1873—Representative, T. E. Simpson; District Clerk, W. B. McCord; Treasurer, David Stephens; County Clerk, J. R. Wright; Sheriff, J. R. Dean; Register of Deeds, J. A. Buath (?); Surveyor, J. Leonard; Coroner, W. W. Murphy; Commissioners, J. W. Sanborn, M. M. Collier and J. P. Stromquest.

1874—Representative, A. W. Smith; Clerk of the District Court, Charles H. Knapp; County Attorney, M. P. Simpson; Probate Judge, J. M. Underwood; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Phillip Wickersham; Register of Deeds, J F. Hughes.

1875—Representative, D. H. Page; Treasurer, A. Hogwell; Clerk, J. R. Wright; Sheriff, C. E. Pierce; Register of Deeds, John F. Hughes; Probate Judge, A. F. Waugh; Surveyor, J. Leonard; Coroner, D. W. Pitt; Commissioners, A. S. Eastlick, John Richey and J. P. Stromquest.

1877—Treasurer, Anton Hogwell; Clerk, John R. Wright; Sheriff, C. E. Pierce; Register of Deeds, John F. Hughes; J. Leonard, Surveyor; Coroner, Dr. W. H. George; Commissioners, J. W. Bean, A. F. Waugh and O. W. Heckerthorn.

1878: Representative, George W. McClintick; Clerk of the District Court, Charles H. Knapp; County Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mrs. Mattie Murphy; Probate Judge, B. E. Smith; Treasurer, A. Hogwell; County Attorney, M. P. Simpson; Commissioner, (1st District) J. W. Bean.

1879—Treasurer, E. R. Walt; Clerk, J. A. Flesher; Register of Deeds, J. B. Darrah; Sheriff, Wallace Gleason; Surveyor, G. D. Jackson; Coroner, M. H. C. Weaver; Commissioner (2d District), J. P. Grant.

1880—Representative, J. M. Vannoldstrand; Probate Judge, C. O. Spencer; Clerk of the District Court, D. B. Jeffers; County Attorney, D. P. Lindsay; Superintendent of Public Instruction, John A. Myers; Commissioner (3d District), Ed. Swander.

1881—Clerk, J. A. Flesher; Sheriff, Wallace Gleason; Treasurer, E. R. Walt; Register of Deeds, J. B. Darrah; Surveyor, Jeff. Tourney; Coroner, Dr. A. J. H. Jansenius; Commissioner (1st District), J. W. Bean.

The officers serving in 1882 have already been given.

The boundary lines of McPherson County were fixed in 1867. From that time, up to 1870, it was attached, as a township, to Saline, for judicial purposes. The county then comprised 1,080 square miles, and included three townships which now belong to Harvey, and two townships which now belong to Reno County. The last change was made in 1872. It was thought that by striking off a row of townships on the south, Lindsborg would become the permanent county seat. This reduced McPherson County to its present limits, which are described as follows: Commencing at the northwest corner of Marion County, thence south with the sixth principal meridian, to the north line of Township 23, south; thence west with the township line to the east line of Range 6, west; thence north with range line to the south line of Township 16; thence east with the township line to the place of beginning.

RAILROADS.

It is an almost invariable rule that all localities which have eventually prospered have early commenced the agitation of railroad building. So with McPherson County. In April, 1872, a petition was presented to the Board of Commissioners, asking that the county take $150,000 in stock in the Salina & Sedgwick Railroad Company. At this time, however, the county was young and entirely undeveloped, and the whole taxable property amounted to only $219,000; consequently the Board refused to submit the petition. In June a proposition was made to vote $150,000 in aid of the Salina, Sedgwick & Southern Railroad Company. The road was to run from Salina through Lindsborg, McPherson, King's City and Lake View. The call for the election was withdrawn, however, and a citizens' petition granted by the Board of Commissioners, proposing to vote $200,000 bonds to the Salina, Atlanta & Raymond line. At the election held July 30, the aid was voted by 275 to 248. Sharp's Creek, Smoky Hill and King's City voted for, and Turkey Creek and Gypsum Creek against. The railroad was never built and the bonds were destroyed in the summer of 1873. The proposed line was from Salina to Lindsborg, New Gottland, King's City, and so on to the south boundary of the county; then west from Lindsborg to above the mouth of Sharp's Creek, on to the west line of the county towards Atlanta. Thus did these schemes come to naught. In March, 1873, the county subscribed $200,000 to the Salina & Southwestern Railroad. By the summer of that year $75,000 of this sum had been issued in bonds and deposited in the State Treasury. But the Company did not live up to its contract, and in August M. M. Collier, on behalf of the Board of Commissioners, went to Topeka and the bonds were cancelled and burned. Notwithstanding her failures, the progressive element of the county kept the matter of proper railroad communication before the people, and finally in February, 1879, the proposition of the Marion & McPherson branch of the A. T. & S. F. was carried by a vote of 1,549 to 1,251. During the same month the voters in Smoky Hill township decided to allow the building of the line to Lindsborg, the bonds issued being at the rate of $4,000 per mile. The company which finally constructed the line was called the Salina & Southwestern. The Kansas & Southwestern constructed the line from Lindsborg to McPherson, McPherson Township issuing $20,000 bonds. The branch from Salina to McPherson is now known as the Salina & Southwestern, the two construction companies placing the road, when completed, in the hands of the Union Pacific Railroad Company.

To avoid further unimportant details, it may be stated that the Marion and McPherson line was completed to McPherson, in September, 1879. On the 23rd of that month a grand celebration was held in the city, attended by citizens of both counties to the number of 6,000 or 7,000. By eleven o'clock the streets were crowded with people, and at noon the first train arrived from Marion County, bringing nearly 2,000 visitors. L. Roberts was marshal of the day, Mayor Pitzer, master of ceremonies, and M. P. Simpson, made the address of welcome; music by the Marquette and Marion Center bands and the McPherson Glee Club. The multitude helped themselves from five long tables, bountifully spread, and all went happy as a marriage bell. McPherson was, in fact, married to the outside world.

An unusual feature connected with the history of the Marion and McPherson road is this: That it cost McPherson County not one cent. In the original proposition, it was stipulated that the company should not mortgage the road for more than $7,000 per mile. The management of the road in the East, however, mortgaged the line at the rate of $8,000 per mile and made the transaction a matter of record. So that, although the county voted the bonds they were never issued—and McPherson County is "a railroad ahead."

The Kansas & Southwestern line was completed through McPherson Township, January 1, 1880, but as this was not the first railroad of the county, the occasion was allowed to pass without so glorious a celebration as marked the completion of the Marion and McPherson.

The Salina & Southwestern road passes from Salina, where it connects with the Kansas Division of the Union Pacific road through Smoky Hill, New Gottland and McPherson Townships to the county seat—principal station, Lindsborg the most flourishing village outside of McPherson City. The Marion & McPherson road passes through the county, east and west, having as stations, Canton, Canton Township; Galva, Empire Township; McPherson, McPherson Township; and Conway, Jackson Township.

AGRICULTURAL AND OTHER STATISTICS.

McPherson County is without doubt the banner wheat and broom corn county of the State of Kansas. Situated as it is, 175 miles west of the Missouri River, between the Smoky Hill and Arkansas rivers and the Kansas Pacific and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe roads, there is no section of the State better fitted for grain raising or more abundantly supplied with railroad facilities to get the produce to market. The county lies upon the great divide or water shed between the Smoky Hill and Arkansas. The water supply is adequate to the wants of a grain and stock-raising country. The soil of the county is easily worked. It is naturally dry and so quickly absorbs a heavy rain as to be always at the command of the cultivator. A six days' rain does not check the plow ten hours after a heavy storm. The soil is loose and quite flexible in its character—so much so, that grain of all kinds is easily raised. Wheat, rye, Indian corn, broom corn, barley, oats beans, peas, sorghum, millet, Hungarian and all grasses, vegetables and fruits are raised. In 1878 the number of acres of winter wheat in the county amounted to 83,727; in 1879, to 86,210; 1880, 116,997; 1881, 133,478; 1882, 105,362. During this prolific harvest of 1878, the following statements were made, regarding winter wheat. Turkey Red variety. John Peterson, residing on Section 12, Township 19, Range 5 west, his postoffice being Eden Prairie, planted twelve acres of wheat, on upland, from which he harvested fifty-seven and half bushels per acre, costing $9.30 per acre. James B. Darrah, whose postoffice address is Marquette, raised twelve acres of wheat on Section 30, Township 17, Range 4, bottom land, black loam, which was planted in the middle of September, and harvested early in June, yielding thirty-six bushels per acre. The crop was cultivated with harrow and cultivator, going over it three times. The total cost of producing the crop was $4.65 per acre. From twenty-eight to thirty-five bushels, in fact is not an unusual yield. The number of acres of spring wheat, throughout the county was: 1878, 4,251; 1879, 4,985; 1880, 2,348; 1881, 2,967; 1882, 1,492.

Broom Corn:—1874, 1,156 acres; 1875, 3,741 acres; 1876, 3,895 acres; 1877, 7,762 acres; 1878 7,152 acres; 1879, 5,146 acres; 1880, 6,039 acres; 1881, 10,891 acres; 1882, 14,337 acres.

In March, 1882, there were 90,392 bushels of old corn on hand.

The growth in the live stock business of the county has been almost as great as the agricultural development. In 1882, there were 8,421 horses in the county; 1,135 mules and asses; 5,108 milch cows; 8,787 other cattle; 5,035 sheep and 17,738 swine.

McPherson County has raised as high as 37 per cent of the total amount of broom corn grown in the State of Kansas. In 1878, 7,152 acres were under cultivation; 1879, 5,146 acres; 1880, 6,039 acres; 1881, 10,891 acres; 1882, 10,891 acres. F. G. Hawkinson had, during the season of 1878, 150 acres of broom corn, which was planted on bottom land, a sandy loam, and cultivated three times, producing three-eighths of a ton per acre; the total cost being $5.75 per acre, which includes the cost of pressing.

There are still from 5,000 to 6,000 acres of land in market, along the line of the A., T. & S. F. Road, in the southwestern part of the county, and about 15,000 in the northwestern and northern portions, near the Kansas Pacific. Raw lands sell at from $4 to $8 per acre; improved, at from $8 to $15.

Some 140 varieties of native grasses flourish, the most nutritious being the Buffalo and Grand grasses. The coarser grasses make as good hay as the best timothy, and grow luxuriently. Fully three-fourths of the country is covered with wild grasses, the domestic varieties, also, doing well. In portions of the county, the blue grass has been successfully cultivated. McPherson County is a royal stock country.

Fencing is chiefly done by growing the Osage orange, and there are probably 1,000 miles of this hedge now growing in the county, much of which has come by three, four and five years' growth, to almost a state of perfection. The white willow and honey locust are also used with success in hedging, but the orange hedge is more popular, and nowhere succeeds better than here. The herd law is in force, and as fencing is not obligatory, a majority of the farmers are really giving very little attention to fencing. Among the Swedes along the Smoky Valley, and some of the older and thriftier American farmers, however, it is not an unfrequent thing to find from one to four miles of superb hedge upon a single farm.

Also, for the year 1882, McPherson leads all the counties of Kansas in acreage and total yield of winter wheat. Her acreage is put down by the State Board of Agriculture, at 105,362, and total yield, 2,739,412 bushels. The yield per acre is twenty-six bushels. Three other counties—Butler, Dickinson and Saline—report a yield of twenty-six bushels per acre. In oats, too, McPherson leads in acreage and in total yield. The report gives 20,178 acres, with a yield of 908,010 bushels. In broom corn, too, in acreage and total yield, McPherson leads with 14,337 acres, and yield 7,168,500 pounds.

In 1879 the assessed valuation of McPherson County was $1,452,771; 1880, $2,068,882; 1881, $2,411,038; 1882, $3,263,087.14. In the county are 456,812 acres of taxable land; 6,270 unimproved town lots, and 839 improved, valued in the aggregate at $251,873. The aggregate value of personal property was $573,926; railroad property, $292,641.14. Total value of all property, 3,263,087.14.

Population of county in 1877, 9,417; 1878, 11,291; 1879, 13,196; 1880, 15,520; 1881, 16,092; 1882, 15,526. It may be remarked, parenthetically, that the figures of population, as returned by the assessors, are not considered perfectly reliable. For instance, the United States census for 1880 makes the population of the county 17,143, as against 15,520, the figures returned by the assessors. It is claimed by those best informed that there has been a continual increase in population, as there has been an advancement in every other particular.

Upon the organization of McPherson County, in 1870, it was divided into districts by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Olof Olsson. School District No. 1 commenced at the northeast corner of Section 1, Township 17, Range 1 west, and running south three and one-half miles; thence east six miles to the place of beginning. During the same y ar the southern boundary was located one and one-half miles north, leaving the district 3x6 miles. In 1872, Sections 1, 12 and 13 were attached on the west. Other alterations were made in 1874, 1876, and 1881. Districts No. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 were organized in 1870; No. 8 in 1871; No. 9 in 1871; Nos. 10 and 11 in 1872; No. 12 in 1874. The last district, No. 106, was formed in August, 1881, by J. A. Myers, present Superintendent.

From Superintendent Myers' annual report for 1882 the following figures are taken: Number of school districts in McPherson County, 106; school population, 5,742; enrollment, 3,852; average daily attendance, 2,473; number of teachers employed, 116; average monthly wages, males, $33.40; females, $28.80; amount of school bonds issued during the year, $1,820.91; value of school property, $75,000; receipts for 1882, $47,837.77; expenditures, $40,379.55; balance in treasury, $7,458.22.

McPHERSON.

In June, 1872, L. G. Skancke was Chief Clerk in the Land Office at Salina. Being informed by T. J. Wickersham, an old settler of Salina County, that a colony of Kentuckians intended to settle upon what was then known as the "McPherson Flats," he conceived the idea that it would be a good plan to lay out a town in this vicinity. After examining the maps in his office Mr. Skancke selected the west half of Section 28 and the east half of Section 29, as the center of the "Flats," and decide to locate a town there. After having made a map of the different townships, including the plat designated, for a town site he sought a few friends in Salina and laid the proposition before them. The scheme was thought plausible by them, and several of them decided to go down the following Sunday to examine the land. They hired an old stage, driven by one Mr. Huebner, and loading up with crackers, cheese and "et ceteras," they dashed out of Salina bright and early (4 a.m.) Sunday morning, June 4, 1872. Resting at Lindsborg, where they arrived at 8 o'clock a.m., they breakfasted, rested their horses, and proceeded to cross the Smoky Hill at its best ford. The party consisted of James Marlin, who sat outside with the driver, and Oscar Seitz, L. G. Skancke and R. H. Bishop, inside passengers. Besides the "eatables" and "drinkables" they were loaded also with guns and ammunition. Well, while crossing the Smoky Hill River, about one mile and a half east of Lindsborg, just as the old stage left the bank over it tipped, and men, horses, crackers, cheese, etc., were in confusion. Mr. Marlin and driver, who were on top of the coach, were dumped into the river, and escaped by floundering around a little, up to their waists in the water. The inside passengers, however, were in considerable of a predicament, for the old vehicle filled with water and Mr. Bishop had fallen on top of Mr. Skancke. Mr. Seitz crawled out of the back window of the coach, and after a serious struggle with the watery element the other two passengers effected an exit. This was the only accident that marred the harmony of the journey to McPherson. After shaking themselves and taking an inventory of their cargo to see that nothing was lost the party proceeded on to Point Creek, where their number was increased by J. R. Fisher and T. E. Simpson. Then journeying eastwardly across the hills They struck the section line, north and south, between Sections 28 and 29, township 17, Range 3, west, about six miles north of the present site of McPherson. Tying a handkerchief to the front wheel of the old coach, to mark its revolutions and compute the distance, they followed the line south and at noon found themselves in the center of the proposed town flat. They called the place McPherson Center and proceeded to organize the Town Company, with Mr. Marlin as president; Mr. Skancke, secretary; Mr. Bishop, treasurer. The next thing to be done was to make "improvements." So Mr. Skancke dug a hole where the four quarters of land met; Mr. Seitz broke ground where the McPherson House now stands (Smith's hotel); Mr. Bishop excavated his pit where Lintner & Wheeler's hardware store now is; Mr. Fisher made his "improvement" where the new Farmers and Merchant's Bank is now building; and Mr. Simpson improved a bit of the land now composing the site of Mr. Barne's store. The improvements having been completed and dinner finished J. U. Fellows, of King City, came riding up on horseback and asked the founders of McPherson what they were doing. They informed Mr. Fellows that they had just laid out a town, and that gentleman replied that he had selected one of the quarters in the plat but would take the one to the northeast, which he accordingly did. In behalf of the company and for the use and benefit of the inhabitants of the town the first filing on the site was made by James Marlin. In July learning that one Crum intended to lay out a town on Section 16, and that parties from King City also were bent upon establishing a town in the immediate vicinity, the original town company received Messrs. Woodside, Hendry, John W. Hill (president of the King City Company) and others as members of the consolidated organization. J. R. Fisher was chosen president, secretary and treasurer remaining the same as in the original company. The number of directors was increased from six to twelve. During this month (July) H. Bowker erected the first building on the town site for a store. In December the foundation of the Town Hall was laid. It was not until April, 1873, however, that a postoffice was established and C. L. Raff was appointed Postmaster.

But within two years from the time of its organization as a town, McPherson had grown so rapidly that a municipal form of government was deemed necessary. It was incorporated as a city of the third-class, March 4, 1874, upon a petition, presented by T. E. Simpson to Judge J. H. Prescott. The first election, at which about thirty ballots were cast, took place March 16, 1874, and resulted as follows: Mayor, Sol. Stephens; Councilmen, H. Bowker, C. E. Pierce, Wm. West, W. B. McCord and M. P. Simpson.

An event which created excitement throughout the county was the robbery of the County Treasury, on the night of March 1, 1875. The day before a committee had been busy in examining the books, at the office of the Deputy Treasurer, C. B. Bowker. David Stephens, the County Treasurer, was at his home on the Smoky, the county had no safe, and the funds were placed in charge of H. Bowker. The Examining Committee found that the books were not posted up to date and gave the deputy until the next morning to complete his work. The same night Mr. H. Bowker's house was entered and $3,300 in county funds was taken. On March 9, H. and C. B. Bowker were examined, charged with robbery, but the prosecution was looked upon as malicious and no evidence of a damaging character could be produced.

Since the date of its incorporation as a city of the third-class, McPherson has had five Mayors—Sol. Stephens, C. E. Pierce, Wm. McClintick, W. F. Pitzer, M. D. Grimes and E. P. Williams, the present incumbent. Present officers (1882-'83): E. P. Williams, Mayor; O. Heggelund, W. W. Murphy, F. E. Barber, J. B. Darrah and J. C. Hamilton, Councilmen; C. F. Nichols, Police Judge; John Wright, City Treasurer; D. C. Welch, City Clerk and Attorney. The city has no fire department.

McPherson is now a city of about 2,000 people, and is considered one of the most flourishing towns of Central Kansas. It is the center of trade of an unrivalled agricultural country, settled by an industrious and intelligent class of people, many of whom are of foreign birth. It has railroad communication from the north over the Salina & Southwestern road, a branch of the Kansas Pacific. The Marion & McPherson branch of the A. T. & S. F. road gives it free communication east and west. And not only is McPherson growing in a business point of view, but its educational, social and religious advantages are yearly becoming more perfect. A fair index of McPherson's prosperity is the fine school building which was completed in the winter of 1881 and 1882. It is a substantial brick edifice, two stories in height, and was erected at a cost of $12,000. The population is so rapidly increasing that it is proposed to erect another building in the southwestern part of the city. The attendance is now about 425, following being the corps of teachers: Principal, E. W. Hulse; Mr. C. H. Carter, Miss Millie Hodges, Mesdames S. L. Whitzel, H. L. Myers, D. D. Davison and Miss Lyde Chatterton. The old frame schoolhouse was built in October, 1875, B. S. Bonney being the contractor.

The postoffice was established April 1, 1873, L. Raff being the first incumbent. He was succeeded by H. Bowker, (1874), Geo. W. McClintick, (1876), Noah C. Mathews, (1877), Charles C. West, (1878), John R. Wright, (1880) and the present postmaster. In July, 1877, a money order department was opened, and up to November 20, 1882, 12,508 orders had been issued and 3,097 paid. The office is now well conducted, and will shortly be placed in the list of second-class offices.

Section 1, Chapter XIX of the Revised Statutes, provides that "when any city, shall have obtained a population exceeding two thousand inhabitants, and such facts shall have been duly ascertained and certified by the proper authorities of such city to the Governor, he shall declare, by public proclamation such city subject to the provisions of this act." Although the figures of population returned by the assessors in the spring of 1882, place the population of McPherson at only 1,561, it is claimed that the returns are defective, and consequently that an application will soon be made for its incorporation as a city of the second-class.

CHURCHES AND SOCIETIES.

The Baptist Church was organized in 1873, and a frame building erected in 1874, its size being 30x45 feet. The corner stone was laid September 30, 1874, by Elder Gunn, of Lawrence. A parsonage was built in 1878. The value of property, including parsonage and three lots, is $2,000. The pastors have been, Rev. D. McGregor, Rev. J. R. Prophet, Rev. G. W. Metton and Rev. William D. Shields. The latter is now settled over a growing organization of eighty-two members.

D. B. Hoisington, one of the earliest settlers of the county, and its first blacksmith (located at King City), gives the following additional church history: "In 1871, Mr. H. and his brother moved to McPherson County, Kan., then a frontier country. Two years afterwards (at Milton Williams' house, Lone Tree Township), they helped to organize a little society, with Elder McGregor as preacher, D B. Hoisington, deacon, and D. D. Carpenter, clerk. The members consisted of Byan Williams and wife, Milton Williams. Mrs. Carpenter, T. Carpenter and wife, Hannah C. Hoisington, Henry B. Wright and wife, Julia Hoisington, Nathan S. Hoisington and Charles Howard. Meetings were first held over a dry goods store in King City. Soon after the town of McPherson Center was located the society erected a little building, the first religious structure erected in the city."

The Congregational Church of McPherson was organized in June, 1873, by Rev. Henry Hoddle. Among its first members were H. Bowker and wife, J. Richey and wife, George Summerville and wife, C. B. Bowker and wife, Mrs. George Shepard, D. C. Hawn and wife, J. W. Hill and wife, H. A. Hendry and wife, Lucy N. Scofield, Mrs. A. Allen (deceased), Samuel Allcock and wife, Mrs. Mary E. Miller and Mrs. Alex. Petrie. Rev. Mr. Hoddle served until the spring of 1877, being succeeded by Rev. George C. Claflin, who remained until the fall of 1879. During his ministery (1878) a church building was commenced, and was completed in 1879, at a cost of $3,500. Rev. G. S. Bradley, the last settled pastor of the church, served from the fall of 1879 until the spring of 1882. At present, November, 1882, the society has no settled pastor. The membership is about sixty-five.

The Methodist Church was organized in 1874, Rev. J. A. Simpson being its first pastor. In the spring of 1875, Rev. Mr. Clark took charge of the society and remained one year. He was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Rose, who remained as pastor until 1879. Next came Rev. Mr. Martindale, who assumed the pastorate during that year, and remained until 1880. Rev. Mr. Buckner, his successor, remained six months, or until the fall of 1880, when he was succeeded by the present incumbent, Rev. D. D. Akins. The society has a membership of about 150. The church building was erected in 1880, at a cost of about $5,000. The society is one of the most flourishing in the county.

The Presbyterian Church was organized in June, 1879, by Dr. Timothy Hill, of Kansas City, with the following members: John A. Myers, Mrs. Hattie L. Myers, Joseph McDermid, John Connell, Mrs. Lorena Connell, Stella E. Myers, J. A. Flesher, James Connell, G. B. McGranahan, S. M. Bohen, F. E. Barber, Mrs. Victoria McMillan, Mrs. H. A. Barber, William Snedden, J. L. Allen, Mrs. Martha Allen and Mrs. Mary Bradbury. John A. Myers, was elected the first elder, and Rev. W. H. Honnell, served as the first pastor. He was succeeded in October, 1880, by Rev. H. M. Shockley, who remained until September, 1882, when he was followed by the present pastor, Rev. J. C. Burt. The society have no building, but expect to build during the coming spring. Membership of the society is about seventy.

Christian Church (Disciples).—The society in McPherson was organized in the winter of 1880-81, by the Rev. Mr. Sevy. The present pastor is Rev. David Witzell, and the membership about fifty. The organization own no church buildings, but have a neat parsonage in the eastern part of the county. In the county there are about 600 members of the denomination, and but one church building, which is owned by the Groveland congregation. During the coming year, however (1883), three church buildings will probably be erected. In the county are five regularly organized congregations, and as many more places where monthly or semi-monthly meetings are held. Elders Levi McCash, J. C. Sevy and David Witzell are preaching in different portions of the county. Present officers of the McPherson City organization: Elders—Geo. H. Harvey, Levi McCash, Theo. Boggs; Deacons—J. W. Stable, Ely Barnes, Jerome Bennett and L. H. Thompson.

The United Brethren Church of McPherson was organized May 14, 1882. The church building was completed in the fall of 1882, the day of the dedication being fixed for December 17, 1882. The value of the church property, including three lots, is $2,000. Rev. W. H. Myers is pastor; membership about twenty.

In December, 1881, the Society in Conway was organized, and a building erected during the fall of 1882. Mr. Myers also has charge of this society, which has a membership of seventeen. Eighteen miles southwest of McPherson is the Liberty Church, organized in July, 1879; Rev. Mr. Myers, pastor; membership fifteen. Six miles southwest is an organization—the Mount Zion Church—organized in January, 1879, presided over by Rev. R. W. Parks, and having a membership of twenty-seven. Victory Church was organized in March, 1882, and has seventeen members. Emma Valley Church formed in January, 1879, with twenty-seven members Both are in charge of Mr. Parks.

The McPherson County Agricultural Society was formed in August, 1875, the first fair being held October 11-12 of that year. The present organization dates from 1878, the first fair being held the next year. Since 1880 no fair has been held. On account of some disagreement between different sections of the county, the society is not in the most flourishing condition, although the books show a membership of 250. The grounds are located about one mile north of McPherson, and are forty acres in extent, with but few improvements. As McPherson is one of the banner agricultural counties of Kansas, however, there is little doubt of the society ultimately growing into a strong organization. Present officers: President, John Richey; Secretary, J. B. Darrah; Treasurer, J. F. Hughes.

Garfield Commandery No. 18 (K. T.), was organized in November, 1882, with ten charter members, the commandery being named in honor of the late Sir James A. Garfield. Annabil, St. B.; I. O. Day, warder; S. G. Mead, R.; O. Heggelund, treasurer. Present officers: M. L. Grimes, E. C.; J. W. Charles, Gen.; A. A. Irvin, C. G.; W. W. Murphy, P.; C. Aug. Heggelund, S. W.; A. L. McWhirk, J. W.; W. H. Annis, S. B.; O. Heggelund, St. B.; A. G. Robb, warder; I. O. Day, treasurer; S. G. Mead, recorder. Present membership, thirty-one.

McPherson Chapter, No. 48 (R. A. M.), was organized in the fall of 1879, with twelve charter members. Officers chosen under dispensation: W. W. Gamble, M. E. H. P.; I. O. Day, E. K.; J. B. Bennett, E. S.; W. W. Murphy, C. of H.; S. G. Mead, P. S.; A. L. McWhirk, R. A. C.; H. W. Murdock, G. M. 3d V.; C. J. Muller, G. M. 2d V.; O. Heggelund, G. M. 1st V.; W. Scott Bukey, secretary. Present officers: W. W. Gamble, M. E. H. P.; W. W. Murphy, E. K.; O. Heggelund, E. S.; A. L. McWhirk, C. of H.; S. G. Mead, P. S.; C. Aug. Heggelund, R. A. C.; A. A. Irvin, G. M. 3d V.; H. H. Bixby, G. M. 2d V.; N. H. Morrison, G. M. 1st V.; W. H. Annis, secretary; I. O. Day, treasurer. Present membership, fifty-four.

McPherson Lodge, No. 172, A. F. & A. M., was organized December 27, 1876, with twenty-eight charter members. Officers chosen under dispensation: W. W. Murphy, W. M.; George J. Beach, S. W.; C. E. Pierce, J. W.; Joseph Von Atchen, S. D.; H. W. Murdock, J. D.; E. C. Minton, Sec.; I. O. Day, Treas. Present officers: D. C. Welch, W. M.; W. A. Annis, S. W.; Joseph Von Atchen, J. W.; C. Aug. Heggelund, S. D.; H. H. Bixby, J. D.; W. W. Russell, Sec.; I. O. Day, Treas.; Rev. W. D. Shields, chaplain. Present membership, 160.

James B. McPherson, Post No. 87. G. A. R., was organized July 17, 1882, with 100 members. Present officers: M. P. Simpson, post commander; Fred Jackson, S. V. C.; D. B. Jeffers, J. V. C.; J. Q. Barnes, Q. M.; D. D. Akins, chaplain; George E. Harvey, surgeon; A. F. Waugh, officer of day; George W. Freelove, officer of guard; John R. Wright, adjutant; John F. Hughes, sergeant major; J. A. Flesher, Q. M. sergeant.

Red Cross Lodge, No. 26, K. of P., was organized in May, 1880. Present officers (November, 1882): James B. Darrah, P. C.; R. Whitmer, C. C.; C. A. Waller, V. C; William C. Rathbun, prelate; Joseph R. Fisher, M. of F.; Gust. Carlander, M. of E.; John F. Hughes, M. at A.; B. A. Allison, K. of R. and S.; Wallace Gleason, I. G.; J. W. Stabler, O. G. Number of members twenty-three.

Centennial Lodge, I. O. O. F., was organized July 4, 1876. The first officers were installed in August. Present officers: Isaac Creek, N. G.; D. L. Burgauer, V. G.; W. J. Iliff, Sec.; John F. Hughes, Treas. The lodge has a membership of about seventy.

Knights of Honor, Hesperian Lodge No. 1722, was organized in August, 1880. Present officers: J. B. Darrah, dictator; C. E. Dunn, V. D.; H. E. Pyle, A. D.; F. E. Barber, P. D.; Frank Vandeventer, reporter; J. A. Myers, Fin. Rep.; Joshua Leonard, Treas.; J. R. Wright, chaplain; D. B. Jeffers, guide. Membership about 150.

THE PRESS AND OTHER BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The first paper in McPherson and the county was started by Yale Brothers, in November, 1872. It was called the McPherson Messenger, and was Republican in politics. In December, 1873, the paper was purchased by Clark and McClintick, and in May, 1874, George W. McClintick became sole editor and proprietor. He changed the name of the paper to the McPherson Independent, which remained a Republican journal.

Upon this was founded the McPherson Republican, the first number of which was issued by Mead & Presbrey, December 4, 1879. It was thus published until June of that year, when H. E. Watkins bought a half interest in the establishment. In June, 1881, H. M. Conklin purchased Mr. Watkin's interest, and the Republican has since been published under the firm name, Mead & Conklin—S. G. Mead editor; H. M. Conklin, business manager. The Republican is an 8 column folio, 26x40, home print, its name implying its politics. S. G. Mead is a veteran editor. He began the publication of the McPherson Republican in 1879. He is an enterprising, able editor, and ranks among the most successful journalists of the State.

H. M. Conklin, business manager of the McPherson Republican, came from Washington County, Pa., about four years ago. He is a practical newspaper man, industrious and promising.

The McPherson Leader (Greenback), was published in the spring of 1880. Its first number being issued in March by G. W. McClintick. It was discontinued in July, 1881.

The Comet, Independent Republican in politics, was started in July, 1881, by Clark & Hall. In January, 1882, its name was changed to the Industrial Liberator (Greenback). This was published by Sheldon & Hall until August 30. On the 1st of September, 1882, the journal became known as the McPherson Independent, G. W. McClintick, editor and proprietor. It is independent in politics, and has a good local and county circulation.

The McPherson Freeman was established in McPherson as a Republican paper, August 1, 1878. Messrs. Clark & McCray, proprietors. On the first of February, 1879, D. O. McCray sold his interest to H. B. Kelly. Messrs. Clark & Kelly published the paper until January 1, 1881, when A. L. Clark sold his interest to Mr. Kelly, who became, as he is now, sole editor and proprietor.

The Farmers' and Merchant's Bank was chartered March 21, 1882, and commenced business on the 27th. Capital stock, $30,000; deposits, $50,000. Officers, W. J. Bell, Pres.; A. L. McWhirk, cashier.

The Central Bank of McPherson, C. G. Clarke, proprietor, was organized April 22, 1879. It remained under the management of Clarke & McWhirk until January, 1880, when Mr. Clarke became sole proprietor.

The McPherson Bank was organized in March, 1878, by Messrs. Williams & Cottingham, its present proprietors. Capital, $30,000. The firm own their bank building and are prospering.

McPherson Mills were built in the spring of 1880. They are three stories in height, 36x40 feet, and the capacity of the manufactory is 100 barrels of flour per day. The proprietors are Colburn & Hamilton. They operate an elevator in connection with the mills. Value of property, $18,000.

The McPherson Elevator was erected in 1879 at a cost of $13,000. H. Hinckson & Co., proprietors. The size of the building is 30x62 feet, and has a storage capacity of 30,000 bushels.

The "Little Giant" Elevator was erected in the fall of 1879. Ed. Berg & Co., proprietors. Capacity, 10,000 bushel; value of property, $4,000.

D. W. Heath & Co., also operate an elevator—the "People's"—which was built in September, 1881. Capacity, 20,000 bushels; value of property, $9,000.

The fourth elevator is operated by W. C. Putt.

McPherson has several good hotels and boarding houses. The Merchant's and the Commercial hotels lead the list. Benjamin Robinson took charge of the Merchant's Hotel in May, 1881. It contains thirty-two rooms and is well patronized by the traveling public. The Commercial House was opened in July, 1882, by J. S. Keller, its present manager and proprietor. It contains twenty-two rooms; size of building, 50x125 feet, and is owned by the estate of H. F. Graper.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

ALFRED ARDEN ARNOTT was born at Milan, Erie Co., Ohio, April 3, 1842. His father, John G. Arnott, was born and raised near Albany, N. Y., and at an early age moved to Lorain County, Ohio, where he married Mary C. Ingersoll, to whom there was born two sons and two daughters, the subject of this sketch being the oldest. The oldest daughter, Josephine Emma, died at an early age, leaving three children—Alfred, Marshall, and Eunice. His parents moved to Chicago, Ill., in the fall of 1842, where they remained till the next spring, when they moved onto a farm within a few miles of Waukegan, Ill., where they lived some six years, during which time the other children were born. In 1850 the family moved to Boone County, where they cleared up and improved a farm of 200 acres, which was their home till 1870. Alfred was married October 28, 1868, to Adelia Berenice Rood, a young lady who had distinguished herself as a teacher in the schools of that county. On February 22, 1870, he and his wife started for Topeka, Kan, where he had bought land for the purpose of farming, but owing to a financial blunder at this time, was unable to proceed, and gave it up, settling down in Topeka, where he engaged in any thing he could get to do. Was elected Constable of the city in 1874, also the next three succeeding elections, during which time he served as Deputy Sheriff also. In the spring of 1878 he engaged in his present business, agricultural implements and machinery, at Salina, Kan., with G. C. Prescott (brother of the present District Judge), which partnership ceased with the close of that year's business, and the next year he opened in the same business at Sterling and McPherson, Kan The Sterling branch house was discontinued in July, 1880, in consequence of a fire at that place, by which Mr. Arnott suffered a heavy loss, since which time he has continued the old business at McPherson, where he has been very successful. He has for three years been chairman of the Greenback County Central Committee, and received the nomination for representative in the Eighty-seventh District, in the Greenback Convention, and was afterwards endorsed by the People's party, and, in November, 1882, was elected by thirty majority over his competitor, who was an old member. He takes a just pride in his record in the Legislature of 1883, and feels that it is endorsed almost unanimously by his constituents, and that they have no regrets. His educational advantages, while young, were limited to the winter term of a country district school, the balance of the year being spent at work upon the farm, with the exception of two terms at the high school, and two terms at the college in Beloit, Wis. Mr. Arnott has been something of a traveler, having sailed from New Bedford, Mass., June, 1860,

LINDSBORG.

As has been previously stated, the town of Lindsborg was located by the Chicago Swedish colony in 1868. Among the one hundred members who composed the colony the leading spirits were John Ferne, afterwards County Commissioner; C. Carlson and J. O. Lindh. N. P. Swenson was the first settler in the township, locating just west of the present town, where he started a blacksmith shop. The first building erected upon the town site was the company's house, in which religious services were held and the county's business transacted. Some time before the colony had erected a small stone building, about four miles north of Lindsborg, in Saline County. Here John Ferne lived before he came to this county, and kept the company's books. In 1870 he located about two and a half miles northeast of town. But the first house erected on the town site was built by Neils Olson, now of New Gottland, in 1869. The same year J. H. Johnson opened the first store, about a mile west of Lindsborg, where he kept a postoffice. The Swedish Merchant's Association bought out Mr. Johnson, removed the building to Lindsborg, and established the first store and postoffice here in the spring of 1870. In May, 1871, C. Carlson, agent for the First Swedish Agricultural Society, surveyed the town site. The Lindsborg of to-day is situated in the northern part of McPherson County, on the Salina & Southwestern Railroad. It is located in the valley of the Smoky Hill River, twenty miles south of Salina, on Section 17, Township 17, Range 3 west. Next to McPherson, it is the most flourishing point in the county, and is growing quite rapidly. The postoffice in Lindsborg was established in 1869, J. H. Johnson being the first Postmaster. He was succeeded by John Ferne. W. J. Henry, the present incumbent, was appointed in 1873.

Lindsborg was incorporated as a city July 8, 1879, John A. Swensson being its first Mayor. The officials for 1882 are as follows: Mayor, W. J. Henry; Council, D. Johnson, J. Christian, Wm. Schwensen, C. P. Gunnerson and A. Lincoln. The city has no fire department.

Lindsborg is situated on the Salina and Southwestern road in the northern part of the county and in the midst of a splendid farming region. The Smoky Hill River passes through the city and furnishes good water power. The population of the place is now about 600. It contains a water power and a steam flour mill, three elevators, one bank, two hotels, three newspapers, and a number of the largest general stores in the county. It has also one of the best district schools in this section of the State. District No. 3 completed the fine two-story brick structure, which is now occupied, in the fall of 1882, at a cost of about $6,000. The dimensions of the building on the ground are 32x54 feet. E. C. Minton, who has been principal of the school for three years, is assisted by Miss Emma Johnson and Miss M. Milam. The attendance is about 150. Although the school is now divided into but three departments—the primary, intermediate and grammar—it is intended soon to establish a high school.

Another educational element which is working for the good of Lindsborg is the Bethany Academy, which is controlled by the Smoky Hill District of the Swedish Lutheran Kansas Conference. It was first opened in October, 1881, with thirty pupils; it now has eighty. The land upon which the school building stands was donated by the Swedish Lutheran Bethany Church of Lindsborg. The instruction is mostly in English, one aim, besides that of general educational development, being to fit students for the Swedish College at Rock Island, Ill. Board of Directors: Rev. C. A. Swensson (president), J. Seleen, A. W. Dahlsten, P. M. Sannquist, John A. Swensson, A. Lincoln, C. J. Stormquist and J. Thorstenberg. Faculty: Rev. C. A. Swensson, J. A. Udden, E. Nelander. C. G. Norrman; J. Hasselquist, instructor of gymnastics; Luther Swensson, instructor of instrumental music.

Lindsborg is an important grain point, as witness its three elevators and two mills. The steam mill was erected in the winter of 1881-2. The size of the main building is 26x36 feet, exclusive of the engine and boiler house, and a 20x40 feet warehouse. The mill, which is owned and operated by S. P. Carlion, is doing a large business, the entire value of the property being about $12,000. The water power mill of Bergsten & Johnson went into operation in the summer of 1882. The size of the main building is 36x40 feet. This, with outbuilding and land, is valued at $8,000. The firm confine themselves to custom work.

Wickham & Co.'s elevator was erected in the summer of 1879, at a cost of $6,000, and has a capacity of 12,000 bushels. The headquarters of the firm are in Salina.

In the summer of 1880 was erected the Farmer's Shipping Elevator, at a cost of $3,000. It has a capacity of 6,000 bushels.

Anderson & Ferlin, who operate the largest of the three elevators, erected their building in 1879 at a cost of $6,000. It has a capacity of 30,000 bushels, dimensions of the building, 48x48 feet.

By September, 1882, the business of this place had grown so materially that O. Heggelund, of McPherson City, established a bank here, of which he is now president—John A. Swenson, cashier. The deposits average $25,000; subscribed capital, $50,000, and paid-up capital, $12,500.

The press of Lindsborg is represented by the Localist, the Smoky Hill News, and Kansas Posten.

The Lindsborg Localist was established April 19, 1879, by Wm. McClintick. After operating it about three months the paper came into the possession of Walter Younger, and six months after Mr. Younger assumed control he was bought out by J. H. Hyde. In May, 1880, John McPhail, the present editor, bought the establishment. It is now being published by D. Sargent, under a lease. The Localist is a seven-column folio. Republican in politics.

The Smoky Valley News was established September 21, 1881, by A. Ringwald, its present editor and proprietor. In October, 1882, the form of the paper was changed from a seven-column folio to an eight-column folio, its present form. The News is Republican in politics. Mr. Ringwald came from Ottawa to this county, when a young boy, in 1867, and learned his trade in Lindsborg.

The Kansas Posten, the only Swedish paper published in the State, was established in October, 1882. Its editors are professors in the Bethany Academy, although the journal is not designed as a sectarian organ. J. A. Udden, E. Nelander and C. A. Swensson conduct the journal.

There are four religious organizations in Lindsborg—the Swedish Lutheran, the Swedish Methodist, the Swedish Mission, and the Methodist Episcopal churches.

The Swedish Lutheran (Bethany Church) was organized in 1869, by Prof. O. Olsson, the first County Superintendent of Schools. In 1874, the first portion of the present commodious and imposing stone structure was erected, and an addition made in 1880-'81. As it stands, the building presents a fine appearance, being composed of brown sandstone quarried from the bluffs near the city. Its size is 100x41 feet, with a spire 118 feet high. A large and elegant parsonage has been built, also. The entire value of the church property is about $12,000. Prof. Olsson remained in charge of the church until 1877, when, after a vacancy of two years, he was succeeded by Rev. C. A. Swensson, the present pastor. The church has a membership of 800; communicants, 506. It is the largest organization of the kind in the State. In connection with the church, there is also maintained flourishing Sunday and parochial schools, the latter being conducted in the summer months.

The Free Mount Lutheran was organized in 1869, by the Rev. A. W. Dahlsten. In 1881 a very fine brick church, one of the finest country churches in the State, was erected, at a cost of $18,000. It has a spire of 125 feet. The dimensions of the building are 84x44 feet. The society has a membership of 435; communicants, 492. Rev. J. Seleen, pastor of the church, is also president of the conference.

The New Gottland Lutheran Church was organized in 1872, and a frame church erected in 1876. Present membership, 480; communicants, 250. The first and present pastor is Rev. P. M. Sonquest.

The Elmsborg Lutheran Church was organized in 1880. The society has no building. It has a membership of 109; communicants, 54; pastor, Rev. N. Nordling.

The Swedish Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in Tatum schoolhouse, Saline County, November, 1871, with nine members, all emigrants from the Eastern States. The organization was effected with Rev. S. B. Newman, presiding elder, and Rev. Nels Peterson, pastor. The first trustees were Isaka Agrilius, Takarias Gabrielson, John N. Anderson, J. Aldrin, David Blomberg. A church and good parsonage was built in Lindsborg in 1875, the first service in the new church being on Christmas morning, 1876. The church building was 26x32, and finely furnished and finished. It was destroyed by fire, December 18, 1879, no insurance. The next day a subscription was started for a new church edifice, and on the 14th of August, 1881, a fine brick church was dedicated by Rev. Y. A. Gabrielson, presiding elder, O. J. Swan being the pastor. The new church is 30x42, neatly finished, with Gothic windows, carpets, etc. It is valued at $2,000, and is free of debt. The congregation numbers sixty-one members, and belongs to the Northwest Swedish Conference. The following pastors have had charge of the congregation: Rev. Nels Peterson, 1871 to 1875; Rev. Jonas Engstrom, 1875 to 1876; Rev. C. N. Wennersten, 1876 to 1877; Rev. A. G. Engstrom, 1877 to 1880; Rev. Oscar Svan, 1880 to 1881; Rev. P. J. Berg, 1881 to present time.

The Swedish Mission Church was organized in 1875, Rev. Mr. Blom being the first pastor. A building was erected the same year, about four miles northeast of town. In July, 1879, the large brick edifice in which the society worship in Lindsborg, was erected at a cost of $5,000. A parsonage was also built. Services are still held in the old church building. The membership of the Lindsborg organization consists of one hundred families. Rev. K. Erixon, their last pastor, remained in charge of the society two years.

Although itinerant services had been held for some time previous, the Methodist Episcopal Church was not organized until July, 1879 by the Rev. Mr. Matthews. He was succeeded by Rev. J. M. Archer, the present incumbent, in March, 1881. The congregation worship in the Swedish Methodist Church, having a membership of about twenty.

They are members of the German Reform Church of Ohio. Mr. Abraham Bair, the father, died in Will County, Ill., in 1862.

NEOSHO COUNTY.

LOCATION AND NATURAL FEATURES.

NEOSHO County is situated in the second tier of counties from Missouri, and also from the Indian Territory. It is bounded on the north by Allen County, on the east by Bourbon and Crawford, on the south by Labette, and on the west by Wilson County. By the Bogus Laws, the territory now included within the limits of Neosho County was part of Dorn County, as explained in the history of Labette County; Dorn County extending northward about three-fourths of a mile from the township line between townships twenty-seven and twenty-eight, and southward to the Indian Territory—embracing the "Osage ceded lands." The name Dorn was changed to "Neosho," by the Legislature, June 3, 1861, and the county was organized by proclamation of Governor Carney, November 20, 1864.

On the 26th of February, 1866, an act was approved which established the boundaries of the county as "Commencing at a point on the north line of the Osage lands, as established by George C. VanZandt, in the year 1859, to correspond with the southeast corner of Allen County; thence run due south to the south line of the State; thence due west twenty-four miles; thence due north to the said north line of the Osage lands; thence east along said line twenty-four miles to the place of beginning."

By an act, approved February 7, 1867, the boundaries were changed and established as follows: "Commencing at a point on the north line of the Osage lands corresponding with the southeast corner of Allen County; thence due south to the northeast corner of Labette County; thence due west on the north line of Labette County twenty-four miles to the northwest corner of said Labette County; thence due north to the said north line of the Osage lands; thence east along said line twenty-four miles to the place of beginning."

On the 26th of February, 1867, the Treasurer of Neosho County was forbidden by the Legislature to collect of the taxes levied upon property in that part of Neosho County called Labette County more than that levied for State purposes.

Most of the county is within the valley of the Neosho River, which flows from northwest to southeast through it. This valley is, however, mostly upland, with the exception of its own immediate banks, and the comparatively narrow valleys of its immediate tributaries. About twenty per cent. of the surface of the county is properly termed bottom land, the balance, eighty per cent., being upland. Weibly Bluff, about three miles northwest of Erie, is about eighty feet high, and Ditmas Bluff, in Tioga Township, is about seventy-five feet high. The latter is of earth, while the former is rock. The highest land in the county is in Shiloh Township, and does not exceed 150 feet in height above the level of the Neosho River.

The soil of the county varies from a few inches to thirty feet in thickness. About one-half of the county is denominated "black limestone" soil, one-third, "mulatto," and the remaining one-sixth "white ash" soil. The name "black limestone" is applied to black soil underlaid with and containing limestone; the name "mulatto" to that containing also sandstone, and "white ash" to that containing fine sand which gives to it a white appearance. All portions of the county are for the most part fertile and produce excellent crops of all the cereals. Coal underlies about ten per cent. of the area of the county, and is found mostly in Chetopa Township near Thayer. The vein is about eighteen inches thick, and the coal is of good quality. The largest amount mined in a single year (1876) is about 100,000 tons.

The native forests are found along the streams. The belts average about one-half a mile in width, and contain the cottonwood, elm, hickory, hackberry, maple, oak, pecan and walnut. There are numerous small groves of cultivated timber, but much remains to be done in this direction.

The Neosho is the principal river. It enters the county near the northwest corner, and after following a quite serpentine course, leaves the county about two miles west of its southeast corner. The total length of the river within the county is forty miles. Its width during most of the year is 100 feet, and average depth six feet. Previous to the construction of railroads the question of its navigability was one of considerable interest to the people, and also even in later years. In 1877, Mr. Graverock constructed a boat named the "Farragut," which traversed the river for a distance of eight miles, and was capable of carrying 100 tons.

The principal tributaries of the Neosho from the east are Hickory, Flat Rock, Four Mile, Canville, Big Creek and Beach's Creek, all running in a southwesterly direction; and from the west, Village, Turkey, Crooked, Rock, and Augustus or Ogee's Creek, all running east or southeast. In the southern part of the county are found Labette Creek and numerous branches, flowing southward, and in the west Chetopa Creek flows west into Wilson County. On account of the generally level surface of the county, springs are not numerous, but good well water is obtainable at depths varying from ten to forty feet.

THE OSAGE INDIANS.

Neosho County is situated in the northern part of the Osage ceded lands. These ceded lands lie immediately west of the Cherokee Neutral Lands and are in extent fifty miles from north to south, and thirty miles from east to west. The total Osage Reservation, extending westward from said Neutral Lands 375 miles, was granted by treaty to said Indians, June 2, 1825. It was some time during this year that the body of the tribe moved on to their new reservation. But the Osages had, in 1820, conferred with the Rt. Rev. De Bourg, Roman Catholic Bishop of New Orleans, who was then visiting in Missouri, with reference to the appointment of a missionary to visit their towns and teach them the mysteries of religion. Rev. De Bourg appointed as missionary Rev. Charles De La Croix, who visited Western Missouri and what is now Eastern Kansas, for the purpose of organizing churches among the Osages. In May, 1822, he reached the point in Neosho County now known as Osage Mission, and administered the rite of baptism to two Indians, named James and Francis Choteau, the first persons who were baptized within the present limits of the State. Soon afterwards, Rev. La Croix returned to Missouri, where, exhausted by his labors and exposure, he was removed by death.

Rev. La Croix was succeeded by Rev. Charles Van Quickenborn, who visited many of the Osage towns, and was indefatigable in his efforts to provide education for their youth. In 1824 he established the first manual labor school that existed among them, collecting the boys at the house of St. Stanislaus, near the town of Florisant, St. Louis Co., Mo., and the girls at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, in St. Charles County. But the next year, a new treaty having been concluded between the United States and the Osages, they removed to their new reservation, and as a consequence, Van Quickenborn's manual labor school came prematurely to an end. He, however, continued to visit them in their new home, and to care for them for a number of years.

Upon arriving in the vicinity of the present town of Walnut, which was for the most part destitute of water and timber, one of the chiefs of the Nation, sent forward a deputation to select a location suitable for their camp. This deputation soon discovered a long stretch of timber, and upon entering it came to a beautiful, clear stream of water, the gravelly bottom of which could be distinctly seen. Highly pleased with their discovery they returned to their Chief, reported their success, and guided their comrades to the river. Those who arrived first at the river rode into it and let their horses drink, and, as a consequence, when the Chief arrived a few moments later, the water was quite the opposite of "beautiful and clear." He thereupon gently rallied the discoverers of the river upon the subject, and from the circumstance of the roiling of the water, named the river Ne-o-sho, (Ne, water, o-sho, made muddy—water that has been made muddy.

For a year or two Van Quickenborn remained for the most of the time, with the Osages that were at Harmony Mission, on the Marais des Cygnes, near Pappinsville, in Missouri, but in 1827, he came to those on the Neosho, where they were forming permanent settlements. About this time the Osage Nation was divided into two divisions—one on the Neosho, the other on the Verdigris. The Indian towns on the Verdigris extended from the mouth of Pumpkin Creek to that of Chetopa Creek, while those on the Neosho extended from the mouth of Labette Creek to that of Owl Creek. Each division had a Chief, the principal Chief being that over the Neosho division.

In 1828, Van Quickenborn, performed a marriage ceremony, the parties united being Francis Daybeau, a half-breed, and an Osage woman named Mary. This was the first marriage solemnized in the territory now included in the State of Kansas. Van Quickenborn died in 1828.

In 1837, the first trading posts were established among the Osages, by Edward Choteau, Gerald Pappin and John Mathews, the latter locating near White Hair's village, now Oswego, Labette County. A half-breed settlement was established between Canville and Flat Rock Creek. The former creek was named after A. B. Canville who came to the Osages in 1844, married in 1845, and settled on Canville Creek in 1847.

From 1829 to 1847 various Fathers of the Catholic Church visited the Osages, but they, desiring a missionary permanently settled among them, requested Rt. Rev. Peter R. Kendrick, Bishop of St. Louis, to make an appointment for them. Consequently the Bishop appointed Rev. Father John Schoenmakers, S. J., Superior of the Mission. Father S. arrived on the 29th of April, 1847, and took possession of two buildings then in process of erection by the Indian Department. Father Schoenmakers was accompanied by Fathers John J. Bax and Paul Ponziglione, who visited the Osage villages and urged upon them the importance of civilization and Christianity. On the 10th of May, a small number of Osage children were collected, and a manual labor school established. The two buildings, which were now completed, were designed—one for the education of Indian boys, the other for the education of Indian girls. On the 5th of October, 1847, several sisters of Lorette arrived at the Mission from Kentucky, for the purpose of educating Indian girls; a convent was established, which, with the school for boys is still flourishing. As the numbers of scholars increased, other and larger buildings were erected for their accommodation. The principal school buildings are now two large, three-story stone structures, besides which there are two large three-story dwellings—one for the boys, the other for the girls. The church that was first erected, a frame building, 30x93 feet in size, is now being superseded by a magnificent stone church, 75x175 feet in size, and which, when completed, will have cost about $75,000. The spire of this church will be 110 feet high.

These schools were always popular among the Indians until their removal from the Reservation, which occurred in 1865, and they have even since then been attended by Indian children to considerable extent. The highest number in attendance during any one year was 236, and for the ten years from 1855 to 1865, the average annual attendance was 150.

During the War of the Rebellion the Osages suffered much from depredations of various kinds. Their newly built houses were torn down, their crops destroyed, their hogs and cattle stolen, and, becoming discouraged with their prospects, they ceded to the United States Government a strip off the east end of their reservation, fifty by thirty miles in extent, containing 960 000 acres for $300,000; the money to be deposited in the Treasury of the United States, and to draw five per cent. interest, the interest to be paid to them semi-annually in money, clothing, provisions or such articles of utility as the Secretary of the Interior might from time to time direct. At the same time they also transferred in trust to the Government to be sold for their benefit a strip off the north of the balance of their reservation, twenty miles in width from north to south and extending to the western limits of their reservation. The reservation thus reduced was called the "Diminished Osage Reserve," and was sold to the Government in 1870, and the Osages went to a new reservation in the Indian Territory. After the close of the war, southeastern Kansas was rapidly settled up, and the necessity for educational facilities became more and more urgent. The Osage Mission Manual Labor Schools were the central point of settlement, and it was deemed expedient by the conductors of the schools to provide for the admission of white children. Accordingly, on the 7th of May, 1870, the school for boys was chartered under the name and title of "St. Francis Institute," with the view of making it a high school; and the school for girls was chartered on the 19th of September, 1870, under the name of "St. Ann's Academy." This school is conducted by the Sisters of Loretto. Bridget Hayden has been in charge of the school for girls ever since its establishment, October 5, 1847, a period of thirty-five years. Fathers Schoenmakers and Ponziglione, still live at the Mission, and are among the very oldest settlers in Kansas. With them now are associated three other priests of the Jesuit order, viz: Fathers Kuleman, Condon and Hagan.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

The treaty by which the Osages ceded the "Ceded Lands" to the United States was concluded September 29, 1865, and proclaimed January 21, 1867. Before the former date, in some of the townships as now organized, quite a number of settlers had taken claims, in anticipation of the removal of the Indians. So far as ascertainable the following named persons were the first, or among the first, in the various townships: Dr. W. W. Hill settled in Grant Township in 1851, and was killed in his own door-yard by a mob, November 1, 1866. In 1858, Levi Hadden settled in this township, and in 1859, Simeon W. and James A. Hadden, and Solomon Markham and his four sons.

Big Creek Township was settled in 1859 by J. L. Fletcher, S. Barbee, H. Schooley, and Thomas Hadden; and Tioga Township, in the same year, by Darius Rodgers, Benjamin M. Smith, Thomas Jackson, and S. E. Beach.

Canville Township was settled by T. R. Peters in 1859; the next settlers being M. Kitterman in 1864, and William Box, David Lowery and J. C. Comstock in 1865. Walnut Grove Township was settled in 1865 by E J. Pierce and W. I. Brewer; Centerville in 1865 by Reuben Lake, Joseph Cummings, Henry and John Wikle, and John Blair. Chetopa Township in 1864 by George T. Shepherd and A. A. Ashlock, and by M. J. Salter and John Post in 1865; Ladore in 1865 by I. N. Roach and family, W. C. Dickerson and S. Rosa; Lincoln in the same year by M. L. and Frank McCashu, Dr. Dement, M. A. Patterson and J. L. Evans; Erie also by I. M. Allen, John Johnson, D. T. Mitchell, P. Walters, R. Leppo, E. F. Williams, P. McCarthy and John C. Weibley, and in 1866 by Capt. John Berry, J. A. Wells, A. H. Childs, James Hoagland, A. H. Roe, J. Naff and D. W. Bray.

First Things.—The first marriage has already been mentioned as having occurred in 1828. Some authorities give it as late as 1830, but as Van Quickenborn, the officiating priest, died in 1828, it seems safe to place the date of the marriage as early at least as some time in that year. The first postoffice was at the Catholic (Osage) Mission in 1851. The first Protestant sermon on the Osage ceded lands was preached by Rev. Mr. Woodward in 1860. The first bills allowed by the County Commissioners was that of Wiley Evans for assessing the county, sixteen days at $2 per day. The first deed now found upon the records of the county was one bearing date December 28, 1866, for sixty-two acres of land, in the southeast quarter of Section 35, Township 28, Range 21; the grantors were John and Electy Ann Pisell, and the grantee Thomas H. Pierce. The first deed on record of land lying within the present limits of the county was dated May 27, 1867. The grantors were Thomas and Adeline Mosier and the grantee Wesley Hobson. Hobson's choice was the north half of the southeast quarter of Section 16, Township 29, Range 20. The first marriage on record in the county was that of Hezekiah Davis to Miss Frances M. Stroud, which was solemnized September 4, 1865. The first political convention held in Neosho County was at Trotter's Ford in September, 1866. It was a Republican convention, with B. J. Waters for chairman. This was before Labette County was organized, but all nominees of the convention were selected from what is now Neosho County. J. A. Wells was nominated for Probate Judge, Joel Barnhart for County Assessor and M. C. Wright for Representative; but Darius Rodgers, running as an independent candidate, was elected. S. R. Nugent was elected delegate to the State Convention and instructed to vote for S. J. Crawford for Governor.

The first term of the District Court was held at Old Erie in September, 1867. Hon. W. A. Spriggs, of Garnett, was presiding Judge. T. C. Cory was appointed by Judge Spriggs County Attorney, and acted in that capacity throughout the term. T. J. Brewer was Clerk of the Court, and the lawyers in attendance from Neosho County were J. C. Carpenter, B. P. Ayers, Tom. Bridgens and C. F. Hutchings.

The first newspaper published in Neosho County was the Neosho Valley Eagle. This paper was started at Jacksonville, May 2, 1868, by B. K. Land, and moved to Erie October 24, 1868. March 22, 1869, it was purchased by Kimball & Burton, enlarged from a six to an eight column folio, and the name changed to the Dispatch. J. A. Trenchard became editor December 9, 1870. J. A. Wells became editor of the paper February 24, 1871, and changed the name to the Erie Ishmaelite. The publication of the paper was suspended June 2, 1871, the material of the office being purchased and removed to the Osage Mission by J. H. Scott and H. T. Perry, and used by them in publishing the Neosho County Journal.

The first murder of a white man by a white man was that of J. H. Beck by man named Yearsley at Osage City, in 1868. Yearsley was never brought to punishment. The greatest crime ever committed in the county was by a gang of seven men at Ladore on the night of May 10, 1870. The gang took possession of the town, robbed several of the citizens, fired their revolvers at others, and then went to the house of I. N. Roach, and beat him with clubs and revolvers until they supposed him dead; when they left him senseless and covered with blood. They then took out two young daughters, and after stationing guards to prevent interference, repeatedly outraged their persons. During the commission of the crime a quarrel arose among them, and one of them shot a comrade dead. In the morning the alarm was given and a party was organized which pursued and captured six of the fiends, and hanged five of them to a hackberry tree near Labette Creek, all of whom with the one that was shot were buried in one grave. The one who was not hanged was named Peter Kelly, the one shot, Robert Wright, and the five hanged were William Ryan, Patrick Starr, Patsey Riley, Richard Pitkin and Alexander Mathews. About three hundred of the best citizens of the county were engaged in or were present at the lynching.

There has been but one other case of lynching in the county. This was the case of a man who had strangled his wife with his own hands.

THE SETTLERS AND THE RAILROADS.

After the "Canville Treaty," of September 29, 1865, so called because it was concluded at the trading post of A. B. Canville, the most important event in the history of Neosho County was the contest between the settlers and the railroad companies, over the title to certain lands contiguous to their lines of road. The lands, the title to which was in controversy, lay within the tract known as the "Osage Ceded Lands." These lands had been reserved to the Great and Little Osages by the treaty of June 2, 1825, in the following language:

"Within the limits of the country above ceded and relinquished, there shall be reserved to and for the Great and Little Osage Tribe or Nation aforesaid, so long as they may choose to occupy the same, the following described tract of land," etc., etc. This tract of land has been previously described in this sketch.

The settlers maintained the position that under this treaty, the Government of the United States had no authority to make grants to any railroad company of any portion of the said reservation, so long as the Osages chose to occupy the same, which they did continue to do until the conclusion of the treaty of September 29, 1865, by which the tract thirty by fifty miles off the east end of their reservation was ceded to the United States, and henceforth was known as the "Ceded Lands."

The Leavenworth, Lawrence & Galveston Railroad Company insisted on the claim that it was entitled to every alternate section of land designated by odd numbers for ten miles in width on each side of its road from Lawrence, Kansas, to the southern line of the State, the road being projected through the Ceded Lands. This claim was based on an act of Congress passed March 3, 1863, two years and six months before the conclusion of the "Canville Treaty," and nearly four years before this treaty was proclaimed, January 21, 1867.

This act of Congress of March 3, 1863, made grants of lands to the State of Kansas, to aid in the construction of certain railroads and telegraphs in that State. The railroads named in the act were, first, a railroad and telegraph from the city of Leavenworth, by way of the town of Lawrence, and via the Ohio City Crossing (Ottawa) of the Osage (Marais des Cygnes) River, to the southern line of the State in the direction of Galveston Bay, in Texas, with a branch from Lawrence by the valley of Wakarusa River, to the point on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad where said road intersects the Neosho River. Second, of a railroad from the city of Atchison, via Topeka, to the western line of the State, in the direction of Fort Union and Santa Fe, New Mexico, with a branch from which this last-named road crossed the Neosho, down said Neosho valley to the point where the first-named road enters the said Neosho valley; the grant being, for each of these roads and their branches, every alternate section of land, designated by odd numbers, for ten sections in width on each side of said road and each of its branches.

The Legislature of Kansas accepted this grant, and passed an act making the grants to the railroads mentioned, February 9, 1864, as contemplated in the act of Congress of March 3, 1863, thus showing that they considered the grant by Congress a valid one.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad Company claimed under an act granting lands to the State of Kansas, to aid in the construction of a southern branch of the Union Pacific Railway and telegraph from Fort Riley, Kan., to Fort Smith, Ark., approved by the President of the United States, July 26, 1866.

The claims of both railroad companies were denied by Hon. Joseph S. Wilson, Commissioner of the General Land Office at different times, notably under date of April 26, 1867, and May 17, 1867. In his communication of the former date, to H. C. Whitney, attorney for the L. L. & G. R. R. Company Commissioner Wilson said:

"With reference to the right of the company to the odd sections within the limits of the land ceded by the Osage Indians to the United States, under treaty proclaimed January 21, 1867, I would state that the lands granted and sold to the United States by the first article of the treaty, are to be disposed of 'on the most advantageous terms for cash, and after reimbursing the United States the cost of survey and sale, and the sum of $300,000, placed to the credit of said Indians, the remaining proceeds of sale shall be placed to the credit of the civilization fund.' Hence, by the stipulation of the treaty, the railroad can acquire no rights whatever to the lands."

Under the fourth article of the "Canville Treaty," which permitted citizens of the United States, who were heads of families, to purchase each a quarter section, one hundred and forty-four settlers, bought twenty-two thousand, three hundred and fifteen acres of land, paying therefore, $27,894. This was within one year from the conclusion of the treaty. From this time forward for a number of years, there was continual excitement over this question. O. H. Browning, Secretary of the Interior, reversed the just and humane decision of Commissioner Wilson, and immediately thereafter the lands were withdrawn from sale, and the settlers became very much excited and alarmed lest they, many of whom had fought and suffered for the perpetuity of the Government, should now be robbed of their homes, or be compelled to purchase them of the railroad companies at double or treble prices.

Meetings were held at various points in the county for the purpose of devising means to prevent, if possible, the railroads from obtaining title to the lands. During the contest numerous speakers addressed the various settlers' meetings; but in addition to their difficulties over the lands, was added that of not being sure whom of their counsellors to trust. At one of those meetings, held at Osage Mission, August 22, 1868, an organization was effected, and named the "Osage Settlers' Rights Society." Of this society, J. Barnhart was made president; J. M. Barnes, vice-president; Louis A. Reese, treasurer; and J. C. Carpenter, secretary. Petitions were drawn and sent to the various townships in the county for signatures. These petitions were designed especially to defeat the "Osage Treaty" of May 27, 1868, by which it was intended to sell eight million acres of the Osage lands to the L., L. & G. R. R. Co. for nineteen cents per acre. Through the efforts of Sidney Clarke, the House of Representatives of the National Congress passed the following resolution: "That this House does hereby solemnly and earnestly protest against the ratification of the stipulations of said pretended treaty by the Senate, and will feel bound to refuse any appropriation in its behalf, or to recognize its validity in any form." This was encouraging. Another encouraging feature of the case was that each of the two railroad companies claimed priority of right to the lands; or in other words, each denied the validity of the other's claim. And so the contest waged.

On the 10th of April, 1869, Congress passed a joint resolution, to enable bona fide settlers to purchase certain of the Osage Ceded Lands, throwing open to sale both odd and even numbered sections. Under this resolution 2,295 settlers purchased 235,436 acres of the lands, paying therefor $292,545.72, besides officers' fees. But the joint resolution guarded vested rights. Then the question was as to whether the railroad companies had any vested rights. According to the ruling of Secretary Browning, they were entitled to certain lands under the grants, and the instructions forwarded June 3, 1869, to the Land Office, which was then at Humboldt, recognized the ruling of the Secretary of the Interior as of controling authority. Thus the vexed question seemed settled, and, although the settlers had not accomplished all they desired, yet they knew what they had accomplished, and that was something. But they did not long rest satisfied with this settlement of the question, and in September, 1870, determined to test legally the validity of these "vested rights." Excessively expensive counsel was employed and the case carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, which decided in favor of the settlers on these two vital points only, which carried all other points with them. First: That the act of Congress of March 3, 1863, made no grant of any of the Osage Indian Reservation, and second, that the Osage Ceded Lands were expressly reserved from the grant by the very act under which the railroads claimed the grant, in the following proviso: "That any and all lands heretofore reserved to the United States, by any act of Congress or in any other manner by competent authority, for the purpose of aiding in any object of internal improvement, or for any other purpose whatsoever, be, and the same are hereby reserved to the United States from the operation of this act, except so far as it may be found necessary to locate the routes of said road and branches through such reserved lands; in which case the right of way only shall be granted, subject to the approval of the President of the United States."

For this favorable result, the Settlers' Self-Protective Association is deserving of the credit, and since it was secured the county, as a whole, has enjoyed peace, and has made gratifying prosperity.

Neosho County now has three railroads: the Missouri Pacific Railroad, entering the county nine miles from its northeast corner, running in a southwesterly direction, and leaving it nine miles west of the southeast corner; the Neosho Division of the same road, entering the county from the north three miles east of the northwest corner, running southeasterly and leaving it about the middle of the southern boundary, and the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas, entering the county from the north, running southward through the western tier of townships and leaving it near the southwest corner, making a total of seventy five miles of railroad within the county.

The Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas was built to Thayer in the fall of 1870, and in the spring of 1871 completed to the southern boundary of the county; the Neosho Division reached Chanute in December, 1870, and its further construction through the county was pushed rapidly forward, and the main line of the Missouri Pacific, constructed from both directions at the same time, was completed in February, 1871; the two sections meeting just south of Walnut, and the last rail being laid on the 3d of that month. The first passenger train passed over this road from Chetopa to St. Louis on the 5th of February, 1871.

The county has extended no aid to railroads, but Mission Township, on the 16th of August, 1870, voted $80,000 in bonds in aid of the Tebo & Neosho Railroad, now the Missouri Pacific, by a vote of 256 for to 77 against the bonds. This is the only township that ever issued any railroad bonds, and as a consequence taxes generally throughout the county are comparatively low.

COUNTY ORGANIZATION AND THE COUNTY SEAT.

At the time of the organization of the county, in November, 1864, the Governor appointed three Commissioners: R. W. Hadden, S. E. Beach and S. W. Hadden. Previous to the proclamation of the Governor, preliminary steps had been taken by the people looking to this organization. On the 8th of November an election had been held, at which various officers were voted for, and on the 11th of the month the vote was canvassed, by S. E. Beach and R. W. Jackson acting as Commissioners. At that canvass it was found that the total vote cast was 35, and that the highest number received by any candidate was 32 for Darius Rodgers for Representative from the Seventh-eighth District. Solon O. Thacher received 24 votes for Governor, and J. J. Ingalls 27 votes for Lieutenant Governor. J. L. Fletcher acted as Clerk of the Board. On the 27th of December an election was held to complete the county organization. The vote was canvassed on the 30th, and resulted in the election of the following officers, by the number of votes appended to each respective name: Commissioners, R. W. Jackson, 47; S. W. Hadden, 46; T. Jackson, 47; Clerk, J. L. Fletcher, 46; Treasurer, Wm. Jackson, 46; Surveyor, S. Jackson, 46; County Attorney, Darius Rodgers, 47; Probate Judge, H. Woodward, 45; Sheriff, B. Vaughn, 46; Coroner, W. H. Davis, 39; Assessor, Wiley Evans, 45; Superintendent of Public Instruction, S. E. Beach, 45. The total number of votes cast was 47. Two votes were cast on county seat, one in favor of locating it at "The Mound above Swisses," and one on "The Henchly Claim."

On the 6th of March the county was divided into four townships: Neosho, Big Creek, Canville, and Mission. From time to time new divisions were made, until finally, in July, 1871, the present symmetrical division was settled upon, as follows: Tioga, Big Creek, Grant, Canville, Erie, Walnut Grove, Chetopa, Centerville, Mission, Shiloh, Ladore, and Lincoln. With the exception of Erie and Centerville, each township is six miles by eight in area; Erie, on account of the windings of the Neosho, containing about two sections more than Centerville.

The State Senators from Neosho County, with date of election, have been as follows: John C. Carpenter, 1868; W. L. Simons, 1870; John C. Carpenter, 1876; G. W. Spergeon, 1878; M. T. Jones, 1880.

The State Representatives from this county, with date of election, have been as follows: Darius Rodgers, 1866; Thomas H. Butler, 1867, '68 and '69; W. S. Irwin, 1870; O. S. Copeland and E. H. Keebles, 1871; Frank Bacon and C. F. Hutchings, 1872; T. P. Leach and J. M. Allen, 1873; A. P. Gibson and C. F. Stauber, 1874; John Stall and T. F. Hager, 1875; John Stall and L. Stillwell, 1876; R. D. Hartshorn and John Hall, 1878; John Hall and T. F. Cory, 1880; T. F. Cory and J. M. Dunsmore, 1882.

M. J. Salter, of this county, was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1874, and re-elected in 1876. John C. Carpenter was appointed to the office of Internal Revenue Collector for Kansas in 1878, and more recently the Indian Territory has been added to his district.

At present Erie is the county seat. Originally, in 1864, by proclamation of the Governor, the county seat was temporarily located at Osage City, three miles northeast of the present site of Chanute, on the east side of the river, the place having since been known as Rodgers' Mills. In June, by a vote of the electors, the county seat was removed to the "geographical center" of the county, the cost of finding which was $44. The first meeting of the Commissioners at this point was held July 1, 1867. Thereafter until May 20, 1868, the Commissioners continued to meet there, or at the "County Clerk's office," at the store of Roe & Denison, one and a half miles east. On June 13 a meeting was held at Old Erie, and on July 6 at Erie, A preliminary election was held May 26, 1868, and a second one on June 9, at which Osage Mission and Erie were the two competing points. The vote of Mission Township, which had been cast mainly for the former place, was thrown out by the canvassing board, and the majority in favor of Erie was found to be 271. All was quiet then until January 13, 1870, when, at a special meeting held that day, it was ordered by the Commissioners "that whereas it appears from the records of this board and the returns of an election held June 9, 1868, for the removal and permanent location of the county seat, that said returns have not been fully canvassed as required by law, therefore be it ordered that Solon E. Marston, George W. Gabriel and John Moffit proceed to recanvass the said vote." By the recanvass it was found that Mission Town (Osage Mission) had 572 votes to 543 for Erie, a majority of twenty-nine in favor of the former place. The next day considerable excitement was occasioned at Erie by the announcement that during the previous night the Clerk's records and the tax rolls had been stolen and conveyed to Osage Mission by parties then unknown. Subsequently, one of the particeps criminis to this transaction made a confession of the part acted by himself and revealed the names of all the others, including the two individuals who carried the records to the Mission, but no legal steps were ever taken to bring any one to punishment, as previous to the revelation Erie had regained the county seat. The tax rolls stolen were never found, and as a consequence the county lost several thousand dollars; but the exact amount could not be ascertained, as it was impossible to obtain a settlement with the County Treasurer.

The next election "for the removal and permanent location of the county seat" was held March 12, 1872, at which time Osage Mission received 1,009 votes, Erie 837, Geographical Center 179, Alliance (now Chanute) 621, and "Section 30, Township 29, Range 19," 306—a total vote of 2,952. To decide the question the next election was held March 26, at which time, according to the "face of the returns," Erie had 1,712 votes and Osage Mission 1,679. Erie Township appeared to have cast for Erie 590 votes and Mission Township 842 for Osage Mission. Both townships were suspected of fraud. Affidavits were submitted to the Board that the total vote of Erie Township at the election of March 26 was 342, 337 for Erie and 5 for Osage Mission; but it does not appear which township added most fraudulent votes to the correct number. On the 6th of April the Board made its final canvass of the vote, and on the ground that it had no legal power to "go behind the returns" resolved that, "it appearing that Erie had received a majority of the votes cast at the election of March 26, 1872, it is declared that Erie is the county seat of Neosho County." The question was carried into the courts, and finally, after reaching the Supreme Court of the State, was decided in 1874 in favor of Erie; and in October of that year the county records were removed to Erie, where they still remain.

STATISTICS, ETC.

According to the Assessors' returns of 1882, the personal property in the county was as follows: Horses, 4,508, value $122,456; cattle, 14,581, value $119,457; mules, 855, value $80,834; sheep, 7,068, value $6,990; swine, 8,532, value $10,978; farming implements value $41,405; wagons, 1,188, value $18,122; carriages, 324, value $7,953; money, $17,228.75; credits, $7,908; merchandise, $73,237; manufactured goods, $3,800; notes, $27,784.25; mortgages, $3,262; other personal property, $61,828; total personal property, $533,243; constitutional exemption, $213,200; net taxable personal property, $320,043, to which was five per cent. by the State Board of Equalization, making the taxable personal property $336,045. The various kinds of real estate was as follows: Total number of acres of taxable lands under cultivation, 135,885; not under cultivation, 223,963; aggregate taxable valuation of farming lands, $1,492,605; total number of unimproved village lots, 3,903; of improved lots, 1,632; value, $178,507; railroad property, $427,595; total taxable valuation of all property in the county, $2,434,752.

The acreage of the principal crops raised in 1882, was as follows: Winter wheat, 10,000 acres; rye, 525; corn, 68,200; barley, 10; oats, 10,200; buckwheat, 25; potatoes, 700; sweet potatoes, 50; sorghum, 450; castor beans, 12 000; cotton, 15; flax, 6,300; millet, 4,600; rice corn, 10; meadow—timothy, 250; clover, 80; other tame grasses, 180; prairie, 20,000; pasture—timothy, 75; other tame grasses, 900; prairie, 40,000.

There are 1,100 acres of nurseries in the county, and the following are the numbers of the various kinds of fruit trees: Apple—bearing 76,370, not bearing, 72,354; peach—bearing, 183,425; not bearing, 32,028; pear—bearing, 2,439, not bearing, 5,082; plum—bearing, 4,793, not bearing, 4,954; cherry—bearing, 21,576, not bearing, 12 408. Of vineyards there were fifty-three acres, and these made 844 gallons of wine.

But little attention has as yet been paid to the cultivation of forest or shade trees. Of walnut trees there are 12 acres; cottonwood, 26; maple, 50; other varieties, 180; total, 268 acres.

The number of rods of the different kinds of fencing in the county, is as follows: Board fence, 24,315; rail, 93,177; stone, 9,529; hedge, 464,884; wire, 75,893; total number of rods, 667,798, or 2,086.8 miles.

The population of the county in 1860, was 88; in 1870, 10,206; in 1874, 11,324; in 1875, 11,076; in 1878, 11,055; in 1880, 15,124; in 1882, 15,155. The decrease after 1874 was caused by the visits of the grasshoppers. They were a terrible scourge during 1874 and 1875, but in the latter year they disappeared and have not since returned. The population of the county in the spring of 1882 is reasonably believed to have been fully 16,000. When the returns of the census were first brought in by the assessors, the total population appeared to be less than 15,000. But in various districts the returns were soon discovered to be incomplete, and the assessors were compelled to add names omitted until the population was shown to be over 15,000, when the matter was dropped. Some of the assessors were determined to keep the population below 15,000, if possible, as by so doing a saving of several thousand dollars in the salaries of the county officers would be effected; but the officers were fully as anxious to have the population returned as 15,000 or over, in order that the addition to their salaries, which then according to law could be made, should be made. Hence they brought influences to bear upon the assessors until this result was accomplished, but stopped short of securing a full and complete return.

There are ninety-seven school districts in the county, and the same number of schoolhouses. Of these one is log; three, brick; five, stone, and eighty-eight frame. The total of scholars in 1882 was 4,579—males, 1,904; females, 2,675. There were employed 104 teachers—44 males and 60 females, the former receiving on the average $34.20 per month, the latter $27.44. The value of school property was as follows: Houses $123,000; furniture, $17,000; apparatus, $1,900; libraries, $800; total, $142,700. All the schools have adopted a course of study, and a Normal Institute of one month is held each year.

The Neosho County Agricultural Society was organized April 24, 1869. At a meeting of the directors of this society held May 8, a permanent organization was effected, by the election of the following officers: Larkin Jones, president; John Moffitt, secretary, and James P. Morgan, treasurer. The other directors for the first year were Joseph M. Boyle, R. D. Cogswell, John Stephens, John Cameron, J. L. Mattingly, Stephen Carr, C. H. Howard, Michael Barnes, S. T. Gilmore and Rufus Miller. The capital stock of the society was fixed at $5,000; shares $5 each. The first fair was held October 22 and 23 of that year.

The Neosho County Medical Society.—This society was organized May 5, 1870, at Osage Mission. A. F. Neeley was elected president; R. D. Cogswell, vice-president; Robert Brogan, secretary, and R. C. Leake, treasurer.

ERIE.

The county seat of Neosho County, is situated in the valley of the Neosha River and about a mile northeast therefrom. The location is an excellent one for the building up of a town. Originally a town called Erie, now referred to as "Old Erie," was started two miles northwest of the present town site, and two miles southeast another town was started named Crawfordsville. The proprietors of the two towns made a compromise with each other, agreed to abandon both places and selected the present town site for the new location. This was in 1866. In November of that year the Erie Town Company was formed consisting of D. W. Bray, Luther Packet, Peter Walters, and J. F. Hemilwright. Each member of this company donated forty acres of land in the center of Section 32, Township 28, Range 20 east. The following parties were then admitted to membership: A. H. Roe, J. A. Wells, John C. Carpenter, L. R. Nugent, A. F. Neeley, C. B. Kennedy, Stephen Beck, H. H. Roe, Joel Barnhart, J. L. Dennison, S. L. Coulter and T. T. Gilbert.

The first house built on the town site was a log one by the widow Spivey, in 1866. The first store was built in 1867, by Drs. Kennedy & Neeley and John C. Carpenter. It is still standing where erected, on the corner of Fourth and Main streets. The first family residence was erected this same year, by V. Stillwell, who also soon afterwards built the first livery stable. The first hotel was built by J. A. Wells. It was completed December 31, 1867, and is still occupied by its builder for its original purpose. The first blacksmith shop was built in 1868, by John Graham, and the same year a law office was opened by Carpenter & Porter. The first birth in the town was that of Byron C. Wells, son of J. A. and Matilda Wells, July 4, 1868. The first teacher in the town was John Broadbent, who in the winter of 1867–8, taught a school in the little log house built by the widow Spivey, though a subscription school had been taught elsewhere in the township in the summer of 1866, by John A. Weston, and Miss Roe. The first Protestant sermon in Erie Township, was preached in September, 1865, by Elder Isaac Hoagland.

A postoffice was established six and one-half miles northwest of Osage Mission, April 6, 1866, with A. H. Roe as Postmaster. It was moved to Erie, August 20, 1867. On the first of January, 1868, Mr. Roe resigned, and Charles Trenchard was appointed in his stead. On the first of July Isaac M. Fletcher was appointed, and on July 1, 1869 the postoffice was made a money order office.

A flouring and saw mill was located on the town site by J. W. Stewart & Sons, in 1868. The machinery used in it was afterwards removed one mile south and became a part of the machinery of the present water mill, on the Neosho River. J. W. Stewart & Sons afterwards sold this mill to A. N. Bruner & Co., its present proprietors. It is a one and a half story building with three run of buhrs.

In the year 1867, a saw mill was located one-half mile southwest of town, by Barnhart Bros. & H. H. Roe. In 1869, this mill was improved to a two run flouring mill, and removed in 1873, by Barnhart Bros., to Thayer.

The town of Erie was organized by a decree of the Probate Court December 25, 1869, with J. A. Wells, G. W. Dale, John McCullough, Isaac M. Fletcher and Douglas Putnam as trustees. On the 30th of the same month the trustees met, and declared the town a city of the third class. Thereupon J. A. Wells was elected Mayor of the city, and proceeded to appoint the officers necessary to put the city government into operation. At this time a census of the city was taken, and the population found to be, according to the returns, eight hundred and nine.

It is probable the city never contained a much larger number of inhabitants than this, but it has been estimated to have contained 1,200 within a year or two after this census was taken. At all events, its progress was suddenly and effectually checked in 1872 by a fire, which swept away the best business blocks and business part of the town. The total loss by this conflagration was estimated at $15 000, and there was no insurance. In July, 1873, a destructive cyclone swept through the county. About fifteen houses were blown down in Erie, and a loss inflicted of $5,000. Eleven persons were severely wounded, but no one killed in Erie. One woman and two children were killed by this same cyclone in Shiloh Township, and two other persons were killed in the southeast part of the county near Trotter's Ford. Besides having suffered from these two visitations of Providence, Erie has so far labored under the great disadvantage of having no railroad. An east and west railroad through the county, passing through Erie, would enhance her prosperity and her prospects very largely. Then it may be said that her success in the struggle for the county seat has militated very materially against her. School district No. 5, of which Erie forms a part, in the year 1870, bonded itself to the amount of $12,000 in order to build a fine, large schoolhouse, with the view of establishing there a school of high grade. The schoolhouse, a three-story stone structure, with mansard roof, was erected, and during the contest for the county seat, the whole school district partaking of the enthusiasm of the town, donated the building to the county for a courthouse, and now has to pay principal and interest on the bonds, a sum which will amount to upwards of $40,000 in the aggregate before the debt is fully extinguished. The main consolations are that the debt was self-imposed, the consciousness of victory and the prestige of being the county seat; while the disadvantages are the debt itself, and the want of the high school, the establishment of which was prevented by the giving away of the building designed for its use.

The city contains two general stores, two blacksmith shops, one drug store, two hotels, one newspaper office, two churches, and a population of about 300.

SOCIETIES, CHURCHES AND THE PRESS.

Erie Lodge No. 76, A., F. & A. M.—Was instituted, January 1, 1869, with fourteen members. The first officers were: James L. Denison, W. M.; J. W. Stewart, S. W.; E. H. Marsh, J. W.; L. Stillwell, Sec.; John C. Carpenter, Treas.; and J. A. Wells, S. D. The present membership of the lodge is thirty.

Erie Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F.—Was instituted, April 9, 1869, with nine members. Each member was an officer, as follows: John Smith, N. G.; Wm. H. Stewart, V. G.; S. M. French, Rec. S.; Irwin Smith, Treas.; J. W. Stewart, warden; A. P. McDonald, O. G.; W. T. Weeks, R. S. N. G.; M. A. Patterson, L. S. N. G.; J. W. Pittsford, R. S. V. G. The present membership of the order is twenty-two.

Erie Lodge No. 2017 K. of H.—Was instituted, January 31, 1880, with twelve members. The principal officers were the following: Henry Lodge, P. D.; M. Wallace, D.; John Berry, V. D.; W. P. Oliver, A. D., and J. W. Alfred, Medical Examiner. The present membership of the lodge is thirty-eight.

The Methodist Church.—Was organized in the spring of 1868, with fifteen members, by Rev. T. Palmer, who was the first regular preacher. Previous to that time there had been occasional preaching by Revs. Jacob Davis —— Bond, and J. W. Stewart. The first presiding elder of this circuit was Rev. J. D. Knox, appointed in the spring of 1868. The society held religious services in different private houses, until sometime during the summer, when, the schoolhouse being by this time completed, they occupied it until 1872, when they purchased the church building which was at that time in process of erection and nearly completed by the "Christians." The church property is now worth about $1,200, and the society has a membership of fifty. The present pastor is Rev. S. P. Cullison. A Sunday school was organized in 1869, which until 1878, held sessions during only about six months each year. Since that time the sessions have been held the year round.

The Christian Church.—Was organized by C. F. Stauber, at his house, in the spring of 1869. Occasional religious services had been conducted previously by George Booth, a farmer, and Dr. Jones, at first in the log house of the widow Spivey. At the time the regular organization was effected, it was upon the request of the widow Spivey and eight other women, who personally urged the matter upon Mr. Stauber, and prevailed upon him not only to organize the society, but also to preach for them. Thus, Mr. Stauber was the first regular preacher, conducting the services in his own house until the fall, when the society, becoming stronger, engaged Elder M. J. Jenkins, and held services in the school house. Elder Jenkins continued with the church regularly about three years, when he moved to Missouri, preaching occasionally for the church at Erie, until 1875. The society commenced the erection of a church in the year 1872, but on account of the building of the railroads in the eastern and western parts of the county, the members mostly moved away to railroad towns, leaving Mr. Stauber practically alone, and to save the building from going to ruin, he sold it to the Methodists in 1874. They completed, seated and painted it, and now have a small, but very neat church. The Christian society was organized with fourteen members, increased to thirty, and finally decreased to none.

The Baptist Church—Was organized in 1869, with seven members, by Elder A. C. Bateman, who was chosen pastor. Previous to organization, a few sermons had been preached by Elder Bateman, at the house of E. F. Williams, who was made deacon at the time of organization. Elder Bateman has been succeeded by Elders Hitchcock, John Post, J. A. Trenchard, Reed and I. N. Niman. After organization the services were held at the Erie

Schoolhouse, until the erection, in 1871, of the present frame church building, which cost $1,500.

The NeoshoCounty Record—Was established in Erie, by George W. McMillin, April 21, 1876. The material used had formerly been a part of the office of the Thayer Headlight, the name Headlight being continued at Erie until May 5, 1876 when the name Record was substituted. At the time the paper was removed to Erie, it was a five column folio, but it was changed to a seven column folio, November 24, 1876, which size it still retains. Mr. McMillin sold it to its present proprietor, February 8, 1879. The paper is Republican in politics, and is devoted mainly to local news.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JOSEPH M. BARNEY, farmer, Section 7, P. O. Erie, native of Rhode Island; born in 1832. He moved from there to Illinois in 1844, whither his father had preceded him in 1842; here he went into the mercantile business, and in 1853 he went to farming. In 1866 he came West to Kansas with Mr. Knox; selected their land, and in 1867 came on in an emigrant train, consisting of eight wagons, belonging to Finch J. White, Knox, Dr. Evans, Charles Green and himself Mr. Barney located on Section 7, buying his claim of Jesse Sink. He brought $2,000 with him; in two years this was gone; provisions were high, and in 1867 they had no crop; but in 1868 he raised a fine crop of wheat, supplying his family and having some to sell. He then did well until 1874, when his corn failed, leaving him with a large number of hogs and nothing to feed them on. 1875 looked bad, but he never lost his confidence in Kansas. This year he bought Wycoff Platt's crop of corn and potatoes, while the grass hoppers were eating them up; but that fall harvested 1,200 bushels of corn and fifty bushels of potatoes. He gave Mr. Platt a colt for the crop. In 1882 he raised fine crops of corn, wheat, oats and flax. He owns now 312 acres, and cultivates 150; the rest is in pasture and meadow. He has fine meadows of tame grasses. In 1856 Mr. Barney married Miss Farwell. They had seven children, two deceased. He has been Township Treasurer, this was in 1874, and has been a school official continually.

W. T. DUTTON, hardware, is a native of Marion County, Del., born in 1841. He afterwards moved to Ohio, but was raised in Wabash County, Ind., where the family had located afterward. Here he remained till the time of his moving West, engaged at different employments. On starting for Kansas they had some machinery, and on reaching Kansas City, sent their goods by wagon to Erie, Neosho County, arriving on the 30th of March, 1869, where he and his brother established a furniture factory, and carried on undertaking in connection with it. At this time Erie was the most prosperous, and as soon as it was incorporated, Mr. Dutton was made Marshal. In 1874 he sold out his furniture business and gave his attention to the public. He had been appointed Constable, and afterwards elected, serving three terms. He was also Justice of the Peace in 1874, serving as City Clerk, and January 8, 1876, was Police Judge; from 1872 to '80 he was Coroner. In 1878 he established his present business, dealing in hardware and implements, doing his best trade this year of 1882, his sales amounting to about ten thousand dollars. Mr. Dutton married in Indiana, and has four children, two boys and two girls. He describes the country, in 1869, as full of Indians, and frontier incidents. He is a member of the I. O. O. F.

J. N. ELLIS, farmer, Section 2, P. O. Chanute, is a native of Kentucky, born in 1813. He moved to Indiana in 1832, where he lived until 1864, then going to Illinois, and being a stone mason by trade, he worked at that and farmed. In 1865 he came to Kansas from Cumberland County, Ill., in an emigrant train that numbered fifty-one persons. He settled on Pecan Creek, where he now lives, taking 160 acres and built his cabin. This was before the land was surveyed, and there was a village of 900 Osage Indians encamped near by on the Canville Creek, who left in 1866. Mr. Ellis and sons then, with pioneer courage, proceeded to break up the prairie sod, that has since, through drouth or flood, yielded sufficient to feed them and their stock. Among the good crops was that of 1868, when he sold 500 bushels of wheat for $2 a bushel, and 1875 and 1882. In 1836 he married Miss Scott. They had four boys and four girls. These children are now doing for themselves, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis live together with a granddaughter. His son, J. W., is now on a farm adjoining, in the stock business. They are members of the Christian Church, which is a strong organization, having forty-seven members.

JACOB HUNT, teacher; native of Indiana; born in 1859. He entered the profession as teacher in 1881, and is now teaching in School District No. 7. He married Miss Barney in 1882, who is also a teacher; commenced teaching in 1881, now holding a position in the town school of Erie. Her father is one of the early settlers of this section, locating on Canville Creek in 1868, where he has since resided.

J. J. HURT, Clerk of the District Court; elected in 1882, on the Republican ticket. He is a native of Clinton County, Ky., born in 1854. The family moved to Missouri first, and then to Kansas, locating in Chanute, December 20, 1869, going into commercial business. In 1882 he graduated at Baker's University, and is now reading law.

D. LEATHERMAN, farmer, Section 2, P. O. Chanute; native of Indiana; born in 1828. When nine years of age his parents moved to Chicago, Ill., or near there, where they lived till 1849, when he moved to Iroquois County, and was there till 1867, when he was entirely broke up by securing a friend's note who was killed in the war. So he came to Kansas and took a claim of 160 acres. At that time nothing but an Indian trail led to his cabin. His family arrived on the 28th of June, and settled down to stay. With four boys, who soon were able to help, they took hold of the plow, and have carved from the wilderness a home. He commenced by trading his horses for two yoke of cattle. Having bought a breaking-plow in Kansas City, he broke twenty-five acres, which, with ten acres of old ground, raised enough to feed them and their stock. In 1868 he sowed wheat in October that did not come up till December, yet in 1869 yielded thirty bushels to an acre. This was the best yield he has had. In 1882 his corn averaged on the bottom land seventy-five bushels to an acre. He raised also flax and millet. In 1847 Mr. Leatherman married Miss Gool. She died in 1864, leaving six children. He married Miss Moore in 1865; they have two children. Mr. L. belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has under cultivation 100 acres, the rest is in pasture and meadow.

C. M. LIGHT County Superintendent of Public Instruction; elected in 1880. Mr. Light is a native of Indiana, born in 1852, and came to Kansas in 1869. In 1875 he graduated from the Normal College of Emporia, and commenced teaching, following the profession until his election to office in 1880, filling the duties so well that he was re-elected in 1882.

HENRY LODGE, of the firm of Lodge Bros., general merchants. Native of Ohio, but was raised in Indiana. He there finished his education in the Asbury College, taking the scientific course, graduating in the class of '56. He then engaged in different lines of business till he went into the Army of the Cumberland, enlisting in the Fourteenth Indiana Cavalry, where he was commissioned First Lieutenant of Company F. He served till the fall of Nashville, then leaving on account of his health, and in 1870 came to Kansas, establishing their business in the winter of 1871, commencing with a small stock, and now carrying $3,500, and doing a business of $20,000 a year. This year is the best they have had since starting in business. The grasshopper years of 1874 and '75 they lost over $1,800 in bad debts. Mr. Lodge has just retired from the office of County Commissioner, which he held for nine years, and by his management has placed the county credit in as good shape as is that of any county in the State. Mr. Lodge is a charter member of the Knights of Honor.

A. H. ROE, farmer, P. O. Erie, native of Indiana, born in 1842. He was raised and educated in Michigan, and then moved to Iowa, where he served during the war of the Rebellion in the Thirteenth Iowa Volunteer Infantry, Company A. In 1865, he came Kansas, locating in Neosho County. Here he built and opened the first business house in what is now known as Old Erie, and was appointed the first Postmaster, taking J. L. Dennison as partner. When the county seat was laid out, he moved his business there and Mr. Dennison having sold his interest, the firm name became Roe & Trenchard. February, 1868, Mr. Roe retired to his farm on Section 18, Erie Township, opening a farm of 160 acres, where he remained until 1871, selling for $3,000. He opened a mercantile enterprise in Erie, and was appointed Postmaster, in 1873, having a livery in the interim. He continued in the mercantile line until 1881, when he sold to Mr. Alexander, retiring on account of his health to the farm he now owns, giving his attention to raising fruit and grain. Mr. Roe married Miss Brownell, of Iowa. They have five children, one boy and four girls. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge, also of the K. of H.

G. W. SANSOM, Postmaster, native of Jersey County, Ill. He was raised on a farm, and in 1862, January 6, enlisted in the Sixty-first Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company C, serving until October 19, 1863, when he returned home to Illinois, and from there, came to Kansas in 1865, locating on Canville Creek, where he farmed until 1872, when he went to Missouri, coming back in 1875, and went to farming again, raising good crops every year, until 1879, when he took the postoffice November 15, 1879, and opened in connection a store of general merchandise and notions, and is doing a good business. In 1866, he was the first Constable of the county and served as Assistant Assessor of Neosho and Labette counties. He held the office of Constable until 1878; being elected again he resigned the position in 1879 to take the postoffice. He was also one of the City Council. Mr. Sansom is a charter member of the K. of H.

BEN. J. SMITH, editor of the Record, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., March 28, 1854. During the same year his parents moved to Bloomington, Ind., where they lived until the spring of 1877. At this time Ben. J. started west, working in Vincennes Ind., St. Louis and Sedalia, Mo. In January, 1879, having moved to Erie, Neosho Co., Kan., he bought the Record, which he has since been and is now conducting. He learned the printer's trade in the office of the Bloomington, Ind., Democrat, and received his education at the Bloomington High School and Indiana State University.

W. S. SYMMES, M. D., a native of Illinois, born in 1841. He began studying medicine with his father, Dr. H. Symmes. After serving in the First Illinois Cavalry, he was transferred to the Fifty-fourth Illinois Volunteer Infantry; on returning in 1865; he then attended Ann Arbor Medical School of Michigan, graduating in 1865, he entered practice at home, then coming to Kansas in 1867, he located at Oswego, Labette County; here he was a witness of some of the early historic incidents of the Indian warfare; in 1870, he moved to Chautauqua County, where he practiced until 1881, when he moved to Erie, buying property, and entering on a good practice. In 1875, he married Miss Armstrong. They have one son.

RACHEL TIBBY, general merchandise, is a native of Ireland, as was her husband; on coming to America, she located on Staten Island, and here in 1866, was married to Matthew Tibby. They then came to Kansas on account of his health in 1869, locating in Erie, and establishing the business now carried on by his widow. In 1879, as Mr. Tibby was riding on the stock train, on Twenty-third street, St. Louis, having gone there with stock for Mr. Letcher, of Osage Mission, he fell between the cars and was run over and killed instantly; his body was brought home for burial. Mr. Tibby had traveled almost around the world, having visited California, Australia, England and Ireland, and was overtaken finally by this sad accident. Mrs. Tibby is now carrying on the store a stock of about $800, and is doing a good business of $2,400. She is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of which her husband was a local minister.

JOSEPH A. WELLS, born in Greene County, Ill., in March, 1838; received a limited education at the district schools of his county, the most of his early life being spent on the farm, but was always acknowledged as a very apt scholar. At the age of eighteen he received a first grade certificate as a school teacher, passing an examination before the State Commissoner. At the age of twenty-one he was elected a Justice of the Peace of his township. Previous to this he was, on motion, admitted to practice law before the District Court of his county. At the age of twenty-two he was married to Matilda, youngest daughter of Pleasant and Lydia Wood of his county. At the age of twenty-four he entered the service of his country as a private of Company H, Ninety-first Illinois Infantry, and by his prompt attention to business, he was rapidly promoted to the office of Orderly Sergeant, First Lieutenant and Captain of his company, and for daring acts on the battle field in and around Mobile, Ala., in March and April, 1865, he was, by the President, in special order, breveted Major of Volunteers. At the close of the war, in 1865, he returned home to his family, and a short time afterward declined the offer of a Second Lieutenancy of Cavalry of the regular army. In August, 1865, he removed to Adair County, Mo., where he bought a farm and remained until the spring of 1866, when he sold out and started for Kansas, arriving in Neosho County on the 4th of April, 1866, and bought a claim three miles northwest of where Erie is now located. In the fall of 1866 he was elected Probate Judge of Neosho County, and served as such until January, 1869. In the summer of 1867 he sold his farm and went to the woods and cut, hauled, rafted and then sawed the logs of which the Erie House, in Erie, and other buildings were built. He then, as a member of the Erie Town Company, built the first hotel ever built in the town, and moved into and occupied the same on the last day of 1867. Here he has ever since had his family residence. He, together with S. W. Fastar, bought the first piece of land for town purposes where Chanute now stands, and here he built two houses in 1870. He also completed the first business house ever built in Coffeyville, Kansas in August, 1871. He has several times been appointed Justice of the Peace of the city, and was the first Mayor of the city of Erie, at its organization in December, 1869. In 1871 he was editor of the Erie Ishmaelite, a red hot local organ. In 1872 he was appointed Deputy United States Marshal, which place he held until 1874. During his two years service he was instrumental in bringing a large number of offenders to justice; those acts, coupled with the fact that he was chairman of the Erie executive committee for county seat purposes, made him many enemies as well as a large number of warm friends. In 1873 he was arrested for violation of his duties, which caused him a great deal of trouble. After two years of law bickerings the case was finally nolle prosequied. June 19, 1874, he received his appointment as one of the force of the United States secret service, which place he now holds. Among the noted criminals that he has captured he mentions those of J. S. Wilson, at Shreveport, La., in 1875, and Martin Hixley, in Sumner County, Kansas, in 1877, both of those being arrested and delivered to the proper officers, the former at Memphis, Tenn., and the latter at St. Louis, Mo. In February, 1876, he was ordered to report at New Orleans to the United States Marshal and was detailed to go to Cuba in the interest of the United States, but owing to the revolutionary state of the country at that time, the business was not arranged to his satisfaction; nevertheless the government was pleased with the tact he displayed, and for his shrewdness in the matter he was highly complimented. He mentions many other arrests and incidents of his life which would be of interest, but space forbids. He has been a Notary Public of Kansas ever since May 1, 1868, and is now engaged in the real estate and loan business. In February, 1883, was elected Justice of the Peace and City Judge by an almost unanimous vote.

W. W. WORK, County Treasurer of Neosho County. He was elected on the Republican ticket in 1880, and re-elected in 1882.

OSAGE MISSION.

This town is located in the Neosho Valley, one and a half miles from the left bank of the river and half a mile from Flat Rock Creek, and it is a station on the Missouri Pacific Railway. The situation is all that need be desired.

Previous to the organization of a town company or the laying out of a town site two buildings had been erected here, one by L. P. Foster & Co., a log one, in which a store was opened and managed by the "Morgan boys," and a frame building erected by S. A. Williams, of Fort Scott, in which his son, Augustus D. Williams, kept a store. These movements were made in 1866, in anticipation of the starting of a town. A Town Company was organized consisting of George A. Crawford, S. A. Williams, C. W. Blair, Benjamin McDonald and John Nandier, a town site laid out and called Osage Mission, in December, 1867. By the side of it and to the west another town site was laid out and called Catholic Mission. On this town site a small store was opened by S. J. Gilmore, in a log building known then and still remembered as "Castle Thunder;" this store was opened in 1865. On Osage Mission town site the Town Company erected a building on the corner of County and Market streets into which A. D. Williams moved his stock of goods in 1867, in which he kept the postoffice, with C. H. Howard as deputy. About the same time L. P. Foster & Co., erected a two story frame building across the street and a little north of the present site of the Southern Hotel. Joseph Roycroft built a log saloon near where now stands the City Bank; Middaugh and Dohnan came down from Topeka, and built a store where L. Steadman's store now stands, in 1867; James Roycroft erected a boarding house, the first in town, on the southeast corner of County and Market streets, and during the summer John Nandier built the first hotel, the Neosho House, a large two story frame, long known as the finest hotel building in Southern Kansas. Not long after this Nathaniel Tucker started a store near "Castle Thunder," in the building now occupied as a dwelling by Daniel Zehner, and about the same time, perhaps a short time previously, Dr. J. B. Lamb started a store also in Catholic Mission. Marston & Ulmer, from Iowa, opened a furniture store in 1868. J. M. Boyle, from Fort Scott, opened a hardware store just north of L. P. Foster & Co.'s store, and on the southwest corner of County and Main streets, Ryan & Roycroft started a general store about the same time.

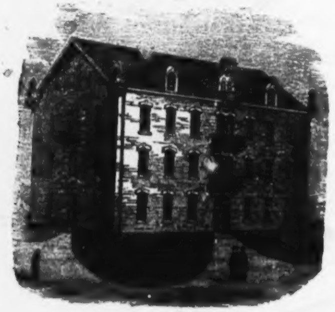
The first lawyer in the town was C. F. Hutchings, in 1867, the first physician, Dr. A. F. Neely, about the same time, and the first Protestant minister was Rev. A. Hitchcock. The first birth was that of a son to Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Noble, 1868. From the first the growth of the town was vigorous and rapid. In August, 1868, it contained eight dry goods stores, three drug stores, one hardware store, two boot and shoe stores, four blacksmith shops, and numerous other business establishments, and a population of nearly nine hundred. From this time until the building of the railroad the growth of the town was steady. It was the center of three lines of stages; one to Fort Scott, one to Humboldt and the other to Chetopa. When these stages arrived all was life and animation. Each stage was a Concord coach drawn by four fine large horses, and the driver's voice and importance, and the crack of his whip served to raise the excitement to the highest pitch, and is still vividly remembered. A more complete history of the town will be seen in the sketches of its individual industries and institutions.



ST. FRANCIS BOARDING SCHOOL.

The town having been governed for six months by a Board of Trustees, consisting of John Ryan, president; John Moffit, clerk; B. P. Ayers, T. C. Cory and R. D. Coggswell, until October 25, 1869, was on that day organized as a city of the third class. John O'Grady was chosen Mayor, and B. P. Ayers, John Ryan, John Moffit, J. P. Morgan and R. D. Coggswell, Councilmen. The following is a list of the Mayors since elected, with the dates of their election: B. P. Ayers, 1870, re-elected in 1871; W. L. Simons, 1872; C. L. Lease, 1873; A. B. Stoddard, 1874; T. H. Butler, 1875; L. Steadman, 1876, re-elected 1877; L. S. Orton, 1878; W. H. Williams, 1879; J. L. Denison, 1880, re-elected 1881; L. Steadman, 1882.

The postoffice at Osage Mission was the first established in Neosho County. It was obtained through and for the use of the Catholic Mission in 1851. Father John Schoenmakers was the first Postmaster. It was made a money office in July, 1869. Father Schoenmakers held the office until 1864, at which time S. J. Gilmore received the appointment. A. D. Williams was appointed in 1866. In 1868 C. H. Howard was made Postmaster, and held the position for about fifteen years, being succeeded on January 1, 1883, by J. S. Curtis.

SCHOOLS, CHURCHES AND SOCIETIES.

The first school in Osage Mission was the Mission School, begun by Father Schoenmakers in 1847. This, however, was an institution devoted to the education of Indians and in the interests of the Catholic Church.

The first town school was taught in the winter of 1867-68. It was a subscription school, taught by Anson Gridley, senior, and was kept in a small frame building on the southwest corner of County and Oak streets. A public school was taught in the following summer by Miss Mary Anna Swank, in a rented building. In the winter of 1868-69, T. C. Corey was employed as teacher of the public school. The place for holding it was changed in January, 1869, and quarters were taken up in a building which had been rented of N. Tucker, and fitted up for the accommodation of the school. A school building was erected in 1872. It is a large two story brick structure of appropriate design, and contains four departments. The school enrollment is 277, and is divided among four departments: the high school, grammar school, intermediate and primary. At present the schools are under the instruction of Prof. H. Stevenson, principal; E. E. Anderson, teacher of the grammar school; Mrs. S. C. Dobson, teacher of the intermediate, and Miss Lizzie Barnhart, teacher of the primary department.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized August 15, 1868. The leaders in the movement were: Solon Marston, J. C. Boyle, A. Smith, and others, and it was effected in the schoolhouse. They have since built a church. It is a neat one story, frame building, finished with a steeple and belfry.

A Sunday school was organized November 8, 1869. J. M. Boyle was chosen superintendent; T. C. Corey assistant superintendent; S. E. Marston, treasurer; I. F. Rager, secretary, and E. Boyle, chorister and librarian. The school is in a healthy condition, and is provided with a small library.

The Baptist Church was organized Saturday, November 13, 1868, by Rev. A. Hitchcock, and was effected in the school building. Steps toward the erection of a church building were taken in the latter part of the year 1868. The building was erected in the following summer, but was not completed. As an aid to its erection, the Town Company donated the lots upon which it is located and made a loan of $1,000 to the society for two years, without interest. The Sunday school was organized September 25, 1869, and Rev. Hitchcock was the first Superintendent. In May, 1870, Peter Collings, J. T. Chandler, Daniel Kinman, Mrs. Anna Doleman and C. H. Howard were appointed a committee to raise funds with which to complete and furnish the house. The society is in a healthy condition.

Saint Peter's Episcopal Church was organized on Monday evening, December 12, 1870. S. S. Warner was elected senior warden, and J. H. Scott junior warden, and C. F. Hutchings, J. B. Lamb, H. B. Leonard, A. J. Smith, G. E. Cook, were elected vestrymen; S. D. Cook, clerk, and C. H. Howard, treasurer. A Sunday school was organized January 1, 1871, in the residence of S. S. Warner. The church building was erected in 1874. It is a small frame building of plain design.

The Christian Church was organized in May, 1881. The organization was superintended by Rev. J. W. Randall, assisted by Rev. C. W. Pool, and was effected in the Methodist church building. C. F. Stauber and Hon. J. Dale were elected elders. The church house was built in the fall and winter of 1882, and is a small frame structure, 24x36 feet in dimensions, and cost $800. The congregation is without a pastor since the termination of Rev. C. C. Deweese's pastorate.

The Catholic denomination have a large representation in this place. The church organization is attached to the Catholic Mission, a detailed history of which appears in the early history of Neosho County.

Osage Mission Lodge, No. 53, I. O. O. F., was instituted, on Wednesday evening, March 16, 1870, by District Deputy, G. M. Smith. A number of Odd Fellows came down from the town of Erie to assist in the ceremonies. J. B. Gill was chosen noble grand; J. S. Carson, vice grand; W. Roush, treasurer; D. S. Miller, permanent secretary; S. S. Warner, recording secretary.

Mission Lodge, No. 92, A., F. & A. M. was instituted under a dispensation, in January, 1869. James A. Songer was made worshipful master, and W. Rouse was chosen secretary. The institution took place with a membership of twenty-five. The following are the present officers of the lodge: R. D. Kirkpatrick, worshipful master; J. R. Brunt, senior warden; William Lawson, junior warden; Thomas Baxter, treasurer; E. Cravens, secretary.

A. O. U. W. Society was organized, in January, 1881, with a membership of twenty-four. The officers elected for the government of the lodge, were: L. S. Orton, master workman; B. F. Mouser, overseer; T. M. Baxter, general foreman; S. F. Denison, receiver; William F. May, treasurer. There is a present membership of twenty-three, or a falling off of one member since the institution of the lodge.

The Grand Army of the Republic also have a flourishing organization called the General Warren Post, No. 114. At an election held on Saturday, the 16th of December, 1882, W. Henderson was chosen post commander, and P. W. Mess, senior vice commander. The lodge at present is in a live and flourishing condition.

THE PRESS AND OTHER BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The Neosho County Republican was started in September, 1880, by F. W. Ward, as the Neosho Valley Enterprise. At first it was a four-column quarto. In a short time after it was started, D. C. Ambrose purchased a half interest, and in September, 1881, took charge of the Enterprise as proprietor and editor. On the 14th of September, 1882, the paper was enlarged to an eight-column folio. The Enterprise was conducted as a Democratic paper until October 19, 1882, when T. F. Ross purchased one-half interest. The name was changed to the Neosho County Republican, and the politics changed to correspond with the name. When Mr. Ambrose purchased an interest in the paper, in 1880, the office contained but one press, a one-half medium Globe, and one rack of type. At present it contains, in addition, a good newspaper press and a full line of newspaper and job material. T. F. Ross, the editor of the Republican was born at Davenport, Iowa, June 29, 1854. His father and mother, Enoch and Rebecca Ross, moved from Carrollton, Ohio, to Davenport, Iowa, in 1845. They moved from Davenport on to a farm in the same county in 1859, where they lived until 1865, when they moved to Jasper County, Iowa. In 1870, T. F. Ross entered Iowa College at Grinnell, remaining there three years, with the exception of a few months each winter spent in teaching school. In 1873, he went to California, and taught school there two years. In 1875, he returned to Davenport, and entered the office of Judge Hubbell as a law student; was admitted to the bar in 1876, and commenced practice in 1877 at Red Oak, Montgomery Co., Iowa. Here he practiced law until 1879, when he removed to Beloit, Kan; opened a law office, and practiced law there until the spring of 1881, when he sold his practice and went to New Mexico, where he remained about a year. He then came to Osage Mission, bought one half interest in the Republican, and assumed editorial charge of that paper.

The Neosho County Journal was started at Osage Mission, August 5, 1868, as a five-column folio, by John H. Scott, its present proprietor and editor. Originally it was a five-column folio. On the 17th of June, 1869, it was enlarged to a six-column, and on July 28, 1870, to an eight-column. Mr. Scott has always had an interest in the paper, but has had partners at different times; C. H. Howard, from 1869 to 1871; H. T. Perry, from 1871 to 1875, and C. H. Howard and Lewis McMillin, from 1875 to 1877, since which time he has been sole proprietor. The Journal was Republican in politics until the gubernatorial campaign of 1882, during which it supported G. W. Glick for Governor, as against John P. St. John.

The Neosho County Democrat.—This paper was started January 3, 1883, by A. Conn, as an eight-column folio. It is Democratic in politics. Mr. Conn has had a varied experience in newspaper publishing, commencing in 1845. During the years 1853-54-55 he published the Van Wert Democrat, at Van Wert, Ohio, and the Sidney Telegraph, at Sidney, Nebraska, in 1874 and 1875. He spent the money he had made in the newspaper business, in prospecting for coal, near Ponca, Dixon Co., Neb. He then traveled on the continent of Europe a year or two, and in 1879, worked eight months in the office of the London (England) Telegraph. In January, 1883, he started the Democrat.

PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Banks.—The first bank was established, in Osage Mission, by Pierce & Mitchell, in April, 1871. It was subsequently organized under the State law, as the Neosho County Saving Bank, with an authorized capital of $100,000, and a paid-up capital of $20,000. In August, 1876, J. B. Pierce sold his interest in the concern to E. W. Bradbury and the firm became Mitchell & Bradbury. The firm failed in February, 1879. At this time J. B. Pierce established the City Bank. It is a private institution engaged in a general banking exchange, loan and collection business. It is also a bank of deposit.

The Neosho County Bank was started by C. C. Nelson, in March, 1881, with S. F. Denison, cashier. This concern lasted even forty days, when Nelson abandoned the business, taking up his residence as a British subject in the Dominion of Canada.

The Mission Mills.—These mills are located on Flat Rock Creek, about a mile east of Osage Mission. The building is a two and a half story frame above a stone basement story. These mills were built by Ryan & Roycroft in 1869, at a cost, including, machinery and power, of $22,000. They were sold in 1875 to the First National Bank, of Parsons, and by this bank sold in 1877 to the present owners, Hutchings & Barnes. The machinery consists of four run of buhrs, with a capacity of 100 barrels of flour per day, and is propelled by a fifty horse-power engine. An elevator is in the upper part of the building, with a capacity of storing 20,000 bushels of wheat. The market for the products of these mills is found in the local demand, in the Indian Territory and in Texas.

The Osage Mission Stone Mill was built in 1875, by A. W. Althouse. The building is a small stone structure, 30 feet long by 20 feet in width, one and a half stories high. It contains three run of stone, having a capacity for grinding seventy bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of corn per day. The motive power is a twenty horse-power engine.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

A. W. ALTHOUSE, stone mill, is a native of Pennsylvania, born June 24, 1833, and in early youth went to Caroline, Tompkins Co., N. Y., where he grew up on a farm. In 1847 moving to Waupun, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he farmed some, dug and drilled wells for ten years. In 1857 he married Miss Helen Ketchum, then went into a pump and machine shop, coming to Kansas in 1869; he farmed awhile there; worked in J. A. Hutchings saw mill and afterward went to farming in Cowley County, returning, however, to Osage Mission and working in the National and Flat Rock Mills. In 1876 he rented the National Mill and ran it until 1878, when he commenced building the stone mill, doing the mason, carpentering and millwrighting of the building, so that it is the product of his own hands. It has a capacity of thirty barrels of flour a day and 100 bushels of corn meal and 200 of feed. He does a good grist or custom trade and some merchant trade. He had a capital of $700 when he undertook building the mill which cost $4,500. They had five children. June 24, 1882, his youngest son, De Witt, aged eighteen, was caught in one of the bands and his leg cut off above the knee, besides injuries to his back. The accident happened in the mill at 2 p. m. and at 2 a. m. next morning he died.

W. E. BAGLEY, carriage painter with C. Cooney, is a native of Zanesville, Muskingum Co., Ohio, born in 1836. He learned his trade of J. W. MacCormick, having his papers for his indenture as apprentice made out, he served from May 10, 1854 to 1858, remaining till 1861 as journeyman workman. He then enlisted in the three months' service, in the Fifteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company C, and when the time expired he re-enlisted in the Seventy-eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company C, and served until 1865, or three years and four months, returning to Zanesville and worked at his trade till he commenced his travels, visiting Cincinnati, Paris, Ky., Nashville, Tenn., back to Columbus in 1868, and then to Milwaukee, Wis., where he worked in the La Crosse, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad shops until 1869, when he returned to Columbus, Ohio, where he worked till 1871, then to Zanesville, and was married to Miss Habner in Somerset, where he remained working at his trade till 1877, when he moved to Clinton, Mo., coming to Osage Mission in 1879, and taking the position he now occupies. He has had seven children, of whom five are deceased and two sons alive. Mr. Bagley is a member of the Catholic Church.

I. S. BAHNEY, hardware and tin store. The business was first established in 1868, in a building 12x16, and a stock of $500, under the firm name of J. M. Boyle & C. M. Drake. In 1871 Bahney bought C. F. Drake's interest, and in 1873 Mr. Drake bought back, taking Mr. Boyle's interest, which continued until 1880, when Mr. Bahney took charge of the whole enterprise, the firm now being I. S. Bahney. During these fourteen years the business has increased until he now occupies a building 25x100 feet and carries a stock of some $1,400 and does a business of about $3,500. During the war Mr. Bahney was a soldier in an Ohio regiment and is now a member of the Blue lodge of the Masonic order.

JOEL BARNHART, steam saw and grist mill, was born in North Carolina and raised in Indiana. They moved to Indiana, and then to Illinois, and finally to Missouri, came from there to Osage Mission in 1866, locating in Mission Township on a farm. In 1867 the two brothers, Joel and David, put up a steam saw mill on the Neosho River, below Erie, at a place named by them Slabtown. In 1869 they put up a grist mill. In 1874 they moved the mill to Thayer and soon afterwards sold it, but have lately got it back and are running it. When the mill was moved the family moved to Osage Mission on account of educational advantages, which his daughter Lizzie has profited by. She commenced teaching in 1876, first in No. 8, then in Star school, also in the Done district No. 34, and Dodd district. In 1880 she went to the State Normal of Emporia, and returning to the Mission she was appointed to the Primary department of the city school, where she is now engaged. Losing her mother in 1873 the family were placed in the hands of herself and sister Emma, who is also teacher, engaged in teaching at the present time. Mr. Barnhart is a member of the I. O. of O. F. The milling firm is known as Barnhart Bros.

C. E. BAYLIES, M. D., and surgeon. On the 15th of March, 1875, he graduated from the Chicago Medical College and came at once to Kansas, locating in Osage Mission, forming a partnership with Dr. Nealy, one of the early physicians of this place; he practiced alone, however, most of the time until 1880, when he entered into partnership with Dr. C. E. Steadman, the firm being Steadman & Baylies, physicians and surgeons. They are doing an extensive practice, extending over a fifteen miles circuit.

S. C. BECK, jeweler, native of Leavenworth, Kas. Mr. Beck's father, Stephen Beck, who came to Kansas in 1856, was a native of Baden, his mother a native of Prussia. They were married in 1850, and in 1856 located in Leavenworth, Kas. While here he was at times obliged to hide from the different Free-state or Pro-slavery parties or go with them. When the war broke out he enlisted in the Ninth Kansas Volunteer Infantry, Captain Coleman's company. In 1865 he returned home and located on a farm on Four Mile Creek, Neosho County, this being one of the earliest settlements in the county. Here he remained till 1871, moving to Osage Mission. He went into the grocery and bakery business with Jacob Wolf. At this they made money. Mr. Beck withdrew, however, and retired to his stock farm, where he died September 25, 1873. After his death the family moved back to the city. Here they were burned out but built again, and Mr. S. C. Beck, who is now in the firm of Steadman & Beck, jewelers, was robbed, losing nearly all their stock, but since have recovered and are now doing a good business.

JACOB BEECHWOOD, farmer, Section 20, P. O. Osage Mission. Native of France, born in 1818, and came to America in 1838, landing in New York, where he married Miss E. Grosbeck, by which marriage he had four children, two now deceased; but he lost her and married a second time to his present wife, Miss C. Gilman, having four children by the last. In 1865 Mr. Beechwood came to Kansas, being the first settler on this section, arriving and locating among the Indians, who helped him erect his cabin. His family suffered from sickness the first three years almost continuously, but he persevered, paying fabulous prices for his provisions, but succeeding in raising fair crops he managed to live, now having a fine homestead with all the natural advantages that a man could wish, wood, water, a good stone quarry, and fertile soil, well fenced and cultivated, with a fine residence. He came to this country to enjoy the advantages of the Mission Church, of which he is an earnest member. Mr. Beechwood has sixteen acres in tame grasses, thirty-five acres in pasture, and the rest under the plow.

J. M. BOYLE, hardware. He came to Kansas in 1864, dropping over the line just as Price was closing in with the Union army at Kansas City, so his course was attended with considerable danger. At Fort Lincoln, in Bourbon County, he just escaped capture, and was a witness of the burning of that post; he finally arrived at Fort Scott, which was his destination, where he went to work for C. F. Drake as a tinner, where he was employed till 1867, when he came to Osage Mission, and opened a hardware store in a building 18x20, and a small stock. This was the first hardware house in Neosho County, firm name was J. M. Boyle; Mr. Drake was the company. In 1871, Mr. Bahney bought an interest in the firm, and in 1873, Mr. Drake bought his interest out, when he went into business with Mr. Tucker, and in 1880, he established his present business, now assuming large proportions. In addition to his hardware business, he has McCormick's farm machinery. Mr. Boyle joined the I. O. O. F. in 1870.

R. A. BROGAN, M. D., drugs, native of New York, born in 1842. His early life was spent on the farm, and later on he engaged in teaching school. In 1869, he graduated from the St. Louis Medical College, and at once came to Osage Mission and opened practice, having the practice of St. Ann's Academy, and that of the college of St. Francis. In 1880, he opened his drug store, carries a stock of $1,200, and does a business of $4,000 a year. The Doctor is a member of the Catholic Church.

JOHN R. BRUNT, drugs and groceries, a native of Madison County, Ind., born in 1845. Having got a common school education, his father intended to give him a college course, but coming to Kansas in 1865, he did not return to finish his education, but with gun and pony, commenced scouting and hunting; this was in Neosho County and vicinity. For a while he worked on the stock farm of Mr. Stewart, hear Humboldt, Allen County; he then went into the school room and taught until 1872, when he was appointed Deputy Sheriff; at this and in the Clerk's office he busied himself until 1875, when he was elected Sheriff of Neosho County, and re-elected in 1877. In 1881, he went into business with P. W. Hinsen; the firm is now Hinsen & Brunt; they carry $4,000 in stock, and do a business of $8,000. He and his partner married sisters, the Misses VanLanningham. Mr. Brunt has been a member of the Masonic order since 1877, and now one of the City Council, also being on the School Board.

E. M. CLEMENTS, grocer, native of Kentucky, born in 1827. When quite young, his parents moved to Illinois, where he was raised and educated, farming there and dealing in stock, and he was also in the mercantile line. In 1873, he moved to Kansas, bringing with him some fine stock, and locating on a farm in Mission Township; he did not remain here long, but moved to Bourbon County, where he farmed till 1878, then returning to Neosho, he bought a farm in Grant Township, farming in grain and stock till 1881, when he bought a stock of groceries of L. Rosecrans, for some $1,800, and is now doing a good business of $6,000 to $8,000; the firm name was Clements & Co. until last July, when it became E. M. Clements. While in Illinois, he married Miss Jennings. His mother lives here, aged eighty-three, and is an active, intelligent lady.

CHARLES C. COFFINBERRY, agricultural implements and farm machinery, is a native of Richland County, Ohio, born June 30, 1827, and while still quite young, his parents moved to Michigan, where they were early settlers. In 1847, he went to Dane County, Wis., and in 1857, moved to Kansas, crossing to Atchison; though he was offered a good chance there, he went on to Nemaha County, where he settled on a farm. In 1859, he was elected to the Territorial Legislature, and during the dry year and famine of 1860, he acted as by proxy, one of the twelve Commissioners to distribute aid, sending some sixty-eight loads to his own county. In 1861, he was elected to the State Legislature; while in Nemaha, was continually in the political field. In 1866, he moved to Neosho County, and went to farming and trading, and in February, 1882, bought his present business of J. R. Detwiler, and has done a business of some $12,000 this year. During the War of the Rebellion, he was in the State Militia, and was called out on the Little Blue, and was also on the first raid of Price. Mr. Coffinberry was a Whig, formerly, and is now a Republican in politics.

F. P. COOMES, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Kentucky. Born July 27, 1869. Moved to Illinois in 1853 with his family. His father lived to the age of eighty-six years, and his grandfather to the advanced age of ninety-six; so we find Mr. Coomes, at the age of seventy-four, hale and strong. In 1867, in company with his son and Mr. Mattingby, he came to Kansas, locating in Neosho County. He bought his claim of a man named Whitman. The neigborhood being then a wilderness of prairie, not a furrow turned; but he proceeded to make a home, enduring privations. Year by year he succeeded with but two partial failures of crops. He has now a well-improved farm, raising in 1882 fifty-five bushels to the acre, besides crops of castor beans and oats. In 1834, Mr. Coomes married Miss Hogan. They now have six boys and two girls. His son Robert died while in the army. He was a member of the Ninetieth Illinois Volunteer Infantry. Mr. Coomes, 1869, was elected Township Trustee and County Commissioner in 1874.

CHARLES COONEY, carriage factory and workshops, established his busines in 1871, starting with a small capital. He has built his shops and is preparing to build larger and more commodious work shops for the manufacture of carriages. He has now on hand a large stock of finished work and is constantly increasing his stock of fine work.

E. CRAVENS, grocer, native of White County, Ill. Born in 1840. He was raised on his father's farm, which comprised some 500 or 600 acres, and engaged in grain and stock farming. In 1866, he came to Kanaas and while looking for a claim, he and his brother-in-law, William Rhods, made the shingles for the first business house built in Osage Mission, then opened by L. P. Foster & Co. He located his claim and returned East for his family, bringing them out in October of the same year. His place in those pioneer days was the stopping place for travelers in this wild Osage Indian reserve. Among others, he had Bishop Vail, of the Episcopal Church resting at the old place. In 1875, he sold the farm, moving to Osage Mission, then traveled for Garr, Scott & Co., of Richmond, Ind., with farm machinery, etc. In 1879, we find him located on another farm in Walnut Grove, Neosho County, which he farmed until 1881, when he sold out and came to town, buying the stock of groceries then owned by the firm of Custis & Custis. He now carries $1,800 in stock and does about $6,000 in business. Mr. Cravens married Miss Price, in Posey County, Ind., They have three boys and one girl. He is a charter member of the Erie Masonic Lodge, No. 76, organized in 1879—the first Masonic Lodge organized in Neosho County. Has been Justice of the Peace a number of terms, also Township Trustee two terms. In politics is a Republican.

E. H. CRAWFORD, harness and saddles. The business was established in 1868, being the oldest business house without change of name south of Fort Scott and west of Emporia. Since December 27, 1880, Mr. Crawford has been traveling for Askew Bros., in saddlery hardware, Kansas City, while Mrs. Crawford has managed the business, doing an almost etirely cash business of from $4,000 to $6,000 a year. They are both natives of Illinois, where they were married in 1866. Her maiden name was Sutherland. Mr. Crawford learned the trade of his father before leaving home. In 1866, they moved to Missouri and located on a farm. Here he was taken sick, and his wife attended him, suffering herself the while from sickness and hardships. They succeeded in collecting a little, and with their ox team and wagon moved to Fort Scott, Kan. While there he worked at his trade in a shop owned by Mr. Ware. They came to Osage Mission in 1868, and have built up a good business, having bought town property. They were living in their own house when it was destroyed by fire March 20, 1874. In this disaster they lost all the household furniture, and their only child, a little girl of two years of age, was only saved through the courage of Mrs. Crawford, who rescued her from the burning house. Mr. C. is a member of the Masonic Lodge, also belongs to the A. O. U. W.

JOHN DALE, proprietor of the Southern Hotel, native of Lawrence County, Ind., born in 1831, and when nine years of age moved with parents to Missouri. While there he gave his attention to farming and mercantile life, in 1874, being elected to the State Legislature. In 1879 he came to Kansas, locating at Osage Mission, opening the hotel while his son manages the livery stable which is attached to the hotel. While in Missouri he married Miss Pyle. They have nine daughters and two sons. Mr. Dale is one of the charter members of the A. O. U. W.; of the firm of Dale & Herod, real estate brokers.

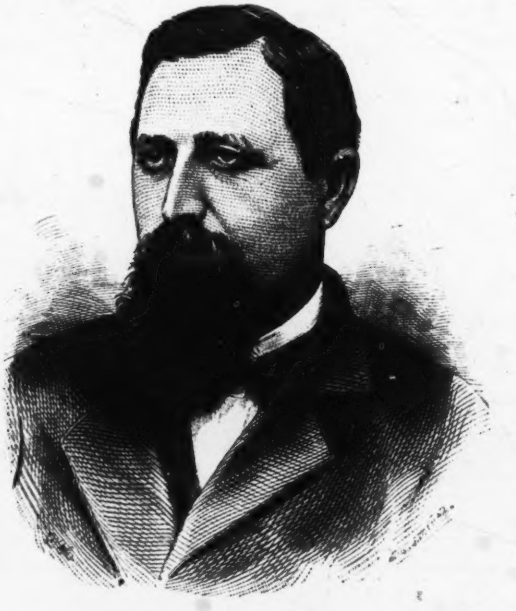
B. DALEY, physician and surgeon, was born in County of Picton, Nova Scotia, in the the year 1828. He commenced studying medicine under Dr. W. Bickett, and enlisted in Johnson's Light Horse Artillery on February 14, 1862. In fall of same year was elected and commissioned Second Lieutenant. Shortly after his company joined the First Missouri Cavalry, Missouri State Militia Volunteers, and became Company L of same regiment, and he was Acting Quartermaster for battery, contracting rheumatism while scouting for nearly two years. He resigned about the close of the year 1863. In March, 1864, crossed the plains in company with Dr. Bickett, through Black Hills, and joined the Bridger train at the Red Buttes, North Platte, Wyoming Territory, when they had a force of 375 men and seven women, with eighty-seven wagons, drawn some by horses, some by mules, and some by oxen, went all together under one organization to protect themselves from Indians, over the Big Horn Mountains for 600 miles. They made the road before them, without any marks of civilization; nothing but the wild Indians and the buffalo, elk, deer, bear, etc., which they never lost sight of from sunrise to sunset. They were well supplied with meat, killing all the whole train could use. By times they had to keep an advance guard in front of the train to scatter the buffalo so as to keep them from running through and destroying the train. Had three engagements with the Indians while going over the Big Horn—one with the Snakes and two with the Sioux and Cheyennes. At length, after 104 days from St. Joe, Mo., they reached Virginia City. Only one man died on the whole trip, at Stinking Water, Big Horn Mountain. This road being condemned by the government soon after, on account of so many trains being massacred by the Indians, who came after them. The party was so long crossing through Black Hills and Big Horn Mountains, far from any civilization, some of the men became almost in despair of ever getting out of the mountains and valleys, and talked strongly of hanging Maj. James Bridger, who was the guide, thinking he had deceived them, and that they would never get out, but would be all killed by the Indians or starve, while others opposed it. Maj. Bridger still encouraged them; told them they would soon reach the Yellowstone River, which they did, after about six or seven weeks, and on the 4th day of July, 1864, crossed the Yellowstone in a boat erected by themselves. A week after they arrived in Virginia City. In 1868 Mr. Daley sailed on the steamboat Deer Lodge from Fort Benton to St. Joe, Mo., being twenty-six days from Benton to Sioux City Iowa. In spring of 1869 he went to Texas, practicing medicine in Hill County. He had a very large practice, until by several attacks of rheumatism he had to leave there in 1873; coming to St Joe, Mo, leaving his wife at her father's, Erath County, Tex Afterwards he went to Illinois. In 1864 and 1865 he attended a course of lectures at St. Louis Medical College. He passed an examination and received a certificate to practice, when he returned to Illinois and practiced medicine in Mossville, Peoria County, where he remained until 1880, gaining a good practice. During this time he went to Keokuk and attended another course of lectures in the winter of 1877-78, and graduated in spring of 1878, continuing practicing in Mossville, Ill., until 1880, when he moved to Kansas and settled in Osage Mission on account of the great advantages offered there in the way of good schools and churches, conducted by the Catholic Church, of which he is a member. He has been married twice—first in Kentucky, in 1852, to Miss Priscilla Bickett, by whom he had two daughters—one born in Canada West, and the other in St. Joe, Mo. Six years after his wife died, at the time the youngest daughter was born. He was in the army at the time, April 27, 1862. He remained nine years a widower. When practicing medicine in Texas he married Miss Ella Whitacre, in 1871, by whom he had two sons. Has succeeded in gaining a living practice in Osage Mission, where he expects to remain the rest of his days.

P. H. DENT, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Kentucky, born in 1825. At the age of seven he lost his parents. As soon as he was old enough he learned the carpenter's trade at Mount Washington. Soon afterward moving to Illinois, where he worked at his trade and farming. In 1857 he located in North Missouri, where he, in 1861, had to protect himself and property from the bushwhackers, and joined the State Militia. Coming to Kansas in 1877, buying his claim or farm of Mike Hanlin; since improving and building. Also building a dwelling for C. Redinger, one for Mr. Beechwood, also for C. Cooney, of Osage Mission, and a large dwelling for J. Knott, of Crawford County, and others. In 1861 Mr. Dent married Miss Beecher. They have six children—four boys and two girls.

M. DEVINE, grocer, a native of Renfrew County, Canada, born 1843. He came to Kansas in 1871, locating in Crawford County, going on to the stock ranch of C. C. Copeland. In 1879 he established his business here, in which he is doing well, carrying a stock of about $8,000, and doing a business of $25,000. Mr. Devine has served the public in a number of offices, having been on the City Council three terms, Township Trustee, Assessor, etc. In politics he is a Democrat, and belongs to the Catholic Church.

V. A. DOBBINS, dress making, born in 1835. Her husband is a native of Ireland and came to Randolph County when two years of age. In 1857 they were married, and October 13, 1866 came to Kansas from Illinois in a wagons; on arriving here they camped out under tents till they located their claim. The cold weather coming on they suffered very much and were compelled to take refuge in a friendly cabin near. They remained on their claim till 1868 when they came to Osage Mission and opened what was known as the Little Hotel; they did very well at this business, and in 1872 returned to the farm, where they farmed till 1874, when Mrs. Dobbins opened her dress-making establishment, and is doing a large business. Mr. Dobbins is engaged in the watch and clock business. Their early experience is full of privations and hardships when they had hardly enough to sustain life, and the rates on provisions were fabulous.

J. L. DENISON, attorney, a native of Westmoreland County, Pa., born July 11, 1837. Was educated at Franklin Academy, Chambersburg, Pa. In April, 1860, he removed to Kansas, locating at Iola, where he prepared to engage in the practice of his profession, but was prevented by the breaking out of the war. On the 16th of October, 1861, he enlisted in Company E, Ninth Kansas Cavalry Volunteers, and was promoted through all the grades to Sergeant-Major. In 1864 he re-enlisted as a veteran volunteer, and on the re-organization of the regiment was commissioned First Lieutenant Company B, and assigned to duty as Acting Adjutant of the regiment, in which position he continued until his discharge in August, 1865. He returned to Kansas in September, 1865, and during the winter of that year located on the Osage Indian Reservation, and in July, 1866 in connection with A. H. Roe opened a trading post called Erie. In 1867 he was elected County Clerk of the then newly-organized county of Neosho, and upon the organization of the District Court in said county was appointed Clerk of that court, which position he held until January, 1875, when he entered into partnership with Hon. C. F. Hutchings, forming the law firm of Hutchings & Denison. Mr. Denison was Master of the first Masonic Lodge organized south of Humboldt, is a member of J. D. Rush Chapter No. 21, Royal Arch Masons, at Osage Mission, Kansas, and has served three terms as high priest of said chapter, is a charter member of Cœur de Leon Commandery No. 17, Knights Templar, located at Parsons, Kansas. November 29, 1868, he married Miss Mattie Hoagland, of Iola, Kansas. They have three children.



J. L. Denison

JOHN DULLING, farmer, Section 20, P. O. Osage Mission, a native of Queens County, Ireland, was born in 1836, and in 1875 immigrated to America, landing in New York, where he worked awhile, then going on a farm in New Jersey. In 1859 he married and came west to Kansas in 1865, locating in a wilderness among the Indians, who were to be seen in his neighborhood two years after his settlement on what is now a well improved farm. His only white neighbors in 1865 were Mr. Beechwood and Lawrence Slater, the latter had come west with him but afterward sold his claim and moved away. Mr. Dulling having arrived before the Osage Ceded Land troubles got his farm without any trouble, though he aided and sympathized with his neighbor settlers. He reports the crops of 1882 the best he has had. Mr. Dulling has served the public as Supervisor and is a member of the Democratic party. His family consists of five children—one son and four daughters.

JOSEPH FAGER, farmer, Section 1, P. O. Osage Mission, a native of Fayette County, Ky., was born in 1855. His parents came from Baden, Germany, to America in 1852; landing at New Orleans; they went to Lexington, Ky., and farmed there. In 1869 his father died, leaving his widow with a family of seven sons and two daughters. In 1880 they moved to Kansas and located on the McKiernan farm, their present home. Mr. Joseph Fager was raised on a farm and now, with his brothers, farms 160 acres with good results. In 1882 they raised forty-five bushels of corn to an acre and twenty bushels of wheat, which is a good average. He also handles stock enough to consume the corn raised.

C. B. FRASER, farmer, Section 22, P.O. Osage Mission, is a native of Nova Scotia, and was born in 1830. He was raised and educated at home, and when starting on his travels went to Boston, Mass., and from there to Michigan, working in the pineries thirteen years. In 1861 he enlisted in the Fifth Michigan Volunteer Infantry, Company C, and fought in eighteen hard battles, being wounded at Williamsburg in the hand, and in the leg at Fredericksburg, and was discharged February 17, 1863. He returned to Michigan, where he remained until 1868, when he moved to Iowa, but the climate did not suit him, so he moved to Neosho County, Kan., in 1870, locating on his present farm, which he has improved, having fine orchards, and for 1882 abundant crops. He belonged to the Settlers' Protective Association, and deeded his farm in 1874. In the spring of 1866 he married Mrs. Crews Staltz, widow of George Staltz, who was drowned in White River, Mo. He was in the Nineteenth Iowa Volunteers. She had three sons at the time of marriage. Mr. Fraser is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

J. P. GALBREATH, farmer and stock dealer, Section 7, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Maryland, born in 1832. In 1878 he came to Kansas and located on a farm, in Section 7. While farming he also gave his attention to other business, especially to improving the county roads, taking contracts and grading the first roads in Neosho County, completing the first three miles in the present year of 1882. He is now in the cattle and hog business, shipping from Osage Mission, which is one of the principal shipping points in this part of the State.

LEWIS GITTINGS, dealer in lumber, lath, shingles, etc., native of Kentucky, born in 1823. He is a practical lumberman, having spent some six years in the pineries of Wisconsin at Black River Falls. We find him in Illinois in 1854, farming and handling lumber. In 1872 he came to Osage Mission, Kan., and entered the lumber business by buying Mr. Haynes' interest in Haynes & Weatherwax's yard. They then bought the stock in Mr. Brown's yard, and also that of Ben Venams, thus controlling the business. In 1881 two other yards were established, but he succeeded in consolidating them, and carried on the business since as Lewis Gittings. He sold one and one-half million feet of lumber in 1879, and in 1882 about 600,000 of lumber, and the same of shingles. His competitors now are the firm of Koenig & Wimsatt. Mr. Gittings is a member of the Catholic Church, and a straightforward business man. His family are living in Osage Mission.

GREEN & TEEPLE, furniture factory, established in 1883, January 1. Mr. Green came to Kansas in 1870, locating in Wilson County, farming till 1875. He then moved to Gilford in order to educate his children, and in 1879 came to Osage Mission, and went into the furniture business with Mr. Martin. The firm was known as Martin & Green till Mr. Martin sold his interest, and it became Green & Nanzworthy, until 1882, when Mr. Green took possession of the business, carying it till the present firm was formed. They carry a full stock of furniture and undertaking goods, and are doing a good business. Mr. Green is a charter member of the Masonic Lodge, 412, of Hardenburg, Ind. He was also a member of the Thirteenth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, Company A, and is now a member of the G. A. R.

SEBASTIAN GRONER, farmer, Section 15, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Germany, born in 1815, and came to America in 1829, having learned the trade of weaver. In 1836 his wife, who was born in his neighborhood in Germany, came to America, and in 1845 they were married, coming to Kansas in 1866, locating where the family now live, putting up a log cabin, and opening a farm from the wild prairie sod. The family lived in the old cabin until one day in 1878, a cyclone swept their house away, taking the mother with it, but luckily she escaped without harm of a serious nature. They then built their present residence, and prospered in their work till they had the misfortune to lose their father and protector, who died in 1882, March 22, leaving Mrs. Groner, Mary (now Mrs. Reit), Kate (now Mrs. Lee, a widow), John, Lina, Anna and Henry—the last now farms the homestead.

J. T. HARSHFIELD, grocer, native of Greene County, Ind., born in 1845. He and his brothers came to Kansas in 1865, locating on a farm, where they made a living by breaking sod for themselves and their neighbors; at this business, he continued until 1876, when he came to Osage Mission, and clerked for J. Koenig in the grocery. In 1878 he opened an establishment under the firm name of Harshfield Bros., until 1880, when it became J. T. Harshfield. He carries a stock of $1,460, and does a business of $4,500. Mr. H. married Miss Shoptaw, who is now dead, leaving him three boys. She died in January, 1882.

MOTHER BRIDGET HAYDEN, a member of the Loretto Society, Superior of the Academy of St. Ann, Kan., is a native of Kilkenny, Ireland, born in 1815. In 1820 her family moved to America, located in St. Louis. Mother Bridget entered the Convent at Cape Girardeau, and in 1842 took the veil, renouncing the world, and becoming a Sister of Loretto, having their mother house in Marion County, Ky., and in 1847, together with Mother Concordia Henning, superior then, Sister Mary Van Prater, Sister Viencentia Van Cool and herself, were sent among the Osage Indians. This little band of Sisters, with Father Shoenmakers, started a mission, lived in a little world of their own with no protector, teaching the savage nations to worship their Savior. The Indians learned to love their teachers and in this way they were protected. These patient, persevering Sisters endured hardships and privations for years, and in 1859, Sister Bridget Hayden became Mother Superior of this mission. Under her care the school has increased from six girls in 1847 to 135 in 1882. The buildings and improvements are worth some $50,000, and there is a farm of 260 acres. There are now twenty-two Sisters in the Convent. They relate many touching reminiscences of native Indian girls, and their love for the Holy Sisters.

J. S. HEDZARD, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Providence, R. I., born December 24, 1823. In 1858 he determined to go to Kansas and cast his future with hers. Arriving in Jefferson City, he took the stage for Harrisonville. He got only to Mound City, Linn County. Here he took part in the Free state struggle. Was out with Jim Lane, having a narrow escape, when taking some negroes to Leavenworth, from a party of Quantrell's men, and when over in Cass County, Mo., was captured four times, and was finally let go by the bushwhackers with only his pants and shirt for clothing. He located on a farm near Mound City in 1859, but the year of the drought compelled him to sell it, and he got a fifty-dollar note, that never was paid, and two barrels of whisky, and then started for Illinois, with a drove of hogs, arriving in Richland County, where his drove died of cholera, leaving him almost penniless. He then worked as house carpenter; getting to St. Louis, he went up the Missouri River to Wyandotte. Here he joined the force under Major Sturges, and followed Rain's force into Missouri, going to Springfield, Carthage and Wilson's Creek, then to Kansas, again going to Paola and taking his family to Leavenworth, he hauled goods to Osage Mission for G. P. Foster & Co. In 1866 he left sixteen herd of cattle to winter here and went West; in the spring six of the cattle were alive. In 1867 he took his present claim and opened up his farm. He has always had good crops, raising 89 bushels of corn to an acre on an eight-acre piece, and in another season 79 bushels and 4 quarts to an acre on 16 acres. This was measured, ground and weighed. He has been married twice, in 1846, and again in 1868. He has ten children.

GEORGE HILL, lawyer, was born in Bartholomew County, Ind., April 4, 1847. He removed to Iowa in 1855, and moved from Iowa to McDonough County, Ill., in 1861. While living in McDonough County he attended Lincoln University. He attended law school at Ann Arbor, Mich., in the winter of 1871-72. His father was a farmer, and he was raised on a farm. He removed to Osage Mission, Kas., in 1872, and read law with Simons & Coggswell. He was admitted to the bar in 1874, and the same year he formed a law partnership with Mr. John Hall, being then Hall & Hill. He was elected Justice of the Peace in 1880, and re-elected in 1882. He is now alone practicing law. He is a member of A. O. U. W. organization, and Democrat in politics.

HENRY HITPAS, carpenter, native of Cleveland, Ohio, born in 1860; he is of German parentage; they were natives of Westphalia, Germany, and came to America in 1847, locating in Cleveland, where Henry obtained an education. They then moved onto a farm where they remained six years. He then returned to the city, learning the carpenter trade, and worked at it until November, 1882. He came West to Kansas, locating at Osage Mission, where he means to farm and work at his trade. Mr. Hitpas is a member of the Catholic Church.

CHARLES H. HOWARD, Postmaster and express agent, is a native of Oneida County, N. Y., where he was born August 4, 1832. In 1844 his parents removed to Dundee, Kane Co., Ill., where he finished his education at the High School. In 1852 he entered into mercantile business in Crystal Lake, Ill., having the winter preceding taught the village school in Algonquin, Ill. In 1853 he taught school in Rome, Wis., and also opened a store in that village. In the fall of 1855 he removed to the new town of Eau Claire, Wis., where he was elected Register of Deeds, holding that position for three consecutive terms, from January 1, 1856, to the end of 1861. In that year, his health having become impaired, he took a trip to Montana Territory, staying six months in Salt Lake City while absent. In 1864 he was war correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, specially assigned to accompany Grant in his famous campaign of the Wilderness. At the close of the war he entered into mercantile business in Manchester, Ill., and afterward in Chicago during the year 1866, as a member of the commission house of Hamlin & Howard. In April, 1867, he emigrated to Kansas, locating finally in July of that year at Osage Mission, Neosho County, where he again, with S. S. Warner, entered into the mercantile business. In October, 1868, he was appointed Postmaster, which position he held uninterruptedly up to February 20, 1883. He was likewise express agent during that entire period, and yet retains that position. In 1870 he became editor of the Neosho County Journal, which he held for several years; and was also, from 1875, joint owner with John H. Scott, of the entire office and outfit. April 1, 1883, he purchased Mr. Scott's interest in the paper, and assumed entire control as editor and publisher. In 1855 he married Mary J. Robinson, by whom he has two children—Lillian and Edward L., the latter of whom is associated with him in the Journal office. His wife died in 1867, and in 1869 he married Nannie J. Tucker, by which union they have one child—Charles Ernest, born in 1874.

A. JACOBS, clothing, dry goods, boots and shoes. He established his business here in 1880, being now one of the leading firms. He carries when his stock is full about $14,000, and does a business generally of about $30,000. Mr. Jacobs came to Kansas from Quincy, Ill., where he was engaged in the mercantile business. He is one of the charter members of the A. O. U. W., organized in 1874, also charter member of the Knights of Honor, organized in 1876. He is one of the oldest Masons in this section, belonging to the lodge since 1864.

M. F. KENNEDY, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Pennsylvania; born in 1824. He was raised on the farm, and on first traveling West visited Iowa, but returned to his native State, and afterward moved out to Minnesota, locating near New Ulm. When the troubles commenced with the Indians they were compelled to flee. Deserting their cabin home, they arrived in New Ulm at 3 o'clock in the morning. The fighting with the Indians commenced at 4 o'clock, Mr. Kennedy acting as Lieutenant of the force organized. The family remained there till his son, W. B., who had fled to a place of safety, returned. They then immigrated to Iowa, and in 1865 moved to Wyandotte, Kan., working on the K. P. R. R. In 1866 he came to Crawford County, taking a farm on Lime Creek, where the Indians of this section came on their annual hunt. Moving from there in 1868, he located on his present farm too late to avoid the ceded land trouble, not getting his farm deeded till 1876. Mr. Kennedy has been married twice. His wife was formerly Miss Mary Baldweaver. By his first wife he had five children, and ten by the last.

W. B. KENNEDY, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Pennsylvania, born in 1851. In 1855 he came West with his parents, locating in Rochester, Homestead Co., Minn., moving to the western part of the State in 1861, and where the family were obliged to leave their home, driven out by the Indians. While the settlers were fighting at New Ulm, he was left in charge of the horses, but seeing a man running past he was panic-stricken, and followed; crossing the river with a German, and continuing his flight, he arrived next day, worn out, at St. Peters, forty-eight miles away. When he returned next day with a squad of soldiers, they saw the savages in the distance destroying farmhouses, etc. He was ten years of age at this time. He remained with his parents after they moved to Kansas, but in 1869 he went to Iowa, returning to this State in 1874, locating on a farm in Cherokee County; in 1882 buying his present place of his father. In 1875 he married Miss Lambs. They have four children, one deceased.

KOENIG & WIMSATT, lumber dealers. The yard was established in 1881, March 1, and in August Mr. Wimsatt was taken into partnership. They are now doing a good business. Mr. Koenig is a native of Germany. Immigrating to America in 1858, he located in Ohio, and engaged in farming and carpenter trade. Before settling in Kansas, he traveled through Minnesota, Tennessee, Arkansas, Illinois, and from Missouri to his present location. He is a member of the Catholic Church. Both members of the firm are married.

P. LAKE; firm of Lake & Showalters; native of Canada, born February 14, 1852. His parents moved to Illinois, where both father and mother died. In 1865 his brother Reuben and himself came to Kansas, locating on a farm in Neosho County, four and one-half miles west and two miles north of the Mission. This was the first settlement west of the river. For a few years, until 1868, they carried on the farm. Then Reuben went to milling, and in 1871 Peleg started south, taking in the Indian Nation, Texas and Arkansas, returning to the Mission in 1873. He then engaged in farming and mining in Kansas and Missouri. In 1878 Mr. Lake married Miss A. Alexander, daughter of John Alexander. Farmed until 1880, when he moved to the Mission and established his grocery business, now having $3,000 in stock, and doing $15,000 a year in trade or business, forming the firm of Lake & Showalters January 1, 1883. Mr. Lake's family consists of himself and wife, with two children; his wife's sisters are also a part of his family. In politics Mr. Lake is a Democrat.

DR. R. C. LEAKE is a native of Kentucky, born March 13, 1825, commencing the study of medinine in the year 1851, with his brother, Dr. N. G. Leake, M. D., graduating from the University of Louisville, Ky., March 2, 1855. He commenced practice in Clinton, Monroe Co., Mo., on the 1st day of April, 1855, where he continued until he visited Osage Mission, in November, 1868. Took the railroad to Kansas City, and staging it to Fort Scott and this place. Liking the prospect, he purchased four lots from Father Schoenmakers, S. J., on St. Francis Addition, and let the contract of building his house to B. I. Smith. He then returned to his home in Clinton, Monroe Co., Mo., and closed up his business. He put his effects into a two-horse wagon on the 4th of July, 1869, and started for his pioneer home in the West. After fourteen days he arrived and opened his practice, and he soon afterward opened a drug-store, which he closed out in 1870, and established the medical firm of Drs. Leake and Neely. Then dissolved in 1871; continued the practice alone until in 1874. The doctor then closed up his affairs and went back to Shelbina, Mo., where he practiced until 1877. Then established himself in St. Louis until 1878. His wife's health became so poor that he at once returned to Osage Mission, where he has been stationed since, enjoying a lucrative practice, serving most of the years since as medical director of the College of St. Francis. May 17, 1856, he married Miss Teresa E. Greenwell. They have had three children, one daughter and two sons; the oldest a daughter; she died at the age of two years, and youngest a son, and he died at age of five years. Has but one surviving child, and that is a son. Dr. Leake is a member of the Catholic Church.

T. H. LOCK, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Kentucky, born in 1834. He was raised on a farm, and moving to Illinois, remained there in the same line until moving to Kansas. While in Illinois he married Miss Littier. In 1877 he moved to Kansas, locating in Neosho County, buying his farm of 160 acres of George Odell, who had partly improved it, planting some seedling peaches—the trees are still standing. Mr. Lock has, however, built and fenced and has also directed his attention to stock, grading his cattle in Short-horn, and having a fine strain of hogs. Their family consists of eight children—four boys and four girls.

FRANCIS McCLARNEN, farmer, Section 9, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Ireland, born in 1838. The family of four brothers and one sister came over to America, and at once came to Kansas, locating in 1867 on four adjoining claims, taking wild prairie and improving it, building their cabins. The party consisted of James, Francis, Henry and Thomas, the last two are twins, and a sister who is now Mrs. Smith; two of the claims, those of James and Henry, were entered at once on money borrowed at 50 per cent., but, through his lawyer's neglect, Francis did not get his till 1874. For the fifteen years he has been here he has made a great improvement, fencing, planting an orchard, and reports good crops from the first, the best corn crop being that of 1882. He is also grading his native cattle, with Short-horns, having a seven-eighths blood now. Mr. McClarnen has been married twice, and is now a widower. He has one boy by his first marriage living and two girls by his second. In 1872 he was Supervisor and again in 1880.

Came to America in 1853 In 1857 he came to Kansas and located on what is known as the Kaiser farm, where he at present is farming in grain and stock and doing well. The last year, 1882, his crops of corn, wheat, flax and fruits were excellent. He brought to the State nine children, of whom the eldest, John, is a teacher. The others are all working at home on the farm and are members of the Catholic Church.

D. L. McDOUGAL, grocery, is a native of Canada, born in 1827. He learned the grocery business in his old home, and in 1872 established himself in business in Osage Mission. From the first year he did a smashing trade, and as the panic and grasshopper years of 1873-74 and '75 passed, continued on steadily and is now established on a firm basis. He carries a stock of about $2,500, and does a business of $15,000 a year. In 1882 he started a marble yard in partnership with Mr. Stanley. They carry a variety of valuable stones.

L. W. McKIEARNAN, retired, is a native of Illinois, born in 1838. While in this State he married Miss McKiearnan, and in 1868 his father, Peter, came to Kansas, where he followed the latter part of the same year. His father had already entered 160 acres where they lived for years near enough to the town to enjoy both the market and school facilities. In 1880 they moved to Osage Mission where Mr. McKiearnan entered into business, but his health failed and he went to traveling. He has since returned home somewhat restored to health. The first serious break in his constitution occurred in 1862, while serving in the First Illinois Cavalry. His father, Peter, is a native of Virginia, but was raised in Kentucky, having come to Kansas in 1868. He relates many early scenes and incidents of the Indians before they left the Mission.

J. MARTIN, meat market, native of Ohio, born in 1834. He came to Kansas, in 1877, locating in Osage Mission, where he went into the furniture business, however he sold this to Hentzen & Co., going into the meat business; the firm then was Martin & Son, but this year, 1882, it was changed to Martin & Bernhauser, they are doing a good business. Mr. Martin was a soldier in the Rebellion, serving in the One Hundred and Twenty-first Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company H. He served three years.

P. W. MESS, teacher, a native of Luxemburg, Germany, born in 1842, and came to America, in 1847, with his parents, settling in Ohio. Went to school, and after attending Heidelberg College he entered the One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company D, and in the battle of Dallas, Ga., he lost an arm, returning home November 8, 1864. He then attended Heidelberg, at Tiffin; leaving there he went to the Wesleyan University, finishing at the Benedictines, St. Vincents, Pa. He then came west on a flying trip and located in Neosho County, teaching in district schools the years of 1874-75-76. In the fall of 1877, he took charge of one of the rooms in the college of the Catholic Mission, where he is now engaged. He is a single man and has valuable home property in the city.

In 1878, he came to Kansas, remaining three months, then returned to Ohio, and nine months afterward he came to Kansas and opened a saloon in Osage Mission, having been in the same business for three years in Ohio; in this line he prospered until the Prohibition Amendment closed his saloon. On the 25th of April, 1881, he opened the Neosho House. Besides the hotel he has a fine piece of land consisting of eighty acres, adjoining the city, in Section 24, Mission Township. Mr. Muller is a Democrat in politics and a member of the Catholic Church.

S. NATHAN & BROS., clothing house, established in 1871; this is the largest exclusively clothing enterprise here, carrying a stock of $14,000 to $15,000 when full and doing about $30,000 a year in their line of business. They came here from Chicago, there being now N. Nathan & E. Nathan managing the business. N. Nathan, the eldest, joined the Masonic Lodge in 1873, the I. O. O. F. in 1866, and the A. O. U. W. in 1879.

M. NAUDIER, relict of John B. Naudier. Both were natives of France and were the same age. Born in 1816. In 1827 her parents emigrated to America, locating in Clermont County, Penn., where she met Mr. N. and in 1835 was married to him by Bishop Kendrick. They moved west to Illinois, and in 1857 started for Kansas, taking Durham cattle, fine horses and machinery to start a stock ranch. In April they arrived at Fort Scott and took a claim north of the city, or military post at that time. The jayhawkers compelled them to go to the post for protection; while there observed the shooting of Little. For a while they lived on Kaw Creek, where they had gone to make hay. Here Mr. N. was taken sick and just escaped to Fort Scott in time to save his life from the border ruffians. On August 14, 1867, they moved to Osage Mission, and built the Neosho House, the first hotel built in the place, having to make their brick for the building. September 14, 1868, Mr. N. died. Mrs. Naudier carried on the building until it was completed, and for the first few years made $100 a week. In 1881 she sold the hotel to F. Muller for $2,600, and retired from business, living in a house near the Mission, and now in a fine, comfortable house next door north of the hotel. Mr. Naudier was one of the Town Company, when it was laid out and incorporated. Mrs. N. is a member of the Catholic Church.

A. NEIGHBORS, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Grayson County. Born October 3, 1820. He was raised on a farm, and in 1844 he married Miss Susan Carrico. Coming to Kansas in 1868 he arrived in Neosho County November 5, in company with Mr. Sommers, who stopped in the Mission while Mr. Neighbors took a claim four miles south of Mission, where he opened a farm, living there till 1870, when he moved to this location, farming with success, the land being bottom land. He raises a crop of some grain every year, in 1882 having fifty bushels of corn to the acre and ten bushels of beans. They have six boys and three girls and are members of the Catholic Church.

JOSEPH NEWTON, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Indiana. Born in 1861. His father, D. K., and family came to Kansas in September, 1873, locating in Osage Mission, where he went into the stock business as dealer, with J. Quinlin, and in 1875, March 3, located on their present farm. In 1877 Mr. Newton died and the boys took charge of the estate, farming in stock and grain, succeeding very well, the corn raised in 1882 averaging fifty bushels to the acre. The farm is well improved with a fine orchard of apple and peach trees. The family consists of two boys and three girls and Mrs. Newton. There are seven children deceased.

W. P. PATTEN, farmer, Section 10, P. O. Osage Mission. Native of Washington County, Penn.; born in 1834; here he was raised and educated, graduating from Jefferson College in 1859. Read law with Hon. William McKenan, and was admitted to the Washington County bar in 1862. Then enlisted in the First Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, Company I, and served till close of the war. Returned home and remained there, with the exception of one year spent in Iowa, until coming to Kansas, March, 1876. Bought 160 acres of Col. T. H. Butler, where he now lives, carrying on a grain and stock farm. The best season he has had was in 1880, when his corn averaged fifty bushels to the acre. Crop of 1882 was also good. His family consists of himself, wife and two daughters. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge and of the G. A. R.

REV. PAUL M. PONZIGLIONE, S. J., Secretary of the Board of Trustees of St. Francis Institution for Boys. Father Ponziglione is an Italian by birth and in dedicating his life to the brotherhood, was subjected to the persecution. On taking orders in the Brotherhood, he surrendered a high position among the nobility of Italy, and was obliged to come to the New World in order to fully enjoy the right of the religious sect to which he belongs, and in 1851 was sent West to the mission of the Osage Indian, where he joined Father Schoenmakers in the holy work of converting the heathen to the Church of Christ. He is now about fifty-six years of age, enjoying still all the vigor and endurance which ever characterized his early manhood. The incidents and reminiscence of his missionary work among the Indian tribes are spoken of in the early history of this mission.

J. V. PIERCE, banker, is a native of Jefferson County, N. Y. Born in 1837. He was raised on his father's farm and remained at home after he had obtained his majority, to place the homestead out of debt, which he succeeded in doing. Then he proceeded to finish his education and fit himself for business, as farm life was injurious to his health. He attended the University at home and the Syracuse College, leaving there for a position in a mercantile establishment. In 1862, he was commissioned as an officer in the One Hundred and Forty-seventh New York Regiment and served three years, and discharged at close of war in 1865. He came west and engaged in mercantile business in Fort Scott, Bourbon County, from 1865 to 1871, when, in company with Mr. Mitchell, he established a private bank at Osage Mission, Kan. This was merged into the Neosho County Savings Bank in 1872, with a capital of $100,000, carried on by a stock company. In 1876, Mr. Pierce sold out, and Mr. Bradbury took his place. Mr. Pierce then retired to his farm and remained there until 1879, when the savings bank broke, and he then returned to the city and established the City Bank, a private institution, now doing an excellent business.

T. F. RAGER, attorney, is a native of Indiana. Born July 19, 1845. Studied law at New Albany 1865-66, and was admitted to the bar May, 1867. He came to Kansas in the autumn of 1867, and located at Topeka, where he remained until March, 1868, when he removed to Osage Mission, Neosho County, and commenced the practice of law among strangers, almost without means. He held the office of Justice of the Peace from 1869 to 1871. At the election 1870 he was elected County Attorney, which office he held till 1873. In 1875, he was chosen to represent his district in the Legislature of 1876. He was elected on an independent ticket by a handsome majority over both the Republican and Democratic candidates. In 1878, the Democrats nominated him as their candidate for County Attorney, and he was elected. He was re-nominated and re-elected County Attorney in 1880, being the only Democrat elected in his county that fall. He held the office till January, 1883. He filled the various offices to which he was elected, honorably and to the satisfaction of his constituents. Mr. Rager was married December, 1869, to Miss A. E. Tucker. He is a member of the I. O. O. F.

CHARLES REEDINGER, farmer, Section 17, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Loraine, France; born in 1823, and emigrated to America with his parents in 1829, locating in New York, where he remained until 1860, when he started West, coming to St. Louis, Mo., where he laid in a supply of necessaries; taking the boat to Kansas City, he came into Kansas and located on Cow Creek, where he bought a claim, but soon found that the guerrillas would not let him remain, so he abandoned his farm, going to Fort Scott soon afterward, taking a farm just three miles north of Marmaton City. During the War he was called out in the militia, but was at home when Marmaton City was burned in 1864 by Price's soldiers. In 1866 he moved to his present location, taking a claim 160 acres. The first season he lost all of his cattle but three head, supposed to be poisoned by the grasshoppers. He describes his privations the first year as terrible—camping out till he built their cabin, provisions scarce, and flour selling for $16 a barrel. In 1869 he raised his first good crop. In 1877 he built his present residence, and has otherwise improved his farm. In 1856 he married Miss Luis, who came from the same part of France that he did, and coming to America in 1853. She was born in 1833. They have eight children—five boys and three girls. One daughter is in the convent at Davenport, Iowa, and one married (now Mrs. Murphy). The rest are at home.

M. RENCK, bakery and confectionery, Osage Mission, native of Steinweiler, Rhine, Bavaria; born April 27, 1822. He came to America in 1828, landing in New Orleans December 26; going then to Ohio, he located in Cincinnati, first learning the baker's business, then the tanner's, at which he worked till 1854. He came to Kansas in 1870, locating on a farm on Section 7, Mission Township, Neosho County, farming till 1873; he then commenced baking and delivering about town. He opened a grocery, which was kept by V. Spoonenberger, his son-in-law. In 1876 he sold this establishment to A. R. Moore, who continued to sell his bread. In 1878 he moved into Osage Mission, and married Mrs. Moore, still carrying on his trade, when, in 1881, he sold out to Ackland, but in the month of August bought back, and in April, 1882, moved to his present stand, the business then carried on by the firm of Renck & Vernum. August 1, 1882, it became M. Renck. He is doing a good business; his reputation as a baker is steadily increasing. Mr. Renck has been married three times—in 1842, again in 1853; to Mrs. Moore since coming to Kansas.

WILLIAM RHODES, farmer, Section 29, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Wayne County, Ill.; born in 1832, and was raised on a farm. He afterward moved to Posey County, Ind., and from there he emigrated to Kansas, bringing all he possessed in a wagon drawn by two horses. He arrived in Osage Mission in the spring of 1866; helped to build the first business house in the city, and then took a claim on Flat Rock, at Beaver's Crossing, consisting of 160 acres, on which he has lived since, raising a fair crop every year that he has farmed, and in 1882 his corn averaged seventy-five bushels to the acre. In 1866 he brought his seed corn from Springfield, Mo., paying $15 for 100 pounds of flour. Corn was $3 a bushel, and salt from $7 to $9 per barrel. Fort Scott was their market. Mr. Rhodes was married twice—first time to Nancy J. Price, who died, and he has been married since to Mary E. Gross, a native of Indiana. He has nine children living and four dead.

E. ROBBINS, M. D., native of Pennsylvania, born December 27, 1814. In 1836 he commenced the study of medicine under Dr. Benjamin Hall, in Marion County, Ohio, also entering on a preliminary course of practice. In 1839 he graduated from Yale College, and then went back to Marion. In 1840 he moved to La Grange County, Ind., where his people lived. He opened his practice and also engaged in mercantile business here. He lost by fire some $22,000 in Fayette County, Ill., where he located afterward. He was burned out again, losing considerable property. In 1870 he moved to Kansas, locating at Erie, Neosho County, where he practiced till 1872, when he moved to Osage Mission and opened an office, now doing a good business. Dr. Robbins has been married twice—to his first wife, in Fayette County, who died in 1856. He married again in 1857, to Miss Cler. He has two boys and two girls. His sons are dentists—one in business here and the other in Carthage, Ill. Doctor Robbins belongs to the Masonic order, and in 1870 was appointed Examiner for the United States Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia, Pa. He has been a practicing physician for forty-five years.

LA FAYETTE ROSECRANS, farmer, two miles north of Osage Mission, was born in Delaware County, Ohio, in 1828. Was married to Miss Clara Dwinell, of Potsdam, N. Y., in 1850. Moved to Wyandot County, Ohio, in September, 1850, located four miles west of Carey, on Limestone Ridge, and engaged in wheat raising. During 1859 he moved back to Delaware County, where he resided nine years. In the fall of 1869 he visited Kelleys Island, accompanied by his wife, and remained three months, guests of Mr. Beatty; and while there shipped grapes to Milwaukee, Chicago, and other points to the amount of twenty tons. In the year 1865 he moved to Allen County, Ohio, and engaged in mercantile business in the firm of Saum, Rosecrans & Co. where he remained until coming to Kansas in 1870; locating in Burlington, Coffey County, he engaged in the lime and coal trade, also dealt in cattle and hogs to a considerable extent. In 1879 he moved to Osage Mission and opened a grocery and queensware store of the firm of Rosecrans & Clements. In 1881 he traded for his present home, a farm of eighty acres of upland prairie, which yielded sixty bushels of corn per acre last season; he has 1,200 bearing apple trees of the choicest varieties, also peaches, cherries, plums and small fruits, and a choice vineyard. He also owns a farm of 440 acres of river bottom land, highly productive, one acre of which yielded 105 bushels of corn. Has shipped 400,000 feet of walnut logs from Mission. Mr. Rosecrans has belonged to the Masonic lodge and the Chapter since 1854.

JOSEPH M. ROYCROFT, farmer, Section 21, P. O. Osage Mission, a native of Ireland, was born in 1842. His parents brought him to America in 1849, locating in St. Louis, where he was raised and educated. Coming to Kansas in 1860 he located, at Wakarusa, on a farm that his brother, Geo. P., had taken in 1858. For a time he farmed, then going to the city of Topeka he opened a saloon; he made money and finally came to Neosho County in 1866, taking a claim that he afterwards abandoned and took a claim that the Missouri Pacific Depot was located on. After farming this for a while he then went in partnership with John Ryan. Built in 1870 the Mission Mills, running them till 1875. Meeting with severe losses he sold in 1875 to Mr. Ryan. He then went to clerking for Detwiler in agricultural implements, and in this continued till he went into the grocery and saloon business; and in 1878 moved on to the farm, and is now raising good crops and stock. Mr. Roycroft married Miss Haley; they have two children, a boy and girl. In the county seat fight between Erie and Osage Mission he was regulator between the two parties.

J. H. SCOTT, editor of the Journal newspaper, is a native of Oriskany, Oneida Co., N. Y. He commenced his profession in 1851, entering a printing office in Utica, N. Y., where he served an apprenticeship. As a journeyman printer he visited Buffalo, Syracuse, Chicago and St. Louis. In 1856 we find him in Leavenworth working in the Herald office as a compositor. In 1862 going to Paola he published a paper known as the Crusader. Then going east to Illinois he published the Mirror at Mount Carroll. This was in 1865. In December, 1866 he purchased the Express, published at Monticello, Jones Co., Iowa; finally, returning to Kansas. He located at Osage Mission and issued the first number of the Neosho County Journal, August 5, 1868, a Republican sheet, which in 1872 had a circulation of 2,000, which afterwards decreased till within this last year, when it once more comes to the front with a large circulation, and is steadily increasing. In 1861 he married Miss Orra Wright, of Bourbon County, Kan.; they have two children. Mr. Scott has been a member of the I. O. O. F. since 1872, and is one of the charter members of Vulcan Lodge, A. O. U. W. of Osage Mission.

C. F. STAUBER, retired, a native of Northampton County, Pa., was born in 1808. Here he commenced reading medicine with Dr. Post and in 1834 went to Ohio, continuing his studies with Dr. Davis, finishing with Dr. Cost. He was located in Wayne County, and from Ohio moved to Iowa, stopping in Louisa County. He had entered the ministry in 1853, and was ordained in 1856, then combining his practice with his missionary work. In Louisa County he lost his wife and has not married since. After this loss he moved to Albia, Monroe County; to Kansas in 1867, locating in Iola, Allen County, and in August, 1868, moved to Erie, Neosho County, where he practiced with Dr. Dodge, and organized the first Christian Church in the county in 1869 and sold the building in 1873 to the Methodist organization. In 1873 he took his daughter to the Normal School at Emporia and visited his family in Iowa, returning to Erie in 1874. In 1875 he was elected County Clerk of Neosho County, and was instrumental in lowering the salaries of the county officers at that time. Dr. Stauber's children have all grown up and married. He lost one son at the Battle of Atlanta, and his eldest son (now living in Knoxville, Marion Co., Iowa) was at the capture of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States of America, and was one of the Guards that took the President to Fortress Monroe. The Doctor has been seeking health at the mineral springs and returned to Osage Mission from Eureka Spring entirely recovered.

C. E. STEADMAN, M.D., graduated in 1866, from Rush Medical College of Chicago, Ill., and in 1870 came to Kansas and located at Osage Mission, opening his practice, at one time belonging to the medical firm of Cogswell & Steadman. In 1876 he established his drug store, which is now known as Steadman & Childs. The jewelry establishment is Steadman & Beck, and the medical department is Steadman & Bayliss. Each department is doing well. In the drug store he carries about $3,000 in stock, and does a business of $12,000 or $15,000 a year.

J. W. STEWART, manufacturer and agent for the Parkhurst washer and wringer, born in Athens County, Ohio, in 1820, where he was educated, and afterwards in 1840, moved to Illinois, from there in 1843, he moved to Iowa, where he was engaged in farming until 1846, when he went to Green County, Wis., engaging in farming and milling while there. In 1848, we find him in Jackson County, Iowa, where he first built a mill on the Maquoketa, and afterwards another on Mineral Creek. In 1853 joined the conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church; his appointments took him to circuits in Marshall, Hardin, and Boone Counties, organizing the first Methodist Episcopal Society, in Hardin County, also preaching the first sermon delivered in Marshalltown, Iowa. On the account of his health, and to help the Free-state cause, he came to Kansas, in April, 1857, locating in Franklin County, near Centropolis, where he built the first Methodist Episcopal Church edifice in the State, south of Lawrence, in the fall of 1857, and while attending his circuit in the spring of 1858, built the hall for the Constitutional Convention at Minneola, 30x60 feet, two stories high, completing in thirty days from the time it was commenced. In 1857, he was elected to the Territorial Legislature (Free-state), from a district composed of nineteen counties. In 1859, he was elected to the first State Legislature, from the counties of Miami, Linn and Bourbon, served in it, in the spring of 1861. In the fall of 1861, he assisted in making up Company F, of what is known as Nugent's Home Guards; of this company he was First Lieutenant, shortly afterwards he was transferred to the Ninth Kansas Cavalry, and resigned in 1862; he then returned home and removed to Emporia, giving his attention to the ministry, until 1864, when he moved to Garnett, Anderson County, where he went into the milling business. In 1868 he moved his mill to Erie, Neosho County; here he assisted in the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Society. In 1869, he built another saw mill, and in 1870-71 built a water saw and grist mill, and in 1872, was worth at least $10,000. The panic of 1873, broke him up and destroyed his health; he then took a trip to New Mexico, remaining fifteen months, when he returned home, and in 1882 established the firm of Stewart & Smith. While in Anderson County, he was elected to the Legislature of 1866, and was charter member of both the Masonic and Odd Fellows lodges, of Garnett, Anderson County, also a charter member of the Masonic Lodge, No. 76, in Erie, and a charter member of I. O. O. F., No. 44 in Erie. In 1840, he married Miss Sarah Adams, of Illinois, who deceased in 1875. In 1876, he married Mrs. Cleaver. They have six children. In 1883, he moved to Erie, where he now resides. Mr. Stewart still preaches from the Methodist Episcopal pulpit.

A. L. TAYLOR, Commissioner, native of Rock Island County, Ill., born in 1848. He was raised and educated on the farm, graduating from Bryant & Stratton's Commercial College, in Davenport, Iowa. He came to Kansas in 1869, locating in Big Creek Township, Neosho County, where he engaged in farming, until 1872, when he acted as Deputy County Clerk, under Mr. McMillan, and while in this position moved to Erie, the county seat, where he lived until 1877, afterwards went into the real estate business and was in the lumber business with Mr Orton, but they sold to Mr. Gittings and in 1878, he was elected County Commissioner. In January, 1883, was elected chairman of the Board. At present he is one of the firm of Gittings & Taylor, dealers in lumber, at Osage Mission, Kan.

JAMES THARP, farmer, Section 12, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Marion County Ky., born in 1822. In 1848 he moved to Lynn County, Mo., while here was exposed to all the unpleasant circumstances of border warfare, and during the War of the Rebellion served in the State Militia. In 1866, he moved to Kansas, locating in Neosho County, on his present farm, taking a claim of 160 acres, building a log cabin, which is occupied still, although he built a good frame in 1872, which they also live in. Mr. Tharp was on the first jury that was drawn by the first District Court in the county, and was quietly living on his farm while the county seat fight was raging. Always succeeding in raising a crop; this year his 35 acres of corn averaged 40 bushels, his 30 acres of wheat averaged 30 bushels. They have had eight children, but five living, three daughters and two sons. Mr. Tharp has been married twice.

N. TUCKER, is a native of Culpepper County, Va., born in 1824. The family moved to Ohio, locating in Muskingum County, where they farmed. He grew to manhood there and then moved to Illinois. In 1867, he came to Kansas, intending to raise stock in Neosho County. Although he bought a farm he sold it again and went into the grocery business, continuing in it until he went into the drug business with S. S. Warner; soon afterward they built another store with which he was also connected. This firm was called Tucker & Cook. He carried on this business until 1871, when he went to California, intending to settle there, but sold his property, and came back to Osage Mission, and entered into the hardware business with J. M. Boyle. In 1881, he went to Pueblo, Col., and opened a boarding house, where he did well. He then returned to his home in Osage Mission. Mr. Tucker has been a member of the I. O. O. F., since 1872.

ROBERT ULBRICHT, meat market; the business was established in 1877, by Mr. Ulbricht, who carried it on until July, 1882, when the firm became Ulbricht & Conklin. They now do a business of $18,000 a year. Mr. Ulbricht is a native of Germany, born in 1850. Having learned his trade he traveled in Europe, shipping finally on the ship "Westphalia," under Capt. Schwenzen, he crossed the ocean seven times and deserted the ship at Hoboken, N. J.; since then he has had a wonderful experience, visiting on his way West, Michigan, California, Idaho, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, back East through Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania; he then, in 1876, spent some time seeing the Centennial; then started West again through Missouri, Arkansas, Texas and Mexico, and in trying to go farther West was stopped by the Indian outbreak, and came back up through the Indian Nation, and finally located in this place and married Miss A. McDonald.

C. G. WAITE, civil engineer, is a native of Steuben County, N. Y., born in 1828; was educated at Alfred, Geneva and Troy, N. Y. From there he commenced his engineering work on the Buffalo, New York & Erie, and has been connected with the Corning & Blomburg, Sunbury & Erie, and its branches, the various early railroad surveys of western Ohio, and coming to Kansas in 1857, located in Shawnee County, where he took part in the John Brown wing of the Free-state party, and in the War of the Rebellion, was in the Nineteenth Kansas; served on Gov. Carney's Staff as Lieutenant-Colonel, since which time he has been connected with the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Missouri Valley, St. Louis & St. Joseph, Burlington & Missouri River and Missouri Pacific railroads in Missouri, and all the railroads in Kansas except two; has been engineer-in-chief of eight different roads, three different cities, and County Surveyor of three different counties. He married Miss Hattie A. Russell, of Pennsylvania; they have one son—Frank G.

J. F. WHEAT, grocer, native of Woodford County, Ky., born in 1830. When only five years of age he, with his parents, moved to Illinois, where he was educated and attained majority, living on the farm. In 1854 he started with oxen and wagon for California, crossing the plains and mountains in 101 days. He remained in California two and a half years, making about $60 a month. He returned by way of the ocean to New York, in 1856, and proceeded on his way home. He then remained in Illinois till 1867, engaged in farming and stock. That year he came to Kansas and located in Neosho County, Mission Township, on a farm, raising corn, wheat, oats, castor beans and flax. In 1877 he took a trip to the Big Horn country, traveling through Wyoming and Montana. He came back to his farm, but in 1879 took an exploring trip to Colorado; making nothing, he returned and, in 1880, opened a grocery in Osage Mission, carrying a select stock of $1,800 and doing a business of about $5,000 a year. Mr. Wheat married Miss Smith. They have a family of seven children; his oldest, Benjamin, is now in Oregon. Mr. Wheat is a member of the Catholic Church.

JOSEPH WILSON, harness and saddles, native of Baltimore, Md., born in 1829. In 1832 they moved to Illinois. While here his father died. Mr. Wilson engaged in the mercantile business till 1852, when, together with Mr. R. Moore, he started West, both seeking health in the pure air of the mountains. When they arrived in Oregon Mr. Wilson went south to California, where he mined for awhile, then at other work till his brother and he went to farming on the Stone Ranch, at Grizzly Bend, Sacramento River. In 1862 he returned, via Missouri River, to Sioux City, Iowa, where they arrived just after the Indian massacre. He then went to work at his trade, and in 1868 came to Kansas, opening a harness shop, which was burned out. In 1872 he took a claim on Section 31, Ladore Township, where he farmed till 1879, when he returned to Osage Mission, resuming the business he had started in 1868. He is doing a good business of some $3,000 a year.

J. P. WOODWORTH, farmer, Section 3, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Hancock County, Ill., born in 1845. His mother, who is now alive, was born in 1805, and was the first bride in the city of Hannibal, Mo. J. P. was raised by his brother E. R., as his father died in 1851. His brother preceded him to the State of Kansas, arriving in June, 1868, J. P. not getting here till 1870. They went to work with that pioneer spirit that overcomes all difficulties, and although they could not get a deed for their farms till 1874, continued improving, and now have good farms and are establishing nice homes, sending off some two cars of hogs and three of cattle this season, and reporting good crops. Mr. J. P. Woodworth married Miss Glasgow. They have six children, the last two twins. Mr. E. R. Woodworth is his brother's senior by ten years and is located next him, on Section 34. He has only three children.

WALNUT GROVE TOWNSHIP.

M. ALTON, farmer, Section 14, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Ireland, born in 1830. He emigrated in 1851, to America, landing at New Orleans. He came up the Mississippi River to Keokuk, Iowa, where he went to farming. He left there for Booneville, Mo., and in 1870 came from there to Osage Mission, Kan. Land was high there, for he paid P. Duckworth $800 for eighty acres, with but little improvement. He is now farming in grain and stock and doing as well as his neighbors, having excellent crops. In 1882 his wheat averaged thirty bushels to an acre and corn sixty-five. Mr. Alton is now Treasurer of the School District. His family consists of himself, wife and seven children, three boys and four girls.

M. ARNOLD, farmer, Section 4, P. O. Walnut, native of Kentucky, born in 1830. He was raised on a farm, and emigrated in a wagon with his family to Kansas in 1873, buying his claim with little or no improvement of Mr. Orton. During the season of 1873 he lost his first crop; the next year on account of drought, chinch-bugs and grasshoppers in 1874, but has done well since, raising enough in the dry year of 1881 to feed through; and in 1882 his corn averaged forty bushels to the acre, raising also beans and oats. In 1859 Mr. Arnold married Miss Withrow. They have six boys and two girls. He has been Justice of the Peace since 1876, and the family are members of the Christian Church, which organization now has twenty-five members.

J. A. BALLA, farmer, Section 10, P. O. Walnut, native of Franklin County, Pa., born December 2, 1846. In 1866 he moved to Illinois, coming to Kansas in 1869. In 1864 he enlisted in Company I, Seventy-ninth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He was mustered out July 12, 1865. When he located here he had for neighbors prairie wolves and Indians, but this soon changed on every side, cabins sprung up and fields of grain appeared. He has from the wilderness carved out his home, buying his claim from W. Bartlett. He rented at first enough to raise food for himself and stock; since then he has had plenty. His first wheat crop, in 1870, was five bushels to the acre; in 1882 he had twenty-two bushels to the acre, corn forty-five. He also raises and handles cattle, having on hand forty head. He now owns and farms 240 acres. Mr. Balla married Miss Sample, a native of Kentucky, born February 16, 1851. They were married August 24, 1871, having now a family of two boys and two girls. He has filled some township offices.

W. M. BARNHART, farmer, Section 34, P.O. Osage Mission, is a native of Darke County, Ohio; born in 1840. He was raised in Indiana, where he attended the Somerset High School, and afterwards clerked for John Swope. In 1860 Mr. Barnhart was married to Miss Swope, and was then taken into the business partnership, which business they disposed of in 1867. John Swope came to Kansas in the spring of that year, and bought what is known as the Mound Farm, situated on the southwest quarter of Section 35, erected a house, and made improvements on the place. In the fall of 1867, Mr. Swope and wife, in company with W. M. Barnhart and wife, removed to Kansas, experiencing the difficulties of a journey by wagon through a new country, and the subsequent privations incident to pioneer life. Mr. Barnhart located upon Section 34, on land adjoining Mr. Swope's farm, and remained there until the death of Mr. Swope, which occurred in 1874. Since that date he has, with the assistance of his eldest son, worked both farms, and has met with encouraging success. No untoward calamities have visited his homestead. During the Osage ceded land fight he belonged to the Land League. Mr. and Mrs. Barnhart have three sons and three daughters. The family are members of the Christian Church.

D. W. BRAY, farmer, P. O. Erie, native of Monmouth County, N. J., born in 1830; from there they moved to Illinois, and in 1865 he came to Kansas, locating at Mound City, Linn County, till 1866, when he came to Erie, Neosho County, locating on Section 32, Erie Township. From this farm he gave forty acres for the town site of Erie, as did Peter Walters, Luther Pucket and A. L. Himmelwright. These three and himself made the town company, or town fathers. Mr. Bray was the first Township Trustee of Erie, and lived there until 1874, when he sold his interest to Dr. Kennedy, and then moved to his present home, where he has a finely improved farm, stocked with 100 sheep, forty hogs and some cattle, a fine orchard and some 800 vines bearing quantities of fruit. Mr. Bray was married in Arkansas, and has had ten children, five of whom are alive.

WILLIAM M. BULL, farmer, Section 13, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Owen County, Ind; born in 1833. He was raised on the farm, and when sixteen years of age learned the carpenter trade. He then moved to Illinois and worked at his trade in different counties, moving from Coles County, Ill., to Iowa, and in April, 1868, came to Osage Mission, Kas., where he built; but in April, 1869, moved out on the wild prairie, where there were but few settlers and no roads. He at once put up a house of native lumber. Provisions were scarce and high. He had brought 200 pounds of bacon from Iowa, worth in Kansas twenty-five cents a pound. As he had broken some sod ground in 1868 he now raised a good crop of corn, so got a good start in grain and stock farming. Mr. Bull married Miss Swim in 1861, and they now have three children, one boy and two girls. He has not been before the public as an office seeker, but has held school offices, and gave his share to the Land League when the ceded land question was before the settlers.

P. P. CAMPBELL, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Cape Breton; born in 1861. The family started for Kansas in 1867, stopping in Illinois a few months. They came to Neosho County in the spring of 1868, or fall of 1867, stopping on a farm in Mission Township till they put up their box house, 16x18, when they moved on the farm, then wild prairie sod, now a well improved farm, the fertile acres covered with abundant harvests and the pastures feeding fine cattle, the boys giving some attention to grading in Short-horns. In 1873, Mr. Daniel Campbell, the father, died, leaving his widow, three sons and two daughters. In 1880, the oldest son, Murdock, attended Baker's University, and in 1882, P. P. spent the winter there. Their elder sister, Mary, has been a student there since 1881. The boys are carrying on the farm and Murdock is at the same time teaching.

F. P. CARROLL, farmer, Section 23, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Livingston County, N. Y.; born in 1840, and moved to Ohio, engaging in farming. When the War of the Rebellion broke out he enlisted in the Sixty-eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company H, serving as Sergeant until the close of the war, when he returned to his home, and in 1881, came to Kansas, locating in Neosho County, renting the old "Smart Farm", moving to his present location in 1882, where he has raised sixty bushels of corn to an acre, the last year. Mr. Carroll married Miss Farroll. They have two girls and three boys. He belongs to the G. A. R.

JOHN CAVANAUGH, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Ireland; born in 1838. He came to America, locating in New York, and during the War of the Rebellion, served in the One Hundred and Twenty-third New York Volunteer Infantry, Company G, First Brigade, First Division, Twelfth Army Corps, returning in 1865 to New York, where he was married, coming to Kansas in 1869, April 6, arriving at Fort Scott; he there paid $20 a day for teams to bring him to Neosho County, stopping at J. McClosky's house until settling on the claim he now occupies or farms, buying 160 acres, a claim of Mr. Vallale, for $750, the first year raising sod corn, selling some of it for $1.10 a bushel. He has succeeded in establishing himself on a fine farm, renting also a quarter section of Mr. Cravens, having now 320 acres to farm. In 1865, Mr. Cavanaugh married Miss Harron. They have six children—three boys and three girls.

F. CHASE, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Ohio; born in 1852. His parents moved to Illinois in 1857, where he was raised and educated. He came to Kansas in 1872 in company with Mr. Smart, buying his farm of J. Oliphant and moving on to it in 1873, having just married Miss Smart. The farm was unimproved, but he has been very successful in his venture, putting up in 1880 a dwelling that cost $1,100, and is now grading his cattle to Short-horns, and has fine horses, also succeeding in raising five acres of blue grass. His crops of 1882 were fully equal to any of his neighbors. His father is now residing with him. He has two brothers and two sisters in Kansas. Mr. Chase came to the State with $250, and now has a fine estate.

C. B. COOK, farmer, Section 19, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Chautauqua County, N. Y.; born in 1826. He was one of a large family of boys. His father kept them busy clearing timber farms, which he sold, and in 1842, they moved to Canada, where their timber was pine, and they went to lumbering, passing through the exciting experience incident to that life. In December, 1867, he came to Kansas with his brother George, who had preceded him, and who held a claim for him, but on account of the Osage ceded land troubles did not succeed in deeding his land until 1877. His farm has proved to be a fine one, and he now has it all under cultivation but some eighty-five acres that is pasture land. During the fifteen years he has farmed here he reports no failure in crops, raising corn, wheat, oats, beans, and giving some attention to stock. Mr. Cook married before coming to Kansas, and has four boys and two girls. His eldest son is a graduate of the Kansas Normal School at Fort Scott.

J. P. COOMES, farmer, Section 31, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Nelson County, Ky.; born September 19, 1840; came to Kansas with his father, F. P., and bought his claim of G. Launsberry, and after a visit to Illinois, he settled on his claim, building a cabin and opening the farm by breaking twenty acres and raising wheat. At first he bached in his cabin, and part of the time boarding until 1874, when he married Miss Parkhurst. Until lately he has carried on a grain farm, but is now working into stock in grain successfully, losing but one crop in 1881. He has eighty-five acres cultivated, and raises as heavy crops as any of his neighbors. From nothing, he has made a home worth thousands of dollars. He has three boys, and belongs to the Catholic Church.

A. J. CRAVEN, farmer, Section 13, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Washington County, Penn., born in 1843. He is of Dutch and Irish descent, and was raised on a farm. In 1862, he entered an independent regiment, being finally mustered into the Twenty-second Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, Company E, and served until the close of the war. Returning to Pennsylvania he engaged in farming, and in 1870 determined to come West. On arriving in Kansas in 1871, he located on a claim and bached with his two cousins, John and Hiram Blaine, in a cabin until 1874, when he built his present residence, and that year was married to Miss Fannie Ford, of Ohio. Since locating here Mr. Craven has become known as the wheat raiser of this section, always succeeding in getting a crop and of superior quantity and quality. His crop of 1882 was 2,492 bushels. Mr. Craven has not given any attention to local politics, but has held school offices. They have one daughter, Ethel.

JOHN CROW, farmer, Section 19, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Ohio, born in 1849. He first moved to Illinois, then to Missouri, returning to Illinois, where he remained till 1871, when he came to Kansas and bought a claim of William Smith of eighty acres. Commencing with little he has now 200 acres, with 120 in cultivation; raising grain and stock; having in 1882, sixty acres in corn and gathering from the piece 3,000 bushels. He has succeeded in getting a crop every year since coming to the State. In 1869, Mr. Crow married Miss Ingraham. They have three children, two boys and one girl.

J. F. DAGGETT, farmer, Section 4, P. O. Walnut, native of New York, born in 1837, and was but twenty-three years of age when he came to Kansas, locating in Marmaton Township, Bourbon County, where he went to farming. In 1862, he enlisted in the Third Kansas Volunteer Infantry, Company I, but was soon transferred to the Tenth Kansas. He served until 1864, when he returned home, getting to his family just before the burning of Marmaton City by the rebels. In 1868 he moved to Neosho County, buying a claim of Mr. Hulburt; this was an early date for this county, for he had but some three or four distant neighbors; hauling his lumber from Kansas City. He now farms 320 acres, raising fine crops of corn wheat, beans and oats. He married Miss Mansar. They have four boys and two girls, and are members of the United Brethren Church.

WILLIAM DYSON, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Erie, is a native of Indiana, born in 1847. When sixteen years of age, or in 1863, he went to Illinois, engaging at farming. In 1869 in company with A. W. Louthan, Levi Tenor and others he came to Kansas, buying his claim of Mr. Elliott, opening up this farm and living there and in Grant Township until 1875, when he traded his claim with Mr. Isenhour, and now has eighty acres on the divide between Canville and Four Mile Creek. He cultivated sixty-five acres and the balance is pasture and meadow. He has a fine orchard of 130 apple trees, 500 peach trees and other trees and small fruits. His farm is well improved, fenced and has good buildings. He built his residence in 1877. Mr. Dyson married Miss Dyson, and has held the office of Justice of the Peace, but does not seek office.

WILLIAM C. FORD, farmer, Sections 26 and 27, P. O. Osage Mission, was born in Chenango County, N. Y., in 1818. His father, John Ford, was born in Dutchess County, N. Y., and was a local Methodist Episcopal preacher. In seeking a place to settle he went first to Pennsylvania and then to Ohio, where he died in 1840. William Ford lived on his father's farm until March, 1861, when he went to Illinois and lived there until 1867, when he started with three covered wagons to emigrate to Kansas; when he arrived in Neosho County he bought a claim for $1 of Mrs. Tripp; she was at that time holding two claims. Mr. Ford put up a board shanty, but used his wagon to sleep in and entertain his friends when they came. Locating there he farmed in stock and grain, doing well, even in the time of grasshoppers in 1874 and the year of drouth in 1881. In 1882, he raised forty-five bushels of corn to the acre and twenty-four bushels of wheat, and owns 320 acres in all and cultivates 140 acres. The years 1868 and 1869 he had the most severe struggle, losing nine horses, and having to haul provisions from Mound City, Linn County. But now, in the midst of plenty, the wealth of the harvest of 1882, he is repaid for early privations. He was married in Wayne County, Ohio, and his family consists of four girls and three boys.

E. GABRIEL, farmer, Section 10, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Athens County, Ohio, born in 1840. His youth was spent on the farm. In 1861 he moved to Iowa, where he enlisted in the Twenty-fourth Iowa Volunteer Infantry, Company B, serving until January 6, 1865. He was wounded in the battle of Cedar Creek, "Sheridan's Great Rally," being shot through the head; he remained in the hospital until he was sent home and was discharged in Davenport, Iowa. In 1866 he came to Topeka, Kan., and looking for a location visited Mapleton, Bourbon County. Here he was taken sick, and as soon as he was well returned to Ohio, and in 1869, together with Mr. Robinette, immigrated, locating in the fertile valley of the Neosho; he remained with Mr. Robinette; in 1870, he moved to his present home, buying his claim of H. Marsh, and entering it in 1877; he has made a finely improved farm from the wild prairie, and in 1882, raised forty-five bushels of corn on an average. He cultivates ninety acres, having the rest in pasture and meadow. Mr. Gabriel married Miss Robinette. They have two children—one girl and one boy. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He belongs to the G. A. R.

CHARLES HARKNESS, farmer, Section 29, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Knox County, Ill., born in 1859. With his parents he came to Kansas in 1868. His father, Thomas, locating in Ladore Township, Neosho County, E. Smith's farm. Soon, however, buying just south in Labette County, where they moved, Charles and his brother helping move the houses from the town of Ladore, when they were hauled to Parsons; saw the tree that five men were hung to in 1867 or 68, cut down. In 1861 his father died, and in 1876 he lost his mother; up to this time he had remained with the family, but now he went to work for himself, four miles south of Osage Mission, in 1880, when he bought his present farm of Charles Wood, and is now establishing a home. Two of his brothers, Alex and Pete, are on the adjoining farm. In 1878 Mr. Harkness married Miss Jennie Herod. They have one child. Mr. H. has been in school office.

M. J. HEDGES, widow, Section 29, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Clarke County, Ohio. Mr. Hedges was a native of Kentucky and born April 27, 1824. They were married in 1848. He enlisted in the One Hundred and Sixth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company E, returning home in 1865. While in the army he contracted a disease of which he died November 1, 1872. They came to Kansas in 1867, locating in Linn County, afterward coming to Neosho County, locating on their present place, which is a fine farm of 160 acres, producing in 1882, fifty bushels of corn to an acre, raising good crops; also of oats and castor beans. Mrs. Hedges was left with five children, but has lost all but the elder and younger sons—John T. and James J. Her son, John T., married Miss Fowler, daughter of David Fowler, an early settler. They all live together—the boys working the farm.

W. H. HEROD, farmer, Section 33, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Ohio, born in 1833. He was raised in Indiana, where he farmed his farm; was in a timbered district, so that when he came to Kansas he selected a similar location, arriving in 1865, October 26; he took a claim of 160 acres; he was the second settler—Mr. Brewer & Son were here before him. Since opening his farm he has given his attention to grain and stock, cultivating sixty acres, and having quite a field in pasture; his best season was in 1875, when his corn averaged fifty bushels to an acre; also raising good crops in 1882. While in Indiana, Mr. Herod married Miss Schuler. They have four children three boys and one girl.

W. W. HESS, farmer, Section 25, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Washington County, Penn., born November 18, 1839, where he was raised and educated; being in the stock business in the East, he came to Kansas to take up the same, but on arriving here in 1869, April 1st, in company with J. M. Jones, he found the Texas fever among cattle here, so he bought a farm of S. J. Oliphant, paying $1,500 for it, and in the old cabin bached with his cousin and other Pennsylvania friends, as they came West stopped with him—James Blaine, J. Worrell, and also later, Clark Carson. Mr. Hess, in those early times, tells of attending the first religious services, conducted by Rev. Mr. Moody, a Hard Shell Baptist minister. In fourteen years he has produced from prairie sod a fine farm, with buildings, orchards, and meadows of tame grass that delight the eye. In 1871 he married Miss Haymaker. They have five children—four boys and one girl. Mr. Hess gives his crops of 1882, as corn averaged fifty-two bushels and castor beans fourteen bushel to an acre. He has now 240 acres in his farm.

J. H. HOBSON, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Indiana, was born in 1839. He was raised on a farm, and in October, 1866, he, in company with his father-in-law, Mr. Moody, and his two sons, came to Kansas in wagons, landing in Osage Mission, when there only were two stores there, Williams Bro's., and Foster's store. They located their claims on the prairie, but went to live on the river, in the timber, where there was material with which to build cabins. Mr. Hobson is the only one of that party now here. From the wilderness of prairie grass he has made a farm, succeeding in raising good crops from the first. He has now a well-improved place, and has raised as high as eighty-five bushels of corn on an acre of land. Mr. Hobson married Miss Moody, in 1865. They have two girls and three boys. He was elected Justice of the Peace in 1873, and has officiated on the School Board from time to time. He had to pay very high prices when he first came to Kansas, for provisions.

JOSEPH HOLLEY, farmer, Section 7, P. O. Walnut, native of Courtland County, N. Y., born in 1829. He was raised on a farm mostly, in Onondaga County. He then moved to Michigan, where he married Miss Graves; afterwards farming in Illinois; from there he came to Kansas, in 1868, leaving his family in Kansas City, he came south and selected his present farm and put up his cabin; returning, he got his family and moved down next year; a man named Dodd trying to scare him from the claim. Being a pioneer, with no neighbors, he and his family suffered great privation, hardly able to subsist at one time. Mrs. Holley sold a carpet she had made in the East, and with money he had from the sale of a calf, bought a cow, at that time having none, and having to go to Pleasanton to get it. There are many pleasant memories, however, attached to the old cabin home, which has now disappeared to give place to a fine residence. Mrs. Holley is known here as one of the pioneer workers in Church and Sunday school. The farm is cultivated to grain, and last season, 1882, produced abundant harvests. They have three boys—Frank, in the Kansas Normal, at Fort Scott; Edward, in mercantile business, at Walnut, and Owen, at home on the farm.

NANCY J. HYLTON, farmer, Section 35, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Indiana; but having moved to Illinois, she married Mr. Hylton, moving to Bourbon County, Kas., in 1866, and farming there till 1867, when they moved to Neosho County, and located on what is now known as the Pierce farm. In 1873 Mr. Hylton died, leaving his widow with six children, four sons and two daughters; one son and one daughter are married, leaving her with four almost grown sons and a daughter. The sons manage the farm of 160 acres, where they moved since Mr. Hylton's death. They raise corn, castor beans, wheat, oats and fruit on the farm in abundance.

WILLIAM P. JOHNSON, farmer, Section 22, P. O. Erie, native of Dearborn County, Ind., born in 1811. He was engaged in Decatur County for fifty years as blacksmith and plow manufacturer, and from Indiana he came to Kansas with his family in 1873, locating in Walnut Grove Township, where they bought 160 acres of Mr. Sheibarger and another of J. Wright, on Sections 28 and 22. The hard times of the first years have been more than set off by the success of the good ones, in 1882 raising forty bushels of corn to one acre. They have now 135 acres in cultivation, and handle considerable stock. In 1880 Mr. Johnson sold off the stock, and leaving the farm in his son's hands he moved to Erie, where, in 1883, March 18th, he married Mrs. Gott, a widow. In his old family he has twelve children, five girls and seven boys.

WILLIAM JOHNSON, farmer, Section 13, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Jackson County, Ohio, born February 11, 1834; he was raised and educated on the farm. In the year 1855, he married Miss Wynn, in Pike County, Ohio. When the war broke out, he enlisted in the One Hundred and Ninety-fourth Volunteer Infantry, Company H, from Ohio. He returned to Ohio after being mustered out, but soon emigrated to Iowa, remaining there one year, when he returned to Ohio. On April 21, 1868, he moved to Kansas, and is one of the earliest settlers of this section. He located on what is now known as the Joe Simmons farm. At that time, wild game was abundant, also Indians; both, however, soon disappeared. June 21, 1868, he moved to his present farm, which he now has fenced and improved. Mr. Johnson has made farming a success, though he began life on the small sum of $25. He is very progressive, having adopted the latest and most improved methods of farming. In 1882, some of his land produced sixty bushels of corn to the acre, and other crops in proportion. They have ten children—seven girls and three boys.

A. W. LYMAN, farmer, Section 5, P. O. Walnut, native of Stark County, Ohio, born in 1836. In 1837, his parents moved to Illinois; he was raised a farmer, and came to Kansas in 1868, in August, coming from Benton County in wagon; he came near being flooded in crossing Hickory Creek. He located on his present farm, living in a cabin with thatched roof, until building the box-house. He employed his time freighting, until the farm would support the family; he then farmed until 1877, then going to Illinois; he staid until after his mother's death, which occurred in December 6, 1881; returning to his home in Kansas in 1882, having rented the farm meanwhile to others, his son-in-law taking charge of it in 1881. They are now farming it together; Mr. Lyman giving his attention to improving his stock. While in Illinois, he married Miss Chapin. They had two children—one a daughter, living, and one deceased. Their daughter is married to J. N. Hendricks. August 5, 1862, he enlisted in the Seventy-sixth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company A, and returned home August 5, 1865. Mr. Lyman is a member of the United Brethren Church, and was a member of the Land League.

GEORGE McCLOSKEY, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Walnut, is a native of Ireland, born in 1830. He emigrated to America in 1850, working at farm work in Massachusetts and Illinois. In [illegible], he enlisted in the Ninety-second Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company B, serving under Gen. Kilpatrick, and with Gen. Sherman on his march to the sea; he was wounded in Georgia, and mustered out in 1865; returning, he went to Iowa, and in 1867, in the month of August, he came to Neosho County with a drove of sheep, in company with Dr. Copeland and Mr. Ingham. He bought his claim of his brother-in-law, J. Rafferty; the Indians were still here, though very friendly. Mr. McCloskey the first winter got out rails for fencing and lumber for his cabin, and raised a crop of sod corn the first year, prospering and improving steadily since, though he lost his crop of corn in 1874; that year he fed his horses wheat; he is raising grain and stock, the latter he is grading in Short-horn. In 1868, Mr. McCloskey married Miss Rafferty. They had six children, three deceased and three alive. He built his residence in 1870, and barn and other improvements in 1881. They are members of the Catholic Church of Osage Mission.

J. D. MALSBURY, farmer, Section 22, P. O. Erie, is a native of Grant County, Ind., and was born December 10, 1842; here he was raised on a farm, and in 1862, he enlisted in the One Hundred and Eighteenth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, Company K, afterward in the One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, Company F. When his term expired, he enlisted in the One Hundred and Fifty-third Volunteer Infantry, Company F, and was discharged an Orderly, and was injured in the hip. He returned home, and was married in 1866. Came to Kansas in 1868, in emigrant wagons, and had for company Charles Bruner. They bought their claim of W. Preston, and Mr. Bruner moved away in 1874. Mr. M. entered the claim in 1871, having now 160 acres, ninety of which is cultivated; raising grain and stock in the years 1874 and 1881, he had almost enough to feed through with in 1882, raising good crops. When he came to the State, he had but little money, and after remaining a few weeks at Erie, he sold and traded his team he drove to Kansas, for the claim, which is now well improved. Mr. M. married Miss M. C. Coble. They have no children. He has been Township Treasurer for six years. Mr. and Mrs. Malsbury are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

J. M. MYERS, farmer, Section 12, P. O. Osage Mission. Native of Stark County, Ohio, born June 8, 1847. He remained on the farm until he was twenty-one years of age, then learned the carpenter's trade and starting West he stopped in Missouri until 1870. In the spring he arrived at Osage Mission and took or bought a claim of Edward Kerns. He worked at his trade until the spring of 1872. Having married he moved on to the farm, then in almost its primitive state, living in the building now used as a stable. He has now about 200 acres under cultivation, and in 1882 raised corn that averaged fifty bushels to the acre, and has a good promise for wheat in 1883. In 1871 Mr. Myers married Miss Shidler. They have three girls and three children deceased.

MRS. MARY J. OLIPHANT, relict of T. B. Oliphant, farmer, Section 25, P. O. Osage Mission. He was a native of Tennessee, Mrs. O. of Missouri. In 1863 they were married and he as well as three brothers served in the State militia. His health was ruined so he sought a more congenial clime, coming to Kansas in March 7, 1866, Mr. J. Thomson, David Fowler, Joseph and John Oliphant with himself making the party. Mr. O. took a claim that is now the homestead, and settled on it in 1877. Mr. Oliphant died leaving his widow with two boys, Charles and William, and two girls, Emma B. and Luella M. While living he took an active part in public matters and served as Township Treasurer. The boys now carry on the farm under their mother's supervision, reporting good crops and general prosperity.

JAMES PARKER, farmer, Section 5, P. O. Walnut, native of Cincinnati, Ohio, born in 1822. Mr. Parker was the first settler in this part of Flat Rock Creek, coming to his present location in September, 1865. If it had not been his fixed determination to make himself a home he would have returned to the East, for he lost his first crop and his family were in want. He went to Uniontown to Mr. Foster, getting a job of freighting goods from Kansas City down. This he took out in provisions for his family before starting himself, making the first wagon track across the broad prairies. He sees in 1882 well defined roads and substantial buildings on every side, and by hard work now has a fine home and well improved farm, raising grain and stock. Mr. Parker has been married twice, the last time in 1880, to Miss Lookingbill. By the first he had three boys and two girls.

J. V. POISETT, farmer, Section 13, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Fulton County, Ill., born in 1845. He came to Kansas May 1, 1868, locating in Neosho County, on the present farm. He came in company with H. Dougherty, bringing but little with them. Their money was soon gone, so Mr. Poisett went to freighting from Kansas City to Osage Mission, and when the Land League was formed to give the settlers their land he worked in unison and paid his amount to that purpose, deeding his farm in 1877. He had settled on it and was improving, now having 100 acres fenced, with an orchard of apple and peach trees, with some vines. He reports fine crops for 1882. In 1878 Mr. Poisett married Miss Smith, a daughter of T. Smith, a pioneer of Lecompton. They have three children, two boys and one girl, two deceased.

JOHN F. PRESTON, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Osage Mission. Native of Washington County, Pa., born in 1844. He was raised and educated on the farm and in 1877 left Pennsylvania for the West, locating in Neosho County, stopping at Osage Mission till he had selected his farm, buying 160 acres of Mr. Moody. They moved on it in the month of March, 1878. Taking the land with but little improvement he has a fine residence and well fenced farm. Giving his attention to grain, last year he raised corn that went fifty bushels to an acre, and wheat that averaged twenty-six. While in Pennsylvania he married Miss Gilmore. They have five children, two girls and three boys.

MARY RAFFERTY, Section 32, P. O. Osage Mission. Native of County Moynahan, Ireland. Born in 1830. She, with her parents, came to America in 1845, locating in New York, afterwards they removed to Vermont, finally returning to New York, where she married Mr. Rafferty, and in 1859 came to Kansas, locating in Bourbon County, Franklin Township, and while here he was in the State Militia under Capt. Morris, and passed through all the perils of the border warfare, coming to Neosho County in 1867. They took a claim, as did her mother, and built the first cabin on this part of Flat Rock Creek, forming a strong friendship with the Osage tribes of Indians who visited them after they had left this reservation. On December 25, 1868, Mr. R. died; his widow afterwards married a Mr. Duffey, but after their separation assumed her former name of Rafferty. They had six children. Her son John now farms the land.

N. REISCHMANN, farmer, Section 2, P. O. Veitsburg, is a native of Bavaria, Germany, born in 1828, and in 1847 came to America, landing in New York. He went to Ohio. In June, 1868, he came to Kansas in company with Peter Dosch, locating on his present farm. He was reduced to extremities by losing his horses by Texas fever that came up the valley to his farm. He worked with oxen, trading for horses, then getting a start. He has been doing well since. There are few that have as good a farm as he. Mr. R. married Miss Dosch in 1852, and they have nine children, seven boys and two girls. They are members of the Catholic Church.

H. S. ROMP, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Osage Mission; native of Ohio. Born in 1822. Raised and educated in his native State, learning the trade of cabinet maker. Going to Iowa he farmed there till 1865, when he came to Kansas. Located on his present home, buying of Mr. Brewer for $150. There were but few settlers here at that time; his neighbors were McNally and Herod. His farm was entirely wild; the first furrow was turned by him. He now has 100 acres under cultivation. He brought cows with him, but sold them on getting here to the settlers. He has now a well improved farm, and in 1877 built his present residence. The crops of 1882 were the best he had raised. Mr. Romp married Miss Sutter, of Ohio. They have five boys and four girls; only two of the boys at home.

N. SALRIN, farmer, Section 22, one mile southwest of Walnut. Is a native of France. Born in 1843. In 1869 he came to Kansas, locating five miles east of Osage Mission. In 1875 sold his claim and bought his present farm, then slightly improved. He now has a well improved farm, a neat residence and barn. He is raising grain, cattle and hogs. Mr. Salrin served during the war, three years in the Fifteenth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, two years in the United States Navy, in the Mississippi and Gulf Squadrons. Was slightly wounded at Stone River and again at Missionary Ridge. In 1866 he returned home to his parents living in Ohio. In 1868 Mr. Salrin married Miss Regina Hiser. They have three girls and one boy.

WILLIAM SHANABARGER, farmer, Section 9, P. O. Erie, native of Ohio, born in 1835. He was raised to farming and learned also the carpenter trade. He lived in Indiana, and from there came to Kansas on account of his wife's health, in 1870, buying his claim of Mr. Graves for $200, commencing with 160 acres; he has now 240 acres, eighty acres now in cultivation, rest in pasture. He believes the wealth of Kansas is in her native grasses; farming in grain, and stock, he handles cattle and sheep. The farm is now well fenced and improved. Although he thinks 1875 was the best year for corn, in 1882 he raised forty bushels of corn per acre. Mr. Shanabarger married Miss Suethern. They have four girls. He was exempt from service during the War of the Rebellion, but fought hard for his land in the Osage ceded land fight. They are members of the United Brethren Church.

ALFRED SHIDLER, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Columbiana County, Ohio, born in 1848. In 1868, July 1, he came to Kansas in company with his brother John, taking claims in Neosho County, and engaged at any work that had money in it. The next spring the rest of the family came out. The brothers, Harvey, John and Alfred put up a saw-mill on the Neosho River, two miles south of Erie, and sawed out lumber for fencing and building, then sold the mill and went to farming. Mr. Shidler then married and commenced improving the claim, having now a good farm of pasture and cultivated ground, well fenced, farming in grain and stock. He is the only one here now, his father having returned, aged seventy-three. In 1870 Mr. Shidler married Miss Kennedy. They have three boys and two girls. Mr. S. is a member of the Methodist Episcopal congregation here, being a steward and trustee. He was clerk of Walnut Grove Township in 1882.

DENNIS SIMMONS, farmer, Section 1, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Vigo County, Ind., born in 1847, March 14. In company with four other families, he started West in 1868. When they got to Papinsville, Mo., three of them went to Miami County, and he and his brother Malachi came to Neosho County, locating on adjoining claims, and helping each other in their trials. Dennis had but just married when he started for Kansas, but the young couple made up their minds to establish a home, so they met all privations bravely, his wife getting lost when after a load of rails in the timber, for she worked out of doors and in. They now have a good home, putting up the present dwelling in 1877, and stone barn in 1880. He is farming in stock and grain, his fertile acres yielding fifty bushels of corn to the acre, which he feeds to his hogs and cattle. In 1868 Mr. Simmons married Miss Lidick. They have four children, two boys and two girls.

HENRY SIMMONS, farmer, Section 5, P. O. Walnut, native of Canada West, born in 1833. The early part of his life was spent in the pineries of Canada and Michigan. In 1870, February 11, he bought his claim of 160 acres of William Chapin, paying $200. There was a cabin on it and eighteen acres broken. When he first landed in Neosho County, he and family stayed with H. F. Cory, then moving to their new home. He traded his horses for oxen and went to breaking sod. Since coming to the State he has never failed in a single crop. He lost his first wife in Michigan and married again, and she died November 13, 1882, leaving him with six children, five boys and one girl. Mr. Simmons is raising grain on 120 acres of his farm and has the rest in pasture and meadow, with a good orchard and five half miles of hedge fencing.

B. C. SMITH, farmer, Section 7, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Illinois, born in 1843. His father, William D., was a native of Kentucky, but moved to Illinois, where B. C. was born. His training was that of a farmer, so when he came West he followed the business. In company with his father and two brothers he arrived in Neosho County, Kan., in 1869, November 6, where they all took claims and went to work making homes for themselves. In 1869 B. C. built his house, and in 1870 married Miss Martin. He now has a fine farm of 120 acres, which this year produced sixty bushels of corn on an average to the acre. His father died January, 1883. Mr. Smith has three boys and two girls.

G. C. SMITH, farmer, Section 9, P. O. Walnut, native of Vernon County, Mo., born in 1842. He came from Benton County, Mo., in 1868, with P. W. Heutzen, in wagons, to Neosho County, where they located, Mr. Smith taking a claim in the valley on Section 33, which he afterwards traded for Sam Hill's place, he and Heutzen then buying out the land so that both could build on the hill. He then commenced improving, planting shade trees, and orchards, now having the finest orchard in the Township. He is farming in grain, raising fifty bushels of corn to the acre, and in the last three years has made and sold 3,000 pounds of butter, churning with the old dasher churn. Mr. Smith married Miss Summers. They have three girls and two boys, and belong to the Adventist Church, having a congregation of some fifteen members.

M. STANLEY, farmer, Section 25, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Davidson County, Tenn., born in 1828. In 1857, he moved to Illinois, farming there till 1863, when he moved to Polk County, Mo.; while there he was in great danger from guerrillas and joined the State Militia; he afterwards moved to Illinois, where he remained until 1868, coming to Kansas, October 7th, of that year and locating on Section 22, here he bought a claim of a German named Lang, and went to farming. He had visited Kansas in 1857, stopping at Fort Scott, about the time the place was sacked, but left, going back to Missouri; this time in 1868, he came to stay and after farming his first claim he sold, and has since been trading around, always doing well. For a time, from 1877 to 1879, he was in the mercantile business in Osage Mission, then in real estate and hotel in Walnut; in 1882, he moved onto his present farm which he is now improving, carrying on a grain and stock farm, giving his attention to grading up his cattle with Short-horns. In 1872, Mr Stanley lost his wife, formerly Miss Warren. They had five boys and five girls, four of them deceased.

SAMUEL STEWART, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of County Leeds, Canada, born in 1841, came to Kansas in 1869, bringing some cattle with him. In company with Mr. William Campbell, he took a claim and in 1870, went to Missouri, where he remained until 1874, when he returned to his claim, there giving his attention to improving the same, building, fencing and cultivating, farming in grain and stock, raising fine crops and grading his cattle with the Durham blood, and his horses with Kentucky Whipstock. In 1870, he married Miss Campbell. They have three girls and one boy. Mr. Stewart was Township Clerk, in 1880 and 1881; was Township Trustee in 1882, and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has strong religious convictions and inclines to the creed as laid down by the German Philosopher Swedenborg.

W. H. TALLMAN, farmer, Section 23, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Ohio, born in 1819. He moved to Iowa, in 1855, remaining there until 1860, when he went to Illinois, engaged in farming until 1868, when in a wagon, he came to Kansas and stopped at Osage Mission, soon afterward buying a claim of Daniel Hill, in the neighborhood of his old Illinois friends, Zimmerman Teas, and Bozzler. He did not get his land deeded until 1874, on account of the Osage ceded land trouble, but went on improving and raised good crops; relating many anecdotes of the early settlers and his struggles. In 1881 the corn crop failed and he had to buy grain for his stock that season, but in 1882, more than made up his loss. In 1845, Mr. Tallman married Miss Hill; they had two daughters, both now married. His father was a Virginian, and lived to the advanced age of ninety-two and died in Iowa.

THOMAS THORNBURG, farmer, Section 3, P. O. Walnut, native of Ohio, born in 1828. He was raised in Indiana, where he farmed some and went into the lumber business at which he broke up and came to Kansas in 1874, buying his claim of 160 acres of W. W. Willet, having now sixty-five acres in cultivation and good orchard. He has raised fair crops, getting only one-half crop in 1881, but raising as high as twenty-four bushels of wheat to an acre, the last season, that of 1882, forty bushels in corn to an acre. He handles stock, also having twenty-eight head of cattle on hand now. Mr. Thornburg married Miss Calwell of New York. They have two boys and two girls. The family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge and belongs to the I. O. O. F.

O. A. TISDEL, farmer, Section 8, P. O. Walnut, is a native of Ohio, born in 1827. While in his native State his father, P. A., was farming and engaged in the hotel business. From Ohio they moved to Michigan, and in 1841 to Illinois, following the same line of operations. In 1878 the family consisting of O. A., his step-mother, and his father, came to Kansas, and bought their farm of 320 acres, of G. Fowler. At once began improving it, putting up fences and good farm buildings. Now has 100 acres in pasture and the balance cultivated, renting part. O. A. farms the other part. He is not married. His father is now eighty-one years of age.

C. W. TREDWAY, farmer, Section 12, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Ohio, born in 1841. He was raised a farmer, but when the war broke out he enlisted in the First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, Company C; returning to Ohio, he went to Illinois in 1864, and in 1868 came in wagon to Kansas, with his brother, both taking claims, Mr. Treadway camping out in his wagon until the cabin was built. Although not able to get a deed for the farm, he continued to improve it, and deeded it in 1876. He has under cultivation 135 acres, all fenced. He is farming in grain and stock, producing sixty-two bushels of corn on an acre, and twenty-nine bushels of wheat. In 1880 he built a fine residence, and moved from his old cabin home, the first cabin built on that ridge. Mr. Treadway married in 1868, and they have five children—two boys and three girls. He is a trustee and one of the building committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, put up in 1877. Their first preacher was Rev. Stewart.

T. B. TREADWAY, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Ohio, born in 1836, July 5th. In his father's family there were eleven boys and four girls. His parents now live in Cowley County, Kan. In 1864 T. B. enlisted in One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company F, and returned home at the close of the war, and in 1869 he came to Kansas, in company with his brother Aaron, locating on his present farm. He entered his land in 1877, and now has a well improved farm, cultivating forty acres, having 120 in pasture, handling stock and raising fine horses—Clyde and Morgan. When the Land League was organized he became a member, and in 1858 married Miss Slaughter. They have six children—four boys and two girls. Mr. Treadway is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has been serving the public in Township offices.

C. S. TURNER, farmer, Section 21, P. O. Walnut, native of Loudon County, Va., born in 1819, August 2. He left Virginia in 1834 for Ohio. Here he was living when the war broke out, and he enlisted in the Ninetieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company B; taken prisoner at Stone River, he was confined in Libby Prison; returning home in 1865, June 23, farming then in Benton County, Ohio; afterward he went to Illinois, but in 1870 came in wagons with his family to Kansas, buying his claim of Mr. Walton. He is now farming in grain and stock, succeeding well every year, having short crops in '74 and '81. In Ohio he married Miss Crow. They had nine children—four girls and two boys, alive. Mr. Turner is member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Walnut, and has held township office.

J. C. TUCKER, farmer, Section 3, P. O. Walnut, a native of Illinois, was born 1844. In 1862 he enlisted in the Ninety-sixth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company K, at Warren, Illinois. Served under Col. Champion and Capt. Townsend. He was mustered out in 1865 at Michigan City, Ind., where he married and moved to Kansas, coming to Laporte in company with D. J. Coburn, F. Huise, D. Hagor and H. Blue. He is now the only one of the party left here. Taking a claim of Cole Bros., he had for years nothing but bad luck. The grasshoppers destroyed his crop, in 1871 he had a horse stolen, in 1874 he lost a crop, in 1873 he lost his wife, and in 1877 his mother died. His second wife was Miss Ash.

ANTHONY ZIMMERMAN, farmer, Section 11, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Bavaria, Germany, was born in 1839. His parents immigrated to America in 1841, locating in Ross County, Ohio, where he was raised. In 1854 he moved to Illinois, living in McDonough County. Here, in 1861, he married Miss Teas. In 1867 he came to Kansas in company with Mr. Basler and Gibbs and families. They camped on Lightning Creek and the heads of the families then went to Crawfordville (now Girard), Crawford County, but not finding land to suit took horses and went to Erie, Neosho County, meeting P. Walters here he showed them the claims they have since occupied. Mr. Zimmerman at once erected a 16x20 box-house, and for a time lived on corn cake, having no improvements to commence with. He has now ninety-five acres under cultivation, pasture, meadow and fine orchard. Mr. Zimmerman has been Supervisor here, and has a family of four boys and one girl.

CHANUTE.

Chanute is situated in the northwest part of Neosho County, at the crossing of the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas Railroad, by the Neosho Division of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. It is situated in the Neosho valley, famous for its fertility and beauty, and distant about one-half mile from the stream. The city is ten miles south of Humboldt, and twenty-six miles north of Parsons.

Chanute is the consolidation of four rival adjoining towns, which sprang into existence almost simultaneously. These were—New Chicago, Tioga, Chicago Junction and Alliance. New Chicago was laid out in May, and the plat was filed June 11, 1870. The land upon which it was situated was entered under the Joint Resolution of Congress of April 10, 1869, by G. R. Malcom, who received a patent for the same April 28, 1870. The tract is described as the west half of the southeast quarter, and the east half of the southwest quarter, of Section 21, Township 27, Range 18, and comprised 160 acres. After the land was patented to Malcom it was sold, in tracts, to T. C. Jones, S. W. Foster, J. A. Wells, J. C. Carpenter, W. Fisher, J. McCullough, C. H. Pratt, and others, for a town site. For the purpose of making the title clear, the several tracts were transferred to M. T. Jones, who deeded back to each, in fee simple, his respective share. For a time the town made very slow progress. Although the M., K. & T. Railroad was already built and trains were running, yet there was no station at this place. In consequence of this, goods, etc., had to be brought from Humboldt by team, a distance of ten miles. The railroad company were prevailed upon to put in a switch and make this a station. This they did at the Junction, in the latter part of June, 1870, and in September of that year they erected a depot building. This enhanced the progress of the town very materially. It was organized as a village, under a board of trustees, who held their first meeting July 5, 1870, and T. C. Jones was chosen chairman.

About the same time with New Chicago, Alliance was laid off, adjoining it on the west, by John Cooper, and Chicago Junction, adjoining New Chicago on the north, was established by K. P. Stone. In these places, but little improvement was made. Wendell & Holmes built a hotel in the last-named place, which they afterward moved to New Chicago, and is now a part of the Occidental Hotel. In Tioga, however, New Chicago found her most potent rival. The site of Tioga, comprising an area of eighty acres, cornered with the site of New Chicago on the northwest, north of Alliance and west of Chicago Junction; and contiguous with both of these. The town company was composed of D. Rogers, S. E. Beach, P. D. Ridenour, A. L. Anderson, R. O. Prideaux, and S. K. Wickard. Here, then, were the two opposing towns, adjoining one another, on either side of the L. L. & G. railroad. The Neosho division of the M., K. & T. (now Missouri Pacific) railroad was built in December, 1870. This road crosses the K., C. L. & S. C. road at a point a short distance north of New Chicago, passing on the east side of the town, which thus lay in the angle formed by the intersection of the two roads. The L., L. & G. Company favored the town of Tioga, while the M., K. & T. Company assisted New Chicago. Under such powerful influences, both towns found much encouragement to prolong the contest for supremacy. It was clearly a case in which the fittest must survive, and each was bent upon its purpose, putting forth such means as would not only aid in the accomplishment of the desired result, but as well throwing obstacles in the way of its competitor.

Remarkable as an illustration of this, was the erection of a schoolhouse, and the building of the bridge across the Neosho River.

In the act of the Legislature authorizing the issue of bonds by the district for the erection of a school building, there was a section appointing M. T Jones, T. F. Morgan, and G. C. Crowther, a committee to locate and purchase grounds for the school building, provided a majority of the people were in favor of issuing the bonds.

The bonds being carried, it fell upon the committee to fulfill their duty in accordance with the act of the Legislature. The members of the committee were all friends to New Chicago, and against Tioga. The scheme now was, to select such a location for the schoolhouse as would be least convenient for Tioga, by means of which to discourage its growth, and attract to the growth of New Chicago.

The site of the building was accordingly selected in the extreme south side of New Chicago, at a point farthest removed from Tioga, so as not to be inconvenient for New Chicago herself. Here a large and expensive building was erected, with an idea of permanence, so as to render its removal in the future extravagant and injudicious. A similar scheme was made use of in the building of the bridge across the Neosho River. It was the design of the people of New Chicago to have the bridge built as far down the river as possible, so as not to be at a disadvantage to themselves, and in order to place it in a position the most unfavorable to Tioga. In both instances the plan was eminently successful, bringing about, in due time, the results for which they were designed.

After about two years of the most bitter strife, an amnesty ensued, and, in 1872, the towns were consolidated pursuant to a petition signed by 146 of the citizens in all of the four towns. The order was granted by Judge John R. Goodin, January 1, 1873. The name Chanute was given to the new town in honor of O. Chanute, Civil Engineer for the L., L. & G. Railroad. The motive of thus naming the town in honor of this gentleman, was not altogether unselfish, since it was done in order to assist in having the depot on the L., L. & G. Road brought from the Junction where it was built, to a point more convenient for the town. This little piece of stratagy and flattery to the importance of this individual worked admirably, and the wishes of the people were gratified, by the removal of the building in 1873.

As soon as it became certain that the junction of the two roads was to be made at this point, the idea became circulated that here was prospect for a large city, and, in consequence, the growth of both New Chicago and Tioga was extremely rapid, so that at the time of the union, there was a combined population of 800. After the consolidation of the towns took place, all the business houses that had been started in Tioga, were removed to New Chicago, which, therefore, principally constitutes the city of Chanute. The "hard times" of 1873 and '74, had the effect to check the growth of the town, and for several years it rather retrograded than increased. In 1878, however, it began to improve, and since that date, has made constant and substantial growth. The city now contains a population of 1,500, and enumerates many large and handsome buildings. The principal of these are, the Public School building, the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, Bailey & Co.'s Bank block, the Kramer & Payne block, Hysinger & Rosenthal's block, C. T. Ewing's block, including the Lindell Hotel, a large two-story store; and the Chanute Banking House, a two-story brick; Jeffrie's block, the Cross block, Winfield & Allen's block, Royster's Stone Elevator, the Chanute Mills, a three-story stone structure, and the handsome brick residence of M. Bailey, of the banking firm of Bailey & Co,

New Chicago, which is practically the city of Chanute, was organized as a village in the early summer of 1870. The first meeting of the Board of Trustees was held April 5, 1870, and T. C. Jones was made chairman. On March 17, 1871, it was incorporated as a city of the third class, and at the election of April 3, 1871, C. A. Dunakin was chosen Mayor.

The union of the four towns in 1872 brought about a new order of things, and Chanute became duly incorporated as a city of the third class January 1, 1873. The site of the city of Chanute comprises the original site of New Chicago of 160 acres, the forty acre tract of Alliance just west of it, the eighty acre tract of Tioga, north of Alliance, cornering with New Chicago on the northwest, and a tract of 160 acres, lying just north of the site of New Chicago, which included the site of the town established by K. P. Stone, called Chicago Junction, making a total area in the site of Chanute of 440 acres. The city government is at present in charge of R. N. Allen, Mayor; J. A. Stevens, Clerk; P. Hurt, Treasurer; C. F. Prange, Marshal; J. J. Howell, C. A. Dunakin, John A. Carter, W. J. Coulter, J. J. Denney, Councilmen.

The New Chicago postoffice was established in 1870, with Mr. Moore, Postmaster. After the consolidation of the towns the name of the office was changed to Chanute. Mr. T. Jones succeeded Moore as Postmaster, and who in turn, was suceeeded by J. B. Beatly, who has since held the office.

SCHOOLS, CHURCHES, AND SOCIETIES.

The first school was taught in New Chicago, in the winter of 1870 and was kept in a private building that was rented and fitted up for school purposes. The rapid increase in the school population soon demanded increased school facilities. In the early part of 1871 steps were taken looking to the erection of a school building. For this purpose the passage of an act of the Legislature was secured, authorizing the district (numbered two) to issue its bonds, provided it was the will of the majority of the legal voters of the district expressed at an election held for this purpose. In case the election resulted in favor of the issuance of the bonds, a committee of three men, who were named in the bill, was appointed to select and purchase grounds for the building. This committee was composed of M. T. Jones, T. F. Morgan, and G. C. Crowther. It was in this that a piece of sharp practice was indulged by the people of New Chicago, through these men, whom the Legislature had clothed (inadvertantly perhaps) with power to promote the interests of New Chicago, and to impede the advantages of Tioga, by the selection of a location for the building that would be least convenient for the latter place. When the people of Tioga came to a realization of what was done and the results that were to follow, they raised objection to the issuance of the bonds, claiming that the act authorizing them to be issued was unconstitutional. An injunction to restrain the issuing of the bonds was immediately sued out, but before the officer had time to serve the writ the bonds had been issued and placed in the hands of D. G. Himrod. In order to evade the service of the writ, Himrod secretly left town with the bonds, which he disposed of to innocent purchasers, thus placing them beyond the reach of the restraining process. The matter was contested in the District Court, from which it was taken to the Supreme Court, and finally terminated in favor of the legality of the bonds. The building was erected in 1871. It is a handsome, two story brick structure, containing four large school rooms, besides the other necessary apartments. The building cost $15,000 in the bonds of the district, all of which have been paid. The present enrollment is 274, comprising five departments—the high school, grammar school, intermediate, second intermediate, and primary. These are under a corps of five efficient teachers.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, was established June 28, 1871, by Rev. G. W. Pye. The first services were held in Larkin's Hall, in which the organization was effected. The church building was erected, in 1871, it is a one-story frame, 40x60 feet, and was dedicated December 30, 1871, by Rev. Thomas Bowman, D. D., of Asbury University. The present membership is about 175. A Sunday school was organized, soon after the congregation was formed, and M. S. Burnham was chosen superintendent. The present membership of the Sunday school is about 175 It is provided with a small library.

The Christian Church was organized August 8, 1882, by Rev. Kirk Baxter, with thirteen members. The organization took place in the Presbyterian Church, in which meetings are now held. T. T. Harding was appointed to act as elder in managing the church affairs. There is now a membership of fifteen.

Hector Lodge, No. 64, I. O. O. F., was instituted October 8, 1870, by Special Deputy, Dr. Bostwick, of Iola. The lodge began with six charter members, and now has a membership of forty-two. The first officers were: D. G. Himrod, noble grand; G. W. Horton vice-grand; J. A. Stevens, secretary; Thomas Turner, treasurer. W. A. Cannon was the first district deputy, and representative to the Grand Lodge. A hall was erected in 1880. It is 40x60 feet, and cost $1,500. The present officers are: G. H. Brown, noble grand; J. E. Coulter, vice-grand; J. A. Stevens, secretary; J. C. Guss, treasurer.

Chanute Lodge, No. 889, of the K. of H., was instituted February 8, 1878, with eighteen members, by Dr. Howland, deputy grand dictator. The first officers were: D. G. Himrod, past dictator; D. K. Wickard, dictator; J. P. Cone, reporter; G. N. Lindsay, treasurer. The lodge has a present membership of fifty-four, and the following are the officers: J. F. Barkley, past dictator; M. T. Jones, dictator; J. P. Cone, reporter; L. H. Johnson, treasurer. Meetings of the lodge are held in the Masonic Hall. Since the institution of the lodge, there has been the loss of four members, by death. C. M. Aiken was killed by a train, near Chicago, Ill., in 1879; M. F. Halton, died in New York, in 1881; D. K. Wickard died, in April, 1882, and L. R. Phillips, died in August, 1882.

Cedar Lodge, No. 103, A. F. & A. M., was instituted October 19, 1871. The first officers were: D. G. Himrod, worshipful master; G. W. Reaves, senior warden; J. B. Patty, junior warden; J. P. Taylor, secretary; Frank Bacon, senior deacon; C. A. Dunakin, junior deacon; C. Sleight and W. J. Coulter, stewards; J. M. Mosley, tyler; Z. A. Eaton, T. L. Turner, S. H. Wright and S. B. Varney, master masons; T. K. McLean and J. W. McLean, fellow crafts; D. Turner, T. M. Wamsley and W. B. Winstead, entered apprentices. The lodge has a present membership of thirty-eight. The officers are: S. E. Beach, worshipful master; B. C. Clevenger, senior warden; L. Rosenthal, junior warden; W. J. Coulter treasurer; W. J. Kramer, secretary.

Chanute Lodge, No. 96, of the A. O. U. W., was instituted March 4, 1882. The lodge began with nineteen members and now has twenty-five. The first officers were: D. Long, past master workman; J. W. Locke, master workman; L. D. Johnston, foreman; E. L. Tillman, overseer; L. Rosenthal, recorder; C Dunham, financier; C. A. Dunakin, receiver. The lodge is now officered as follows: F. J. Jeffries, master workman; Dr. Bartle, treasurer; W. J. Coulter, overseer; Levi Rosenthal, recorder. The lodge holds its meetings in the Masonic Hall.

Tioga Lodge, No. 64, K. of P., was instituted in October, 1882. The officers elected were: John Guss, chancellor commander; W. J. Coulter, vice chancellor; J. Q. Manning, secretary; Dr. G. H. Brown, treasurer. The lodge has a membership of twenty-six, and holds its meetings in the Odd Fellows Hall.

THE PRESS AND OTHER BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The New Chicago Transcript was established September 23, 1870, by George C. Crowther. The publication of the paper was continued at this place, up to April 30, 1872, at which time it was taken to Osage Mission.

The Tioga Herald was begun in May, 1871, by S. D. Rich, who managed the paper in the interests of the Tioga Town Company, to whom it belonged. After running a short time, Rich was succeeded in the editorial chair by Mr. Haines. The issue of the paper was suspended in October, 1872.

The New Chicago Times was established by A. L. Rivers, October 19, 1872. With the change of the name of the town the name of the paper was also changed, and on the 11th of January, 1873, appeared under the name of the Chanute Times. When first started it was a seven-column folio, and on April 15, 1880, was enlarged to an eight-column folio. It is Republican in politics, and has a circulation of 650 copies.

The Chanute Democrat was established in February, 1879, by Bowen & Hite. After running the paper about four months, Hite sold out to Bowen, who continued in its publication up to May, 1882. It was then purchased by J. R. Detwiler, and the name changed to that of the Chanute Chronicle. At the time of the purchase the circulation was 432 copies; it is now 846. The sheet is an eight-column folio, Republican in politics.

The Chanute Flouring Mills were built, July 22, 1873, by J. B. Beatty. They afterward fell into the hands of A. Aikens & Son, who continued to operate them for a short time. After passing through several unfortunate ownerships they became the property of Harter & Stump by purchase, in 1879, who have since continued in the ownership and successful operation. The mill building is a massive stone structure, 40x50 feet, in dimensions, and four stories high, including the basement story. There are four run of stone, having a capacity for grinding 100 barrels of flour and 16,000 pounds of meal per day. The power is a one hundred and ten horse-power engine. J. E. Plummer is the engineer, by whom the engine machinery was set up. The engine house is a one-story building, 36 feet long by 28 feet wide, and is built of stone. The machinery of the mill is in fine working condition, and the operation of the concern sustains an active and prosperous business.

The City Mills and Elevator were started, in 1879, by the firm of Williams & Alcock. After running about two years, Williams sold out his interest in the concern to his partner, W. B. Alcock & Sons. It contains three run of stone, two for wheat and one for corn, from which may be turned out fifty barrels of flour and 100 barrels of corn meal per day. The mill building is a 30x40 frame, three stories and a half high, including the basement. A corn sheller was put in when the mill was built, and has a shelling capacity of 2,000 bushels of corn per day. The power is a forty horse-power engine. An additional buhr and purifier are soon to be added to the mill machinery. A lively and profitable business is sustained in connection with the operation of the establishment, a large demand being made upon the goods manufactured, for which there is found a market mainly in Kansas and Texas.

Chanute at present contains 4 drug stores, 7 dry goods stores, 8 groceries, 3 lumber yards, 4 grain elevators, 2 banks, 5 hotels, 4 restaurants, 2 harness shops, 4 hardware stores, 2 jewelry stores, 3 millinery stores, 3 meat markets, blacksmith, wagon, carpenter shops, etc. The city is surrounded by a fine farming country, which, with the addition of two lines of railroad, and being removed considerable distances from other important towns, thus affording it the advantage of an extensive country trade, gives it promise of increased size and prosperity.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

R. N. ALLEN, of the firm of Bacon & Allen, real estate and loan brokers, is a native of Green Castle, Putnam County, Ind. In 1869, he graduated from the Asbury University of law department, coming to Kansas with his brother, H. C. Allen, in 1870, locating in Chanute, then called New Chicago, and opening a law office. His brother returned to Indiana in 1874, but he continued his law office, having L. L. Hartman as a partner from 1876 to 1877, when the Southern Kansas Loan Company was formed, consisting of Bacon, Bailey & Allen; this firm doing an immense loan and estate business in the years 1877-78-79, loaning $350,000 on real estate. In 1882, the firm changed to the above heading. They report money much cheaper, and real estate stronger. They are now disposing of from forty to fifty good farms annually, located in Neosho, Allen, Wilson, Montgomery, Chautauqua, Elk and Greenwood. Mr. F. Bacon located in Wilson County in 1869, on a farm in Cedar Valley, now residing in Chanute, and owning a farm two miles north of Chanute, on the Neosho River.

GEORGE W. ASHLEY, firm of Hatcher & Ashley, furniture store, is a native of Shelby County, Ky., born in 1829; in early life moving to Indiana, and from there to Kansas in 1858, locating in Pottawatomie County; while here, he saw old John Brown, as he took his last lot of refugee negroes north to Iowa. In those days the Eastern people still spelled Kansas with a C and z. When the war broke out, he got up a company, composed of his old friends from Prairie City, and of friends in Franklin County, where he then lived, and was mustered in on the spot where Ottawa now stands, serving in the Twelfth Kansas Volunteer Infantry, Company D, of which he was the Captain; he served till the end of the war, then returning to the farm. In 1867, he moved to Wilson County, where he grew his first vineyard, and an extensive orchard; he sold out, moving to a farm on Buffalo Creek, where he started a fine nursery; in 1872, moving to Neosho County, bringing part of his nursery with him. He is now on the committee for vegetables, of the State Horticultural Society, and is an enthusiast in forest tree growing. He moved to Chanute in 1881, and went into his present business. In Indiana he married his first wife, who is deceased. He married a second time to Mrs. Vashti Truesdale. He has two sons and one daughter.

W. E. BARKER, M. D., is a native of Birmingham, England. He commenced the study of medicine, and practiced there, and in 1869, came to America, locating in Pottsville, Pa., afterwards in Cleveland, Ohio, where he practiced until he attended and graduated from the American Medical College of St. Louis, Mo., in 1876, when he came to Chanute and entered the medical firm of Burns & Barker. In 1877, moved to Thayer, and there established a good practice, returned to Chanute in 1881, he entered the firm of Brown & Barker, dissolving in 1882, September 1, and has practiced alone since. In February 7, 1877, he was admitted a member of the State Medical Association, and in 1879, June 10, a certificate to practice from the State Eclectic Board. November 22, 1881, was appointed surgeon of the United States Mutual Accident Association of the City of New York.

JOHN I. BARKLEY, general grocery and grain dealer, is a native of New York City; while there he was in the grocery business, and during the war was Captain of the Sixth New York Volunteer Infantry, Company C; he served until the end of the war, returning to New York in 1865, where he remained until 1875, when he came to Kansas, locating in Chanute, and going into the grain business, building the first grain elevator here. In 1878, he opened his grocery store or general merchandise establishment; the best years he reports as 1875 and 1878, when he shipped from three to five car loads a day of corn, and in 1879 he shipped eighty-three cars of beans; having a good grocery trade, he sold the elevator to Mr. Wickard, in 1882. Mr. Barkley is a charter member of the K. of H., which order was organized in 1877, February 8.

M. Bailey

M. BAILEY, banker, is a native of Ohio, born in 1835. In 1851, he moved to Iowa; while here he studied medicine, graduating from the medical department of the State University at Keokuk, in 1858, and also from the St. Louis Medical College in 1859. He had come to Kansas in 1856, and located at Emporia, where he practiced, being the first physician in the place. He was surgeon of the First Regiment, Kansas Volunteers; he was surgeon of the Nineteenth in 1868, when the Indian expedition was organized. He had moved to Topeka in 1864, and practiced there until 1870, with Dr. Stormont, coming to Chanute in 1870, then called New Chicago, selecting a site for the bank on the corner of Fourth and High streets, and opened the banking house of M. Bailey & Co., in January, 1871. In 1873, he built the first brick dwelling-house in Neosho County. He married in 1864 Miss Jarboe, of Muscatine. They have four sons and one daughter.

T. BARTL, M. D., is a native of Davis County, Ind., born in 1845. The doctor graduated from Rush Medical College of Chicago, in 1870, coming West, he located at Galesburg, Neosho County, where he practiced until 1880, when he went East and graduated from the Central College of Indianapolis, Ind. Returning to Kansas, he entered the medical firm of Bartl & Hickey, physicians and surgeons, Chanute. In August, 1882, they dissolved partnership, Dr. Bartl practicing alone since. He married Miss Apt; they now have a family of three children. He is a charter member and examining physician of A. O. U. W., organization. In 1881, he had the misfortune of losing his library by fire, but is now replacing it as fast as possible.

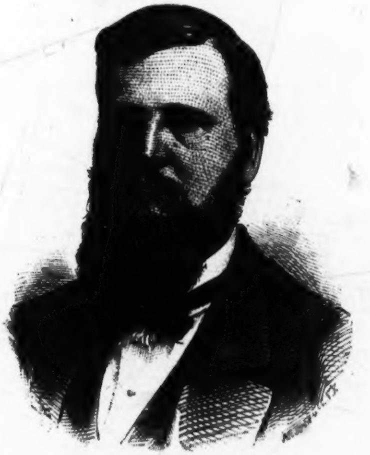
JOHN CARTER, dry goods, groceries and grain dealer, is a native of Ohio, was raised in Indiana. He came to Kansas in 1872, locating in Wilson County, on the Mound Slope; this farm was very fertile. In 1875, the firm of Carter Bros. & Demuth built the Austin Flour Mills on the Neosho River, which they run till 1879, when Mr. Carter sold his interest and commenced buying grain in Chanute. In 1880 he opened his grocery establishment, and in 1881 opened his dry goods house. He is now doing a business in his stores of $30,000 per annum. The firm being Carter & Son. In 1882 he shipped sixty acres of corn, besides 3,000 boxes of peaches. There are five Carter brothers—one a farmer in this county, one in Kansas City, Mo., two in Indiana, a lawyer and a farmer, and J. Carter making the fifth.

G. E. COLE, livery and stock dealer, is a native of Indiana, born in 1855. His father, Hiram Cole, moved the family to Missouri in 1859, and in 1860 brought them all to Neosho County, Kan. There were then six children, G. E. being the youngest of the boys. They settled on a claim on the Neosho River, about two miles southeast of where Chanute now stands; this claim was then occupied by the Osage Indians, great numbers living around their cabin in their traditional wigwams. In this historic place the children grew up, Lemuel, the eldest, taking a claim near here where he now lives; M. W., the next brother, is now in the dry goods business in Mount Valley; one of his sisters, now Mrs. Pierce, lives near the fair grounds; another, Mrs. G. L. Harrison, resides in Phillips County, and the youngest, Mrs. Houstin, on a farm north of town. G. E. finished his education at the Baldwin University in 1860, then teaching school a while. He went into the livery business in 1878 with his brother, M. W., also buying and selling stock. Mr. Cole lost his mother in 1870, his father in 1869. He is a member of I. O. of O. F., charter member of the A. O. U. W. and also of the K. of H.

W. J. COULTER, proprietor of transfer and 'bus line, is a native of Allegheny City, Allegheny Co., Penn., born in 1833 was raised in his native county and in Ohio. When the war broke out he enlisted in the Forty-seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company C, served as Corporal, and on returning home went to work at his trade as stonecutter, moving to Illinois where he took a farm, working also at his trade until 1870, in August, his family arriving in the month of November; having bought land in Allen County which he lost, he was about stranded so he paid for a house and lot in New Chicago, $200, by hauling lumber, living in his little old house until he was able to build his present residence in 1879. His business has gradually increased year by year until he has accumulated enough for a comfortable home. Mr. Coulter has had the express and mail business for years, besides the transfer business of the city. He has been married twice, first in 1855, losing his wife in 1862; he then married Miss Jane Riley, of Ohio. By his first marriage he had three children, two of whom are living, and by the second four, of whom three are living. Mr. Coulter is a member of the I. O. of O. F., charter member of the Masonic Lodge, also of the K. of P. and A. O. U. W., being a member of the K. of H. also.

JOHN A. CROSS, horticulturist, is a native of the city of Bath, England, was born in 1840. In 1859, he graduated with the class of that year from Corpus Christi College. The same year immigrating with his father, James Cross, and locating near Cleveland, Ohio. Went into the army in 1861; after the war, went into business in Ela, Ohio, where he was known as an active business man, building several dwelling-houses and business blocks. In 1879, he moved to Chanute, Kan., and purchased his present home of 110 acres, known as "Cedar Lawn." He has here eighty acres in fruit and many thousands of beautiful evergreens and miles of avenues; a canning establishment, evaporating houses and machinery, thus disposing of his immense fruit crops. James Cross, his father, is likewise located here, and was at one time noted as a successful breeder of Hereford cattle; in fact, he was the pioneer of Hereford cattle in America, and many of our most noted herds got their start from the herds of James Cross. He has built the large block, known as Cross Block, in Chanute, and is at present writing constructing perhaps the handsomest block in southern Kansas. John A. Cross has been an active member of the K. of H., K. of P., Masons, I. O. O. F. and Royal Arcanum, and was at one time a member of the celebrated Fifth Regiment Band of Ohio.

G. H. BROWN, M. D., is a native of New York, born in 1848. When thirteen years of age he lost his right leg, which was amputated just above the knee, in consequence of an injury received while playing base ball. In 1861, he commenced reading medicine under Dr. Potier, of Geneva, N. Y. On coming to Kansas in 1870, he located in Wilson County, near Buffalo, on a farm and commenced a preliminary practice, attended with great success, moving to Chanute in 1874, he opened his office. There were practicing at this time, nine other physicians. Dr. Brown is now the only one of the number practicing here, making him the oldest practicing doctor in Chanute. In 1876, he had for a partner Dr. Goltry. From 1877, he practiced alone until 1881, when Dr. Barker entered into partnership, they dissolved, however, September 1, 1882. In 1879, Dr. Brown was admitted to practice by the State Medical Eclectic Association as a licentiate. He is a member of the State Eclectic Medical Association. At the municipal election, held April 2, 1883, Dr. Brown was chosen Mayor of Chanute, by the largest majority ever given a candidate for that office. His opponent was R. N. Allen, a gentleman whose popularity has always proved sufficient to secure him success in political undertakings, and for Dr. Brown to surpass him by 140 majority in a total vote of 264 (the highest vote ever given for Mayor), proves a degree of confidence in the new Mayor by the people which is indicative of substantial merit. He married Miss Ida Talcott, of Burlington, Iowa. They have three sons. The doctor commenced on nothing, and in his practice has furnished his family with a comfortable home. Has an excellent medical library, and a complete collection of surgical instruments. He is a member of the Good Templars, Grange, I. O. O. F., the E. A. U., and a charter member of the K. of P. Lodge of Chanute, and a member of the Presbyterian Church.



Dr. G. H. Brown

J. R. DETWILER, editor and proprietor of the Chanute Chronicle, was born in Owens County, Ind., January 11, 1848. In 1854 the family removed to Shawnee County, Kan. In 1871 he went to Osage Mission, and began dealing in grain, which he subsequently gave up to engage in the sale of agricultural implements. From October, 1878, to November, 1880, he edited and published the Temperance Banner, a sheet devoted to the advocacy of the Prohibitory Amendment. With the success of the measure, the publication of the paper ended. In May, 1882, he purchased the Chanute Democrat, and began the publication of the Chronicle. He was married in October, 1871, to Miss F. M. Craigue, a native of Vermont. They have a family of two children, aged nine and seven years.

F. FREWERT, general grocery. Native of Prussia, Germany, born in 1830. He came to America, landing at New Orleans, December 25, 1848, and coming to St. Louis, January 1, 1849. In 1860 he located in Chanute, Neosho Co., Kan., and entered business in his little old store. He built up a good trade, making quick sales and small profits his motto. In 1883 he built his present fine business house, and stocked up anew, doing now a flourishing trade, also shipping large quantities of fruit in season. While he was located in Illinois he married, and now has seven children, three girls and four boys.

A. GEIST & SON, dry goods and clothing, etc. This is one of the first firms established in Chanute, putting up his building in July of 1870, where they continued doing business till 1875, when they moved their establishment to their present stand, now doing a good business of some $33,000 for 1882. Mr. Geist is a native of Poland, born in 1822. On coming to America he located in St. Louis. When the War of the Rebellion broke out he went to Fort Smith and acted as sutler, but returned to St. Louis in 1864, then going to Yazoo City, where he remained till 1866, going to St. Louis, then to Illinois; finally coming to Kansas, he located at Chanute. His son Zelky was born in 1860, in St. Louis, Mo.

A. B. HEDRICK, lumber dealer, native of Pennsylvania, born in 1839. Mr. Hedrick was raised on a farm, and learned the trade at which he worked until 1864, when he enlisted in the Two Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, serving until 1865, when he came to Missouri, going to work for Mr. Dubach in 1867, and was appointed foreman of the sash and door factory in 1870, remaining as such until 1877, and in 1879 superintended the construction of the Park Hotel, at Hannibal, Mo., for Price & Dubach, when he went to Colorado, and then returned to Pennsylvania. On going to Missouri, went to work for Mr. Dubach, coming in 1880 to Chanute, and started a lumber yard for Mr. Dubach. He has succeeded in working up an immense trade. In 1882 he sold about 1,000,000 feet of lumber, his trade extending into Wilson, Allen and Neosho counties.

J. F. HICKEY, M. D., was born in Clarke County, Ohio, in 1844. His father was a German from Hanover. His mother was A. Morris, a descendant, in a direct line, from the Morris', famous in Revolutionary times, two of whom signed the Declaration of Independence. Her great grandfather was Senator Morris, of Ohio. In 1862 he enlisted in the Sixtieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry for one year. Was captured at Harper's Ferry, paroled and started West to fight the Indians. Reaching Chicago, and the Indian war being over, he was discharged with his regiment. In 1864 he re-enlisted in the Eighth Ohio Volunteer Veteran Cavalry and served until the close of the war. He studied medicine with R. Rector, M. D., Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy in the Starling Medical College, of Columbus, Ohio, at which institution he attended his first course of lectures, during the winter of 1866-67. He practiced medicine near Indianapolis, Ind., for twelve years, graduating in medicine in the meantime at the Indiana Medical College, which was then the medical department of Asbury University. Removed to Kansas in the spring of 1879, since which time he has been located at Chanute in Neosho County.

HOWELL & MORRISON, general grocers. In tracing this firm to its establishment we find it was started by K. P. Krouse, then sold to Cox & Son, afterward becoming Hart & Brooks, then Hart Bros., in 1882 Hart & Morrison, and December 5, 1882, assumed the present title of Howell & Morrison. From a small beginning it has become a fine business in the present year. Mr. Morrison is a native of Kentucky and came to Kansas in 1881. Mr. Howell is a native of New Hartford, Oneida Co, N. Y., born November 23, 1830; he came to Kansas, in 1856, with a company from Chicago under Col. Harver; at Kansas City they met Buford and were sent back; they went to Nebraska City and came in wagons to Lawrence; they then started for provisions to Leavenworth. They met and captured a force, under Titus, of Carolinians and set them adrift in wagons to leave the State. Getting provisions at Easton they returned to Lawrence. Governor Shannon setting at liberty the Free-state prisoners and sending them a cannon, they also had the red flag that was flying at the sacking of Lawrence. They then captured a fort at Hickory Point, but were captured afterward by the Government troops and taken to Lecompton, and afterward confined in a brick jail in Tecumseh, from which he escaped, going to Topeka; and in the fall of 1856 went to Anderson County and engaged in farming. In 1868 he moved to Iola, in Allen County. In 1870, coming to Chanute, going into the grocery business at first, afterward into livery, and in 1882 bought in with Mr. Morrison. He is a member of the I. O. of O. F.

HYSINGER & ROSENTHAL, dry goods, hats, caps, etc. Business established in 1876. Stock, $30,000; business, $50,000 a year.

F. W. JEFFRIES, hardware and agricultural implements, established in 1877, September 15, as Jeffries & Co., in a building 18x50, and a stock of $3,500. On this investment he did $16,429.28 in 1877-78. October 1 of this year he moved into his present place, having now a double store, 50x80, with addition. In 1882, his sales were $33,781.57, with the prospect of doing still more in 1883. Mr. Jeffries is a native of Cincinnati. On leaving this State, he went to Texas, coming to Kansas in 1871. He clerked for C. A. Carrier in the hardware business until he failed, when Mr. Jeffries traveled for the Champion Machine Co., of Springfield, Ohio, finally entering the firm of Jeffries & Co., the company being Mr. Haines. In 1880, he became sole proprietor. Mr. Jeffries is master workman of the A. O. U. W.

L. H. JOHNSON, of the firm of Warner & Johnson, established in Chanute, in 1874, in general merchandise. Mr. Johnson is a native of Indiana; born in 1835. He moved to Illinois in 1851, and came to Kansas in 1874, the same year commencing business with Mr. Warner, who had come to the State in 1866. Mr. Johnson was elected County Commissioner, in 1880, of Neosho County, and in 1881, became a charter member of the A. O. U. W. He is also a charter member of the K. of H.

T. C. JONES, lawyer and Deputy United States Revenue Collector. Mr. Jones, June 11, 1870, filed the plat for the city of New Chicago, the population in two months after consisting of 500, and the land in the plat of 160 acres, which had been purchased by George R. Malcolm, of the United States Government, and conveyed by him to T. C. Jones, who conveys by blocks and lots to parties buying. In August, 1870, the town was incorporated, and there was a Board of Trustees of five members. Mr. Jones was President of the board. January 1, 1874, the towns of New Chicago and Tioga were consolidated, and became Chanute, a city of the third class. The ease with which the title of property is conveyed, and soundness of deed, has made real estate valuable, and the liberal donation of lots to individuals, and for public purposes has tended to build the city up rapidly. Mr. Jones in coming here opened a law office, and from 1871 to 1878, had Mr. Carpenter for a partner, and in 1878, was appointed Deputy United States Revenue Collector.

D. T. KRAMER & SON, drugs. Dr. Kramer established his drug business in New Chicago in 1870, the first and only drug store here then. He is a native of Schoharie, N. Y., born in 1812. Beginning the study of medicine under a brother-in-law, who was a graduate in the old School of Medicine, so, Doctor D. T. Kramer attended lectures in the Philadelphia Medical College, graduating and practiced eight years in Newark, when they quietly set to investigating the New School of Homœpathy, and February 27, 1850, he graduated from the Cleveland Medical College. He then moved to Sandusky City, where there were but three families at that time, practicing until April, 1870, when he came to Kansas, locating in Lawrence and practicing with Drs. Stanbury & Blair. His son brought their stock of drugs down from there and opened their business on North Fourth street in what was then called New Chicago, occupying a room 18x30, with a stock of $2,000. They now occupy part of what is know as Kramer's Block and are doing a good business. In 1849, Doctor Kramer married Miss Pettibone. They have three sons and one daughter. He is a member of I. O. O. F.

Opened his practice in Jeffersonville, and came to Kansas in 1869, located at Erie, Neosho County, where he practiced till 1882; he had traveled on account of his health in the meantime and was employed by the Sante Fe R. R. Co. as physician, located in Mexico. He afterwards came to Chanute and established his practice and opened a drug store. Doctor Light is a member of the K. of H., Masonic and I. O. O. F. lodges.

LINDSAY & MANN, general groceries. This firm was established in 1880, having been G. N. Lindsay from December, 1877, to this year, when Mr. I. C. Mann bought an interest in the business and became a partner. They are doing an excellent business and their sales for 1882 were about $40,000. Besides the regular trade they shipped five car-loads of castor beans, and have just started a lumber yard. The firm is known as the Chanute Lumber Company, of which Hon. M. T. Jones is also a partner. Mr. Lindsay came to the State in 1870, locating at Lawrence at first, then coming here. Mr. Mann came to Kansas in 1875 stopping at Fort Scott until 1876. When he came here he was engaged in teaching school for a while.

MRS. S. A. LYEN & CO., furniture, established in 1870 by Mr. James T. Lyen, who died October 10, 1875. Since then his widow, Mrs. S. A. Lyen, carried it on until 1879, when she took a partner, Mr. William Koch, and in 1880, took into the firm his brother, Mr. Gustavus Koch. This is not only the oldest house in the line, but is noted for the excellence of its work. Mrs. Lyen and her late husband were both natives of Kentucky, where they were married in 1859. Her name formerly was Miss Allen. They located in Jefferson County, Kansas, in 1861, living on the farm which is still kept for the children, of whom she has five—three girls and two boys. The business of the firm in 1882 was about $10,000 in sales.

McCLELLAND BROTHERS, real estate and loan agents, and law office. The firm consists of George W. and David E. McClelland. George W., born in 1855, and David E., in 1857, both natives of Washington County, Ill. They established their present business December 1, 1881, commencing on nothing, in the land and loan business. They are now handling a large amount of land in Neosho, Allen, Woodson and Wilson counties. When they started, money was as high as ten and twelve per cent., and land as low as six and seven dollars an acre. In the short space of twelve months they report land at ten to fifteen dollars an acre, and money as low as seven per cent. They are handling hundreds of acres of the best land of Kansas every year, and have an excellent display of grains, fruits and vegetables from Neosho County. George W. McClelland was admitted to the Kansas bar November 19, 1882.

T. A. NOEL, agent for the M. P. R. R., native of Missouri, born in 1858. He commenced railroading in 1872 on the M., K. & T. At the age of eight years, he began working in a printing office, in Chelsea, Mass., where he remained two years, and then began work in a printing office at Dunkirk, Mass. He came to Iowa in 1854, with the family and followed merchandising in Johnson County. In 1859 he removed to Jefferson County, Kan., and took employment in a printing office. He enlisted in the Eleventh Kansas Volunteer Infantry, in September, 1862, and served three years, being mustered out at Fort Leavenworth in September, 1865. At the time of his discharge he held the office of First Sergeant of his company. Following his release from the service he was engaged in various pursuits, until in the summer of 1872, he came to New Chicago, afterward Chanute, and on the 19th of October, 1872, took charge of the Times, of which he has since been the editor and proprietor. He was elected to the office of Township Clerk in February, 1880, serving one year; was elected a member of the City Council. He was married in March, 1866, to Miss M. C. Myers, a native of Indiana. The marriage took place at Oskaloosa, Kan. They have a family of two children—a boy and girl, aged sixteen and ten, respectively.

E. ROBERTSON, surveyor, native of Washington County, N. Y., born in 1807. His early youth was spent on the farm and at the age of twenty-five he learned the art of surveying, at which he was employed until 1876, when he went to California. Returning to his home in the East he came to Kansas in 1878, engaging in surveying and loaning money. In 1880 he was Acting County Surveyor of Neosho County under C. G. Waite. He now has his office with Dr. Brown.

W. W. ROYSTER, dealer in grain, broom corn, seeds, etc., native of Kentucky, born in 1834, was raised and educated there, coming to Kansas in 1872, he located on a farm. In 1878 he went into the grain business, building an elevator and warehouse with a capacity of 25,000. This was burned May 10, 1875. The same year he built another elevator and warehouse with a capacity of 60,000 bushels. This year he reports a shipment of 150 cars of corn, 110 cars of flax, and twenty-five cars of castor beans. Mr. Royster's farms, of which one is bottom land, the other prairie, have a corn crop that yields an average of sixty-five bushels to an acre. He is a charter member of the Masonic lodge, No. 385, of Cairo, Ky., charter member of the A. O. U. W., No. 29, of Chanute, also of the Knights of Honor, and a member of the I. O. O. F.

S. H. SCOTT, general loan and real estate factor, native of Carroll County, Ky., born in 1822. Having learned millwrighting in Kentucky he moved to Illinois in 1854, working in McLean and Marion Counties until 1870, when he came to Kansas, locating in Iola, Allen County, and there worked at building, coming to Chanute in 1872 as local agent for lands of the L. L. & G. R. R., handling and describing every one-quarter section of their land in Neosho County. In 1874 he became an independent loan and land agent. In 1880 he was appointed Notary Public and has also been a Justice of the Peace since that time. In 1882 he went into the real estate business with the McClelland Brothers.

GEORGE T. SHERMAN, proprietor of the Lindell Hotel, a native of Fairfield County, Conn., lived in Delaware County, Ohio, many years. Moved to Kansas in 1869. Settled in Elk City, Montgomery County, in 1870. Removed to Chanute in November, 1881.

C. H. SIMMONS, general grocery and hardware, is a native of Jersey County, Ill., and was born in 1848. He was raised on the farm and learned the carpenter trade before he came West. He landed in Kansas in 1869, taking a claim eight miles south of Chanute; he perfected it and then moved into the town in the fall of 1870, following his trade. He built the first house in what then was called Tioga, afterwards working on the public school building. He then went to Parsons, Labette County, and on to his former home in Illinois. Returning he opened a hardware store in 1879. The firm name was C. H. Simmons until January, 1883, it became Simmons & Walworth, when they moved into their present stand, enlarging their business, making it hardware and groceries, and are doing about $8,000 a year.

G. J. TALMAGE, station agent and operator for the K. C., L. & S. K. R. R. Co., native of Jacksonville, Ill., born in 1844; commenced as a messenger boy in Springfield, Ill., in the employ of the then Illinois & Mississippi Telegraph Company, and remembers distinctly the message sent from the National Convention at Chicago, to Abraham Lincoln of his nomination as presidential candidate of the United States, which he delivered into Mr. Lincoln's own hands, according to instructions. Mr. Talmage began as operator on what was known as the Great Western Railroad, now called the Wabash & Western. He then entered the Army Telegraph Corps, working with the Army of the Cumberland. In 1865 he returned to Illinois, and was located at Montrose, Iowa. In 1870 he went to Southwest Missouri in the employ of the S. P. R. R., now the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, as agent. Remaining five years and four months, afterwards as messenger for the Adams Express Company. Leaving them for a trip to the mountains on account of bad health, on his return employed with the K. C., F. S. & G. R. R., at Joplin, Mo., then taking the Lawrence, Kan., station, going from there to Hunnewell, and on October 12, 1881, was appointed to this station.

JOHN WELLS, dry goods, etc.; native of England, born in 1830, and came to America in 1861, locating in Butler County, Ill., giving his attention to farming till 1870, when on account of his eyes he returned to his native country. Coming to America in 1871 he located at Ottawa, Franklin County, Kan. On coming to Chanute, he established his business in 1874. He then occupied a building owned by H. A. Jackson, with a small stock of about $400. He then, in 1876, moved to the Chronicle Building, where he took in about $50 a day. In 1877, July 14, he moved to the Blue Front, where his business increased, and in 1880 he moved to his present place, and in 1882 had sales amounting to $20,000.

G. P. WILDER, drugs; native of Massachusetts, born in 1844. When ten years of age his father moved the family to Kansas and located in Lawrence. In 1860 G. P. went into the dry goods business with John Read, remaining with him until August, 1863, when he was burned out by Quantrell. In 1864 he went into the army as Sutler's clerk; was with Steele's Division, but returned home in September of that year, going into the dry goods business, changing however in 1867 to the drug line, clerking with B. W. Woodward, of Lawrence. In 1871 he came to Chanute starting a branch house for B. W. Woodard in that part of the town then known as Tioga. In 1878 he bought the business and has prospered, building up a good trade. In 1873 there were three drug firms in the place, Kramer & Son; Williams & Allen, and B. W. Woodard.

J. WINFIELD, grain and agricultural implement dealer, native of Wayne County, Ohio, born in 1844. He went in 1860 to Indiana. While here was in the carpenter trade, and when the war broke out he enlisted in the Indiana Volunteer Infantry Service, and in 1868 he came to Kansas, locating in Erie, Neosho County, coming to Chanute and going into the grain business in 1877, and in 1880 built his warehouse, a building 35x90 feet. His shipments for 1882 were the largest of any year that he has been in the business. He shipped 340 tons of broom-corn, 43 cars of flax, 41 cars of castor beans, and 3,000 bushels of German millet.

THAYER.

The city of Thayer is situated in the western part of Neosho County, on the line of the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas Railroad. The country surrounding it is a fertile and rolling prairie, much of which is yet uncultivated. The land upon which the site is located belonged to John Hamar, and comprises an area of 160 acres. The town was laid out in the fall of 1870 by Col. Smith, Judge Thatcher, J. Richmond and M. R. Baldwin, railroad officials.

The first house was built by H. A. Mills, a frame store room, in which he began the merchandising business. George Weaver and W. W. Work erected a two story frame building, in which they put a stock of general merchandise. M. R. Baldwin, a railroad official, erected a hotel which was known as the Baldwin House. Holmes & Hinman began in the drug business, Foults & Ingersoll started a cabinet and furniture shop, and about the sametime, Thomas Thompson built and began running a hotel and saloon. Following this almost in consecutive order, J. M. Halstead started a general store, and Harris & Sax, from Cincinnati, established a clothing store. The railroad was completed to the place in the fall of 1870, which was the chief incentive to its establishment and growth. The same spirit of anxiety, as is the case with all new towns, to be the first established, found free indulgence here. The foundation of the first structure was laid, on the town site, on the 3d of November, 1870, by I. Hopkins. From this time on the rush was great, and by the end of the year the town contained a population of about 700 persons, and, it is said, that among all this crowd of people there were but three women. It was, however, a motley and promiscuous town, made up of shanties, tents, covered wagons, and old bachelors. So rapid, indeed, was the growth of the town that, before the end of the year 1870, it was incorporated as a city of the third class, and Mr. Coffin, the railroad engineer, was elected Mayor. For several months during the winter it was the terminus of the railroad, which also had the effect to stimulate the growth and business. It was during this time that the town reached the zenith of its greatness, either in population, business or saloons. The population reached nearly 1,000, and the saloons many. Among the population, at this time, there were many construction hands who had taken up their abode, awaiting to resume employment upon the further extension of the road. As would naturally be expected, there were among these, many men of rough and dissolute habits, who kept the town ablaze with drunkenness, quarreling, fighting, and sometimes murder. With the extension of the road, this rough element was eliminated, leaving a quiet and peaceable populace.

Following this event, too, the excitement also died away, and the town settled down to a normal condition, with a largely reduced population, and began upon a period of slower but a more substantial growth, that has continued up to the present date. The town now contains a population of about 500, and enumerates many business establishments of sundry sorts and sizes.

A postoffice, called Prairie du Chien, was established at a point about three miles east of Thayer. After the town was founded the office was brought to it, and the name changed to Thayer. At the time of this change A. I. Sherwood held the appointment of Postmaster. The office is now held by C. T. Ewing.

The first school in Thayer was taught during the winter of 1870-71, and was kept in the small frame school building that was erected late in 1870. A new schoolhouse was built in 1872. It is a one-story brick structure containing two departments, and cost $5,000. In order to raise means to erect the building bonds were issued to this amount. The interest on these bonds was suffered to accumulate for some time, and a subsequent issue of bonds was made, amounting to $6,000, with which to defray this interest and a part of the principal. There is now but about $3,000 of the entire indebtedness unpaid.

THE PRESS.

The first paper published at Thayer was the Thayer Criterion, by Perry & Olney; the first issue having been made on the 27th of February, 1871. The paper lived only about four months and was suspended.

On the 16th of August, 1871, C. T. Ewing issued the first number of a paper called the Headlight. The first number of the paper was printed at the Criterion office, after which material, press, etc., were procured for the Headlight publication.

The office and paper were sold to G. W. McMillan, April 1, 1876. Mr. McMillan issued but two numbers of the paper at Thayer, and on the 15th of April removed to Erie, the county seat, issuing the paper as the Erie Headlight, the first number of which appeared on the 21st of April, 1876. Thus, for a time, the original Headlight became estranged from the place of its origin. On the 26th of May, 1876, the Thayer Headlight was again started by T. C. Ewing, for which he purchased new material. The paper is still published at Thayer under the proprietorship of C. T. Ewing.

The town contains four church organizations—the Methodist, Baptist, Catholic and Presbyterian, each of which is liberally supported.

There are also three social orders. These are the Masonic, Odd Fellows and the Ancient Order of United Workman.

MANUFACTURING.

The Thayer City Mills were built in 1875 by the firm of Marshall & McCrone. After about one year's time McCrone bought Marshall's interest, and in about three years following the concern was sold to Sapp & Cross. It is now held by L. Hunting and is operated by J. McCullough. The mill contains two run of stone and has a daily capacity for grinding eighty bushels of wheat and 100 of corn. The power is a forty-horse engine.

Thayer at the present time contains 3 drug, 2 hardware, 2 dry goods, and 5 grocery stores, harness shop, shoe shop, blacksmith shop, hotel, bank, post-office, newpaper, etc.

With its advantageous surroundings the city has before it flattering prospects of a liberal growth.

Later on in life he began business as a contractor, and in 1870 graded the L. L. & G. road into Thayer, which was then the terminus. Locating here, he put up the first house in the place, which became in a few years a thriving village. He then located his present farm and home, and at once became identified with the Early Settlers' Protective Association, furnishing both brain and muscle in the war on the Osage ceded land question. After this was settled he had a severe struggle to obtain a clear title to his farm, a struggle lasting seven years, and it was not till 1882 that it was finally decided. He has since been engaged in farming and contracting.

R. E. SWEENEY, M. D., native of Greene County, Tenn., born in 1827. He commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Hawkins, of Warrensburg, with whom he read and practiced for five years, having attended the Knoxville University, and taught school to get money to educate himself with. In 1862 he escaped into the Union lines and enlisted as Lieutenant of Company D, Fourth Tennessee Volunteer Infantry, in Col. Stover's regiment, and in 1864 was detailed as Surgeon at Camp Nelson, serving till relieved by the regular Surgeon, when he returned to his company, and when mustered out he at once went on to Miami College, Cincinnati, Ohio. He returned home after this course of lectures, and took up his practice, where he worked till 1869, when he came to Kansas, locating at Humboldt, Allen County, and the same year locating near Chanute. He took a claim, farming and practicing till 1881, when he took his wife to the Eureka Springs, returning to Thayer in 1882. Having rented his farm, he is now practicing with Dr. Huston. In 1873 he married Miss M. J. Huston. The doctor is a member of the I. O. O. F.

W. M. WAGNER, of the firm of Wagner & Stattard, grocers. Native of Ohio; born in 1853. He was raised in Indiana, and when eight years of age crossed the plains with his uncle, J. W. Hendricks, locating in San Francisco, Cal., returning to Indiana in 1862. He came with his father to Kansas in the fall of 1871. His father, S. B. Wagner, went into the restaurant business, where W. M. worked until 1873, when he went into the Headligh as "devil." In 1874 he returned to Indiana. Coming to Thayer again in 1875, he went into the grocery business with Wagner & Smith, the firm becoming Wagner & Son. His health failing, he struck out for the mountains, where he recovered. He then returned to Thayer and went into business with his father, continuing until June, 1882, when he established his present trade, carrying a stock of $1,500, and doing a business of $4,000.

A. M. WHITTEKER, general merchandise. Native of Tioga County, Pa., born in 1836. He was raised and educated on the farm, moving to Pontiac, Mich., in 1864, where he went into mercantile life, carrying on business afterwards in both Saranac and Ludington, then moved to Missouri in 1869. He remained a short time, and came to Neosho County, taking a farm of 320 acres, which he occupied until 1879, then traded it to Mr. McLochlin for a mercantile stock. This was burned, and he had to commence again, and has been doing a better business every year since. His sales in 1880 were $9,222.52; in 1881 they were $13,500, and in 1882 amounted to $20,000. Mr. Whitteker married in Pennsylvania, and has six children, girls. He is a member of the K. of H.

EARLETON.

Earleton is a small town situated in the western part of Neosho County, on the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas Railroad. It is about seven miles south of Chanute, and about the same distance north of Thayer. The land upon which the town is located was the property of the Leavenworth, Lawrence & Gulf Railroad Company (now the K. C., L. & S. K. R. R. Co).

The town was started in the interest of the company by J. C. Lantz, and comprised an area of fifty acres. Directly after the site became fixed Lantz erected a store room and commenced business, dealing in groceries. The station house, for the accommodation of the railroad employees, was built in 1870. But little toward the building of the town was done until 1876, when the title to the lands in this section was quieted, and the country began to be settled. In 1877 H. L. Freeman bought Lantz's store, enlarging the room and continuing the business. Brown Brothers began in the grocery business in 1878, and sold in September, 1881, to N. F. Pattee. J. S. Cunningham erected a residence in 1870, and J. C. Freeman built one in 1877. In the following year J. C. Robinson erected a shop and began blacksmithing, and during this year H. A. Brown built a residence and the depot building was erected. For about two years there was a lull in the improvement of the town, after which its growth was renewed. In the fall of 1880 H. L. Freeman erected a residence and in the spring of the next year A. B. Yoder also built a residence. The Evangelical Church was built in 1882. It is a neat frame structure of plain architecture. S. A. Brown & Co. started a lumber yard in 1882. During this year there were seven buildings erected in the town, among which was the parsonage belonging to the Evangelical Church.

The cemetery was started in December, 1880, and was incorporated in June, 1881. The grounds comprise three and one-half acres, regularly laid off. About 100 lots have already been disposed of. The postoffice was established at this point in 1870, with J. C. Lantz as Postmaster. In 1877 he was succeeded by H. L. Freeman, who has since held the office.

The educational facilities are such as are afforded by the district in which it is included. The first school was taught in the district in 1876, by Miss Ida Stone. The school building stands about a mile east of the town.

There are three church organizations in the place; the Evangelical, the Methodist, and the United Brethren. Only one of these, the Evangelical, is provided with a church building.

The Earleton Lodge, No. 167, I. O. O. F., was moved to this place from Thayer, in July, 1882. There were, at the time, about twenty members, which has been increased to about thirty. Joseph Smith is noble grand; J. M. Murphy, secretary, and J. H. Orr, treasurer.

The country surrounding the town is fertile prairie, much of which is yet in the hands of speculators, and consequently unimproved. As it is, however, the town is favored with an extensive country trade, and is an important point in the shipment of grain and live stock. During the season of 1882 there was about 100,000 bushels of corn shipped from this point. The town, at present, contains two stores and a population of about one hundred. There is wanting, however, but the lapse of time, in which the full settlement of the surrounding country shall be made, and the impending necessities must naturally inure to the growth of the town and its ultimate attainment of importance in point of size and business indust·

URBANA.

Urbana is a small town in the western part of Neosho County, about nine miles south of Chanute on the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

The town was founded by Dr. Peters and a few other settlers living in the vicinity. Up to August, 1870, it contained two stores and a few residences. At this time Samuel Crawford, D B. & W. C. Emmert, McCullough and some others took interest in the town. The site was re-surveyed and everything made ready for its upbuilding.

Circumstances however, did not favor the place, which has made but slight progress, and remains with but little increase in size over what it was in 1870.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

H. BROWN, farmer, and agent for S. A. Brown & Co., Section 19, P. O. Morehead, native of England, born in 1851. He came to America in 1875, landing in New Orleans, going to Texas, into the sheep business, but soon returning to New Orleans, he came up the Mississippi River to St. Louis, and from there to Kansas; arriving without money or friends, he made his nerve and sinew, with which nature had endowed him, stand in good stead, and worked at railroad section work, then going into the mercantile line, selling in 1882 to N. F. Pattee, he now gives his attention to his farm and to grain buying. In 1878 he married Miss Gougham. Mr. Brown has been elected Township Trustee in 1880-1-2, and belongs to the Catholic Church, who are about building a house of worship.

H. A. BROWN, M. D., native of Burlington, Iowa, born in 1850. He commenced reading medicine in 1869, with Dr. J. M Sturdevant, and entered on a preliminary practice. In 1876 graduating from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Keokuk, Iowa, resuming practice in Iowa, coming to Kansas and locating in Earleton as early as 1878, being the first M. D. of the place. The first year's practice booked $1,900, and now reaches $2,500 a year. Doctor Brown has bought and improved the town property where he resides.

H. L. FREEMAN, general merchant, native of Illinois, born in 1854. His father, J. C. Freeman, is a native of Cambridge, England, and was born in 1828, came to America in 1832, and was raised and educated near Buffalo, N. Y., on the farm, coming to Wisconsin in 1847, he located permanently in Illinois, where his family were all born. In 1877 his son, H. L., bought store and stock of J. C. Lantz, and enlarged both, carrying now a stock of $3,500, and doing a business of $11,000 a year, also dealing in grain. He married Miss Henderson, in Orion, Ill., and they have two children. He has four brothers—the elder, Frank, is Operator in Orion for the C., B. & Q. R. R., on the R. I. Division; the rest are in Earleton. The youngest, John S., is now operator on the L., L. & G. Station here, and is the youngest operator in the West. H. L. is postmaster. Was elected Justice of Peace in 1877, and is Station Agent, and agent for the town lots of Earleton. His father has just been elected Township Trustee. The other boys run the farm. J. C. Freeman has also two daughters.

GALESBURGH.

The town of Galesburgh is situated near the central part of Neosho County, on the Neosho Division of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad, seven miles north and five miles west of the city of Parsons. The country surrounding it is a rolling prairie of great fertility, and is excellently adapted to agricultural pursuits.

The town was started in the summer of 1871, by a town company, composed of J. W. Crees, David Bonham, E. Sapp. Levi A. Doan, and J. W. Snyder. The land was taken up by one Tracy, to whom the town company furnished money, with which to deed it.

The original site comprised eighty acres, to which another forty-acre tract was subsequently added. The survey of the town site was made by a man named Hinson.

The first building on the site was a dwelling, erected by William Young, soon after the town was located. About the same time, or soon after this, J. W. Snyder put up a store room, which he occupied with a stock of general merchandise. During the same fall, Carson & Smith erected a two-story building, the lower part of which was used as a store room, and the upper part as a town hall. George Harris erected a store room and began dealing in general goods. From the first, the growth of the town has been extremely moderate, presenting no very flattering prospects for the future. The population is about 150, and the town contains four general stores, one hardware store, two grain elevators, a lumber and coal yard, hotel, livery stable, blacksmith shop, school, two church houses and a postoffice.

The postoffice at first was located about a mile south of where the town now is, and was called Rose Hill. S. Rosa was the first Postmaster. In 1871, the office was taken to the town and became known as Galesburgh. At the time, and for some time after the removal of the postoffice, Rosa continued to be the Postmaster.

The first school was taught in Galesburgh, by Miss Parna Whittlesey, in the winter of 1871-72. The school was held in the Town Hall. A school building was erected in 1872, and is a small frame 36x40 feet in dimensions. The school population is now about eighty. There are four church societies, composed of residents of the town and country, which have their place of worship in the town. These are: the Methodist, Baptist, Christian and Congregationalist. There are but two church houses, the Methodist and Christian. The former was erected in the fall of 1881, and the latter in the fall and winter of 1882-83. Judging from the progress the town has made and its age, it is to be feared, unless aided by some advantageous circumstances, that Galesburgh is destined to continue small and unimportant country town.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

G. D. CLAPSADDLE, farmer, Section 29, P. O. Galesburgh, a native of Niagara County, N. Y., was born in February, 1824. In 1869 he came to Neosho County and turned the first furrow in this part of it, the country around being an unbroken wilderness. In 1870 his family came out. He had put up his cabin on Section 20, but afterward moved to his present site, where he is well established, with fine improvements and a farm of 320 acres, which he farms in grain and stock. In 1854 Mr. Clapsaddle married Miss Lydia A. Kaylor, who was born in Preble County, Ohio, in 1832. They have had eight children, six of whom are now living, four sons and two daughters. Mr. Clapsaddle has served as Justice of the Peace for eight terms.

T. H. CONDON, grain dealer, of the firm of Condon, Merritt & Co., native of Pike County, Ohio, born in 1847. He was raised and educated there and came to Kansas in the spring of 1870, coming to Girard on the cars, he met his friends there and was married on the evening of the first day he spent in the State and proceeded to his claim in Centerville Township, Neosho County, where he lived in a shanty, and opened up his farm, joining the Settlers' Protective Association and fighting with them, the Osage ceded land question which resulted in securing them all homes. In 1873, he entered mercantile life and put in the first pair of scales and bought the first bushel of corn in Galesburgh. This firm has shipped fifty-five cars of corn this season, four of oats, two of flax and five of castor beans. In 1882 he was appointed agent for the Adams Express Company in town, and is a member of the Masonic Lodge of Thayer. In 1873, he built a good residence and the company have good improvements, such as office, warehouse and will put up an elevator. Mr. Condon, in 1869 married Miss Pendergrass. They have two sons.

WILLIAM CRAIG, farmer, Section 18, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Ohio, born in 1821. He is of Scotch and Irish descent. Of his father's family there are two brothers and six sisters. Mr. William Craig was raised on the farm and in 1861, enlisted in the Sixty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company H. His health failing, he returned home to recruit, in 1864, in the same regiment, and was mustered out in December, 1865. On coming to Kansas he sold his farm in Ohio, and located in Neosho County. In 1878, buying his farm of 160 acres of Mr. Cornell for $2,000. The first owner, Mr. Foster, had built a cabin; when Mr. Cornell took it he broke thirty acres and built a small stone house on the farm and so it was when Mr. Craig bought it. It had been entered by Mr. Cornell in 1869. We find now a fine orchard, a mile of stone fence and a fine residence, and a barn with 320 acres in the farm. His crops since coming to the State have averaged good. In 1882, he had forty bushels of corn, twenty-two bushels of wheat to an acre. His home now is worth from $10,000 to $12,000. Mr. Craig married in 1850, Miss Dugon. They have four boys and two girls. He was elected Township Treasurer in 1882, and belongs to the G. A. R.

JOHN DAVIS, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Galesburgh, native of Ohio, born in 1830. At an early age he was taken to Illinois, where he was raised; his father being a farmer while in this State. His father died, leaving his widow with four boys and one girl; they all staid with the family and in 1857, moved to Cass County, Mo., farming there, but it got too warm among the rebs of that section, and John first came to Kansas, and in 1861 enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-third Illinois Infantry, Company F, mustered out in 1865 as Sergeant; he returned to the farm in Illinois, and then all moved to Missouri. In 1869 coming to Neosho County, Kan., and locating, the rest of the family soon afterward returned to Missouri, but John staid and from a wilderness of prairie has now a well improved farm of 160 acres, cultivating eighty-five acres, having the rest in pasture and meadow; with the exception of 1881, has always raised a crop and in that year learned to graze hogs. In 1858, July 25th, Mr. Davis married Miss Hartford. They have a fine family. Mr. Davis' brother, Miles, returned to Kansas in 1882.

J. W. FERGUSON, M.D., native of Perry County, Ohio, born in 1848, January 6th. He first read medicine with Dr. H. L. Ferguson, in 1871 and 1872 attending a course of lectures in the Starling Medical College, of Columbus, Ohio, and entering the firm of Dawson & Ferguson, at Gibsonville, Hocking Co., Ohio, where he practiced till 1874, then going to Waterloo, Fayette County, and from there in 1876, to Kansas, where he landed October 19, 1876, opening his office in Galesburgh, Neosho County. While in Ohio, Dr. Ferguson married Miss Reedy. They have four children, two boys and two girls.

H. L. HARBAUGH, farmer, Section 11, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Perry County, Ohio, and was born March, 1836. Until eighteen years of age he lived on the farm, then going to work at a trade he learned cabinet making. In 1861, he enlisted in the three months' service in the Seventeenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company E, as non-commissioned officer. In 1861, he enlisted again in the Sixty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company C; having recruited this company he was commissioned First Lieutenant. On the night previous to the battle of Winchester, March, 1862, he received an injury to his left eye, from the effects of which, after the Peninsular campaign, he was obliged to resign and return home. But in 1864, we find him re-enlisted in the One Hundred and Sixtieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry with commission of Major. In 1865, he returned to the civil walks of life, going into the dry goods business, then to buying tobacco for a shipping house belonging to D. Ferguson, his father-in-law. In seeking a better climate he came to Kansas and bought of Mr. Lansdown this farm of 160 acres, paying $190. Mr. Lansdown was to put up a cabin and break a piece of land, and although it was a wet season, he raised forty bushels of corn to an acre on it. The land fight took most of Major Harbaugh's money, but he succeeded in entering his land in 1876, and in 1879, went East. He returned in 1880, and in 1881, raised nothing, but in 1882, did well. He now owns 200 acres, and is engaged in farming in grain and stock. In 1862, Major Harbaugh married Miss Ferguson. They have three boys and four girls. He has served his township as Clerk one term, and as Trustee five terms.

A. J. HARMON, farmer, Section 11, P. O. Urbana, is a native of Genesee County, N. Y. Born in 1830, and raised on a farm, he attended school until eighteen years of age, then taking a railroad station, Crittenden, on the New York Central, this he kept until 1854, when for his health he went to farming and buying grain; but in seeking a milder climate, rode in a spring wagon through the country to Neosho County, Kan., improving as he came. On getting here he purchased a claim in Erie Township for $750, this he deeded, broke fifty acres, fenced with hedge, built a good house, dug a fine well, set out orchard, and in 1877, sold to Mr. Sreves. He then bought his present house of Mr. H. Leach for $1,350, with the crops on it, orchard, etc. Mr. Harmon improved it greatly since, and never failed in raising a crop. In 1882, his corn averaged forty bushels, and wheat twenty-seven and one-half to an acre, raising also castor beans and oats, handling some stock. In 1852, he married Miss Blaisdel, and they celebrated their pearl wedding on the twenty-second of this month. They had two children, a son and daughter—D. Harmon and Mary A. Harmon, now Mrs. Strickland, of Thayer. Mr. Harmon was elected Justice of the Peace in 1875, and ran for County Commissioner in 1879 on the Democratic ticket.

H. HODGDEN, drugs and general merchandise, is a native of Union County, Ohio. He was born in 1844. His youth was spent on the farm. And when the War of the Rebellion broke out, he enlisted in the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company C. At the close of the war he returned to Ohio, and in 1869, removed to the State of Missouri, staying only one year, when he came to Kansas and took a claim of 160 acres, in Centerville Township, close to Galesburgh, raising 400 bushels of good corn the first year. He remained on the farm until February, 1882, when he bought out Mr. F. H. Holcomb, and established himself in Galesburgh, in general merchandising. This was the first establishment in Galesburg of the kind, being started by J. W. Snider, in 1869. He was appointed Postmaster in 1882. Before removing from Ohio he married Miss M. E. Newland.

A. KUYKENDALL, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Galesburgh, is a native of Kentucky, and was born in 1840. When the war broke out he was employed as a scout, enlisting under Albert Sydney Johnston, afterward serving in Gen. John A. Morgan's command; while with him he was taken prisoner. He was with Basil Duke and Breckinridge, having many narrow escapes from death. In 1867, in an emigrant train of nine or ten wagons, he came to Kansas and bought 320 acres of the Davis Brothers, paying $600 for the west quarter and $300 for the east quarter, with improvements and but twenty acres broken. He has now in cultivation 140 acres, the rest in orchard and pasture. In 1871, he raised a splendid crop of corn, and failed only in 1874, having never failed in wheat. In 1865, Mr. Kuykendall married Miss Lee. They have eight children, five boys and three girls. Mr. Kuykendall has served as Township Clerk, and in 1875 was nominated for County Treasurer on the Democratic ticket.

JOHN McCARTHY, drugs, medicine and groceries, a native of Ireland, was born in 1847, and in 1850 his parents immigrated to America, locating in Illinois, where he was raised and educated. In 1869 he moved to Kansas, stopping in Parsons, Labette County, until 1871, when he came to Galesburg, opening the first blacksmith and wagon shop in the town. In 1872 he moved to Ladore Township, remaining there till 1879, when he established his drug business, which he has conducted successfully since. In 1880 he added groceries to his business, doing annually about $6,000 in sales. Mr. McCarthy married Miss De Vaney. They have one child, a daughter. He was a member of the Settlers' Protective Association.

J. E. MERRITT, of the firm of Condon, Merritt & Co., grain dealers, a native of Ohio, was born in 1848. Coming to Kansas in 1869 he located in Neosho County; taking a claim, he opened his farm, where he has raised a succession of good crops. As early as 1872 he was elected Township Trustee and Justice of the Peace. In 1881 he entered the firm in his present business. While in Illinois he married Miss Dillman. In addition to the grain shipped by the firm they shipped about 1,000 crates of peaches in 1882, and are doing some real estate business.

J. H. PENDERGRASS, in the firm of Condon, Merritt & Co., a native of Athens County, Ohio, was born in 1831. He was raised and educated here, and in 1854, August 20, married Miss Martha Crockett. Coming to Kansas in 1870 he built the first house in the town of Galesburgh. Taking a claim he engaged in farming. He acted as station agent for Dr. Crees till 1873, when he was appointed, keeping the station till 1883. In 1875 he commenced buying grain, the firm then being Condon & Co., continuing till 1881, when he organized it under its present title. Mr. Pendergrass belongs to the Settlers' Protective Association, and is now a member of the Masonic, I. O. O. F., and also of the Christian Church. In 1883 he was appointed agent for the Missouri Pacific Express Company. The family consists of four children, two sons and two daughters.

J. M. SLAUGHTER, M. D. and farmer, Section 35, P. O. Galesburgh, is a native of Tennessee and was born in 1812. In 1832 he commenced studying medicine and moved to Kentucky, where he bought a farm and gave his attention to this. In 1844 he moved back to Tennessee and bought a farm, and took his second course of reading while engaged in farming. In 1850 he moved to Brooks Bend, Jackson Co., Tenn., and took up his practice again, where he was busy until 1855, when he move to Missouri, locating in Cass County, near Harrisonville, meaning to farm here, but his neighbors made him resume, so he worked at both occupations. In 1861 he enlisted in the Missouri Home Guards that were formed under the call issued by Gen. Fremont. In 1863 he enlisted in the Missouri State Militia. After the war he lived in Missouri until 1869, when he emigrated to Kansas, locating on his present home; at first living in a camp, and as winter came on built a curious house of hay, with walls four feet thick; in the meantime ministering to scattered pioneer families and getting out rock from the quarries and building, doing the mason work himself. In 1870 they moved into it. He has improved his farm, having now eighty acres, sixty-five cultivated and the rest in pasture, with a fine orchard with 830 bearing trees—apples, peaches, pears and cherries, also plenty of small fruit. During the war he met his present wife, whose father, Mr. Collins, befriended him. Dr. Slaughter has been married four times. He is the father of nineteen children, eight now alive. In 1879 he obtained a certificate from the State Medical Association.

J. B. WILLISON, farmer, Section 23, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of Ohio and was born in Coshocton County, January 25, 1839. He was raised and educated at Indianola, Vermillion Co., Ill., and in 1858 went to Warren County, Iowa, where he engaged in teaching. In 1861 he enlisted in the Third Iowa Volunteer Infantry, Company G. Served during the war. Returning home in 1865, he went to Bryant & Stratton's Commercial College at Chicago, afterward going into a business house as clerk, remaining until 1869, when he returned to his home in Illinois. He came to Kansas in 1871, locating in Woodson County; coming to his present location in 1873 he took up a contested claim of eighty acres, which he has since improved and entered in 1878. Now cultivating forty-five acres and the rest in pasture. With the exception of 1881 he has had no failure of crops. In 1868 Mr. Willison married Miss Sarah A. Williams. They have one child, a son. Mr. Willison has served two terms as Township Clerk.

JACKSONVILLE.

Jacksonville was a town situated on the corners of Crawford, Neosho and Labette counties, and within about one hundred yards from the corner of Cherokee County. It was located in the Neosho Valley, about ten miles southeast of Osage Mission.

Its growth, at first, was somewhat rapid and encouraging, and, at one time, was second in size and importance among the towns of Neosho County.

It contained, at this time, several stores, a printing-office, hotel, two blacksmith shops, a shoe and harness shop, and several good residence buildings. There were two saw-mills within a mile of the town. Being situated in a fertile district, sufficiently removed from other points, and being the second town in the county, its growth was brisk and the predictions were in favor of its becoming a town of considerable importance.

The town, however, in the midst of its prosperity, was overtaken by adversity. The day of railroad building had arrived, which, as a general rule, played havoc among existing towns, they being, either left standing some distance off from the lines of the roads, or absorbed by places favored by the fostering influences of these corporations. This, too, was the secret of the downfall of Jacksonville, which has been wholly swallowed up by the railroad towns, and, to-day, nothing remains to mark the site where it stood, excepting a postoffice, in a lonely farmhouse.

Island, in the southeast part of Neosho County, is a postoffice. The first settlement was made here in 1869, by L. F. Rogers, and a town site was established, called Island, so named on account of its location being at the foot of Big Island, on the Neosho River. A postoffice was established in 1880, and T. M. Warne was the first Postmaster. L. F. Rogers built a saw-mill in 1869, and a grist-mill in 1873. M. S. Austin opened a general store in 1880. In 1880, T. M. Warne bought the whole town site, including store, mills, houses, etc., and contains five or six resident families.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

B. W. BENNETT, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Island, is a native of West Virginia. He was born in 1818. His parents moved to Indiana, when he was quite young. In 1836 he took a trip to New Orleans and came to Clay County, Mo., with a brother, in 1837, and the next year crossed the river into Kansas Territory, where Leavenworth City is now located—then being the Delaware Indian Territory. In 1838, he brought his mother out to Platte County, Mo., and in 1840, crossed into Kansas Territory, about where Kansas City is now. In the spring of 1841, he received an injury that resulted in the loss of a leg in 1880. He took a trip across the Plains in 1850, and in 1851, we find him making $25 a day in the gold mines of California, afterwards returning to Pike County, Ill., where his family had moved in 1844. He then tried Nebraska in 1863, but the climate was too vigorous, and in 1871, came to Kansas, locating on and improving his farm, the soil being first class bottom land. In the fall of 1840, Mr. Bennett married Miss Spencer. They had two boys and four girls, having lost one —Horace, in the Sixteenth Illinois Volunteer Infantry. He was wounded in battle, near Atlanta, July 4, 1864; died August 4that Kingston, Ga. In 1875, Mr. Bennett was elected Justice of the Peace, and Postmaster from 1876 to 1878, of the Island postoffice.

G. M. GEARHART was born November 30, 1842, in Greene County, State of Illinois, and in 1861, he went into the army, was wounded at Shiloh, Tenn., April 6, 1862, and at Jackson, Miss., August 2, 1863, and also at Atlanta, Ga., July 6, 1864, and was mustered out June 5, 1865. He was a private in Company D, Thirty-second Illinois Infantry. He left Illinois March 9, 1866, and arrived here about April 12th, or 13th, in company with one Sampson Wood, and has remained in this settlement since. He took his present farm in 1866; and has improved it and lived on it since. His best crops were raised about the year 1875, the grasshoppers did him great damage. His brother, William, and sister, Mrs. Miller, live here. He has been married twice, first to Miss Crabbs, November 5, 1868, from Maryland, and last to Miss Matoneen, 1882, from Illinois. He has five children, all boys. He entered 160 acres prairie land, viz.: the west one-half of northwest quarter of Section 28, Township 30, Range 21, and east one-half of northeast quarter of Section 29, Township 30, Range 21, in Neosho County of the Osage Ceded Lands.

M. V. MILLER farmer, P. O. Island, native of Illinois, born in 1844. While there was engaged in farming, and came West to Kansas in 1868, and bought of Mr. Moon the eighty acres on which he lives. In 1872, buying another eighty on Section 32, taking the land of wild prairie, he has by dint of hard work and perseverance, produced a well-ordered and productive farm, strange to say, raising the best crops in 1875, although he did not plant his corn until after the grasshoppers had left, which they did, in June 2, 1875. This year, 1882, his wheat averaged twenty-two bushels to the acre, and corn thirty-five. In 1872, he married Miss Gearhart. They have three children, all girls. Mr. Miller enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-second Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company F, and fought in the siege of Mobile, the last engagement of the War of the Rebellion April 9, 1865.

J. G. REYNOLDS, farmer, Section 21, P. O. Island, is a native of Pennsylvania, born in 1833. At an early age his parents moved to Wayne County, Ind., and then to Hendricks County, where on the old timber farm among the bears and in a wilderness he was raised and educated. Beginning his rambles he directed his course toward Kansas as early as 1856, but on getting to Missouri stopped and located in Harrison County, where he farmed, made brick, making those used in the first court house in the county. He then went to Colorado and worked in the mines, returning to Indiana in 1864, visiting his old home. He then moved to Iowa and finally fitting out at Ottumwa he started for Kansas in 1867. He describes the country all the way down the Neosho Valley to the Arkansas River as filled with the stench of dying and dead cattle. Coming up the valley he located on his present farm, buying the claim of 160 acres from a Mr. Stockwell. He had the pleasure, however of turning the first furrow on the place, and having a knowledge of fruit he has now one of the finest orchards in the section. His best corn crop was in 1875. In 1868 he married Miss Shepard, of Missouri. They have one boy and five girls in the family.

FRANK SHEFFER, farmer, Section 3, P. O. Osage Mission, is a native of New York, born in 1838, here he was raised and educated. Moving to Kane County, Ill., he went to farming, and November 8, 1868, came in a covered wagon from Illinois to Kansas, arrived here in Neosho County. The family having no habitation were compelled to live in the wagon box placed on the ground; he soon built, however, and commenced opening his farm. Although the climate and soil proved to be all that he expected, provisions were high and scarce, so that his ready cash was soon exhausted, and the first corn planted on the sod yielded a scanty supply, and he went to freighting from Ottawa to other points. Getting a deed to his farm in 1876, and belonging to the Settlers' Association in 1874. Was posted in all the early movements of the organization. His farm is well improved, and in the year of 1882, reports an average of forty bushels of corn to an acre, raising also good crops of wheat and oats. His sheep farming turning out well. In December 15, 1865, he married Miss Wallace. They have three sons. Mr. Sheffer was elected Township Trustee in 1880.

MRS. M. H. SPURGEON, widow of Hon. G. W. Spurgeon, State Senator, deceased, Section 27, P. O. Island. G. W. Spurgeon was a native of Ohio, born in 1834, February 25, where he was reared and educated, and moved to Illinois when seventeen years of age. Here he was engaged in farming and at the carpenter's trade, visiting Kansas as early as 1857, but it was not until 1869 that he located in Neosho County on the present homestead, buying it of Abram H. Houser, and had deeded it before the ceded land question came up, though he was in sympathy with the unfortunate settlers and always ready to help. In 1873, '74 and '75, he was Secretary of the State Grange, and finally was elected to the State Senate on the Greenback ticket in 1877. After returning home he busied himself on the farm until the time of his decease in 1879. They were all nearly swept in 1873 by a cyclone, which demolished their cabin. G. W., a boy of two years of age, had both legs broken at the thigh, and John M. had his arm broken, also a leg, besides having his face cut seriously. Warren was bruised badly, the rest escaped without injury. Mrs. Spurgeon was left with a family of seven children, and February 14, 1883, she lost her son, W. J. Spurgeon. The farm is well improved, and in 1882 returned abundant harvests.

PETER THOMPSON, farmer, Section 22, P. O. Island, is a native of Scotland, came to America in 1839, learned his trade in Ohio. Came to Madison, Ind., and worked at his trade, marble cutting, there for twenty-three years, his health failed he came to Kansas in 1868, bought his present home of the party that had the claim of 160 acres, paying him $300 for it, having no other improvements than a log cabin and some eight acres broken. He bought it of the Government again. His farm of 160 acres lies on both sides of the road in Section 21 and 22. His farm is all fenced in, with good dwelling and large barn and stable. He has three boys that farm, and report good crops for 1882. In 1860, Mr Thompson married; his wife is also a native of Scotland. They have had four children, one now deceased.

LADORE.

Ladore was a town situated in the southern part of Neosho County, about five miles north of the city of Parsons, on the Neosho Division of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. It was the intention of the M. K. & T. Railroad Company to make this the junction of the main line and the Neosho Division of the road. In this event the shops, etc., were to be located here, and the town would have been what Parsons now is. When the company attempted to buy the lands the settlers thinking they had the company fast, refused to sell at anything like a reasonable figure, and the company having other chances, refused to pay the high price at which they held their property. Thus the settlers in attempting to grasp more than was just, lost a favoring opportunity; for the company immediately negotiated for the site of Parsons, and established that city.

Ladore was first called Fort Roach, in honor of J. N. Roach, its principal founder.

The report of its probably being made the railroad junction, where shops, etc., were to be built, was the cause operating in favor of its rapid advancement, which, for a time, was scarcely paralleled in the history of town building. So rapid indeed was its growth that in a few years it reached a population of 1,000, and contained a proportionate number of stores, etc., and all the improvements of a fast growing and substantial city. Schoolhouses, churches, and other public enterprises were made, with an idea of permanence. But the avaricious action of the owners of the land, was the secret of its overthrow, for no sooner had the site of Parsons become fixed, than the city, now called Ladore, was wholly moved to that place, and nothing remains of Ladore but a railroad side track, a farm residence, a church building and the postoffice.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

WILLIAM HIGGINS, farmer, Section 2, P. O. Galesburgh, native of Ohio, born in 1819. He was raised on the farm, and in 1870 came from Louisa County, Iowa, in company with his neighbors there, some thirty families, all belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church. They located in Neosho County, where there are but few now. Mr. Higgins bought 500 acres, paying $5 an acre, and then went into the stock business, buying largely and shipping until the ranges were fenced and the stock business became a thing of the past. In 1873 or 1874 he gave more attention to farming, now having a farm of 320 acres and 100 acres of it in cultivation. In the bad crop seasons he suffered with others, but in 1882 raised a splendid crop. He has one of the best improved farms in the county. In 1840 Mr. Higgins married Miss Harrold, of Ohio. They have had ten children—six boys and four girls. At present the family consists of one son and daughter and themselves. Mr. Higgins has a fine orchard covering some ten acres.

S. ROSA, farmer, Section 5, P. O. Galesburgh, native of New York, born in 1836. He came from Michigan to Kansas in 1857, locating in Allen County, where he espoused the Free-state cause and was a member of the Free-state organization known as the Wide-awakes, using their passwords and the old Sharps rifle, mustering under Col. Montgomery's command. In 1861 he enlisted in the Eighth Kansas Volunteer Infantry, Company F., and was in Col. Martin's Regiment when mustered out at Huntsville, Ala. He returned to Kansas, and in 1866 took a claim of 160 acres, which he now farms, raising excellent crops. His corn for 1882 averages forty bushels to an acre, and beans fifteen bushels. In 1874 Mr. Rosa was elected Squire, and in 1873 took the station at Galesburg on the M. P. R. R. He is also buying and shipping grain, having sent off this shipping season thirty-two cars of corn, one of oats and six of castor beans. Squire Rosa is a member of the Blue Lodge, and also of the I. O. O. F. Since 1873 has owned the south forty acres of the town site of Galesburg. He married in 1857 and has a family of two boys and one girl.

CHARLES SCHLUESE, farmer, Section 1, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Mecklenburg, Germany, born in 1838. Came to America in 1861, locating in Ohio, where he engaged in the grape culture. In 1876 he moved to Kansas, locating on his present farm, which now consists of 240 acres. He handles stock and has as fine a farm as there is in the county. His corn will average fifty bushels to the acre. He has 160 acres in corn this year, 1882, besides a good wheat crop. Mr. Schluese is a representative farmer.

OTHER TOWNS.

Chard is a postoffice in the northern part of Grant Township, and was established in July, 1878, and was named after Charles Chard.

Flat Rock postoffice was established in 1871. The first Postmaster was A. Markham, the second N. F. Barnett, the third Mr. Spohr, and the next Alf. Barnett. In 1879, Mr. Vietz opened a store on Section 36, and the postoffice was moved there. Mr. Williams then bought the store and became Postmaster, and was succeeded by Dr. M. D. Elder. It then fell into H. F. Cory's hands, and afterwards into those of I. N. Wherrett.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—SHILOH TOWNSHIP.

S. S. COMER, with the firm of J. B. Comer & Co., general merchandise, grain, etc. He is also station agent and operator for the L., L. & G. R. R. Native of Indianapolis, Ind.; born in 1851. His father, J. B. Comer, was engaged in the milling business in the East, and S. S. commenced railroading in 1872, taking a station on Terre Haute & Vandalia road, but in 1874, came to Kansas, locating with his parents on a farm three miles southwest of Thayer, and engaged in grain and stock raising. S. S. continued at this till 1876, when he took a station at Coffeyville, afterwards working at Chanute and Thayer. In 1880, he took Morehead Station, which was doing a large business. Then he gave it up, however, to attend to his own business in the store, and has only taken it again in February, 1883. Both he and his father are members of the I. O. O. F.

J. K. GRAVES, farmer, Section 26, P. O. Morehead; native of Louisville, Ky; born in 1845, 31st of August. Here he remained until he was some thirteen or fourteen years of age, when his parents removed to Harrison County, Ind. Here he had acquired a common school education, and in 1863, he commenced reading medicine. Not completing this study, he went into the coal-oil business in Kentucky, and then into coal mining. Giving this up, he came to Kansas, stopping at Fort Scott, then travelling to Emporia and Lyndon, the last place six months. From there, to Ellsworth, Fort Dodge, and back to Lyndon, via Wichita and Junction City, then entering the mercantile business with Robert Bassett, and in the spring of 1873, came from Cherryvale to Morehead, starting the first store in the village, soon after buying the farm he now occupies, costing $1.25 an acre, and now worth $20 an acre. Mr. Graves is highly esteemed among his friends and neighbors, an amiable disposition and of sterling integrity, and he relates among the pleasant incidents of his life, his visit to Topeka, Kan., at the great expose of Pomeroy by York.

WILLIAM M. LEECH, farmer, Section 23, P. O. Morehead, is a native of Ohio, and was born in 1838; was raised on the farm. When the war broke out he enlisted in the Thirty-ninth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and in 1864 veteraned, being mustered out at the close of the war, coming from Edgar County, Ill., in 1872, to Kansas, settling on a claim of 160 acres, entered by his wife's brother, who still lives with them and who still owns the claim. He succeeded in raising fine crops; his corn goes as high as seventy-five bushels to an acre. In 1881 he was appointed to fill a vacancy in his township as Trustee, and has been elected since to the office. He belonged to the Grange when it existed, and now belongs to the Morehead Alliance. Is also a member of United Brethren Church.

REV. W. H. MAKEANEY, M. D., who has been in the Methodist ministry over thirty years, and a regular practicing physician. Came to this village July, 1881, and commenced preaching in the Masonic Hall. He was soon appointed Justice of the Peace and Notary Public; also agent for the town, which had been platted by J. P. Nichols in 1879. Dr. Makeaney was for several years secretary of the Kansas annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church; Grand Chaplain and Lecturer of the Grand Lodge, and Grand Chapter of Kansas Masons; Grand Patron of the Order of the Eastern Star; and has several times officiated as Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery of Kansas; and for ten years has been Grand Representative from the G. R. A. Chapter of Iowa to the G. R. A. Chapter of Kansas. He was in the Union Army three years, and was wounded over the right eye at Murfreesboro, Tenn., and is well known as the Pilgrim Warrior of the Kansas Press. He has one of the largest private libraries in the State, and has held a number of debates on baptism and infidelity.

J. MOYNIHAN, M. D., native of Halifax, Nova Scotia; was born in 1852. He commenced the study of medicine under Dr. Connell, and in 1876 graduated from the American Medical College of St. Louis, Mo. He then opened his practice in Cloud County, and moved to Morehead in 1881, having married Miss Carriker. They have two children.

C. C. SWAYZE, grain and lumber, native of Columbia County, Pa.; born in 1841. In 1863 he moved to Illinois, and from there he went to Georgia on the close of the war, but neither the climate nor people suited him, so he came to Kansas in 1866, locating near Olathe, in Johnston County, where he remained till 1869, when he moved to Labette County, in the vicinity of Morehead, engaging in farming, carrying this on till 1876, when he took charge of the elevator and commenced buying grain, and has since managed the lumber yard for S. A. Brown & Co.

MRS. SAMUEL WHELPLEY, general merchant, native of New York. Having lost her parents she was adopted and raised in the city of New York, having met and married Mr. Whelpley in 1853; he is a veterinary surgeon. She started West in 1878, and alone and unaided started her store in Morehead, buying the building of E. C. Burnett and stocking up with drugs and general merchandise, carrying a stock of $2,500 and doing a business of $8,000 a year. Her husband arrived January 20, 1883, to remain and assist her in business.

C. L. WYMAN, hotel and livery, native of Onondaga County, N. Y., born in 1836. In 1849, with his parents, he moved to Beloit, Rock Co., Wis., where his grandmother and parents still live. She is now about ninety-eight years of age. While in Wisconsin he commenced driving stage and livery with the well-known firms of Chinks & Butler, Wheeler & Baker, also for Fink & Walker. He then moved into Illinois, where he worked at the livery business; then the carpenter trade, until 1862, when he enlisted in the Twelfth Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, Company A, serving until March of 1864, when he returned home and bought a farm in Knox County. Here he made money raising broom corn. In 1869 he moved to Iowa, Jefferson County, but losing money on this farm, he went to Missouri, in 1873, and in 1875 he took U. S. Mail Contract from Neosha to Parsons, via Morehead, and located in Morehead. His contract running out in 1879, when the railroad came in, he opened the Globe House and Livery Stable. Mr. Wyman was married when he was eighteen years of age, and has had a family of eight children—four boys and three girls now living. He has held some of the town offices.

GRANT TOWNSHIP.

H. BALLARD, farmer, Section 15, P. O. Walnut, is a native of Michigan, born in 1853. His father is a native of Vermont, born in 1815. He footed it to Geneseo County, N. Y. Then left home and started for Canada; from there he went to Michigan, and was engaged in the survey. In 1869 he started for Kansas, stopping a time in Missouri. He and his son H. footed it from Sedalia to Erie, Kan., where they met a friend, named Atwater, who showed them claims. They had twenty-five cents when they arrived. Taking their claims they proved up, entering them in 1877. For years they struggled against want and privation, Howard working for others, and his father living on the claim, and by hard knocks have now a fine farm of 400 acres, located in the fertile section known as the head waters of the Flat Rock. In 1882 they harvested 1,200 bushels of wheat and 3,000 bushels of corn. He married Miss Kerr in 1874, but lost her. She left him three children—one girl and two boys. He has married again, and has one child by the last marriage. He farms in grain and stock.

ISRAEL BECK, farmer, Section 15, P. O. Chard, native of Missouri, born in 1844. He is one of a family of six boys, his parents having ten children in all. In 1857 they emigrated to Kansas, coming into the State near Columbus, Cherokee County, and passing up through the Osage or Wasabites, as they called themselves, they arrived at the old Osage Mission. There was no other evidence of civilization until they passed an old cabin, occupied by a half-breed, about where the town of Erie now stands. Further north they came to a trading post, run by a man named Canville, who had a squaw wife. The Becks afterward traded there; going on they located on Coal Creek, three and one-half miles south of Humboldt. Having good oxen they at once broke some forty acres, and gathered bountiful harvests, until the year of 1860, when the drouth drove them with their cattle south into Cherokee County, for water and grass. Israel, then six years of age, leaving school, went with them, but the spring of '61 opening early, they at once returned to the farm. In 1872 Mr. Beck bought 110 acres where he now farms, using it for pasture or range until 1875, when he moved on to it and made a farm. During the war Mr. Beck was in the Militia. In '63 his brothers, J. M. and Phillip, were in the regular service. In '64 Mr. Beck commenced freighting for Mr. Bashaw, and was engaged at this until '69. Since opening his present farm he has done well. In '82, on a piece of bottom land, he raised twelve acres of corn, four of which yielded 105 bushels to an acre; the rest averaged eighty. In 1875 he married Miss McCabe. They have two children. Mr. Beck is a member of the Masonic order.

J. R. BENNETT, farmer, Section 27, P. O. Vietsburgh, native of Shelby County, Ind., born in 1857. He was raised on a farm, and in the same dooryard that his father was reared. On looking for a location Mr. Bennett visited Minnesota, but coming to Neosho County, Kas., selected his present location in 1882. He brought his family down in November of that year, and, until he got possession of his farm, lived near by in a cabin, suffering greatly from cold, the winter of 1882 and '83 being unusually severe. They moved into their home in the spring of 1883, where he is making arrangements for raising grain and stock, having 160 acres, 80 of which is cultivated. Mr. Bennett married Miss A. Wolf, daughter of Judge Wolf, of Indiana, April 13, 1881. They have one child, a boy.

E. F. CAIN, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Vietsburgh, native of Indiana, born in 1844. In 1863 he enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, Company K, serving two years. He returned, and in 1869 came to Kansas, locating on Section 20, Grant Township, but thinking he would not get a chance to enter his claim, traded for one in Canville Township; but this not suiting him he traded for the claim he now owns in Grant Township, which is producing thirty bushels of wheat to an acre, and other crops in proportion, also raising stock. Mr. Cain married Miss Barnett. They have three children—two boys and one girl. In 1879 and '80 he was Township Clerk of Grant.

GEORGE CHARD, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Chard, is a native of Ohio, born in 1826. They moved to Indiana in 1835. Here, in after years, he engaged in the shingle business. In 1878 he came to Kansas and located on a school section, buying the claim of Darwin Arkwit; now cultivates eighty acres, raising in 1882 fifty bushels of corn to the acre, and one and a half tons of broom corn on five acres. This year Mr. Chard opened store in Chard City. His son Levi, who is blind, learned at the Indianapolis Institute for the Blind the trade of broommaker, and since coming to Kansas has manufactured from 400 to 600 dozen a year. Mr. Chard is engaged in improving his farm. Having married in the East, Miss Powers, he lost her in December, 1882. They had four children—two boys and two girls. Chard City was established in 1878, and the postoffice in 1879. The first Postmaster was Daniel Shively; the second, Mr. Selby; and the third, Charles Kelly; the present, William Beck. Chard City consists of two stores and a blacksmith shop, and in 1882 is improving.

S. R. COMBS, farmer, Section 34, P. O. Osage Mission, native of Iowa, born in 1850. He was railroading on the C., B. & Q. R. R. for ten years before coming West. Arriving in Kansas in 1879 from Iowa, he located on his present claim or farm, buying 160 acres, of which 60 is cultivated and farmed to grain. In 1882 he got 50 bushels an acre from 60 acres of corn; feeding to stock he turned off 700 hogs and 116 cattle. He has improved the farm and is doing well. Since coming to Kansas he married Miss Alex. They have one son.

G. W. COSNER, farmer, Section 30, P. O. Vietsburgh, native of Knox County, Ohio, born in 1837. His parents moved to Illinois in 1849, and to Iowa in 1860. While here he enlisted in the Nineteenth Iowa Volunteer Infantry, Company C, and was taken prisoner at Sterling, confined in Tyler, Tex., for ten months, was released and mustered out in 1865 at Davenport, Iowa. Here he bought a farm where he remained until 1869. Then coming to Kansas he located in Shawnee County. In 1870 he came to Neosho County, stopping in S. Stewart's house till 1871, when he had put up his cabin, getting his lumber at Shidler's mill. He now owns an eighty acre farm here and another farm on Big Creek. He farmed his place till he lost his horses, when he rented, taking the place again in 1882. In 1861 he married Miss Crews. Her father was a pioneer nursery man, and well known. They have three children, two boys and one girl. They belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

J. M. ELDER, farmer, Section 5, P. O Savonburg, native of Hancock County, Ohio, born in 1842. He was raised a farmer. In 1864 he enlisted in the One Hundred and Ninety-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Company D, acting as non-commissioned officer. He returned home in 1865, March 26. In 1870 he came to Kansas with S. S. Huff and Lewis Huff. They stopped with Mr. Dickinson until S. S. Huff had his cabin built, when they all moved in, and in 1870, in April, moved to his present location. The first thing that he did was to plant out an orchard and break eight acres for wheat, thus providing for the present and future, now having one of the best peach and apple orchards in this section. During the dry years and grasshopper years he succeeded in raising fair crops, other seasons harvesting excellent crops—in 1882 getting 2,000 bushels of corn, and other grain, besides fruit. In 1861 he was married to Miss Huff who died in 1880, and in 1881 he married Miss Peniston. By the first marriage he had five children, four boys and one girl, and one girl by the second. Mr. Elder was the first School Director in his district in 1874.

J. M. GREENWELL, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Walnut, native of Kentucky, born in 1833. From there he moved to Kansas in 1874, at first renting land of Mr. Smith. In 1875 he went on to Mr. Hutchin's farm, and while working Mr. Willit's farm he bought his present home, and broke up ground enough for a crop, moving on the next year, he bought of S. Bender for $112.50. The dry year of 1881 he was very fortunate in having a corn crop, selling to his neighbors for seventy-five cents a bushel, thereby relieving the farm of a mortgage and himself of debt. He is raising grain, reporting forty bushels of corn to the acre in 1882, and good wheat. Mr. Greenwell married Miss Mills. They have six children, three boys and three girls. He is a member of the Catholic Church.

SAMUEL HILL, farmer, Section 33, P. O. Walnut; is a native of New Jersey, born in 1848. His parents moved to Pennsylvania. At an early age he lost his father, and in 1864, when only sixteen years of age, he enlisted in the Fifty-third Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, Company E, and was at Appomattox C. H., when Lee surrendered. Mr. Hill is still a single man. In 1869 he and his mother, in a wagon, sought the far West, locating in Kansas, on Section 4, but in 1870 he traded with George Smith, for his present home, getting the place with forty acres broken and a house on it. This he has improved, succeeding in raising a crop of some kind of grain every year. He is also giving some attention to grading his cattle in Short-horn. His farm produced forty bushels of corn to the acre in 1882.

CHARLES KELLY, farmer, Section 9, P. O. Chard, native of Carroll County, Ohio, born 1831. He was raised on a farm and in 1850 with his parents moved to Indiana. He had learned in his father's wagon shop the trade of carpenter, and after working at it from time to time opened a shop, engaging at that trade till 1858, when he bought a farm, tilling the soil until 1868, then was appointed land appraiser. In 1869 he came to Kansas, passing through Neosho County he located his claim, going on into other parts of the State, finally settling down on his place in 1869, putting up a cabin, getting lumber from Barnhart's saw mill. He has now 120 acres cultivated. In 1872 he commenced setting out fruit trees and has the finest orchard in this section, with 180 bearing apple trees, eighty-five cherry and 200 peach trees. In his farming enterprise he has succeeded, having bad years in 1874 and 1881, but has made up and prospered, his corn crop in 1882 going fifty bushels to the acre, with broom corn averaging a ton to four acres. Raises oats and flax, also giving some attention to tame grass, which is a success. In 1852 Mr. Kelly married Miss Loofbourrow, of Indiana. They have three children, one son and two daughters. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity. Served the public from 1870 to 1876 as Justice of the Peace and Township Trustee. They are in faith Adventists.

KANES KERR, farmer, Section 7, P. O. Savonburg, native of Union County, Pa., born September 18, 1833. He was raised a farmer and learned the trade of blacksmith. Was a soldier in the Twelfth Pennsylvania Militia. In 1866 he moved to Ohio, where he engaged in farming until 1871, when he came to Kansas, locating on his present farm, buying his claim of Ambrose Morgan, and not having even a team of horses to begin with. He at one time offered his farm for a span of naked horses. He now has a good farm, raising twenty-seven bushels of wheat to an acre, and forty of corn, besides handling stock. On three acres of land he had 100 bushels of millet seed, which he sold for eighty-two cents per bushel, having the straw for his stock. While in Pennsylvania he married Mrs. Root, formerly Miss Mitten. They have three boys and four girls. His wife belongs to the Church of God.

ISAAC T. LIGHT, farmer, Section 8, P. O, Savonburg, is a native of Ohio, born in 1836. He moved to Indiana when fifteen years old; his early life was spent on the farm, but as he grew to manhood he commenced the study of medicine under Dr. Hutchins, but dropped it on entering the army. He enlisted in 1861 in Company C, Thirty-eighth Indiana. He was Sergeant of the company. Being wounded at Chickamauga he returned home in September, 1864. He married Miss Alice L. Archer, November 22, 1864, and moved to Jeffersonville, Ind., where he opened a grocery store. Failing in the business he went to work in the United States clothing depot for a while, then worked at the Ohio Falls Car Works until he left for Kansas in 1870, whither his father had preceded him, locating four claims, one of which he now occupies. The winter of 1870 and 1871 he spent at Erie, running the engine in Stewart's mill, returning to his farm in the spring. He has since prospered, raising grain and stock. Now cultivates fifty acres, the rest is in pasture land. Mr. Light has been a member of the I. O. O. F. since 1857, and a Mason since 1861. When the Land League was organized, Grand Council No. 45, he was elected secretary, entering his land in 1877, having also held township offices.

R. McRAE, farmer, Section 29, P.O. Vietsburgh, native of Nova Scotia, born in 1850. He came to the State in 1870, and by mere chance stopped with his relatives in Fort Scott, not knowing them until afterwards. He located in Neosho County, taking 160 acres, and for awhile bached in a log cabin, living on rabbit and corn bread. In 1871 his parents came out. At first Mr. McRae had many hardships to contend with, but has succeeded in producing a fine farm from a wilderness, raising corn averaging fifty-five bushels to an acre, wheat twenty-three bushels, and other grain in proportion, giving some attention to Norman and Clyde horses. Has about 100 acres of his land under cultivation, the rest in pasture. In 1872 Mr. McRae married Miss Allen. They have four children, three boys and one girl. January 5, 1882, Mr. McRae's father was killed by an accident. The old family consisted of father, mother, and three children, two boys and one girl.

WILLIAM G. MASSEY, farmer, Section 30, P. O. Vietsburgh, is a native of Lancaster County, Penn., born in 1851, and moved to Indiana where he was raised on the farm. In 1871 he came to Kansas on an exploring tour, going to Peabody, where he located on a claim, but he abandoned it, coming to Neosho County, in 1873, not entering his claim till 1877, then, in company with Mr. McRae and others, filed their claims. In 1872, he married Miss Larrick. He has succeeded in establishing a fine home, and is now raising grain, reporting good crops for 1882. His mother and family are soon to make a home in Kansas, and on a piece of land adjoining his. Mr. Massey has held township offices.

A. MILLER, farmer, Section 31, P. O. Vietsburgh, is a native of Richland County, born in 1842. He came to Kansas in March, 1869, and bought a claim of Mr. Metcalf, now known as the Coffinberry farm; here he done some hard work, but in 1872 was burned out, then moving to his present home, paying $400 for the farm that in 1862 he said he did not want, now having 100 acres in cultivation, farming in grain and stock, and having now a nicely improved farm. His success has been good, raising crops in the dry years. In February, 1861, Mr. Miller married Miss Bolding, of Kentucky. They have four children, two boys and two girls. Mr. Miller is a member of the Methodist Episcopal organization and was a member of the Old Settlers' Association.

W. H. MOORE, farmer, Section 6, P. O. Savonburg, is a native of Columbiana County, Ohio, born in 1853. Came to Kansas with his parents in 1869, traveling in a wagon. There were three boys—W. H., M. A. and C. F. The family stopped at their friends, Mr. Dickinson's, on their arrival in Neosho County, till the cabin was built, when they moved into it and gave their attention to farming, but had hard times from failure of crops and received help from Eastern friends. W. H. then gave up farming, going to work in the coal banks and took charge of the farm again in 1883, reporting good crops in 1882. His father, E. B. Moore, has retired, and is now living in Walnut Station. In 1878 Mr. Moore married Miss Williamson. They have two boys and one girl.

A. P. PARKER, farmer, Section 17, P. O. Savonburg, is a native of Kentucky, born in 1834. In 1854 he took a trip to California, where he stayed till 1869, returning to Ohio July 8, of that year. In 1870 he started again for California, but getting to Kansas, thought he would go into the stock business, so, with a pard named Priest, he located on his present claim on the old Fort Scott & Mission road, taking 160 acres each. They put up a cabin, but gave the idea of a stock ranch, but they dissolved and Mr. Parker then did little but hunt, until the summer of 1871, when he settled to his work, breaking and planting, setting orchards and shade trees, which have made a wonderful growth since. He now farms 240 acres in grain and stock, having three and one-half foot hog-tight hedge fence about 115 acres of the farm, besides corrals for 300 head of cattle. His corn turned out 3,000 bushels from sixty acres in 1882. In 1872, Mr. Parker married Miss Murray. They have three girls and one boy. Mr. P. has been Justice of the Peace since 1877 and is a member of the Masonic order.

JOHN PUGH, farmer, Section 29, P. O. Vietsburgh, is a native of Wayne County, Ind., born in 1842. In 1868 a company of Indianians, consisting of Wright, Brewer, Johnson, Pugh and Swain, started for the West in wagons to make their homes in the fertile valley of the Neosho River. They arrived October 22. Mr. Pugh settled near Erie, where he opened a farm and remained till 1875, when he moved to his present location, having visited the place way back in 1868. He has worked hard to make a home, making two farms now, having a fine location with fine water, rock and timber privileges. The next year, after coming to Kansas he lost his wife and in 1872 he went back to Indiana, where he married his present one. They have six children. Mr. Pugh was elected Township Trustee in 1882, and has held other offices in Grant Township.

C. F. RABE, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Walnut, is a native of Indianapolis, Ind., born in 1839. He is of German descent, his father immigrating to America in 1834, and worked on a canal in New York, and afterward in Pennsylvania, finally going to farming in Indiana. In 1866, C. F. Rabe came out to locate a claim in Nemaha County, but found land too high, and went to Topeka, where he went into coal mining, but sold out and went to Utah, to see Brigham Young; he then returned to Indiana, returning to Kansas again in 1880, and bought a claim of W. W. Willet, for $1,550, and entered it, and paid the last installment in 1880, $450, the balance due the State School Fund, as his land was School Land. He then built a large fine residence on it, as did his sister on her farm adjoining, and the year 1881 being a failure of crops, he met with reverses, but has recovered with fine crops in corn, wheat and flax, of 1882. He is raising grain and stock. Mr Rabe is still single, his mother keeping house for him, aged seventy-six years. He is an officer on the School Board, and is District Clerk.

C. H. SHALLER, farmer and stock dealer, Section 4, P.O. Walnut, is a native of Missouri, born in 1854. His father, Peter, is a native of Germany, born in 1813, and immigrated to America in 1848, locating in Illinois; here he married Miss Mitchell, and soon afterward moved to Missouri, where he broke up and came to Kansas, taking a claim, as did his sons. They lived in a hay shed until they built a stone house; they then began to open up the farm with one pig and a calf to start them in stock. With many backsets and reverses, they persevered, and now have a fine home. Henry began working out when quite young, to get money, and at the same time was making his farm over, raising grain and stock, selling and shipping in 1882, 3,000 bushels of corn before the last of November. In 1879, he commenced shipping and feeding stock; fed fourteen the first season, the next handling 200 head, and in 1882, shipping over 2,000 head, having a partner named Charles Wier, located at Humboldt. C. H. is not married, his parents keeping house for him. Peter Shaller's family consists of eight children—three boys and five girls. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

W. P. SMALL, farmer, Section 26, P. O. Vietsburgh, is a native of Indiana, born in 1843. He was raised on a farm, and when the war broke out, he enlisted in the Nineteenth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, Company D, serving three years and seven months, and was wounded in the battle of the Wilderness, and returned home. In 1866, Mr. Small married, then settling down on a very fine farm, located on the Blue River, east of Indianapolis; although doing well, he thought to better himself, so came to Kansas, and in October, 1882, bought the Launsberry Farm, containing 187 acres of prairie and rich bottom land, for $3,500; it was well improved when he took possession, but under his system of farming, is becoming the finest in Neosho County. In 1882, his land yielded seventy bushels of corn to the acre. He has a fine piece of timothy meadow doing well, and the best horses in the county, of Norman blood or pedigree. He means to work into stock, having now 100 acres in cultivation His family consists of four boys and one girl.

J. J. SMART, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Vietsburgh, is a native of Jacksonville, Ill., born in 1833; raised in Hancock County, Ill. In 1871, sold his farm in Illinois, and came to Kansas, buying of Mr. Munsen; he improved the claim, and sold in 1880, to Mr. Miller, for $3,700; buying the place he has now, of J. Allen, which consisted of 160 acres; soon afterward, 200 acres of Joseph Markham, having a farm of 360 acres. His sons have adjoining, 160 acres, which they farm. Mr. Smart has prospered in his trades and in farming; most of his farm is rich bottom land, that yields seventy-five bushels of corn to the acre. He also handles stock, having now some fifty head on hand. Mr. Smart married Miss Moody. They have four boys and four girls. He has not been before the public for political office, but has held school offices.

EYNON SMITH, farmer, Section 27, P. O. Chard, native of Pennsylvania, born in 1829. In 1866, Mr. Smith, in company with Holeman, Hilton and Penock, came to Kansas, and took adjoining claims north of where the mission now stands. Mr. Smith settling on Section 1, where he built his cabin, hauling lumber from Linn County; they doubled teams and broke the prairie sod and planted sod corn, he then went to freighting, bringing provisions from Fort Scott. While he was away his wife and family were left in the cabin, and to make it more comfortable chinked it with hay. Their company by day were Indians and wolves at night; by enduring like experiences, they finally made a home, living there till 1869, when Mr. Smith sold for $2,500 and bought his present home for $1,100, he has now 130 acres nicely improved, with eighty acres in cultivation, with fine orchards and buildings. In 1882, he raised sixty bushels of corn to an acre, and crops of wheat, flax, and oats, with great quantities of fruit. Mr. Smith married Miss King. They have six children, two boys and four girls.

L. VAUGHAN, farmer, Section 8, P. O. Walnut, native of Ohio, born in 1815. He was raised a farmer but learned and worked at the carpenter trade; before coming west he lived in Indiana and Illinois. In 1856, he was married to Miss Slack, a native of Merry England, who came to America, in 1854. In 1871, September, they came to Kansas, locating in Crawford County, buying ninety-seven acres from the Gulf Railroad Company, where he lived till 1876, then moving to his present home in Neosho County; the decision of the Court, August 11, 1876, placed his land so that he could enter it, which he did in 1877. He has built up the farm, having now good dwelling and fences, farming in grain and stock, he now retains but eighty acres. They have had six boys and two girls, one son living and working the farm, the girls are all married. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

G. W. WHITE, farmer, Section 12, P. O. Vietsburgh, native of Howard County, Ind., born in 1836. His wife formerly a Miss Jones, married Mr. Bost, and came to Kansas, in 1869, taking a claim and living in the traditional box house, 14x16, and enduring all of the privations of pioneer life. In 1874 Mr. Bost died and she went to Ohio, where she married Mr. White, and in 1876, they came back to Kansas, where she had this farm, and they are now busy in improving it, raising good crops and succeeding well in making a home. They have four children, two girls and two boys.

MRS. A. P. WILLARD, widow, Section 32, P. O. Walnut, is a native of Ohio. She was married to Mr. Willard, in 1861; soon after he enlisted in the Eighth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company G, and veteraned in 1864, being mustered out in 1866, May 4. During his service he had visited home but twice, he now returned and engaged in farming. In March, 1870, they started in a wagon for their home in Kansas, arriving here they stopped at Mr. Penick's until he had his home built, then moved on to the claim which he bought of G. Lamb, where, notwithstanding the difficulties of pioneer life they succeeded. July 16, 1880, Mr. Willard died, leaving his widow with one son and two daughters; her son carries on the farm raising grain and stock. In 1881, Mrs Willard visited her old home in Illinois, and returned in 1882, taking charge of the farm. Mrs. Willard is a member of the Christian Church.

GEO. A. WRIGHT, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Walnut, native of Maryland, born in 1830. Until coming to Kansas, he worked at his trade, that of wagon maker, coming to this State, in 1868, he located his present farm, entering it in 1877, living at first in a house of hay, the first years spent in making their farm were very hard, full of privations and want, but with the characteristic grit of the Kansas pioneer, worked through drouth, famine and plague, being now well established, raising in 1882, sixty bushels of corn to the acre, twenty-four of wheat and fair crops of beans. He has ninety acres in cultivation, the rest in pasture and meadow. Mr. Wright married Miss Allen. They have six children. He belonged to the Settlers' Land League and helped secure their homes. His son, Wm. P. is now Assessor for Grant Township.

BIG CREEK TOWNSHIP.

ELIJAH BROWN, farmer, Section 22, P. O. Chanute, is a native of Missouri, born in 1837. His parents immigrated to Kansas in 1854, bringing a family of nine boys and one girl with them. His father, Isam, took a claim near Iola, Allen County, on Deer Creek, and started to make a farm in the wilderness, surrounded by wild game and Osage and Sac Indians, where they lived until 1857, when a family settled within seven miles, and were considered close; those pioneer years, and experiences, although full of hardships, were the most pleasant of his life. In 1860, they received aid, but got plenty of that, so did not suffer. In 1857, he went to Missouri, and married a Miss Brown, and then located in Allen County, farming until 1865, in the meantime serving in the militia; he then moved to Missouri, but returned to Kansas in 1867, locating in Neosho County, once more a pioneer, bought his claim of Geo. Todd, and commenced plowing and building, his wife making their clothes from the wool their sheep yielded, so with rigid economy, bordering on privation, he has succeeded in establishing himself again. He cultivates seventy-five acres and the rest is in pasture and meadow. The farm is well improved, having a fine orchard with 150 bearing apple trees, raising grain and stock on the farm. Mr. Brown lost his first wife in 1872, and in 1873, married Miss Finch. He has seven children by the first, and three by the last marriage.

S. BARBEE, farmer, Section 15, P. O. Chanute, is a native of Wilson County, Tenn., born in 1833. His father in 1841, moved to Jefferson County, Ill., where Mr. Barbee lived until 1852, when he moved to Sangamon County, coming from there to Kansas in 1859, in company with J. L. Fletcher; after looking the country over, they settled on Big Creek, at this time having on it but the Haldons, Gildens, and one or two others. Mr. Barbee had about $100 and a few household goods, his horses and a few head of cattle. He settled on northeast quarter Section 15, then not surveyed, and for years had more Indians for friends than white men; it seems he moved up the creek into Allen County, where he lost all his stock in 1860, this liked to have ruined him, and in 1865, although he had sold his claim in Allen County, and bought cattle, he had to sell most everything he owned to pay for his land, which was entered under the Fourth Article of the Osage Land Treaty. In 1868 he lost stock to the amount of $400. During the war he was a member of the State Militia, and was in Block House at Humboldt in 1864, but his health gave way, and he was allowed to return home by Capt. Newmen. In 1877, he entered a quarter on the northwest corner of Section 15. He now has ninety-five acres in cultivation, the rest in pasture and meadow. In 1882, he raised good crops of corn, castor beans and flax, with fine orchards, buildings, fences, etc., he is now comfortably fixed. In 1857, Mr. Barbee married Miss Early. They have three boys, the eldest, deceased. In 1877 to 1880, Mr. Barbee served as Township Treasurer, and belongs to the Knights of Honor and the Masons of Chanute.

A. P. GIBSON, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Chanute, is a native of Mercer County, Ill., born in 1838. His early life was spent on the farm, and when the war broke out he enlisted in the Forty-fifth Illinois Volunteer Infantry. When he returned he was senior Captain of the regiment; he then went to farming. In 1859, he had, on a trip to the gold fields of Pike's Peak, passed through Kansas, so in 1870, in company with A. L. Taylor, he settled in Neosho County, Kan., taking or buying a claim of Mrs. Marsh, on a school section, and has experienced the drawback of high taxes levied for building their fine schoolhouses, and during hard years of crop failure would have abandoned his farm, but for the timely help of his father. From a beginning of some few acres of sod breaking and a log cabin, Capt. Gibson has now a farm of 456 acres, and 265 of this is under cultivation, and notwithstanding the bad crops of 1874 and 1881, he has averaged from 1870 to 1883, forty bushels of corn to an acre, going as high as an average of sixty bushels in 1882. He makes a specialty of feeding cattle. He fed this year 131 head, turning off by May 1; this lot weighing on an average 1,500 pounds each, they cost per head $44, and are worth now $90 per head; he has fed them since November 1, 1882. In 1866, Capt. G. married Miss Taylor. They had five children, two deceased. Capt. G. was elected to the House of Representatives in 1875, and is a member of the Knights of Honor of Chanute.

J. H. HANSON, farmer, Section 11, P. O. Odense, Neosho County. Is a native of Madison County, Ohio, born in 1824. He was raised a farmer, and in 1851, moved to Iroquois County, Ill. There farmed and worked at the carpenter's trade. In 1871, he came to Kansas, buying a claim of 160 acres of Mrs. Marsh, on Big Creek. After building his house, he sent for his family, who arrived October 5, 1871. He began with six and a half acres of land broken, now has 100, owning 200 acres. His son William A. owns 160 and James M. eighty acres. They are farming in grain and stock, as well as grading in Short-horns, and giving their attention to tame grasses meadow land. He has always fed a large number of hogs. In 1875, the hogs died of cholera, so he sold his corn that year, but aims to feed it on the farm. In 1846, Mr. Hanson married Miss Gragg. They have six children—five boys and one girl. In 1885, Mr. Hanson enlisted in the One Hundred and Fiftieth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company D, and was mustered out in 1866. He was appointed Postmaster of the Odense Postoffice in 1877 holding it since. The postoffice was established in 1874. The Postmaster was N. P. Welsburg, who handed it over to Mr. Hanson.

PLYEL McGUFFEY, farmer, Section 12, P.O. Odense, Neosho County; native of Ohio; born in 1828. As he grew to manhood, and in early life, he was engaged in various lines of business; while in Illinois, was in a saw-mill, but in 1869, closed out his milling interests and came to Kansas with his brother Frank, taking claims and settling on Big Creek. The first year, generally the hardest, was passed by planting rented ground and his sod breaking, from which he got a good yield of corn. The years 1872-73-74 were failures, and he determined to leave Kansas, but raising a fine crop in 1875, he stayed, and has done well since. He now cultivates 130 acres, raising corn, castor beans, oats and broom corn. His son Charles owns 160 acres, which they use as a range for their cattle. In 1853, Mr. McGuffey married Miss Milligan. They have nine children—five boys and four girls.

ALVAN McGUFFEY, farmer, Section 12, P. O. Odense; native of Kentucky; born in 1832. The McGuffeys are of Scotch-Irish descent, and a long-lived race. His grandfather, a native born Scotchman, lived to the advanced age of ninety, and his father died when seventy-eight. In 1870, Mr. McGuffey, in company with a friend, came to Kansas, and he located on his present homestead. Here they lived and bached for eight or nine years, opening the farm, meeting with the checkered experience peculiar to settlers of Kansas, having now 120 acres in cultivation, which produced fine crops of corn, oats, beans and flax, in 1882, also having some very fine meadows of tame grasses. Mr. McGuffey married Mrs. Grady, of Allen County. They have a fine orchard, and the farm is well fenced with hedge and other kinds of fencing.

WILLIAM MILLER, farmer, Section 35, P. O. Chanute; native of Hanover, Germany; born in 1833. In 1848, he immigrated to America with a good German education, but speaking no word of English. He landed in Cincinnati, Ohio, applying himself to farming and learning the language. In 1862, he enlisted in the Seventy-ninth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company C, serving his time out. He veteraned, and was mustered out in 1865, and returned to Illinois. In 1867, he came to Kansas in company with Mr. Ewing, taking a claim on Pecan Creek, buying of Widow Adams. He built a cabin, and then gave his attention to a piece of forty acres that had been broken up but was grown over again, so he had to plow and harrow it twice, thus insuring his harvest, which fully repaid him; here they lived, at one time visited a band of Sioux Indians, who were friendly. In 1874, they had the misfortune to lose their cabin and all their household goods by fire, leaving them without anything. They then moved into Mr. Ewing's house, and in 1876, bought his claim, now owning 320 acres, farming in grain and some stock. In 1858, Mr. Miller married Miss Ewing. They have three children—two boys and one girl. Mr. Miller has served as Treasurer and Clerk of the township, and in 1882, was elected County Commissioner. In 1872, Mr. Ewing and he organized their school district.

LYON COUNTY.

LOCATION AND NATURAL FEATURES.

LYON County is in the fourth tier of counties from Missouri, being in the line of the Great Neosho Valley and nearly at the head waters of that river. The Osage River has its rise in Osage, Wabaunsee and Lyon counties, its branches watering the northeastern sections of the latter district. Eagle, Allen, Dow, Rock, Badger, Plum, Coal and Dry creeks, tributaries of the Neosho River, water thoroughly the central and southern portions of the county, and, to a partial extent, the northwestern. The Cottonwood River, a branch of the Neosho, flows east through its southern central portion. Elm Creek and One Hundred and Forty-second Creek, tributaries of the Osage, and the north and south branches of the Verdigris River, furnish an abundant water supply to the northeastern and southwestern portions of the county. There is also a good supply of springs, water being obtained for drinking purposes at a depth of from twenty to forty feet.

The agricultural reports divide the face of the country as follows:—Bottom land, 15 per cent; upland, 85 per cent; forest (Government survey), 8 per cent; prairie, 92 per cent. The general surface of the country is undulating, the bottom lands varying in width from one half a mile to four miles. The soil generally is composed of a deep, black loam, mellow and rich; the subsoil being porous and impregnated with lime, which accounts for its good grain-growing qualities. Naturally, blue and white limestone abounds, and sufficient sand for building purposes is found. Some pottery and fire clay are reported, but these deposits have not been much developed. A medium quality of surface coal, veins varying from one to two feet, has been discovered in the northeastern and south western portions of the county, cropping out of the creek banks. It has been utilized to some extent in Jackson, Elmendaro and Centre townships.

The average width of the timber belts is one mile. Cottonwood, hackberry, oak, walnut, burr oak, hickory, coffee bean and mulberry comprise the natural varieties of wood. Farmers throughout the county are also doing considerable planting of shade and ornamental trees.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

Lyon County is situated in the exact center of the State, north and south, and is almost parallel with the center of population, east and west, being a short distance to the east thereof. It has become, to a great extent, what its early settlers meant it to be, a railroad center and an emporium of trade for Central Kansas. Previous to their exhibit of foresight and determination, a number of settlers had located in the county, but foreseeing the natural advantages of locating at or near the junction of the Neosho and Cottonwood rivers, many of the enterprising pioneers settled in that vicinity. By common consent, however, the very first settler of the county was Charles H. Withington, who located in the extreme northern part of the county, on the old Santa Fe road, a short distance south of what is now Allen Postoffice, Agnes City Township. Mr. Withington was one of the earliest settlers of the State, coming to Kansas in 1846, being gunsmith to the Sac and Fox Indians. Removing to Council Grove five years later, he opened a store for the Santa Fe and Indian trade, and following his old proclivities, when, in June, 1854, he became a resident of Lyon County—then unorganized—he planted himself again on the old Santa Fe road, opening a trading post and becoming the first storekeeper in the county. In 1851 he was appointed United States Mail Agent, with headquarters at Council Grove. He obtained and held the trade of the immigrants who passed along the Neosho Valley, many of them settling within its borders in 1855, '56. His store became known far and wide as the only "commercial establishment" in southern Kansas, outside of the regular Indian posts. Would-be settlers looking for claims, found in Mr. Withington's place of business as good a hotel as the times would afford, and in Mr. Withington himself as accommodating a landlord as his accommodations would allow. In 1857, when the bulk of the early immigration flowed to this county, and for years afterward, Mr. Withington was prominent in all affairs of moment to the county, as will be ascertained by consulting pages which follow. He died at Sacramento, Cal., November 4, 1881. At the time he was stopping with his brother, R. H. In June, 1880, Mr. Withington's wife had preceded him, and his own death was no doubt hastened by his grief over her loss.

In April, 1855, Oliver Phillips settled on One Hundred and Forty-second Creek, and is, without doubt, the second permanent resident of the county. He moved to his present location on Duck Creek, in 1857. Under the Leavenworth Constitution of 1858, Mr. Phillips was elected a representative from the county, and in 1859, was sent as a delegate to the Osawatomie Convention, which organized the Republican party of Kansas. He has been Commissioner of his county, and Assessor repeatedly, and is generally respected.

The next day after Mr. Phillips' arrival, Chris. Ward also located on One Hundred and Forty-second Creek. About the same time came J. S. Pigman, who, in 1857, went into business at Columbia, which had been founded two years before by Mr. Withington and others. In May, 1855, Charles Johnson and James H. Pheanis located on the Cottonwood River. Mr. Johnson still lives on the old homestead. Mr. Pheanis has since sold his farm removed to Emporia, then returned and located on land near his former home. At about the same time David Vangundy settled on the Cottonwood, above its junction with the Neosho River, and John Rosenquist took a claim just below. Joseph Moon and Rev. Thomas J. Addis (a lonesome Free-state man) and his family, increased the number of settlers near the junction. The same year (1855) Lorenzo Dow settled on the creek which bears his name, and, with him, R. H. Abraham, Wm. Grimsley and Thomas Shockley, on Allen Creek; Joseph Hadley, Wm. H. Eikenbery and Joel Haworth, on the Cottonwood, west of the present site of Emporia; Dr. Gregg, Mr. Carver, James Hendricks and others, near the junction; Albert Watkins on One Hundred and Forty-second Creek; John Fowler, on the Cottonwood below Emporia, and G. D. Humphrey and L. H. Johnson on the Neosho, above the present city. Among the settlers of 1856, may be mentioned, Charles N. Link (who located in Douglas County in 1854), Sol. Pheanis (from whom the creek was named), Moses Puckett, Silas Howell, D. Roth, Isaac Cox, Eli Davis, Curtis Hiatt, Andrew Hinshaw, W. J. Carney, Milton Chamness, N. Lockerman, P. W. Manning, Mr. Taylor (from whom the creek was named), and S. G. Brown.

One of those events which seldom happened to disturb the equanimity of the early settlers of Breckinridge County, was the killing of Mrs. Carver, the daughter of David Vangundy, who lived near Neosho Rapids. The settlement in that vicinity was largely composed of the Pro-slavery element, and in September, 1856, a Free-state mob from Topeka, robbing as they went, came to Mr. Carver's house and demanded admission. Being refused, they fired into the building, two of the shots taking effect in the body of Mrs. Carver, who was in bed at the time. The unfortunate young lady, a bride of only a year, died soon after. The mob then continued on their course along the Cottonwood, and before they left this region, visited Columbia, and Mr. Withington's store, at Allen. For the particulars of this raid the reader is referred to the sketch of Neosho Rapids.

In 1857 occurred a great influx of settlers; consequently, as in all new but growing communities, the problem of sufficient mail communication became the uppermost one for immediate solution. During 1855-56 the mail for the Cottonwood and Neosho Valley settlers had been thrown from the Santa Fe stages, and placed in Mr. Withington's hands for distribution. Joseph Hadley then mounted a horse and acted as carrier, the settlers whom he thus accommodated raising the money to pay him for his services. By the summer of 1857 the department still "accommodated" the people of Breckinridge County by giving them an occasional mail from Jefferson City to Council Grove, the post-office for Emporia being at Columbia, three miles below. Besides the irregularity of the mails, there were other reasons why the citizens of the new town of Emporia did not appreciate this arrangement. As was then observed: "We do not feel inclined to trust our letters to the tender mercies of the Pro-slavery residents of Council Grove, and prefer to carry our mail matter by private hands, rather than risk the present uncertainty." But a great cry of distress went up from all the people, whatever their political bendings. The key-note of the cry was "We must have mail communication with Topeka." The cry was answered.

Most of the mail was finally ordered sent to Lawrence—box 500—which was brought down to Emporia in "private hands" and deposited in the hotel, where the settlers helped themselves—"with no one to molest or make afraid." The Emporia News proposed that a regular semi-weekly mail be established between Emporia and Lawrence—a pony express. The application was refused by the General Government. But in the fall of 1857 John Fowler resigned as Postmaster at Columbia, and the office was removed to Emporia. H. W. Fick became the Postmaster here, and the mail facilities of the county were soon brought into better shape. In August "Dow's weekly hack" commenced to run between Emporia and Topeka, and Walker's hack was put on the road about the same time between Emporia and Lawrence. But even in January, 1858, it is recorded that there were "about three bushels of mail directed to Emporia lying in the Osawatomie office, seventy five miles away, the route from that point being by way of the Sac Agency, Le Roy and Ottumwa." The mail was supposed to be a weekly mail, carried on horseback. Decently regular mail routes were established the next year from Council Grove to Fort Scott, via Emporia; from Butler, Mo., to Council Grove, and from Lawrence to Emporia. In August, 1860, tri-weekly coaches were put on the route between Emporia and Lawrence. By March, 1861, Emporia was receiving tri-weekly mails from Lawrence, semi-weekly from Council Grove and weekly from Topeka, Fort Scott, Cottonwood Falls, Tonawanda and Butler Mo. The growth of the postal service in Emporia and the county is traced elsewhere—the early attempts at establishment being what applies to the topic now being treated.

Another "establishment" of early times, which is of the supremest importance to the pioneer, is the saw mill. The first ones built in this county were in the spring and summer of 1857. Parham & Phelps operated one near Emporia. On the opposite side of the Neosho River, one-half a mile north of Parham's mill, was the mill of Dr. Armour, while eight miles west, on the Cottonwood River, was Joel Hayworth's establishment and six miles below, at the junction, G. D. Humphrey operated one. Mr. Humphrey built and operated the pioneer mill—the firm being afterwards Humphrey & Goodwill. In December, 1858, W. T. Soden purchased from Mr. Link a mill site, with water privilege, about four miles west of Emporia. In 1859 the "American Steam Saw Mill" was in operation on the south side of Cottonwood River, one mile west of its junction with the Neosho, M. M. Baker, proprietor. In the summer of 1860 the county supported seven saw mills, the one at Emporia operated by Britton & Isbell; Dr. Armour owning one a mile north; Joel Haworth on the Cottonwood, seven miles west; M. M. Baker (the American) seven miles east; G. D. Humphrey on the Neosho, at Forest Hill; Mr. Bests, at Waterloo, and Mr. Bywater, at Americus. With the war came the suspension of many of these mills, which suffered with all other industries.

As previously intimated, the sagacious early settlers of Breckinridge County saw at once their natural advantages of position—especially those who located near the junction of the Neosho and Cottonwood rivers. They perceived what a splendid inlet and outlet for railroads the valley of these rivers made, and knew that somewhere near their meeting the future metropolis of the county, and perhaps of central Kansas, must be located. The citizens of Emporia therefore early began the agitation of railroads, which were to run up and down these natural courses.

The first public meeting ever held in Emporia was a Fourth of July celebration, and the third one a public gathering to discuss railroad matters—date, July 21, 1857. The settlers began to arrive early in the day, and had assembled in sufficient numbers by 11 o'clock, A. M., to select a committee on resolutions, consisting of John O. Wattles, of Moneka; W. A. Ela, of Hampden; P. B. Plumb, W. B. Swisher, Abells; A. S. Frazer, and Z. Stubbs, of Breckinridge County. The meeting then adjourned until 2 o'clock, P. M., as C. K. Holliday, president of the Topeka & St. Joe Railroad, and Prof. W. Oakley, of the same corporation, were expected to be present and address the gathering. They came and spoke, Col. Holliday delivering an enthusiastic address of nearly an hour's duration, demonstrating the grand importance of securing connection with that road and thus with the chain of iron bands running along the shores of the lakes to the East. A glowing set of resolutions were adopted, delineating the splendid position of Emporia as a natural railroad center and commercial mart for central Kansas. The following "whereas" fairly illustrates the sense of the meeting:

> Emporia, by its central position in Kansas, offers all the advantages for a point of general radiation, as well as a point of termination for the roads entering the Territory from the east, north and south, and to unite and extend onward toward the setting sun, as that proposed from the Kanzas River to the Gulf of Mexico will undoubtedly pass down the Neosho Valley, and that from Jefferson City (via Versailles, Clinton and Butler to the State line, thence through Moneka, Hyatt and Central Southern Kansas) will also terminate here, or, passing through, terminate in Santa Fe; and that now being constructed from Hannibal to St. Joe, and from thence to Topeka, will, in all probability, be continued to this point, thus opening the heart of Kansas—which is the heart of the country—to the wealth and commerce of the world.

In the spring of 1864 steps were taken to organize the Neosho Valley Railroad, to run from Fort Riley to Emporia, via Council Grove. It soon became evident, however, that the A., T. & S. F. road, of which it was to be a branch, would make the line quite an insignificant adjunct to the main route. In April, 1864, the Neosho Valley Association was formed, composed of citizens from Woodson, Coffey, Lyon and Riley counties—Judge Bent, president. Its object was to obtain control of the land grant which had been voted the A., T. & S. F.—every alternate section, for ten sections in width on each side of the road—and make the Neosho Valley & Fort Gibson road a branch of the U. P. Senator Lane introduced the bill extending the Neosho Valley line to Fort Riley; also making Emporia the terminus of the Lawrence & Wakarusa road. An amendatory act was passed in June, covering these points and making the Valley road a branch of the Union Pacific. Thus originated the M. K. & T. road, now the Missouri Pacific. Although $125,000 bonds were voted by the county in September, 1865, to aid in the construction of the Lawrence & Emporia line, the bonds were not issued and no work was done. In May, 1867, the Topeka & Emporia Company was formed, and in June, 1869, $200,000 bonds were voted to the A., T. & S. F., and the road was completed to Emporia in July, 1870. Two years previous to this "happy consummation"—in June, 1867,—the county voted the M. K. & T. R. R. Co. (the old Neosho Valley) $200,000 in bonds, and that line was built through the county in 1869-70. The two roads intersect each other at Emporia, the Missouri Pacific entering the county from Americus Township, running southeast, and making its exit by way of Jackson Township. Its principal stations are Americus, Neosho Rapids and Hartford. The A., T. & S. F. passes from Reading Township, in a southwesterly direction, to Emporia, where it bends directly to the west, the principal stations being Reading and Plymouth. The Kansas City, Emporia & Southern, and the Kansas City & Emporia lines may be said to lie in the near future. The charter of the Kansas City & Emporia road dates from January, 1881. In September, 1882, Jackson Township voted $20,000 in bonds to aid in its construction. Its course is surveyed for nearly an air line between the two points. Some grading has already been done in Osage County.

By the spring of 1860 the population of the county had reached 3,500, but during this year a series of misfortunes occurred, which checked its progress for years. That long and discouraging drought commenced in the fall of 1859, and for all practical purposes no rain fell until October 26, 1860. The county had scarcely any development in agriculture, and the settlers had the scantiest of stocks on hand to meet such an unforeseen crisis. Many of them became completely disheartened and returned to the East. During the winter and spring those who had remained were relieved from actual suffering; but the long-to-be-remembered drought of 1860 had a demoralizing effect not only upon the county then, but upon its future prospects. The heavy taxes of this fall and the war coming in the spring of 1861 with all its train of "set-backs," crushed Breckinridge County, for the time, almost to the ground. And the effects of the war were necessarily felt by sections which responded the most generously to the call for troops. The first company which left this county was the "Emporia Guards," in May, 1861. They were commanded by Capt. W. F. Cloud, and joined their regiment at Lawrence. They did good service, fighting bravely at Wilson's Creek. A. J. Mitchell raised an artillery company also. In the fall of 1862 P. B. Plumb raised a company of 150 men for service in the Eleventh Regiment. In 1864 the Lyon County Militia assisted in the campaign against Price. The mention of these organizations does not include the enlistments of those who joined other commands by ones, twos, threes and dozens. Lyon County acquitted herself heroically, and had the brave man, whose name she assumed, lived until the end of the Rebellion, he would have applauded her war record.

Many men from Lyon County also served against the bushwhackers and the Indians of the West. The most noted raid ever accomplished by the former in this vicinity, and which resulted in the shocking death of an old and respected resident of the county, occurred July 3, 1862, and is of such an unusually bold a nature that an account is extracted from the Emporia News:

> It will be remembered that some few weeks ago we gave the particulars of the killing of an old man named Anderson by Judge A. I. Baker. Baker had branded Anderson and his two sons, Bill and Jim, as belonging to a band of horse thieves; and for this and perhaps one or two other reasons, which it is not necessary to make public, Anderson sought his life, and was shot by Baker in self-defense. At the same time, a Mexican, one of the band of horse thieves and desperadoes to which the Andersons belonged, was hung by a mob. Bill Anderson was arraigned on the charge preferred by Baker and bailed out. He swore vengeance on Baker and others and left the country. It was supposed at the time—and the awful tragedy which we are about to relate proves the supposition to have been true—that they had gone to Missouri to join Quantrell.
>
> On Thursday evening, the 3rd of July, at 8 or 9 o'clock, Bill Anderson, Jim Anderson, Lee Griffin (another of the gang which had left), accompanied by two others, one of them supposed to be Quantrell himself, arrived at the residence of Judge Baker, on the Santa Fe road, when one of their company proceeded to his house and reported himself as a lone traveler, and told Baker he wished to procure some whisky. Baker went to his store, a short distance from his residence, to get the whisky, and when in the act of going into the cellar the other four members of the gang rushed in and discharged several pistols at him, two of them taking effect in his body. Baker reeled upon the steps, drew his revolver and fired into the crowd, hitting Jim Anderson in the thigh, but not seriously wounding him. Baker fell into the cellar in an expiring condition. A young man named Segur, a brother-in-law of Baker's, was present and was shot and thrown into the cellar with him. The cut-throats supposed this latter gentleman to be Elisha Goddard, of Americus, against whom they had a grudge for taking a prominent part in the hanging of their comrade, the Mexican, and against whom they had sworn vengeance. They then closed the door and piled boxes and barrels upon it, and set them afire. Baker, who was in the agonies of a horrible death, reached over his hand and bade Segur farewell, saying, "I am going." Young Segur although mortally wounded, recollected a back window in the cellar, and through this he mustered strength to escape from the horrible fate of burning to death. He lived about twenty-four hours after his escape. Judge Baker's head, arms and legs were literally burned to ashes. A portion of the body was saved from burning by some object which had fallen upon it during the conflagration. The devils then set fire to the remainder of his property, consisting of a large stone dwelling, several outhouses, a carriage, etc. They also stole two fine horses.

* * * * * * * * * * *

After they had completed their hellish work at this point, the murderers started towards Missouri, on the Santa Fe road, committing depredations and stealing horses at every point which they passed. After leaving Baker's, the first settler is a man called Dutch Henry, and whom they robbed of clothing and money.

They then went to the residence of C. H. Withington, of Allen, and, after placing all the men about the premises under arrest, they demolished a saloon, knocking the proprietor down with a pistol and setting fire to his house. Owing to the lumber being green, the building did not burn. Jim Anderson seemed determined upon killing our friend Withington, but his life was spared through the intercession of Quantrell and Bill Anderson, the former of whom Mr. W. recognized, having been somewhat acquainted with him a few years ago in Missouri. Here they stole three horses belonging to the Kansas City, & Santa Fe Mail Company, and a rifle belonging to Mr. Withington. They stayed at Allen until nearly daylight. When they started they took the prisoners with them, and on releasing them Quantrell is reported to have said something in this wise: "Gentlemen, we now have possession of Kansas, and if I had time I would issue a proclamation. But I will only say this much: Let it be remembered that Quantrell disturbs no man who minds his own business."

At Elm Creek they fired into the house of a Mr. Jacoby, who had taken some part in getting them arrested. It was their intention to have killed this gentleman, but a Santa Fe train, which was encamped near Jacoby's residence, saved his life. At the next station they stole two more horses, belonging to the Kansas City & Council Grove Stage Company. From this place they proceeded on down the road, avoiding Burlingame, and threatening a gentleman near that place, that if the people of that village disturbed the property of Hollam Rice—who, as those who have traveled the road between here and Lawrence, will recollect, kept a kind of a stopping place at Dragoon Creek, near Burlingame, and who lately left for Iowa, because of his supposed complicity with this band of horse-thieves—they would lay that town in ashes. At 110 creek they compelled Mr. Harris to get breakfast for them in double-quick time, threatening to blow his brains out if he did not do so They left there a little after daylight, and were probably in Missouri by noon of that day.

In the fall of 1860, previous to the war, came the grasshopper raid; in June, 1866, after the war, came the freshets, damaging thousands of dollars' worth of property. These six years, from 1860 to 1866, may be designated Lyon County's unfortunate period, but soon after that she took a fresh and more vigorous start. Railroads were built, crops were moderately good, and by 1870 her population had increased to 8,014. The earthquake of April 24, 1867, cannot be called either a retarding or a fostering influence. It shook up the county, generally, for about fifteen seconds, and created such a panic in the Normal School, at Emporia, that several of the scholars were bruised while attempting to make too hasty an exit down stairs. So endeth the first earthquake.

COUNTY ORGANIZATION.

The Territorial Legislature of 1855 organized Breckinridge County, attaching it to Madison County for civil, criminal and military purposes. It was named to honor Vice-President Breckinridge. The county seat of Madison County was Columbia, situated one and a half miles southeast of Emporia, and founded during this year by the first settler in Breckinridge County, Charles H. Withington, assisted by T. S. Huffaker and Wm. D. Harris, the other two incorporators. The bogus statutes which brought Breckinridge County into being, fixed the terms of the United States District Court in 1855, on the second Thursday of October, and in the county of Madison on the third Thursday of October. During and after the year 1856 the terms of court in Breckinridge County were to commence on the third Mondays of July and December. Saunders W. Johnson was Judge of the Third District, but held no court until December, 1858.

These same bogus laws of 1855 made the County Commissioners to consist of the Probate Judge and two other members chosen by the Legislature. A Sheriff was also to be elected, and all were to hold their offices until the general election in 1857. The Commissioners appointed the Clerk, Treasurer, Coroner, Justices of the Peace and Constables. On the 25th of August, 1855, the Legislature elected the following officers for Breckinridge County: Probate Judge, T. S. Huffaker; Commissioners, Harmon B. Elliot and Charles H. Withington; Sheriff, John B. Foreman. John Ratliff was appointed Clerk. These were the first officers for what is now Lyon County. Only a few meetings were held by the Commissioners, Columbia being out of their way, and furthermore the troubles of 1856 interfered with them. In 1855 Mr. Withington was elected to the Council and Arthur I. Baker to the House. They were Free-state men and the Legislature Pro-slavery; they never obtained their seats. The next set of county officers consisted of Mr. Baker, of Agnes City, Probate Judge; C. Columbia and C. H. Withington, Commissioners; and Elisha Goddard, Sheriff, appointed by the Legislature. This occurred February 17, 1857, and at the same time Breckinridge was detached from Madison County, and Agnes City, the residence of Judge Baker, was declared the county seat.

But the first regular convention for the nomination of county officers was held at Americus, September 26, 1857. The action of its members gave dissatisfaction to a number, and a rival ticket was put in the field by the convention which met at Kansas Center, October 1. The voting was done viva voce, the election being held October 6, and the Americus ticket triumphed. It was: A. I. Baker, Probate Judge; E. Goddard, Sheriff; N. S. Storrs, Treasurer; Clerk and Recorder, C. V. Eskridge; Surveyor, — Voke; Coroner, W. B. Swisher; H. W. Fick and William Grimsley, Commissioners.

Prior to this election, the people had not generally recognized the authority of the county officers; and the organization of the county into municipal townships, and the regular discharge of official business dates from this time.

Dating from this year (1857), when the influx of immigration was at its height, was the agitation to annex three miles of Madison County to Breckinridge. In February, 1859, a bill was passed by the Legislature, making the change. Although the Legislature had made this addition to the original territory of Breckinridge County, which was twenty-four miles square, a mass convention of the newly-attached "three-mile strip" assembled at Columbia, the old county seat, and resolved that as the Governor ignored the change and would refuse to commission officers elected, they deemed it inexpedient then to organize. But their fears were soon dispelled, and the three-mile strip became a part of the county, politically as well as territorily. In March, 1859, four new townships were formed, and Cottonwood and Emporia extended south to the new county line.

It was during 1858-59 that the bitterest fight occurred between Americus and Emporia over the location of the county seat. Emporia desired to postpone the settlement of the question, until the southern portion of the county should acquire the "three-mile strip." But the advocates of Americus brought the matter to a vote in October, 1858, and their town was declared the county seat by a majority of fourteen. But there were still doubts as to the legality of the submission; so that although the Board of Supervisors made all the preliminary arrangements, in March, 1859, to build a jail and court house at Americus—and as was facetiously observed, in the "Morisco style of artitecture"—"Spanish castle" style—the order was rescinded during the next month.

The first meeting of the United States District Court, Judge Elmore presiding, was held in Americus, December 20, 1858. It was to have been held at Agnes City, but between the date of notice and time of assembling, the change in the county seat had occurred. The term lasted two days, the cases tried being mostly for trespassing on school lands. The petit jurors were: C. F. Oakfield, R. W. Stevenson, William J. Carney, Van R. Holmes, E. P. Bancroft, Emporia Township; Zimri Stubbs, E. Yeakley, William McClelland, Benjamin Wright, C. H. Dake, Fleming Smith, Americus; R. H. Best, Albert Watkins, John Wayman, Leonard Bush, Kansas Center; John Lohr, Mathias Friel, David Riddle, N. W. Douglas, Agnes City; Eli Davis, Samuel McVey, David Roth, George W. Evans and William Holsinger, Cottonwood. Grand Jurors: R. W. Cloud, William Wendell, Robert Best, Oliver Phillips, Kansas Center Township; J. O. Hyde, William Perry, G. M. Walker, Leigh McClung, Emporia; Dempsey Elliott, George Rees, John Conner, William McCulloch, Americus; Matthew McCormick, James Jackson, Messrs. Morgan and Moon, Cottonwood; George Lea, William C. Anderson, G. D. Griffith, Agnes City.

The second term of court was also held in Americus, closing March 21, 1859. William C. Luineker was acquitted on a charge of larceny, and the indictments for trespasses on school lands, and for selling liquor without a license, were held by Judge Elmore to be fatally defective, being accordingly quashed.

But although a court house was not erected in Americus, it continued to be regarded as the county seat, up to the time of the general election of 1860, held November 6. Emporia received 384 votes for the honor, Americus, 141; Fremont, 73; Breckenridge Center, 14; Forest Hill, 1. This election put an end to the contest.

Among the early-day towns which figured considerably in 1858, 1859 and 1860, may be mentioned Fremont, Waterloo and Forest Hill. As is above noticed, they were competitors for the county seat. Fremont was laid out in 1857, eight miles north of Emporia, and at one time had attained to almost the dignity of a village. William B. Swisher was President of the Town Company. The town soon contained about a dozen houses, a good general store and several shops. Fremont is now farming land, and no trace is left of Emporia's former competitor. Waterloo was laid out in 1858 by W. H. Mickel, fifteen miles northeast of Emporia. Mr. Mickel kept a hotel for several years, and the town grew to contain four or five other buildings. Travelers passing over the old State road between Lawrence and Topeka, patronized Brother Mickel to some extent, but the place never grew in an alarming degree. Forest Hill, another competitor for the county seat, gave up the ghost in 1860, although even then it contained only a few buildings. The "town" was situated on the high land on the east side of the Neosho, nearly opposite the junction, being laid out in 1858.

The next important event in the general history of Breckinridge County, was the cutting of Madison County in two; attaching the northern twelve miles to this county, and the southern portion to Greenwood. This was done at the last session of the Territorial Legislature in 1861. There was considerable opposition, as the measure completely annihilated Madison County, but the legality of the act was soon sustained by the State Supreme Court, to which an appeal had been taken. This made the county thirty-nine miles long.

In February, 1862, the bill changing the name from Breckinridge to Lyon County received the Governor's signature. It was named in honor of the hero of Wilson's Creek, who had met his untimely death during the previous August.

The other changes in the limits of Lyon County, which have fashioned it to its present shape and dimensions are thus detailed in the history prepared by Jacob Stotler, editor of the News, from which, and from whom, much of the material here presented is taken: "In the legislative session of 1863 a law was passed detaching from Lyon County two miles in width of territory on the west side, from the south line of our county as far north as the north line of Chase County. In 1864 an act was passed detaching two miles in width of territory, on the west side of our county, from the line between Ranges 17 and 18 to the north line of the county, and attaching the same to Morris County, thus straightening the west line of the county and leaving it twenty-two miles wide. It contains 858 square miles, or 549,978 acres of land." Its boundaries are now as follows: "Commencing on the west line of Osage County, at the corners to Sections 14, 15, 22 and 23, of Township 15, south of Range 13 east; thence west on section lines and the south line of Wabaunsee County to the east line of Range 9 east; thence south, along said range line to the north line of Township 22 south; thence east on said township line to section line between second and third tier of sections in Range 13 east; thence north on section lines and the west lines of Coffee and Osage counties to place of beginning."

The State officers who have represented Lyon County, will be found in their appropriate place in the general State history. The present county officers, November, 1882, are as follows: Probate Judge, L. B. Kellogg; County Attorney, J. W. Feighan; County Clerk, William F. Ewing; Clerk of the District Court, J. G. Traylor; Superintendent of Schools, J. E. Klock; Treasurer, Joseph Ernst; Sheriff, Thomas L. Ryan; Coroner, J. D. Davison; Register of Deeds, William F. Chalfant; Surveyor, Robert Milliken; Superintendent of the Poor, E. Brown.

In March, 1866, the people voted on the question whether they should, or should not, erect a suitable building in Emporia, for the accommodation of the county officers. The result of the election, 327 to 164, showed that some of the old feeling of rivalry still lingered in the breasts of Americus, Waterloo and Agnes City. The building, a plain two story stone structure, was completed during the winter of 1867-68, at a cost of $19,795.

In 1875, at the general election, the people of the county declared most emphatically that they did not want any addition to the court house building.

The County Poor Farm is situated one mile southwest of Emporia. It comprises eighty acres of land, and a substantial two story brick building, used as a Poor House. The entire property is valued at $6,000. The farm is in the trustworthy charge of E. Brown, and the inmates are given all possible comforts.

SCHOOLS AND COUNTY SOCIETIES.

The first school in the county was opened by Rev. G. W. Torrence, in the summer of 1858. In October of that year, Miss Mary Jane Watson opened a free school in Emporia, and about the same time O. A. Tripp taught at Forest Hill, and W. E. Dennison at Fremont. These were among the earliest schools in the county.

In November, 1867, G. C. Morse, the County Superintendent of Schools, made his first annual report, from which are taken the following figures: In the thirty-four districts, containing schools, there were twenty-six male and twenty-five female teachers. The amount of State school funds belonging to the county was $1,271.64; county fund, $624.75. Of the 34 districts, 25 possessed school buildings, 9 stone, 10 frame, 6 log. Total number of school average, 1,823; attending, 1,195. The value of the school property was $18,685.

As a contrast the following facts are taken from the report of the County Superintendent, for 1882: Lyon County is divided into 97 school districts, in which 148 teachers are employed. Of the 6,026 people of school age 4,859 are in attendance. The average monthly wages of teachers are, male, $35.72; female, $30.70. The total value of school property is now $108,990, and this amount is soon to be increased by the erection of buildings in districts Nos. 57, 64, 92 and 93, and in the city of Emporia.

The first attempt to organize a county agricultural society, was made in 1860, but after publishing a premium list, it became defunct. July 4, 1863, another attempt was made, and a society organized at Emporia, with the following officers: R. H. Abraham, Pres.; E. Borton, Sec'y, and A. Gillett, Treas. After holding one fair, September 28, 29, 30, 1866, the society disbanded. In January, 1868, a re-organization was made, but soon shared the fate of its predecessors. August 8, 1871, the Emporia and Lyon County Mechanical Stock Association, now known as the Lyon County Agricultural Society, was incorporated, with a capital stock of $100,000. Corporators: E. R. Holderman, C. H. North, P. B. Plumb, H. C. Cross, T. C. Watson, J. S. Cleveland, and N. Spicer. The society purchased a forty-five acre tract of land, one and one-half miles west of the city, and have made improvements from time to time. Among the many buildings are the main hall, 20x60, and floral hall, 25x60 feet. Present Directors: J. F. Stratton, J. A. Moore, J. M. Griffith, P. G. Hallburg, L. T. Heritage, W. B. Ross, E. Borton, L. L. Halleck and W. T. Soden. Officers: J. F. Stratton, Pres.; J. A. Moore, Vice-Pres.; J. M. Griffith Treas.; W. R. Griffith, Sec'y.

County Horticultural Society was organized in February, 1871, with about twenty members. During the first year 150 members were enrolled. First officers: Prof. A. D. Chambers, of Hartford, Pres.; E. W. Cunningham, of Emporia, Treas.; R. Milliken, of Emporia, Sec'y. First fair was held in the summer of 1872. The flora of the county receives special attention. Present officers: R. Milliken, Pres.; J. G. Klock, Vice-Pres.; R. J. Rudisell, Treas.; Mrs. J. F. Stratton, Sec'y.

Lyon County Medical was organized April, 1882, with eight members. Officers: Dr. W. W. Hibben, Pres.; Dr. J. W. Trueworthy, Vice-Pres.; Dr. G. W. Frost, Sec'y and Treas. Board of Censors: Drs. L. D. Jacobs, J. W. Filkins and J. J. Wright. Regular meetings are held the first Tuesday of each month at Emporia.

STATISTICS.

George H. Rees made the first assessment of property in the fall of 1858. But his returns were so partial that they are useless, as are also those of 1859. From the figures returned in 1860, however, it is ascertained that the 190,488 taxable acres of land in the county were valued at $566,276; town lots, $66,212; personal property, $147,503—total, $779,991. In 1861, the total valuation was $693,030; 1862, $886,037; 1864, $1,085,320; 1874, $3,889,680. In 1875, the population of the county had increased to 9,542; in 1878 to 15,634.

The statistics for 1882 make the following exhibit: Taxable land in county, $2,359,999 (town lots, personal and railroad property in Emporia, $1,332,142 51); other property in county, $2,804,972 53—total, $5,164,971.53. The total population of the county, exclusive of Emporia City which has 7,000, is 11,660. In the spring of 1882, there were planted 73,836 acres of corn, 3,992 of oats and 6,671½ of millet and Hungarian. On March 1, 1882, 203,211 bushels of old corn was on hand. Agnes City, Americus and Fremont, the "cheese" townships, manufactured 71,708 lbs. of that article during the year. The county turned out 359,712 lbs of butter, and sold poultry and eggs to the value of $11,825. In the county are 8,111 horses, 41,356 cattle, 29,179 sheep and 15,808 swine.

EMPORIA.

The advantages of natural position which led to the location of Emporia, as a town, have already been noticed. When the settlers of 1857 commenced to pour into the county, the time had arrived for the choosing of some site upon which a settlement could be formed and a town developed. Accordingly the town of Emporia was located in February, 1857, its proprietors being P. B. Plumb, of Emporia, and Gen. G. W. Deitzler, G. W. Brown, Lyman Allen and Columbus Hornsby, of Lawrence. Although a young man at the time—not having reached his majority—and although now a man who has not reached middle age, Mr. Plumb was and is regarded as one of the principal founders of Emporia. And the young Ohioan did not stop in his upward course, but during the war, then but a young man, made his record; previous to which he had been admitted to the bar. A member of the House of Representatives in 1862, 1866 and 1867; Speaker during his second year; a leading business man and banker; United States Senator in 1877—Mr. Plumb is a balanced and broad-minded man. This diversion seems necessary.

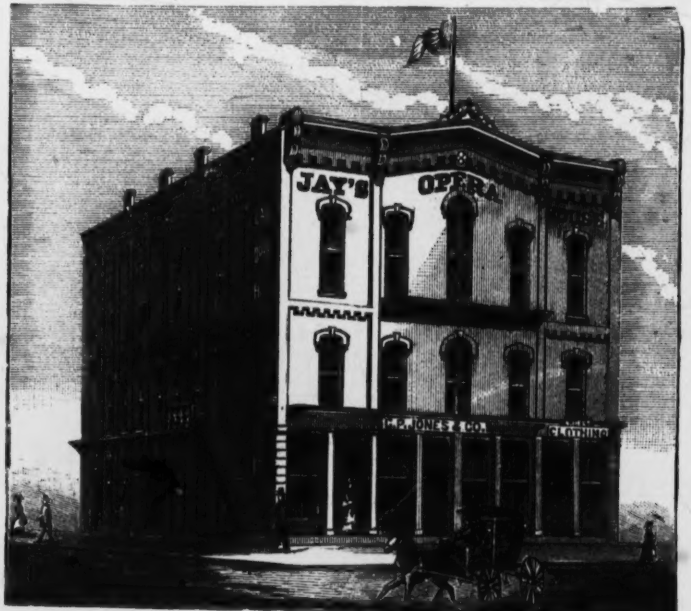
C. V. Eskridge was appointed agent of the company, for the sale of its property and to look after its general business interests. John Hammond erected the first building upon the town site, a one and a half story wooden structure, 12x16 feet, occupied as a boarding-house. When Mr. Hammond first came to Emporia he was alone, and as there luckily happened along J. H. Clapp and wife from New York, looking up a claim, he engaged the lady to cook for him. She was the first lady who set foot upon the town site. The hotel was generally crowded to its utmost capacity. The building was used for religious services, educational purposes, was county headquarters, broker's office—and what not? It finally outlived its usefulness, as the town grew, and was moved on to Geo. R. Bartsch's farm in Waterloo Township.

Although the Town Company's Hotel—the Emporia House—and the store of Hornsby & Fick were commenced at about the same time, the latter was completed first, and is therefore the second building erected in Emporia. C. V. Eskridge was a clerk in the store, and finally owned it. Upon the resignation of John Fowler, Postmaster of Columbia, in the fall of 1857, Mr. Fick was appointed the first Postmaster of Emporia. When the Emporia House was completed Mr. Hammond took possession of it, but after running it for a few months, resigned in favor of Mrs. Elizabeth Storrs, who therefore may be considered the first regular landlady of Emporia. Mr. Hammond's boy, Daniel, who came with the family from Dayton, Ohio, then four years old, was the first child who "located" on the town site. While the News was erecting its building, the Emporia House served as its printing office, its first number being set up in an upper chamber thereof.

The fourth structure erected was the old News building, which stands in the rear of the block now occupied by that establishment. It was used, in its time, as residence, postoffice, bank, furniture factory, city hall, church, hardware store, etc., being the office of the News for fourteen years.

In the first number of the Kansas News, June 7, 1857, the following description is given of Emporia, then only three months of age:

> Emporia is situated between the Neosho and Cottonwood creeks, six miles above their junction. To the west it gradually rises for a distance of several miles. On the north and south are large belts of the finest timber, along the Neosho and Cottonwood, while the various smaller streams emptying into them at this point, all well timbered, serve to make it one of the best timbered regions in Kanzas. Coal and building stone are found here in abundance. Emporia was located in March last. About the first of April, the erection of a large hotel was commenced by the town company, which has just been completed. A commodious store house has just been erected and filled with goods, and another is in process of erection. A large saw and grist mill, with lath and shingle machines attached, is about being put up on the town site. Another large saw-mill is in process of construction one half a mile distant. There is at present one saw-mill in operation near the junction, six miles distant, which has furnished the lumber used in the erection of the buildings now on the town site. There is also another saw-mill eight miles above, on the Cottonwood, which is in operation.
>
> No intoxicating drinks are allowed to be sold on the town site. The two following features we copy from the contract of the proprietors: "The parties bind themselves to each other that in every sale or donation of any portion of the land which may be selected or located for a town site, they will sign no deed of sale, release, gift, grant or lease to the same, without a provision in such deed of sale, release, gift, grant or lease, that the lessee shall not make, store, sell or give away, to be used as a beverage, any malt or spirituous liquors on such premises so sold or conveyed away, and that any violation of such provisions shall be a forfeiture of all the rights which said purchaser, donee, grantee or tenant shall have acquired to said premises. And the said parties further agree that they will also prohibit in all deeds and conveyances, as above, and bind purchasers to extend the same provisions to their assignees, that no house shall be allowed to be occupied for gambling purposes on any of the lots of the said town; and any gambling for money, or otherwise, by which anything shall be lost or won, on said premises, with the knowledge and counsel of the purchaser, shall be a forfeiture of the right which said purchaser, donee, grantee or tenant shall have acquired to said premises."
>
> The lots are 130 feet deep and 50 feet front, excepting on commercial streets, where they are but 25 feet front. The principal streets are 100 feet broad—the others eighty feet. Building is progressing as fast as the supply of lumber will admit, and as soon as the mills now being constructed are put into operation, the progress will be much greater. Several stone buildings have been contracted for, to be built this summer. The country around here is fast filling up with an energetic, industrious and intelligent population, who will develop the rich resources of this fertile region, and make it the centre of wealth and intelligence.



JAY'S OPERA HOUSE.

During all of the year 1857, settlers continued to arrive at Emporia, and building operations were brisk. Mr. Parham, a druggist from Leavenworth, and Mr. Phelps, a Michigan man, were among the new arrivals, and built a saw-mill, located just north of the present Normal School building. I[illegible]he summer of this year, railroad matters, religious matters, educational to[illegible] and mail troubles, besides the actual development of business enterprises, all served to agitate the young Emporia. The Baptists and Methodists held services in the old hotel office. The third public meeting (as elsewhere detailed) ever held in the town, was a railroad convention which assembled in June. Mail facilities were abominable, and the citizens of Emporia insisted on having a school. That the discussion had an effect is evident from the fact that Rev. G. C. Morse and lady opened the "Emporia Academy" in April, 1858, but the first free school was that taught by Miss Mary Jane Watson, in October. In December, 1859, the first school district was organized in Emporia. Its Directors were Col. F. W. Cloud, C. C. Dodge, and Ed. Borton. In 1862, C. V. Eskridge, then a member of the Legislature, secured the passage of a special act, authorizing Emporia District No. 1 to issue bonds, in the amount of $6,000, for the purpose of erecting a school building. The bonds were issued and sold, and with the proceeds thereof a building was erected, which, at the time, was considered the finest common-school building in the State outside of Leavenworth. At the following session of the Legislature, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, seeing how successfully the measure worked, recommended that this special act be made the basis of a general law. This was done, and is now an important part of the general educational system of Kansas, which dates from that year, 1863.

Emporia continued to grow materially, as well as in religious and educational directions, and one prime cause of her prosperity was that the town company reserved a certain number of lots, from those not drawn, for donation to persons desirous of making improvements. Emporia must have a town hall commensurate with her importance, but, as events proved, not at once. Although a "Town Hall Company" was formed, with C. C. Slocum as president, in February, 1858, it is stated that "enough money could not be raised to lay the foundation." In December, of this year, the town site was pre-empted, and the town company gave settlers deeds for their lots.

On February 6, 1865, Emporia, which then contained a population of about 500, was granted the privilege of sloughing off her township organization and assuming the form of a village government. The trustees were: R. M. Ruggles, chairman; J. C. Fraker, John L. Catterson, William Clapp and John Hammond. In April, 1870, the first municipal election was held, at which H. C. Cross was chosen mayor of the new city of the second class. For particulars in regard to the municipal history of Emporia, the reader is referred to pages which follow, as also to the growth of her present school system, establishment of banks, and general advancement in all the lines of modern life.

The M. K. & T. Railroad reached Emporia December 22, 1869, and the A. T. & S. F. July 21, 1870.

In preceding pages an attempt has merely been made to present the most salient facts connected with the growth of Emporia—merely as a preface to the details which follow. The city is now prosperous and fair to look upon, containing costly churches, an ably conducted State Normal School, good churches, a daily press even in advance of a population of 6,000 people, banking institutions which have become noted throughout the State for their substantial and "unfailing" qualities, first-class hotels and business houses—and the particulars regarding all these topics, and many more, appear in succeeding pages.

MUNICIPAL HISTORY.

As will be seen elsewhere, Emporia was first incorporated as a village February 6, 1865. In April, 1870, it was created, under the laws of the State, a city of the second class, and divided into four wards. The first city officers as elected and appointed were: Mayor, H. C. Cross; Councilmen, E. Borton, L. N. Robinson, W. W. Williams, C. V. Eskridge, R. D. Thomas, C. Wheelock, F. Hirth, Geo. W. Fredericks; Police Judge, E. W. Cunningham; Clerk, H. W. McCune; Treasurer, S. B. Riggs; Engineer, —— Wilson; Attorney, P. B. Plumb; Marshal, W. A. Randolph. The following named gentlemen have occupied the office of Mayor: 1870, H. C. Cross; 1871-2, William Jay; 1873, No es Spicer; 1874, J. R. Graham; 1875, John Bay; 1876, Thomas Morrison; 1877-8, J. S. Watson; 1879-80, D. S. Gilmore; 1881-2, D. W. Eastman.

Present city officers: Mayor, D. W. Eastman; Councilmen, J. R. Walkup, J. Bay, T. H. Lewis, N. B. Ireland, J. W. Thacher, J. B. Halleck, J. A. Moore, C. P. Theis; Clerk, E. M. Forde; Treasurer, H. Dunlap; Attorney, J. Jay Buck; Police Judge, J. R. Barnes; Marshal, M. Burgle; Constables, T. Johnson, L. R. Vernon.

Prior to the opening of the Holly system of water works in the city, an efficient fire department was organized, and a chemical fire engine, hose, reels, etc., were purchased. The department, when occasion demands, is always on duty, and aided with an abundant supply of water, bids defiance to conflagrations.

CITY IMPROVEMENTS.

Holly Water Works.—The first official action taken by the city in relation to a system of water works was June 2, 1879, when the feasibility of the project was discussed. October 25, 1879, a special election was ordered held for the purpose of voting $50,000 in bonds for the water works. The election was not held until November 4, 1879, when the bonds were carried by 464 for to 140 against. A special committee on location, appointed in December, 1879, reported in favor of locating on the Neosho River. The report was adopted by the Council. January 8, 1880, it was decided to locate on the Cottonwood River. January 15, 1880, a final decision was made and the works located on their present location. Work on the project was immediately commenced, and completed and opened June 17, 1880, at a cost of $66,893.17. Number of feet of main used, 62,781; number of gallons of water pumped annually, 62,000,000; estimated daily consumption, winter months, 151,200 gallons; summer months, 240,000 gallons. The city is at present well supplied with the water privilege, which is constantly increasing.

Postoffice.—Was established in the fall of 1857, H. W. Fick being appointed first Postmaster. He was succeeded by Joseph A. Fuller, who held the office until April, 1861, when he was succeeded by Jacob Stotler. In October, 1864, Mrs. E. Trask received the appointment, and was Postmistress until October 8, 1874, when Jacob Stotler, the present official in charge, resumed control. In 1876, the office was reduced from a second to a third class office, but in 1877, was re-instated as an office of the second class. Since 1876, the postoffice business has steadily increased. It was made a money order office, September 9, 1867, the first order being purchased by the "P. M. S;" 321 orders were issued the first year. In 1881, the total amount of cash received on money orders was $80,225.98; amount of money orders paid, $79,873.73; total of money order business, $160,109.71. The amount of postoffice business transacted is an index to the general prosperity of the city.

Masonic Temple.—Prominent among the many handsome buildings in the city, is the new Masonic Temple, for which the foundations were laid in the fall of 1881. A building committee composed of C. V. Eskridge, L. D. Jacobs, F. W. Hirth, J. M. Steele and W. W. Hibben, was appointed, and $8,000 raised by issuing certificates of indebtedness on the faith of the lodges in the city, and by other means. The building, which is a three-story brick, 51x75 feet, was completed in December, 1882, and cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. The hall to be used by the Masons is located on the third floor and has an area of 1,150 square feet.

Maple Wood Cemetery.—Is located one and one-half miles northwest of the city on a commanding elevation, from which a beautiful view may be had in all directions. In 1859, this site for a cemetery was purchased by the Odd Fellows and Masons. In 1867, the Odd Fellows caused a survey of fifteen acres to be made. Since the first purchase was made, additional land has been secured, making the present site consist of forty acres. About $2,500 has been spent in improvements by the Order, and it is estimated that $20,000 has been laid out in improvements by private individuals. The grounds are now controlled by the Odd Fellows' societies of Emporia.

THE PRESS.

The Kansas News was established by Hon. P. B. Plumb, its first number being issued June 6, 1857. At this time Emporia had but three unfinished buildings. The News was one of the pioneer papers of the then Territory of Kansas, and was twelve years in advance of any other paper in Emporia. During the first season of the paper's existence there was no regular mail service to Emporia, and the making of a news-paper was a task attended with many difficulties. At the end of the first volume, Jacob Stotler bought a half interest in the paper, and was associated with Mr. Plumb in its publication. In January, 1859, Mr. Stotler became the sole editor and proprietor, and changed the name to the Emporia News. Messrs. P. B. Plumb and Dudley Randall became the owners and editors, August 1, 1859. Mr. Stotler connected himself with the paper again by purchasing the interest of Mr. Plumb. It was enlarged from a six to a seven-column paper. Becoming sole proprietor on September 1, of the same year, Mr. Stotler continued as such until October 1, 1864, when he sold to J. H., O. J. and E. L. Hunt. In July, 1865, Mr. Stotler purchased the paper, with David S. Gilmore, and in March, 1866, Mr. Stotler became sole proprietor. He enlarged the News, continuing its publication alone until January 1, 1870, when he sold a half interest to W. W. Williams. At this date the paper was again enlarged, and in November the firm commenced the publication of a morning daily, receiving regular telegraphic reports. It was afterwards changed to an afternoon paper. June 16, 1871, Mr. Stotler again became sole proprietor, and discontinued the daily August 8 following. Messrs. J. R. Graham and E. Rowland purchased the Emporia Tribune, May 17, 1872, and it was consolidated with the News, under the firm name, Stotler, Rowland & Graham. In October Mr. Stotler bought his partners' interests. The next change in the management was made April 1, 1875, by the purchase of half the establishment by J. R. Graham. In November, 1878, the Daily News was again started as an afternoon paper. March 1, 1880, Mr. Graham sold out to Alex. Butts and Frank P. MacLennan, who, with Mr. Stotler, continued to publish the paper under the firm name, "News Company." The daily has been three times enlarged, and enjoys a liberal patronage.

The Emporia Republican succeeded the Ledger, a weekly paper, which had been established in June, 1871, by John Maloy. In 1881, C. V. Eskridge purchased this office, (which had also consolidated with the Journal, a Greenback paper), W. F. Chalfant's job printing establishment and Graham & Ross' book bindery, consolidated these three establishments; he added new material for the publication of a newspaper. The first number of the Republican appeared January 21, 1882, C. V. Eskridge editor and proprietor. The paper is published daily and weekly. The daily is a thirty-two column morning paper, being a full member of the Associated Press, and publishing full telegraphic reports. It ranks among the enterprising and leading dailies of the State. The Weekly Republican is a thirty-six column paper, first class in every respect. Both daily and weekly have a large circulation at home, and in the southern and southwestern portions of the State.

The circulation of the Republican is rapidly extending. Its able editor and proprietor is now erecting a large three-story brick building to accommodate its increasing business. A gilded American Eagle soars above the handsome cornice work of the structure, and beneath the Bird of Freedom, in raised letters, appears Emporia Republican.

The name of the Republican indicates its politics. The paper is ably conducted, and a sketch of its editor and proprietor appears in the biographical department. In fact, both editorially, and considered in a business light, the Republican is one of the most prosperous journals in the State. December 14, 1882, the Emporia Republican Publishing Company was formed and incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. Directors: C. V. Eskridge, Charles Harris, D. J. N. Ross and A. W. Stubbs.

The Emporia Democrat was established March 1, 1879, as the Kansas Sentinel, by W. F. Hetherington. J. McCown purchased the establishment, August 16, 1882, and is its present editor and proprietor. When he assumed the management, the name was changed. It is a weekly paper, the only Democratic journal in the county.

The Emporia Tribune was established in the summer of 1869, by Mains & Nixon. In 1871 it was purchased by W. W. Williams. In 1872 it was consolidated with the News, and its publication discontinued.

The Emporia Ledger was established in 1870, as a Democratic paper. It was owned by a stock company, and edited successively by R. M. Ruggles, John Maloy, and Mr. Walker. It afterwards fell into the hands of H. W. McCune, and was published successively by W. F. Chalfant and Albert Pheanis. It was finally merged with the Emporia Journal, a paper started by Mr. McCune, the latter paper being discontinued in January, 1882, after an existence of something over a year.

SCHOOLS.

After the erection of the old Constitution School Building, in 1862-63, it was occupied, and is still in use. In 1869-70 a new building was erected, known as the Union School. After the incorporation of the town as a city of the second class, in 1870, the public schools of Emporia were classified and graded. At the first city election, held in May, 1870, the following named gentlemen were elected as members of the first Board of Education: S. B. Riggs, A. N. Hanna, J. M. Steele, R. M. Overstreet, H. Bancroft, D. E. McMurtine, George Smith, and E. W. Cunningham. At the first session of the Board, R. M. Overstreet was elected president; S. B. Riggs, vice-president; E. W. Cunningham, treasurer; A. N. Hanna, clerk.

Prof. P. J. Carmichael was elected Superintendent of city schools, which office he held two years, and was succeeded by Robert Milliken. In August, 1877, John A. Reynolds was elected to the office for one year. He was succeeded by B. T. Davis, who held the office two years. In 1880, P. J. Carmichael, the present incumbent, was elected.

The district now embraces the entire city and a few outlying districts, and owns seven buildings, namely: The Constitution, erected in 1863; the Union, erected in 1869-70; the Garfield, a magnificent brick structure, erected at a cost of $20,000, in 1879-80; the South Avenue, and Eighth Avenue, two brick structures erected in 1882, at a cost of $11,188; and two frame structures.

At the establishing of the present school system, in 1870, seven teachers were employed, two buildings occupied, and 650 pupils enrolled. Statistics for 1881-82, show twenty-two teachers employed, at a consideration of $8,424 annually; seven buildings in use; school census shows 1,909 persons under school age, and an enrollment of 1,497 pupils. The total current expenses amount to $9,790.27.

The present Board of Education is composed of the following named gentlemen: R. Cordley, S. B. Riggs, R. M. Mills, W. J. Jones, N. T. Nix, D. W. Morris, D. C. McMurtrie, T. P. Hall, and H. B. Morse.

State Normal School.—In 1863 Hon. C. V. Eskridge, as a Representative to the Kansas Legislature, introduced a bill providing for the establishing of a State Normal School at Emporia. The bill was passed, and became a law, March 7, 1863. An endowment of 45,680 acres of lands was made from lands granted to the State under the "act of admission" in connection with the Salt Springs. At the time the Salt Lands were set apart as a permanent endowment, the sections upon which the Salt Springs were located were reserved by the State, from the belief that they would prove of commercial value. It has since been definitely ascertained that the so-called Salt Springs have no value. February 16, 1864, an act was passed providing for the appointment, by the Governor, of a Board of Directors, to consist of nine members. On the 29th of the same month the Legislature made the first appropriation of $1,000, for teachers' wages.

The District School Board of Emporia, having donated the use of the second story of the old stone school building, on Constitution street, the first term of the Normal was opened by L. B. Kellogg, February 14, 1865, with nineteen students. During that year an appropriation of $10,000 was made by the Legislature for the purpose of erecting suitable buildings. In 1866 a stone building was completed on a site of twenty acres, donated by Giles F. Filey, of St. Louis, Mo. A site of twenty acres had been previously donated by H. W. Fick, and the buildings were to have been erected on it, but the arrangement was afterwards changed, and the building erected in the rear of the site of the present one, at a cost of $15,000. At this time the school numbered 100 students, and employed three instructors. The general progress of the school during the next five years was so rapid that the building became inadequate to the demand. In the fall of 1871, 215 students were enrolled. In 1872 the Legislature appropriated $50,000 for a new building, which was completed in 1873, at a cost of $68,000. The new structure was much superior to the old stone building, both in architectural beauty and size. Up to 1878 the institution was supported by the State at an expense of from $10,000 to $15,000. In October, 1878, both the new and old buildings were destroyed by fire, nothing being saved. To erect a new building was next in order, and, after some delay, the Legislature, in 1879, appropriated $25,000, on the conditions that the county of Lyon and the city of Emporia would give $20,800, the estimated cost of the new building. This was done, and work on the new building commenced. The structure, which was completed May 11, 1880, was erected on the foundation of the burned building, and is almost an exact counterpart of it. It contains a laboratory 30x53 feet; a gymnasium; an assembly room, with a seating capacity of 600; recitation, and library rooms, etc., etc. It is one of the handsomest structures of its kind in the State, and is a credit to Emporia.

Since the opening of the institution, the following named gentlemen have officiated as President: L. B. Kellogg, G. W. Hoss, C. R. Pomeroy, R. B. Welch, and A. R. Taylor. The first Board of Regents was composed of G. C. Moorse, C. V. Eskridge, T. S. Huffaker, J. M. Rankin, James Rogers, T. W. Roberts and Gov. S. J. Crawford; William Spriggs, State Treasurer; I. T. Goodnow, Superintendent of Public Instruction—ex officio. Board of Regents (1882): Hon. Edwin Tucker, President; Hon. J. H. Crichton, Secretary; Hon. J. W. Loy, Treasurer; Gen. D. E. Clapp, Hon. William Goss, Hon. G. D. Orner. The Faculty for 1882 is composed of A. R. Taylor, M. A., George Fowler, B. A., B. T. Davis, H. E. Sadler, B. A., L. F. Hoxie, V. V. Price, B. Ph., S. E. Crichton.

CHURCHES.

The First Congregational Church was organized July, 1858, with five members, by the Rev. G. C. Morse Prior to its organization, Mr Moorse held services in 1857, at different localities in the then new town of Emporia. In 1859 the erection of a frame building, 22x30 feet, was commenced and completed on the site of the present edifice at a cost of $800. The church was dedicated July, 1860. Mr. Moorse remained as pastor until 1867, when he was succeeded by Rev. M. S. Coswell, who remained eighteen months. During the pastorate of Rev. Coswell the church building was enlarged to 22x60 feet. Membership at this time was fifty-nine. From 1869 to 1871 the church had no regular pastor. In 1871 Rev. Charles Melvine was called and accepted the pastorate, remaining four years. The pulpit was then supplied by Prof. Norton, of the State Normal School. Rev. O. J. Shannon was the next regular pastor, and remained in charge of the organization until April, 1878, when he was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of a soldier, during the railroad strikes of that year. Prof. C. R. Pomeroy, of the State Normal, supplied the pulpit for six months, when the present pastor, Rev. R. Cordley, D.D., took charge September 1, 1878. In the winter of 1879-80 the foundations were laid for the present church edifice. The building is a Gothic structure, with extreme dimensions, 72x86 feet, built of gray magnesia limestone, and was completed in the summer of 1881, at a cost of $18,000. It was dedicated to the services of Almighty God January 8, 1882. A flourishing Sabbath school is connected with the organization, having 225 members. Present membership of the church organization, 144.

Second Congregational Church (Welsh).—In the spring of 1865 an organization, with thirty-seven members, of this denomination, was formed by Rev G. C. Morse, and Mr. Fox. Services were held in the First Congregational Church for one year, when a stone building, 24x40 feet, was erected at a cost of $1,800. Rev. H. Reese, the first regular pastor, took charge of the church in 1866 and is the present incumbent. The congregation held services in the old building until the spring of 1882, when it was torn down and the foundations laid for a new structure. The new building is built of brick and stone and will be completed during the winter of 1882-3, at an estimated cost of $10,0 0. The main building will be 34x65 feet in size, with a lecture room 18x32 feet, and will have a seating capacity of 400. Present number of communicants, 125.

The First Presbyterian Church was organized November 9, 1867, by the Rev. James P. Gordon, with twelve members. The organization at first had no regular pastor, but held irregular services in the Christian Church. In the spring of 1869, Rev. R. M. Overstreet took charge of the church, and remained as pastor until July, 1870. He was succeeded by Rev. D. McMillan, who remained but a few months. In September, 1870, work on the church edifice was commenced, and progressed rapidly until the spring of 1871, when it was completed at a cost of $7,000. The edifice, which is a brick structure, 38x60 feet, with a seating capacity of four hundred, was dedicated September 3, 1871. October 16, 1870, Rev. A. McCalla took charge of the church and remained as pastor one year, and was succeeded in March, 1873, by Rev. W. C. Harding, who remained until April 30, 1874. The pulpit was then temporarily supplied by Rev. M. J. Firey until October of the same year, when Rev. James H. Clark officiated as pastor until April, 1879. He was succeeded in July, 1879, by Rev. A. S. Dudley, who remained until January, 1881, when the present pastor, Rev. J. F. Hendy, took charge of the organization, April, 1881. Present number of members, 200.

Salem Presbyterian Church (Welsh).—An organization of this persuasion was perfected at Salem, three miles south of Emporia, 1869, by Rev. R. Overstreet, with eighteen members. The next year a frame building, 25x45 feet, was erected at a cost of $2,500. Pastor, Rev. J. Jones.

In 1871 the Second Presbyterian Church (Welsh) was organized at Emporia, by the Rev. J. Jones, with from eighteen to twenty-five members. During the same year a frame building was erected on the corner of Fourth avenue and Market street, at a cost of $2,500, but was destroyed by fire October, 1871. The foundations for a new building on the same site were immediately laid, and the structure, which was built of brick, was completed in 1872 at a cost of $8,000. The church has had but one pastor during the eleven years of its existence—Rev. J. Jones. Present membership of the Salem Church, 32; of the Second Presbyterian, 110.

The First Baptist Church was organized, October, 1859, by the Rev. R. C. Brant, with seven members. The first services were held in a frame building that stood on the west side of Commercial street, between Sixth and Seventh. Owing to the lack of interest, combined with the uncertain condition of affairs at that time, the organization went down and was not revived until 1870, when it was reorganized by Rev. Mr. Wickson. Meetings were first held in the court house, until the next year, when a church edifice was completed on the corner of Merchant, between Fourth and Fifth avenues. The building is a frame structure, 36x50 feet, and cost $3,100. The church now has a membership of 100, and a flourishing Sabbath-school, with an average attendance of 140 pupils. Rev. A. B. Thomlinson, pastor.

First Methodist Episcopal Church.—Early as 1857, religious servies were held by pastors—Revs. H. Moyes and J. P. McElfresh, of this denomination, in the old hotel office, and in a carpenter shop, located on Commercial street, between Sixth and Seventh. In 1860, under the pastorate of Rev. J. C. Fraker, the foundations for a stone church, 35x60 feet were laid, on the site of the present edifice. During that year the walls were built to the height of ten or twelve feet. In 1861, Rev. John McAnulty, took charge as pastor. He was succeeded in 1862, by Rev. J. W. Stewart. Work was resumed on the building, which was enclosed in the summer of 1863, temporary seats put in, and services held. June 29, 1864, it was dedicated by Rev. D. P. Mitchell. In 1865, Rev. F. D. Loy officiated as pastor; 1866, Rev. J. H. Leard; 1867, Rev. S. E. McBurney; 1868-69, Rev. L. [illegible] Hancock; 1870-72, Rev. S. Kelly, 1873-74, Rev. Charles Lewis; 1875-76, Rev. A. H. Walker; 1877-78, Rev. G. W. Pyle; 1879, Rev. C. R. Rice; 1880-81, Rev. John Kirby; 1882, James T. H[illegible]a. During "Hancock's Administration," the church was struck by lightning, and damaged to the amount of $800. The old building was used until June, 1881, when it was torn down, and the foundations laid for a new edifice, which was completed in December, 1882, at a cost of $18,000. The new building is a handsome, commodious structure, with extreme dimensions of 60x96 feet; is built of gray magnesia limestone, and has a seating capacity of 800.

Free Methodist Church.—An organization of this branch of the Methodist persuasion, was effected in 1879, by Rev. J. P. McElfresh, with seven members. Services were held at private houses, until present church edifice was erected. Mr. McElfresh was succeeded in 1880, by Rev. L. C. Ebey, who remained one year; 1881, Rev. W. W. Hullet, seven months; Rev. L. C. Ebey, five months; 1882, Rev. W. N. Hibbard, the present pastor. In 1881, a brick edifice, 28x40 feet, was erected on the corner of South avenue and Commercial streee, at a cost of $1,489.32. It was dedicated October 29, 1882. Present number of members, eighteen.

St. Andrews Church (Episcopal).—Preliminary steps were taken towards organizing a church of this denomination, at a meeting held in the Court House, February 14, 1870. A charter was procured under the name of St. Marks Episcopal Church, which name was subsequently changed to its present appellation. Its organization was effected by the Rev. L. L. Holden, who remained as pastor from the spring of 1870, to October, 1872, and was succeeded by Rev. D. W. Coxe, who remained one year. The pulpit was then irregularly supplied until December, 1875, when Rev. Dr. A. Beatty, supplied the church until October 1878, when he was succeeded by the Rev. Thomas Burrows. Mr. Burrows was succeeded in October, 1882, by the Rev. H. MacKay, the present pastor. The present church edifice—a brick structure, was commenced in 1871, and completed in 1874, at a cost of $3,500. A rectory was built in 1879, at a cost of $1,000. Present number of communicants, sixty.

Society of Friends.—A meeting of this denomination was organized in 1861, with forty members. Services were held in private residences until 1864, when a meeting house was built on the corner of Sixth and Sylvan streets. This building was a frame structure, 20x24 feet, and was used until the summer of 1881, when it was sold and moved away. A new building, 28x40, was immediately built on the site of the old one, at a cost of $1,200. In the fall of 1879, a division occurred among the Friends, by reason of which many of the old, original members left and formed a new organization. The old organization had no regular pastor until the spring of 1878, when Mrs. M. H. Rogers took charge, and remained one year. Rev. A. Kenworthy succeeded her, and remained five months, Rev. G. N. Kenworthy being the present pastor. Present membership, 100.

The Cottonwood Monthly Meeting of the society of Friends was opened in 1860, and services held at the house of John Moon until 1862, when the meeting house was built.

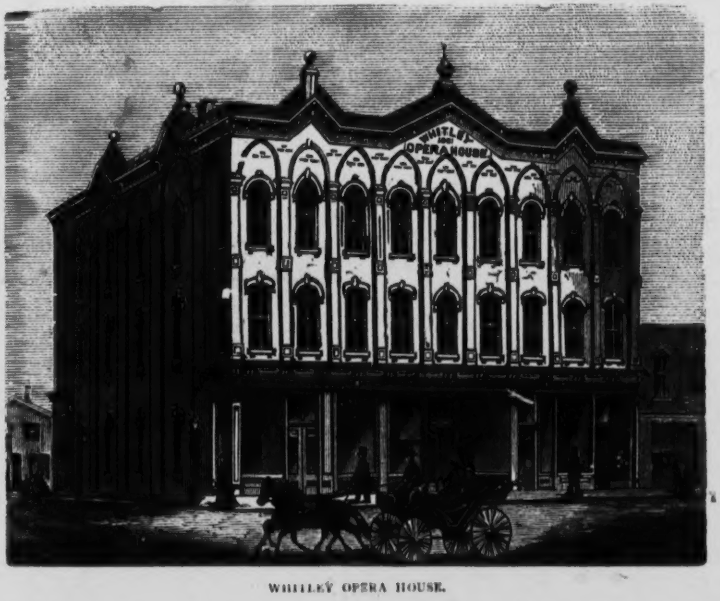
The division among the members of the Emporia meeting caused the dissenters to form a new meeting among themselves, and erect a meeting house.

St. Paul's Reformed Church was organized in the summer of 1878, by Rev. J. G. Shoemaker, with thirty-one members. Rev. Shoemaker remained until February, 1881. The pulpit was then without a pastor until December, 1882, when Rev. D. B. Shuey took charge. The present church edifice, on the corner of Ninth and Constitution streets, is a commodious brick structure, 40x60 feet, and was erected in 1880, at a cost of $3,000. Present membership, forty.

Evangelical Church (German), a temporary organization, was effected in June, 1882. July 22, 1882, the organization was made permanent, with eleven members, by Rev. C. F. Erdmeyer. Regular services were held in the Free Methodist Church. A church edifice is in contemplation, to be built in 1883.

Church of the Sacred Heart (Catholic) was organized in 1874, by Father Jos. Perrier, with twelve families. A brick church edifice, 30x40 feet, was built the same year, at a cost of $2,000. Father Perrier remained until 1880 when the church passed into the hands of the Order of St. Francis, Rev. D. Mier, priest. In 1881, a two-story brick edifice, 50x80 feet, was built, at a cost of $8,000, which is used by the order for religious services. In 1882, another two-story brick building, 40x60 feet, was completed, at a cost of $4,000, and is to be used as a parochial school. Present number of scholars attending, ninety-five. A hospital is in process of erection, which, when completed, will be a two-story brick or stone, 30x54 feet, with two wings, and will cost $10,000. Present number of families, 100.



WHITLEY OPERA HOUSE.

The United Presbyterian Church, was first organized by Rev. J. A. Collins, in 1869, with thirteen members. Mr. Collins remained in charge until spring of 1871. The church then had no regular pastor until 1875, when Rev. James Barnett, D. D., occupied the pulpit until 1880, when the organization became defunct. In 1881 it was again organized by Rev. J. A. Collins, who is the present supply. The organization has no church edifice, but expects to build in 1883. Present number of communicants, twenty-two.

Christian Church — Of this church, although one of the oldest in the city, but little can be said as to its general history, on account of the failure of parties in responding to demands made for sketch. It was organized in 1856, with six members, by Elder S. G. Brown, and an edifice completed in 1858. It is the intention of the body to erect a handsome edifice in 1883. Elder Lotz, present pastor.

P. Bruner, Capt.; L. S. Page, First Lieut.; C. A. Wolf, Second Lieut. In the fall of 1881, in connection with the company, was organized the Emporia Rifles' Band, with thirteen pieces, under the leadership of C. D. Zellers. The Company is at present (1882) under the command of C. A. Wolf, Capt.; G. W. Miggs, First Lieut.; W. P. Wilcox, Second Lieut. Armory is located between Second and Third avenues, in Commercial street.

BANKS AND BANKING.

The history of the banking business in Emporia dates back to 1867, when a private banking institution was established by J. R. Swallow, L. T. Heritage and W. T. Soden, under the firm name of J. R. Swallow & Co. The firm occupied rooms in the old News building. In 1869, under the same management, the Emporia Bank was established.

The Emporia National Bank, was established June 4, 1872, with a capital stock of $50,000, under the official management of P. B. Plumb, president; W. T. Soden, vice-president, and L. T. Heritage, cashier, which position he has retained up to the present time. In January, 1873, the capital stock was increased to $75,000; in September, 1873, to $85,000, and in April, 1880, to $100,000. In 1873, Maj. C. Hood became a director, and in 1876 was elected vice-president, which position he has since held. This institution was not only the first National Bank established in Emporia, but in this part of the State. October 3, 1872, their deposits amounted to $75,923.28; October 3, 1882, $518,527.71. Their first year's exchange business amounted to $800,000; in 1882, over $4,000,000. In 1882, their annual statement was as follows: Resources—Loans and discounts, $449,073.12; over drafts, $8,306.25; United States bonds, $50,000; other bonds, $10,937; expenses and taxes, $4,159.56; due from the United States Treasurer, $2,250; due from banks, $137,401.95; cash, $88,555.58; total, $750,773.55. Liabilities.—Capital stock, $100,000; surplus, $50,000; undivided profits, $37,245.81; circulation, $45,000; Deposits, $518,527; total, $750,773.55. Present Board of Directors: P. B. Plumb, C. Hood, L. T. Heritage, W. T. Soden, D. Bitler, A. Roberts, L. Lutz and A. G. Edniston. Officers: P. B. Plumb, Pres.; C. Hood, Vice-Pres.; L. T. Heritage, cashier; J. M. Steele, Ass't. cashier.

In the summer of 1869 S. B. Riggs H. Dunlap and L. C. Robinson established what is now known as the Emporia Savings Bank. Under the firm name of Riggs, Dunlap & Co., the institution transacted a general banking business until the fall of 1873, when Mr. Riggs retired from the firm, L. C. Robinson having withdrawn his interest prior to 1873. Tthe surviving members of the firm carried on the business until 1875, when the Emporia Savings Bank was organized with an authorized capital of $100,000. The board of directors are: J. Jay Buck, H. Dunlap, E. P. Bruner, J. J. Wright and J. W. Trueworthy. Officers: J. Jay Buck, Pres.; H. Dunlap, cashier and Sec'y.

In November, 1870, the Neosho Valley Bank was established, with a capital of $50,000. H. C. Cross was elected president and R. B. Hurst, cashier. The institution continued business under this name until January 1, 1872, when the First National Bank was organized, with a capital of $50,000. Its first officers were, H. C. Cross, Pres.; William Martindale, Vice-Pres.; R. B. Hurst, cashier. The capital was soon increased to $75,000, and about a year later was increased to $100,000. R. B. Hurst retained his position as cashier until his death, June, 1878. The vacancy was filled by Charles S. Cross, as acting cashier, until the date of his appointment, November 1, 1881. Mr. Martindale, who was one of the original stockholders in the Neosho Valley Bank, has retained his position as vice-president of the institution up to the present time. Their statement as made October 3, 1882, is as follows: Resources—Loans and discounts, $383,204.30; United States bonds, $25,000; Kansas school bonds $18,602.45; furniture and fixtures, $3,000; Sight Exchange, $102,718.32; cash, $123,611.31; government bonds, $25,000; total, $681,136.41. Liabilities—Capital stock paid in, $100,000; surplus fund, $50,000; undivided profits, $7,729.70; circulation, $22,300; deposits, $500,906.71; total, $681,136.41. Present board of directors: H. C. Cross, William Martindale, C. S. Cross, E. R. Holderman, James B. Hinkle, Luther Severy.

An honorable mention may be made of the banks of Emporia to the effect that through all the vicissitudes and commercial panics occurring during the past fifteen years, they have always paid 100 cents on every dollar on demand.

Emporia Loan and Trust Company was incorporated in March, 1881, with a capital stock of $120,000. Board of directors and officers are: H. C. Cross, Pres.; L. C. Severy, vice Pres.; O. D. Swan, Sec'y and Att'y, and William Martindale.

Their method of business, briefly stated, is this: 1. Personal examination and appraisement of land offered as security for loans, by an officer of the Company or a special agent appointed for that purpose; also, suitable investigation of character and pecuniary responsibility of all applicants for loans. 2. Careful examination of title to land offered, and preparation of a full and complete abstract of title, to be approved before completing loan, by the counsel of the Company. 3. Loans made only on security of first mortgage of land free from all incumbrances or prior liens. 4. Principal and interest payable at the First National Bank, New York, unless otherwise directed. 5. Annual ascertainment of payment or non-payment of taxes by borrower and timely notice to lender of non-payment thereof, without charge to lender. 6. In the event of mortgaged land coming into possession of lender, and his not wishing to hold same as an investment, the Company will take charge of the property for owner's account and pay taxes, let and collect rent, and sell same, without compensation to Company for its services, unless it can realize such compensation out of net proceeds of sale of said property.

Central Loan and Land Company.—Was incorporated in 1879, with P. B. Plumb, President; C. Hood, vice-President; S. B. Warren, Treasurer; Th. S. Krutz, Secretary; L. T. Heritage being an incorporator. Organizing with a capital stock of $50,000, their principal business is first mortgages and real estate loans. Since their organization, the company has loaned over $1,500,000, their business extending over twenty counties in the State.

Lyon County Mutual Loan Association.—Was organized in June, 1878, with a capital stock of $150,000, which was subsequently increased to $185,000. Its first Board of Directors were E. P. Brunner, I. D. Fox, H. Dunlap, J. A. Young, J. M. Griffith, A. G. Lakin, F. Haussler, T. Stone and A. S. Smith. The company does a general loaning business. Present officers are: J. M. Griffith, president; H. Dunlap, treasurer, and D. W. Eastman, secretary.

Union Building and Loan Association.—Was incorporated March 26, 1880, with an authorized capital of $1,000,000. Subscribed capital, April, 1880, $160,000; July, $215,000; present (1882), $385,000. Board of Directors—1880 to 1883—D. W. Eastman, H. Dunlap, W. F. Chalfant, J. M. Griffith, E. P. Brunner, T. L. Ryan, J. K. Tyler. E. F. Sprague. As the name of the company signifies, their business is conducted. Present officers, J. M. Griffith, president; E. P. Brunner, vice-president; J. S. Watson, treasurer and H. Dunlap secretary.

HOTELS AND OTHER BUILDINGS.

Emporia is celebrated all over the West for the excellence of its hotel facilities. Of the first hotel or tavern, a reference is made elsewhere in these pages. Of the ten or twelve hotels in the city, there are three that deserve special mention. The Park Place Hotel, located on the corner of Third avenue and Merchants street, opposite the Santa Fe Depot, was erected in the fall and winter of 1877-78, and opened March 28, 1878. The building, as first erected, was a three-story brick, 36x60 feet, since which time additions have been made. During the five years of its existence, it has been under the control of L. A. Luther.

The New Fifth Avenue Hotel is located on the corner of Fifth avenue and Merchants street, and was completed and opened in 1882. The building is a large, handsome, two-story brick, with basement, 50x90 feet, and was erected at a cost of $18,000. The house, under the management of William Powell, is meeting with favor from the traveling public.

The Emporia Hotel Company was incorporated May 12, 1880, with a capital stock of $20,000, which was subsequently increased to $30,000. The first officers of the association were: H. C. Whitley, Pres.; L. Severy, Vice-Pres.; R. D. Thomas, Treas.; A. M. Summers, Sec. A hotel known as the Hotel Coolidge, was erected on the corner of Sixth avenue and Merchants street, and opened to the traveling public May 1, 1881. The building, which is a large, substantial, three-story brick, 90x110 feet, was erected at a cost of $30,000. On its completion it was leased to E. K. Criley & Co., for a term of five years. Under its present management, it has the reputation of being one of the best appointed and well-regulated hotels in the State.

In 1880, a three-story brick building, 50x80 feet, was erected at a cost of $30,000, on the corner of Fifth avenue and Commercial street, by Maj. E. P. Bancroft. The third floor of the building was fitted up for theatrical use and was known as Bancroft's Hall. The auditorium had a seating capacity of 600. In 1879, the building passed into the hands W. S. Jay, since which time it has been known as Jay's Opera House.

Whitley's Opera House was built by a stock company organized in April, 1881, with H. C. Whitley, Pres.; Charles S. Cross, Treas.; Van R. Holmes, Sec., and L. Severy, H.C. Cross and William Martindale, as Directors. The building, which is a large three-story brick structure, 65x90 feet, was erected at a cost of $35,000, and was opened January 26, 1882. Among its advantages may be mentioned: A stage, 36x60 feet, full sets of fire-proof scenery, well ventilated, heated by hot air, commodious dressing-rooms, lighted with gas, protected from fire by the Holley System of Water Works, supplied with Andrews' Grand Opera chairs and a seating capacity of [illegible] 200.

MANUFACTURES.

The first flour manufactured in this part of the State was made by W. T. Soden, in August, 1858. His mill was in what was then known as Cottonwood Township, now known as Pike Township. Prior to that time he operated a saw-mill at the same place, starting it in March, 1857. In the spring of 1860, he sold his mill, came to Emporia, and erected one-half mile south of the city, on the Cottonwood, the Emporia Water Mills. The first building he erected was two and one-half stories, and 31x48 feet. It had one run of buhrs, and a capacity less than 200 bushels per day. Since that time he has erected new buildings and enlarged his establishment generally. His mills now have six run of buhrs, with a capacity of 1,200 bushels per day.

On the opposite bank from this mill is a three-story frame structure, 50x70 feet, erected in 1877. In 1874, Mr. Soden commenced the manufacture of furniture in the old mill building, and carried it on until the new building was completed. The present stone dam was built in 1879, and furnishes from 300 to 400 horse-power, running seven wheels in the grist mills and two in the furniture factory. Over $15,000 worth of furniture is manufactured annually.

The only foundry in the county, located at Emporia, on the M., K. & T. R. R. track was, in 1874, purchased by J. C. Jones. Mr. Jones operated it until 1876, when it was destroyed by fire. The foundry was immediately rebuilt on the corner of Market and Third avenue, and under its present management is doing a good business.

Emporia Carriage Factory.—This industry was first established by Messrs. Ryan & Lyon, in 1872, they occupying a building on Sixth and Merchants streets. In 1874, Lyon retired, after which the firm name was known as Ryan & Conner. In 1878, Conner sold his interest, leaving T. L. Ryan sole proprietor. In the fall of 1881, he purchased the building in which his establishment is now located. The factory employs from ten to fifteen skilled mechanics and manufactures from forty to fifty vehicles annually.

Emporia Electric and Gaslight Company.—Was incorporated February 26, 1881, with a capital of $50,000, by W. S. Jay, J. M. Griffith, E. P. Brunner, L. L. Halleck and E. W. Cunningham. Gas works were immediately erected. Four and one-half miles of main; two benches of three, and one of four retorts, are in use.

City Mills.—In the summer of 1882, a four-story brick mill, 30x46 feet, was erected by T. Armor. The is mill operated by steam power, has five run of buhrs, with a capacity of six hundred bushels every twenty-four hours.

Daniel Wilkins; graduated from the State University of Michigan, 1854, and entered Andover Theological Seminary, Mass., from which he graduated in 1857. Came to Kansas in the fall of 1857, located at Lawrence. Preached his first sermon as pastor of the Plymouth Church on the first Sabbath in December, 1857. The membership of the church at that time was only twenty-one or twenty-two and a large part of the pastor's support was supplied by the American Home Missionary Society. Dr. Cordley remained as pastor of the Plymouth Church eighteen years and left it with a membership of over 400. During his pastorage two quite marked revivals were experienced. The first, in 1867, when about 100 were added to the membership. The second, in 1872, added about 175, of whom sixty-nine were baptized in one day. A fine and substantial church was built at a cost of about $45,000 and dedicated in May, 1870. At the time of the Quantrell raid in Lawrence, which occurred on the 21st of August, 1863, the residence of Dr. Cordley, with all its contents, was burned, making a loss to him of more than $3,000, about one-half of which was made up by contributions of friends and churches in the East. He and Rev. Lewis Bodwell, who had stopped with him for the night, narrowly escaped death. When they discovered that the raiders were in town and the main street on fire, they closed the house and watched the movements of the enemy; but when a gang of six ruffians rode up to the house from the opposite side of the street they decided to wait no longer. Dr. Cordley taking his little girl in his arms and Mrs. Cordley taking the arm of Mr. Bodwell they walked out through the back gate and along the street very deliberately, in full view of the raiders, but providentially they were not noticed, and as soon as possible concealed themselves behind some favoring bushes and escaped to the woods. The well-known reputation of both these brethren as Abolitionists would have sealed their fate had they been discovered in their flight. For two years subsequent to this raid, which was so disastrous to the people and the town, Dr. Cordley took his turn with other citizens of Lawrence in standing guard over the town. In 1875 Dr. Cordley removed to Flint, Mich., where he remained for three years as pastor of the First Congregational Church. Returned to Kansas in 1878, located at Emporia as pastor of the first Congregational Church of that place with a membership of eighty-one. During his pastorate the membership increased to about 150. A beautiful and substantial church edifice has been erected at a cost of about $13,000, with seating capacity for 600; dedicated January 9, 1881. Dr. Cordley was a member of the School Board in Lawrence for six years. Member of the School Board of Emporia four years and Clerk of the Board three years. He was Regent of the State Agricultural College eight years. Has been a Trustee of Washburn College since its foundation, a period of twenty-two years. Married Miss Mary A. Cox, of Livingston County, Mich., May 19, 1859. They have one child—Maggie, who is married to William E. Griffith and resides in Lawrence.

CHARLES S. CROSS, is a native of Clark County, Ohio; he moved to Iowa, March 4 1858, and spent one winter there before coming to Kansas. Early in 1865, he came to Emporia, and received his education in the schools of that enterprising young city. He has been connected with the First National Bank for about four years, as acting cashier since January 1, 1881, and as cashier since November 1, 1881. He has virtually performed the duties of cashier since the death of Mr. Hurst, in 1878. Mr. Cross was married in Lawrence, Kan., June 1, 1880, to Miss Kate S. Sm[illegible], a native of Catawissa, Pa.

H. C. CROSS, is a native of Springfield, Ohio, but left that State in the fall of 1864, and spent one winter at Marshalltown, Iowa, before coming to Emporia, in the spring of 1865. He was engaged in the practice of law until 1870. Mr. Cross was the first Mayor of the city of Emporia, receiving all the votes but fourteen, and was Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners at an early day. He is a director in the M. K. & T. R. R., also a director in the K. C. E. & S. R. R., a branch of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. President of the K. C. & Emporia R. R.; President of the St. Louis & E. R. R.; President of the First National Bank of Emporia, Kan.; President of the Emporia Loan and Trust Company and President of the Kansas Missouri Coal and Land Company.

A. F. CROWE, came to Kansas, in May, 1857, with his father, who was one of the original members of the town company of Topeka. In the fall of 1858, he removed to Forest Hill, Lyon County, where he remained one year and then came to Emporia. His son, A. F. Crowe, lived here until 1871, when he went onto a stock farm in Greenwood County, following this occupation for six years. His war record consists of good service in the Eighth, Second and Ninth Kansas Cavalry Regiments, from August, 1861, to November, 1864. These regiments were detailed for duty in the Rocky Mountains, and were eighteen months at Forts Halleck and Laramie. The command, with which he was connected, built the former fort. Mr. Crowe has been associated with J. S. Watson (with whom he enlisted in the army) in the coal, lime and wood business. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M. and A. O. U. W. Mr. Crowe was born on the north side of the Bay of Fundy, N. S., January 27, 1846. When he was three years of age his parents removed to Massachusetts, residing in Boston until they came to Kansas. He was married in Greenwood County, Kan., October 12, 1872, to Sophia Bennett, a native of Springfield, Ill. They have three children, Thomas B., George F. and Laura I.

JOSEPH F. CULVER, lawyer, was born in Carlisle, Pa., November 3, 1834. His early life was spent in Pennsylvania. He was educated at Dickinson College, Carlisle. Read law one year with W. J. Shearer, two winters with Judge Jeffries, of Wooster, Ohio, and with Judge Duff, of Pontiac, Ill., one year. In July, 1862, he joined Company A, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Illinois, as First Lieutenant, and served in the Army of the Cumberland three years; was promoted to Captain, May, 1864. He participated in all the battles and engagements of the army from Resaca, Ga., to the march to Washington. Was mustered out at Washington in June, 1865. He returned to Pontiac, Ill., and was admitted to the bar and practiced until November, 1865, when he was elected County Judge of Livingston County, which office he held four years. He then went into the banking business, firm of J. F. Culver & Bro., which was changed upon the death of the latter, in October, 1874, to J. F. Culver & Co. Ceased business in March, 1879, and in July, 1879, came to Kansas, locating at Emporia, where he resumed the practice of law. In April, 1881, he was elected Justice of the Peace, which office he still holds. He married Miss Mary M. Murphy, of Pontiac, December 12, 1861, and by this marriage has had seven children, of whom Howard D., Marian A., Chester M., Hattie M., and Grace are living. He is a member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Emporia; is a member of Emporia Commandery, No. 8, K. T.; of Emporia Encampment, No. 17, I. O. O. F.; of Central Lodge, No. 781, K. of H. He was a Trustee of the State Reform School of Illinois for ten years.

HON. E. W. CUNNINGHAM, attorney-at-law, has been engaged in the practice of his profession in Emporia, since July, 1869, having located in that place on the 6th of the month. He was associated for the first six months with W. W. Williams, real estate agent, attending to the law business of the firm; was afterwards with J. Jay Buck about two years; then in partnership with Judge Miller about a year; alone again for two years, and since November, 1876, has been in partnership with W. T. McCarty. He was elected Probate Judge in the fall of 1872 and re-elected to that office in 1874 and 1876, prior to this time having been Police Judge. He has also served on the Board of Education several years. Judge Cunningham was born in Clarksfield, Huron Co., Ohio, August 1, 1842. He attended Baldwin University at Berea, Ohio, and pursued his studies at Hillsdale, Mich., graduating in 1866. He read law with his brother in Urbana, Ill.; was admitted to the bar in June, 1869, and commenced practice in Emporia. He enlisted in July, 1862, in Company D, One Hundred and First Ohio Volunteer Infantry, in which he served until he was discharged for the purpose of being appointed Hospital Steward at the General Hospital, No. 8, at Louisville, where he remained one year. Prior to his removal to Kansas he had been engaged in teaching at Urbana, studying law at the same time. He was married at Clarksville, Ohio, March 12, 1867, to Debbie A. Rowland, a native of that place. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham have buried one child and have four living—Maud, Mabel, Ella, and Ralph E.

DR. T. F. DAVENPORT, dentist, came to Emporia in May, 1870, having been engaged in the practice of his profession continuously since. He was born in Trenton, N. J., March 15, 1836; when nine years of age he went to Cincinnati, Ohio, with his parents. In 1856 he graduated from the Ohio Dental College, located at Cincinnati; after practicing two years at Centerville, Ind., he removed to Cincinnati, where he resided until he came to Emporia. He served, however, four years in the army, enlisting in Company A, Seventy-fifth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and remained until March, 1865. He was wounded at Gainesville, Fla., and taken prisoner August 17, 1864. During the first six weeks he was confined in the hospital at Lake City; was then taken to Charleston, S.C., Columbia, Charlotte, Raleigh, and finally to Wilmington, where he was paroled after seven months' imprisonment, returning to Cincinnati. He remained there practicing his profession until he came to Emporia. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and of the Presbyterian Church, and was married in Wyoming, Hamilton Co., Ohio, September 27, 1865, to Hannah E. Allen, of that place. They have two children—Mary Adella and Allen.

THAD. C. DAVIDSON, traveling agent for Deere, Mansur & Co., Kansas City, Mo., came to La Cygne, Linn County, in December, 1869, and resided there until October, 1873. He engaged in the hardware and agricultural implement business until 1870, when he devoted himself exclusively to the latter line. In January, 1876, he became connected with Deere, Mansur & Co., selling implements for that company on the A., T. & S. F. road and all south thereof. Mr. Davidson is a native of Monmouth, Ill., born July 9, 1839, remaining there until 1864, when he went to St. Louis, where he was engaged as a commercial traveler until he settled in Kansas. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M. Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, also of the K. of H. In June, 1874, he organized the famous Knights Templar Band of Emporia. Mr. Davidson was married at Burlington, Iowa, in December, 1865, to Helen Collins, a native of Warren, Ohio. They have three children living—Mary, Kate and Willis P.

PROF. BUEL T. DAVIS, at the State Normal School, was born in Macon County, Ill., July 30, 1852; educated in the public schools of Decatur, and was within three months' time of completing the course in the Decatur High School, when he removed to Kansas in the spring of 1871, located at Junction City and taught in the schools of Davis County for two terms. In 1872 attended the State Agricultural College as a student. In 1873 attended the Kansas State Normal School for one year. Attended Normal School at Aurora, Ill., the succeeding years; graduated from there in 1875. Returned to Kansas and graduated from the state Normal School in 1876. JAMES H. DOILE, farmer, Section 2, Township 19, Range 11, P. O. Emporia, was born in Wigtonshire, Scotland, July 29, 1830, and seven years later his parents removed to Canada, where he remained until 1849, when he came to the United States, locating in Lake County, Ill. He had learned the trade of carpenter, which trade he followed, with intervals of farming, in Lake County, until he came to Kansas, in the spring of 1857. He located in Lyon County, and pre-empted eighty acres of land situated on the Neosho River, about three miles northeast of Emporia. He at once began to improve his farm, and operated it until 1862, when he enlisted as a private in Company C, Eleventh Regiment, Kansas Volunteers. Participated in all the engagements in which his company took part, and was mustered out in August, 1865. He then went to Kansas City, and remained two years, following his trade. He then returned to his farm, and has ever since operated it. All his land is under cultivation except the timber land. He has a fine orchard of bearing trees, two acres of blackberries, one and a half acres of grapes, one acre of raspberries, and an eighth of an acre of strawberries. Mr. Doile is a member of Emporia Post, G. A. R., and a member of Neosho Grange, P. of H. He married Miss Charlotte Sharpe, of Lake County, Ill., March 5, 1857, by which marriage he has had eight children, of whom Prentice I., Thomas G., Cora E. and Agnes M. are now living.

HOWARD DUNLAP settled in Emporia in August, 1869, and engaged in banking. To this he has added a business in insurance since the spring of 1874. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M., A. O. U. W., and Congregational Church. Mr. Dunlap is a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., and came from there to Emporia. He was married in Boston, Mass., November 9, 1874, to Ella T. Cole, a native of Montpelier, Vt., raised at Jefferson, Jefferson Co., Wis. They have one child, Bertha.

D. W. EASTMAN was born in Republic Township, Seneca Co., Ohio. When he was eight years of age he removed with his parents to Eaton County, Mich., subsequently to Kalamazoo County. Served three and a half years in the Union Army, holding commission as First Lieutenant and Adjutant of the Regiment of Merrill's Horse, when he resigned in February, 1865. Three years prior to coming to Kansas removed to Coldwater, Mich., where he resided until he removed to Emporia. He was married in Otsego, Mich., July, 1865, to Marion H. Hale, a native of Michigan, and has two children, William H. and Mary A. In August, 1871, he located in Emporia and engaged in the drug business, which he continued until 1878, having been elected County Treasurer in 1877. He was re-elected to the same office, which he held until October, 1882. He was elected Mayor in the spring of 1881, and has been two years a member of the Board of Education, and also Treasurer of School Board and Assistant Postmaster. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M. Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, A. O. U. W., K. of H., K. & L. of H. and K. of P.

ELBERT C. EDWARDS, grocer, was born in Paris, Ill., July 24, 1835, and resided there until 1863, when he entered the employ of the United States, and was for about a year and a half Post Wagon and Forage Master at Fort Laramie. Was with the forces participating in all the Indian troubles in Wyoming at that time. Mr. Edwards came to Kansas in the spring of 1867, locating at Hayes City, where he built the first building used by the Town Company. Continued in business as a contractor and builder about a year, then went to New Mexico, and was engaged for eighteen months in superintending the building of Mereno Mining Water Company's aqueduct flumes. Returned to Kansas in 1870, and engaged in farming and stock raising until September, 1881, when he removed to Emporia and established one of the largest wholesale and retail grocery stores in the city, on Commercial street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues. Mr. Edwards was for nine or ten years a member of the Lyon County School Board and a Trustee of Agnes City two years. His father and mother are living, the former aged seventy-four years and the latter seventy years. Married Miss Jane J. Dunn, of Edgar County, Ill., December 29, 1859, and they have had four children, of whom George E., Mary E. and Grace S. are now living.

R. J. EDWARDS, stock raiser, was born in Aberystwyth, South Wales, February 18, 1842, and came to this country with his parents three years after. He was raised in Racine, Wis., and in August, 1862, enlisted as private in Company F, Twenty-second Wisconsin Regiment. He served three years, principally in the Twentieth Army Corps, participating in the battles of that corps. While garrisoning the town of Brentwood, Tenn., his regiment was surprised by the command of Gen. Forrest and taken prisoners. Mr. E. was confined about one month at Libby Prison, Richmond. After his return the regiment was re-organized, and continued in the Twentieth Corps up to the time of Sherman's march into Washington. He was Color Bearer of his regiment after the taking of Atlanta, Ga., and mustered out as Sergeant at Milwaukee, Wis. He went to farming in Iroquois County, Ill., where he remained five years; then removed to Colorado and engaged in the cattle business and in milling and mining. He remained in Colorado until he came to Kansas. During the last few years of his career there he devoted his attention principally to mining in which he was quite successful. In the summer of 1880, he came to Kansas, locating at Emporia. Soon after he bought a ranch of 900 acres of farming land in Greenwood County, also one of 1,500 acres grazing land. He has about 250 head of cattle and 1,500 graded Merino sheep upon these lands. He has built a fine residence in Emporia. March 6, 1865, he married Miss Elizabeth Breese, of Waukesha, Wis., by which marriage he has four children—Nellie A., Samuel R., John and Hannah, all living. He is a member of Rostia Lodge, No. 38, A. F. & A. M.

HARRISON P. ELLIOTT, farmer, Section 18, Township 19, P. O. Emporia, was born in Clarke County, Ohio, December 10, 18 5. Twenty years of his life were spent in Clarke County, and in 1835 he removed to DeKalb County, Ill., where he farmed for five years. He then removed to Winnebago County, Ill., and bought a farm of 160 acres, which he continued to operate until the fall of 1860, when he came to Kansas. He bought a farm of eighty acres in Emporia Township, which he has improved by the erection of a fine brick dwelling house, commodious barn, etc. Has an orchard of about 150 apple, 100 peach and some cherry and plum trees. Has been married three times. First to Miss Elma Gandy, in 1837; she died in 1853, leaving six children, of whom four are now living. May 19, 1854, he married Miss Irena E. W. Harris, of Winnebago County, who died in 1871, leaving two children, both now living. He married Mrs. Eleanor A. Dale, of Winnebago County, Ill., April 17, 1874.

JOSEPH ERNST, late County Treasurer, came to Americus Township, Lyon Co., Kan., October 9, 1858, and has always been engaged in farming. In 1869, he was elected County Commissioner, holding the office two years. In 1874, Mr. Ernst was elected County Treasurer and re-elected in 1876 and 1881. He was born in Prussia, March 22, 1824, and immigrated to America in 1850; after residing six years in New York City and two years in Marshall County, Ill., he came to Kansas. In August, 1856, he was married, in New York City, to Christina Fossbinder, a native of Prussia. They have nine children—William, Albert, Philip, Edward, Charles, Joseph, John, Maggie and Frank. Mr. E. is a member of the A., F. & A. M. Americus Lodge, and K. of H. Mr. Ernst died February 20, 1883.

HON. CHARLES V. ESKRIDGE, now editor and proprietor of the Emporia Republican, is and has been for many years one of the prominent men in the affairs of the State. Like others who have advanced to high position, his parents were people in straightened circumstances, depending upon their daily labor for subsistence. Their son, Charles V., was born in Virginia in 1833. The next year his parents emigrated to Ohio, and in 1836 to Lewiston, Fulton Co., Ill., where, in 1851, his mother died of pneumonia. His father still resides there. When about thirteen years of age, Charles, wishing to strike out for himself, and being satisfied that $2 in silver was sufficient capital upon which to venture his fortunes, ran away from home, his objective point being St. Louis. Having passed through a succession of boyish adventures, spending most of his succeeding six months as a cabin boy on a Mississippi steamboat, he returned to the parental roof, both richer and wiser. Shortly afterward he commenced to learn the "Art Preservative," and soon became proficient in the trade. He departed for Kansas in the spring of 1855, and arrived at a time when the country was yet in the throes of the border ruffian invasion of March 30th. Locating at Lawrence, he carried on an active correspondence with several papers in Illinois, working, also, on the Herald of Freedom. Mr. Eskridge was, furthermore, a participant in the military operations in which Lawrence played so heroic a part. After a brief visit to Illinois in the winter of 1856, he located at Emporia, Kan., during the succeeding spring. That place was then a "paper" town. He became the agent of the Town Company, and he also acted as a clerk in a store. In the spring of 1858, when Emporia had thrown off its swaddling clothes, and the country had become more settled, a political organization was effected, with Mr. Eskridge as Clerk and Recorder. In 1859 he was appointed Probate Judge, and elected a member of the first State Legislature; re-elected in 1862, and in 1863 was appointed on the Governor's staff, with the rank of Colonel. In 1864 he was elected State Senator, and Lieutenant-Governor in 1868. As a presiding officer he made a most brilliant record, as is evidenced repeatedly by resolutions entered in the Senate Journal. In 1871 he was again elected a member of the Legislature, and in 1872 was placed before the people as a gubernatorial candidate. Though he did not obtain the nomination, he was the means of making the choice, as his influence undoubtedly formed the balance of power in the convention. Mr. Eskridge was President of the City Council of Emporia, in 1873-4, and in 1874 was again elected to the popular branch of the Legislature, and in 1878 was chosen a delegate to the Republican State Convention. Among other subjects of legislation in which he has taken a leading part are those in relation to the State Normal School which, through his efforts, was located in Emporia. He is the author of the law by which school districts may issue bonds to assist in the construction of schoolhouses. He was also the first to offer a proposition extending the right of franchise to the colored race. An amendment to the State Constitution, proposing to extend the elective franchise to women, was defeated mainly by his efforts. During his residence in Emporia, for about ten years, Mr. Eskridge was engaged in the mercantile business, and also dealt extensively in real estate, and accumulated a handsome property. Besides the public measures previously mentioned in which Mr. Eskridge has been prominent, several of the laws encouraging railroad and internal improvements were drawn up and supported by him. Through his efforts the name of the county was changed from Breckinridge to Lyon. He has also been the foster father of measures which have greatly stimulated the agricultural and horticultural interests of the State. As an editor Mr. Eskridge is known throughout Kansas. He established The Republican, and made it one of the best dailies in Kansas, a full account of which appears in the County History. The daily is a thirty-two column paper, receiving the full Associated Press dispatches, and is in every way metropolitan. The weekly is a thirty-six column paper. This establishment gives employment to thirty-five hands. The circulation of the Republican extends principally throughout the southern and southwestern portions of the State. Mr. Eskridge was married at Donaldson, Bond Co., Ill., in December, 1861, to Mary E. Dixon, of that place. They have four children—Mattie, Clara, Edward Walton and Mary.

JOHN T. ESKRIDGE, boots and shoes, was born in Licking County, Ohio, September 28, 1835. He removed with his parents to Fulton County, Ill., when about two years old. When about fourteen years of age he adopted the life of a seaman, which he followed until the war of 1861, which found him in New Orleans. He enlisted in the Confederate Army, served four years and a half in the Fifth Louisiana Regiment, which was in Gen. Stonewall Jackson's command until his death. He was afterward under the command of Ewell; held the rank of First Sergeant of his company. He was wounded four times. He married Mrs. Elizabeth A. French, of Shreveport, La., June 12, 1871.

WILLIAM F. EWING, County Clerk, came to Emporia in March, 1870; for two years he was engaged in brick manufacturing at Emporia and Americus. After engaging in various other occupations and teaching school in November, 1877, he was elected County Clerk. He was re-elected in 1879 and 1881. Mr. Ewing was born near Lancaster, Lancaster Co., Pa., July 10, 1850, residing there until he removed to Kansas. He was married in Emporia December 27, 1877, to Clara G. Maxson, a native of Wisconsin. They have two children—Clara Virginia and Nellie S. Mr. Ewing is a member of the A., F. & A. M. and K. of P., and has been grand chancellor of the State in the latter order.

J. W. FEIGHAN, County Attorney, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., April 5, 1845. When a child he went to Ohio with his parents and located in Butler County. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company K, Eighty-third Indiana Volunteer Infantry, serving until July, 1865, afterward discharged as Second Lieutenant. He passed through all the battles in which the Second Division of the Fifteenth Army Corps, to which he belonged, took part. In 1866, Mr. Feighan entered Miami University at Oxford Ohio, graduating June 27, 1870. He then moved to Owensboro, Ky., and studied law, entering the Senior class at the Cincinnati Law School in the fall of 1871, graduating in April, 1873. He entered into practice at Rockport, Ind., publishing also the Rockport Republican for one year, and forming a law partnership with George L. Reinhard. From 1873 to 1880 he practiced at Owensboro, Ky. In March, 1880, he came to Emporia, and has been a partner of J. Jay Buck since April of that year. In November, 1882, Mr. Feighan was elected County Attorney of Lyon County. In 1876, he was on the Republican Electoral Ticket, and was a candidate for Congress in 1878. Mr. Feighan was married at Owensboro, October 9, 1872, to Fanny T. Moore, a native of Jefferson County, Ky. They have three children living—Katie M., Frank M. and an infant daughter named Susie. Mr. F. is a Royal Arch Mason, K. of P., and post commander of the G. A. R. He is of Irish parentage.

WILLIAM O. FERGUSON, carpenter and builder, was born in Preble County, Ohio, April 17, 1831. When seven years old he moved with parents to Indiana, in which State he resided fourteen years. Then returned to Ohio, and remained three years. Then started for the West. Remained in Iowa two years, whence he journeyed by wagon to Kansas. Entered this State March 27, 1857. Camped in the brush on the spot where now stands the city of Leavenworth. Passed through Lawrence and located two and one-miles north of Topeka on the Delaware Reservation. Remained there but a short time, and in August removed to Emporia and pre-empted a claim of 160 acres. Sold his claim shortly after, and until the breaking out of the Rebellion worked at his trade, that of carpenter and builder. December 25, 1861, enlisted in the Ninth Kansas Cavalry Regiment and served on the frontier eighteen months. Participated in one battle with the Ute Indians and several skirmishes. Once carried a dispatch from Fort Halleck to Fort Laramie, 136 miles in thirty-nine hours in the cold of winter. The company came back to Kansas after the Quantrell raid, and was stationed near Lawrence about four months. Then went to Arkansas, where Mr. F. was taken sick with fever. Was discharged for disability November 27, 1864, at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Returned to Emporia, and in the spring of 1865, he went into the grocery business, as a member of the firm of Frederick, Ferguson & Edwards. Continued business over a year, then the firm was changed to Ferguson & Ely. Six months after Mr. Ferguson sold his interest to Ely. Clerked one year for Holderman Bros., then started a grocery and bakery on the corner of Commercial street and Seventh avenue. Continued in this business until 1880, when he sold out, and has since been engaged in building. Mr. F. is a member of the Christian Church of Emporia, a member of Post 55, G. A. R., also of Emporia Lodge No. 2, A. O. U. W. Married Miss Catharen Slack, of Emporia, August 18, 1867, and by this marriage has two children—Lou Etty and Daisy Dutton, both living.

I. D. FOX came to Emporia in 1869, and the following year engaged in the book and stationery business in partnership with Mrs. E. Trask, adding piano, organ and music merchandise to the business in 1875. From 1878 to the fall of 1880 he was a partner with D. Thomas & Co., dry goods merchants, and in the spring of 1881 the firm of I. D. Fox & Co., engaged in the jewelry business. Mr. Fox has a stock ranch on the Neosho River in Americus Township, having 130 head of hogs and 100 head of other stock. He is a native of Batavia, Genesee Co., N. Y., born January 3, 1845. Prior to his removal to Kansas he had lived in Monroe, Chenango and Wayne counties, N. Y., emigrating from the latter. He was married in Peru, Ind., November 16, 1876, to Ella M. Trask. Mr. and Mrs. Fox buried one child in 1881, Ethel Clara, aged four years. Mr. Fox settled on a farm near Carbondale, Osage County, in 1860, when he first arrived in Kansas, where he resided until he came to Emporia in 1869. His father, Jared W. Fox, still lives in Carbondale. Mrs. E. Trask, partner of Mr. Fox, and widow of Edward Trask, who was killed at the battle of Springfield, was for twelve years postmistress. Mr. and Mrs. Trask were early settlers of Butler County, Kansas.

GEORGE W. FREDERICK was born of Virginia and Kentucky parentage, in the State of Indiana, March 22, 1833; moved from that State to Kansas in the fall of 1857; came through with his family (wife and two children) with a team, consequently saw some of the Pro-slavery excitement in the State of Missouri. He settled near Emporia, on his arrival, on a claim of 160 acres, and in the spring of 1858 bought another eighty—three and one-half miles southeast of the town and improved it. The same spring he was elected Treasurer of (then) Madison County, but never qualified. In 1859 he engaged in the general mercantile trade in Emporia, and in 1861 removed back to his farm and engaged in farming and in the cattle business until 1865, when he moved back to the town and went into the mercantile business again, and with it, to some extent, the real estate and general agency business, and in 1874 he was elected Clerk of the District Court, which position he retained for six years. At the organization of the town into a city government he was a member for two years of the City Council, after which he was elected city Treasurer, which position he held for three terms. In 1861 he was enrolled in the State Militia, and was elected Lieutenant in a company of the town; was called out in the Price raid, several Indian raids, and other excitements during the late war, and in 1881 he went to Colorado in the interest and to superintend the working of the coal and silver mines of the La Veta Coal and Mining Company, of which he is a member, being there seven months on that occasion, and during the same summer, in connection with Senator Harlin, of Iowa, and others, organized the Whale Consolidated Gold and Siver Mining Company, with their principal office and property at La Veta, Col. Late in the same fall he again went into the mercantile business, and in the summer of 1882 assisted in organizing and put his mercantile interest into the Emporia Mercantile Company, and was elected president and general manager, which position he now holds in connection with his favorite and continued general agency business.

JOHN FUNK was born in Pontiac, Ill., October 24, 1842. His early life was spent in Illinois. He enlisted in Company C, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Illinois Regiment, August, 1862, and served three years in the Army of the Tennessee. Was in the battles in which that army took part, and was wounded at Peach Tree Creek, July 20, 1864, which disabled him from further service. Was mustered out with regiment at Washington, D. C., in 1865. Returned to Livingston County, Ill., and engaged in farming, in which he continued until the spring of 1876, when he removed to Kansas, locating at Emporia. He farmed until February, 1880, when he started in the market business, firm of Brewer & Funk, which continued to do business eight months, when Brewer retired and Mr. Huber was taken into the firm, now Funk & Huber. The market is located on corner of Fourth avenue and Commercial street. Does a large business. Married Miss Henrietta Schaub, of Pontiac, April 10, 1870, and by this marriage has had seven children, six of whom are living. He is a member of Emporia Lodge, No. 2, A. O. U. W.

JAMES GALLAGHER, master mechanic, was born in Lowell, Mass., November 17, 1832. When about ten years of age he moved with his parents to Tariffville, Conn., where he resided seven years. He then returned to Massachusetts, and learned the trade of a machinist. Remained in Massachusetts until 1852, when he shipped for a three years' whaling voyage. In 1855 he located in Elmira, N. Y., and entered mercantile life. Was in the grocery business there until 1862, when he enlisted in the naval service as Yeoman of the United States gunboat Alabama. Had charge of all stores and supplies. Remained in the service until 1865, when he went to Illinois and worked at his trade four years. He came to Kansas in 1869, locating first at Lawrence, where he worked at his trade one year. He then removed to Morris County, and took a claim of 160 acres in Elm Creek Township. Has improved this claim by the erection of a commodious dwelling house, large barn, granary, corrals, and other necessary buildings. Has made an orchard of ten acres, containing all varieties of fruit trees, berries, nuts, etc. Has about forty head of cattle, twenty-five hogs, and horses to work the farm. Hiring help to cultivate his farm, he removed to Emporia in 1881, since which time he has held the position of master machinist at the Emporia shops of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co. Mr. Gallagher is a member of the First Christian Church of Emporia, member of the Lawrence Lodge, No. 18, I. O. O. F., member of Emporia Lodge, No. 2, A. O. U. W., and of Lodge No. 2, S. K. He married Miss Mary E. Barrett, of Elmira, N. Y., November 21, 1856, by which marriage he has four children—Theodore S. (now principal of the Eureka schools), George B., Benjamin J. (now principal of the schools at White City), and Mary.

Y., July 24, 1838, and removed at the age of three years, with his parents, to Walworth County, Wis., where he remained until he entered the State University at Madison, from which he graduated in the class of 1861. He then commenced reading law with Abbott, Gregory & Pinney. He soon received a commission to recruit a company, and raised Company D, Twentieth Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, of which he was elected Captain. He was mustered into service in August, 1862, and served until July, 1865, being commissioned Major of his regiment before leaving the service. After the close of the war, he returned to Madison and read law with Hon. William F. Vilas, and was admitted to the bar in December, 1865, remaining in Madison until he came to Kansas, in the spring of 1866. Since his residence in Emporia he has served four years as County Attorney, and four years as Representative to the State Senate. For the past four years he has been extensively engaged in real estate operations, and in farming and stock-raising, having, in 1882, 1,600 acres of corn farms in Lyon County, and a 5,000-acre ranch in Greenwood County. Mr. Gillett was married, August 17, 1866, in Madison, Wis., to Eugenia C. Chapman, a native of Geauga County, Ohio, by whom he has three children—Fannie Ray, Kittie May, and Mary Eugenia. Mr. G. is a member of the A., F. & A. M. and K. of H.

JUDGE CHARLES B. GRAVES, has been engaged in the practice of his profession, that of a lawyer, since 1869. He read law in Burlington, Coffey County, with Judge H. N. Bent. He has been County Attorney of Coffey County, and City Attorney for the cities of Neosho Falls and Burlington. He was elected Judge of the Fifth Judicial District, in 1880, and still holds that position. Judge Graves came to Kansas, with his parents, in 1859, and located with them in Woodson County, where his father Pusey Graves still resides; in 1861, he enlisted in Captain Goss' Company of the Iola Battalion, which afterwards formed a part of the Ninth Kansas Cavalry. He was a non-commissioned officer, and served with his company, in Missouri and Arkansas, until February, 1865, when he was mustered out. After his discharge he resided in Leavenworth County, until 1866, when he return to Woodson County, and engaged in farming for one year. In 1868 he commenced reading law in Burlington. In 1869, he was admitted to the bar, and returned to Woodson County, where he engaged in the practice, and remained there until 1875, when he located in Burlington, and has practiced his profession since, until he was elected Judge in 1880. Judge Graves was born near Richmond, in Wayne County, Ind., November 18, 1841, and lived there until 1851, when he removed to Fulton County, Ill., where he remained until he came to Kansas in 1859. Judge Graves was married in 1872 to Hattie S. Hawkins, a native of Indiana. She came to Kansas in 1857, with her parents and settled in Greenwood County, at which time she was seven years of age. She graduated at the State Normal school at Emporia in 1870. They have four children—Orlin H., Stella, Hugh C. and Scott S. The Judge is commended highly in his district for his legal and judicial ability.

J. M. GRIFFITH located in Lawrence, Kansas, in December, 1865. There he engaged in the hardware business until he came to Emporia in January, 1870; until the fall of 1882 he followed the same line of business. When Mr. Griffith first came to Emporia his trade extended as far west and south as there were any settlements. He was born in Lafayette, Ind., October 8, 1840, and resided in Indiana until he came to Kansas. For three years during the War of the Rebellion he served in the Sixth Indiana Cavalry, enlisting in July, 1862, and being mustered out in June, 1865. He was married near Georgetown, Vermillion Co., Ill., September 5, 1865, to Margaret H. Alexander, who was born in Bucks County, Pa., near Philadelphia. They have four children—Wm. A., James H., Esther B. and George D. From January, 1879, to January, 1882, Mr. Griffith was a member of the Board of County Commissioners. He is president of the Lyon County Mutual Loan Association, organized June 24, 1876, and has held that office ever since. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and the Knights of Honor.

JOHN R. GRIFFITH, farmer, Section 29, Township 19, Range 11, P. O. Emporia, was born March 12, 1825, in Montgomeryshire, North Wales. Came to the United States with his parents in 1846, locating first at Cincinnati, Ohio. He was engaged as foreman in railway construction for about four years on the Dayton & Michigan and the Hamilton & Dayton Railroads. Came from Ohio to Kansas in the spring of 1855, locating about seven miles south of Lawrence, when he took a claim of 160 acres, which he afterwards pre-empted. This land he improved and cultivated until the fall of 1861, making of it a good farm. He then sold it and removed to Lyon County, and bought eighty acres of unimproved land, situated about three miles southwest of Emporia. The following year he bought eighty acres adjoining, and has since bought and sold different parcels of land in the county. He now has in the home farm 285 acres, upon which he has a substantial stone dwelling, good barn and other farm buildings and an orchard of about 200 apple trees, besides other fruits. He raises cattle and hogs, feeding most of his crops to his own stock. While in Douglas County he carried a rifle, without pay, for two years, and turned out several times to repel the invasions of the border ruffians, serving at different times under John Brown and Jim Lane. He preserves his discharge papers from the "Wakarusa Liberty Guards," of the First Regiment Kansas Volunteers, dated at Lawrence City, December 12, 1855, signed by H. F. Sanders, Captain; and countersigned by Lyman Allen, Colonel First Regiment; J. H. Lane, General First Brigade Kansas Volunteers; and C. Robinson, Major-General. Mr. Griffith is a member of the Baptist Church. He has held the office of Justice of the Peace of Emporia Township one year and has been a member of the School Board several years, and held other local offices. He married Miss Elizabeth Rodgers, of Cincinnati, Ohio, January 29, 1848, by which marriage he had eight children, of whom Ann and William R. are now living. She died March 20, 1868, and he married, July 4, 1869, Miss Mary Evans, of Gallia County, Ohio; by whom he has one child—Evan R., born March 30, 1871.

ERASTUS HAMILTON was born March 30, 1857, in Doniphan County, Kan. His father Timothy M., came there from Missouri the year previous and bought a claim, which he continued to farm until 1879, when his health failed and he moved to Lyon County, where he bought 160 acres prairie land, on which Erastus worked and read law until the fall of 1881, when he went in the office of Almerin Gillett, of Emporia. He was admitted to the Bar in June, 1882, and commenced the practice of law in Emporia. He makes real estate a specialty and has a complete set of Abstract Books of Lyon County.

He was educated in Jamestown, and received his medical education in the Ohio Medical College and in the Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery, from which he graduated in 1854. He commenced practice in Jamestown, Greene Co., Ohio, but after a short time removed to Paintersville, in the same county, and one year later to Lumberton, Clinton Co., Ohio, which was his home until he came to Kansas. He was married in Paintersville, February 9, 1854, to Euphemia A. Watson, a native of Bucks County, Pa. They have seven children—John Harry, Charles H., William D. and George W., twins, Mamie, Ralph, and Jennie.

THEODORE E. HICKS was born in Wayne County, Mich., September 12, 1820. When thirteen years of age he went to Chicago with the military expedition of Major Sibley, and remained there a year. He then joined a party of laborers, and went with them down the Fox River to the Illinois, and from LaSalle to St. Louis by boat. After three years spent in St. Louis, he returned to his home in Michigan, where he resided two years. He then removed to Dixon, Ill., where he engaged in the boot and shoe business, in which he continued until his enlistment in Company A, Sixteenth United States Infantry, for the Mexican war. He was mustered into service at Cairo, in June, 1846, and ordered to Fox-Carlton barracks, New Orleans. From there the regiment went to the Rio Grande under General Taylor, participating in the battle of Chepultepec, Monterey, and Buena Vista. After the latter battle he was discharged, in December, 1848, and returned to Dixon. In the spring of 1849 he crossed the plains to California, being 105 days on the journey, and remained there, engaged in mining, three years. He then returned, married, and settled in Dixon, where he was engaged in real estate business until February, 1856, when he came to Kansas. He first located a claim in Douglas County, but owing to troubles there, he abandoned this claim in the spring of 1857, and came to Lyon County, taking a claim of 160 acres in Sections 3 and 4, Township 17, Range 11. In May, 1859, he went to Colorado and engaged in mining operations, on Clear Creek. In the fall of the same year he returned to his farm, which he continued to operate until 1864, when he sold it and bought another farm in Waterloo Township, Lyon County. He continued farming until 1876, when he rented his farm for four years, and once more turned his attention to mining operations, in which he has since been engaged, in the Territories of Dakota, Montana, New Mexico and Arizona. He has interests in mines in Arizona Territory, which will be developed in 1883. Mr. Hicks is one of the best known, as he is one of the oldest settlers of Lyon County, and has taken an active part in promoting the development and prosperity of the State and County interests. He married Mrs. Sarah C. Wood, of Dixon Ill., March 24, 1852. She was a widow with two children, of whom Martin D. is living, and at present is general manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company at Kansas City. Mr. Hicks has by this marriage four children, Jesse E., Elizabeth J., married to Prof. O. B. Wharton, of Emporia, Millie S., and William B., all living.

AUGUSTIN A. HICKOX, farmer, Section 30, Township 19, Range 11, P. O. Emporia, was born in New Haven County, Conn., November 4, 1822. He received a common school education in his native county, in which he resided until after attaining his majority. In 1845 he located in Steuben County, N. Y., where he engaged in farming, in which he continued until the spring of 1856, when he sold his farm and came to Kansas. He landed at Leavenworth April 4, and a few days later took a claim of 160 acres, on the Delaware Indian Trust Lands, situated at the head of Crooked Creek, in Jefferson County. He built a small house on this claim, but made no other improvements, and in the following spring he sold the claim and removed to Lyon, then Breckinridge County, and took a claim of 160 acres, situated on the south bank of the Cottonwood River, about five miles southwest of Emporia. This farm he began at once to improve, and he has since purchased forty acres additional, but he now only 123 acres in his farm, having deeded his two sons forty acres each. His farm is well improved, having upon it a good dwelling, barn, and other farm buildings. In August, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Company C, Eleventh Regiment, Kansas Volunteers, was promoted to Sergeant, participated in all the engagements in which his company took part, and was mustered out at Fort Riley in 1865. He then resumed the operation of his farm, in which he has since continued. He raises some cattle and hogs, feeding most of his crop to his own stock. He is a member of Pheasnis Creek Grange, No. 617, P. of H. He is now serving his second year as Justice of the Peace of Emporia Township. He married Miss Harriet Smith, of Bath, Steuben Co., N. Y., April 16, 1846, by which marriage he has had seven children, of whom Charles E., William H., and Mary E. (married to Ervin L. Hughes, and residing upon the home farm), are now living.

ANDREW HINSHAW, farmer, Section 18, Township 19, P. O. Emporia, was born in Randolph County, N. C., January 10, 1829. When less than two years old his parents removed to Hamilton County, Ind., where Mr. Hinshaw was raised and resided until he came to Kansas, in December, 1856. He located in Lyon County, and in February, 1857, took a claim of 160 acres just east of the present city limits of Emporia. He continued to farm this land until 1869, when he traded the east half of the quarter section for 150 acres of land about two and one-half miles east of town. Upon this farm he has erected a fine brick dwelling house, a large frame barn and other outhouses. Has an orchard of 400 apple trees, 400 peach trees, 100 cherry trees, 20 pear trees, and a number of smaller fruits. Has had fresh peaches three months of the year for the past three years. Has put in a windmill, and would not do without it for twice its cost. Besides the home farm of 150 acres, Mr. Hinshaw has 120 acres about two miles east of the same, of which one-half is now farmed by his son, S. C. Hinshaw, and the balance by his other son, J. C. Hinshaw, and twenty-seven acres remaining of the old claim he took in 1857. He gave ten acres to the M. K. & T. R. R. Co., and five acres to the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co. He married January 7, 1857, Miss Sarah Ann Hiatt, daughter of Curtis Hiatt, who came to Kansas from Hamilton County, Ind., in May, 1856, and they have eight children, four boys and four girls, all of whom are living. The family are members of the Society of Friends.

FRED. W. HIRTH, furniture dealer, was born in Prussia, September 27, 1838. Came to this country in 1851, with his parents, and located in Dodge County, Wis. Went to Watertown in 1853, and learned the trade of cabinetmaker, remaining in Wisconsin until 1859, when he came to Kansas, locating in Lyon County. In February, 1860, settled in Emporia, which place he has since called his home. Enlisted in 1861, as a private in the Second Kansas Regiment, Company H. Participated in the battles of Forsythe, Dug Springs, and Wilson's Creek. Was wounded in the latter action, August 10, 1861, and discharged November 19, 1861. Returned to Emporia and remained until August, 1862, when he re-enlisted in Company C, Eleventh Regiment Kansas Infantry, as Second Sergeant. Participated in the battles of old Fort Wayne, Cane Hill and Prairie Grove, in the last of which he had a narrow escape, a rifle ball going through his cap and just grazing his head. Was also in several skirmishes with bushwhackers. Was mustered out with the company, August 17, 1865. LEWIS, contractor, was born in South Wales, September 30, 1839, came to this country in 1869, and in December of that year, came to Kansas, locating at Emporia, where he engaged in general contracting for masonry and building. In 1870, he took the contract for bridge masonry on the A., T. & S. F. R.R., and has ever since been more or less engaged in the bridge construction of that road. Employs at present an average of about 400 men during the summer. His work now extends from Kansas City to New Mexico. Has in connection with his work a large quarry at Strong City, furnishing a fine quality of stone, some of which is shipped as far as Arizona Territory. Has also built about twelve bridges for Lyon County. Married, July 1, 1865, Miss Margaret Williams, of South Wales, and by this marriage has had seven children, of whom Lewis H., Eliza A., Mary J., Margaret P., William J. and Claudia S., are living. He is a member of the Welsh Presbyterian Church of Emporia; a member of Emporia Commandery No. 8 K. T.; a member of Emporia Lodge No. 15, I. O. O. F.; a member of Central Lodge No. 781, K. of H., and a member of Emporia Lodge No. 2, A. O. U. W.

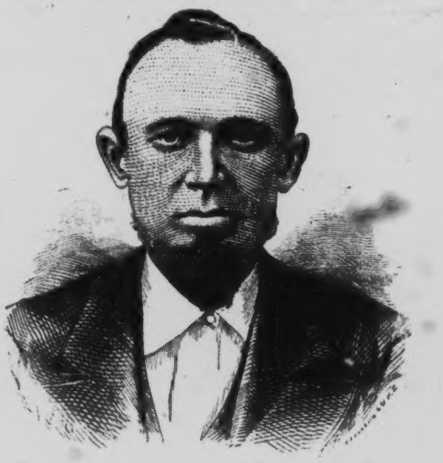
T. H. LEWIS, was born in the northern part of South Wales, at Llanfihangel, February 5, 1845. He came to America in 1870, locating at Emporia, on May 1, same year, and was married in Emporia, in March, 1873, to Lizzie Lewis, also a native of South Wales, daughter of Isaac Lewis, and a resident of America since her early youth. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis have three children—Edwin James, Mary Lizzie and Isaac Garfield. Mr. Lewis engaged in the dry goods business in the capacity of clerk, on locating at Emporia, running the tailoring department of Hall Brothers' dry goods store, until he engaged at I. E. Perley's clothing house for several years. Now in business for himself since April, 1879. He is now serving his second term as Alderman of the Second ward, having held the position since 1880. He is a member and one of the elders of the Welsh Second Presbyterian Church, and superintendent of the Sunday school connected with it. He is also a member of the I. O. O. F., and A. O. U. W., being treasurer of Select Knights and of the United Order of Ancient Templars, a temperance and insurance organization.

D. F. LONGENECKER, M. D., was born at Roaring Spring, Blair Co., Pa., March 15, 1854, and received his education at the National Normal School, Lebanon, Ohio, and the Juniata Collegiate Institute at Martinsburg, Pa. He graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in the class of 1876, and after spending a year with his preceptor, Dr. Stayer, of Roaring Spring, came to Kansas, and located at Scandia, Republic County, where he resided, engaged in the practice of his profession, until April, 1881, when he returned to Philadelphia, and spent a year in the study of diseases of the eye and ear, which he now makes a specialty. He came to Emporia in the latter part of June, 1882. Dr. L. is a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of P. and Lyon County Medical Society.

H. J. & H. W. LOOMIS, under the firm name of Loomis & Loomis, began the hardware business here in March, 1880. They make a specialty of stoves and tinware, dealing also in all kinds of hardware and agricultural implements. The house has furnished most of the hardware for the prominent buildings erected in Emporia, during 1882. H. J. Loomis was born in Herkimer County, N. Y., in May, 1832, and prior to removal to Kansas, was a resident of Macoupin County, Ill., where he was engaged in farming. Mr. Loomis was married at Carrolton, Macoupin Co., Ill., September 12, 1854, to Alice H. Eldred, a native of Greene County, Ill., and daughter of William Eldred, who settled in that county as early as 1818. They have four children—Horace, William, Nellie A. and Addie L.

H. W. LOOMIS was born in Chesterfield, Ill., September 7, 1859, and married in the same place, July 20, 1881, Lily Bullard, a native of Macoupin County, Ill.



John W. Lynn

J. W. LYNN, attorney-at-law, was born Near Hopkinsville, Christian Co., Ky., February 14, 1844. His family were all farmers. His two grandmothers were first cousins, being pure American born Scotch ladies from the old Scotch families of Hogg, Gibson and Shelton. They were both from Caswell Court House, N. C. His maternal grandfather, Thomas Lindley, was an American born Englishman with an admixture of Welsh, springing from the Lindley and Pyle families. He was from Pendleton, S. C. All three of these grandparents were amongst the first settlers of Kentucky, having immigrated thither in the days of Daniel Boone. His paternal grandfather, Jonathan Lynn, was a native born North of Ireland Irishman, who immigrated to Kentucky when he was a boy with his parents. So it will be seen that the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is fully represented in our Mr. Lynn. However, his ancestors were among the colonists and early settlers of America. His great-grandfather, John Gibson, was a soldier of the Continental Army, and fought at Guilford Court House. His three great-uncles, Meredith Gibson, Robert and Elijah Shelton, fought under Gen. Jackson at New Orleans, and the two last named also fought under Gen. Harrison in the Indian wars, and were in the battle of Tippecanoe. William Wallace Lynn and Mary Lindley, the parents of the subject of this sketch, were married in 1843. His father went down with the steamer Belle of Clarksville in 1845, in the Mississippi River, about thirty miles above Natchez, Miss., leaving two infant children, our John Washington Lynn and his sister, Lucy C. Lynn, to their mother, who, being very poor, returned with her two children to her father's house, where Mr. Lynn was raised to hard labor and all the exercises of a farm life in the country. On the 15th day of October, 1861, he enlisted as a private in Company B, Twenty-fifth Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, serving three years and four months. After the battle of Shiloh his regiment was consolidated with the Seventeenth Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, his former company becoming Company G. of the new organization. He served in this company as private and corporal until he was mustered out, January 19, 1865. His regiment was at Fort Donelson, at Shiloh both days, the siege of Corinth, at the battles of Perryville, Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge, and all the battles of the Atlanta Campaign, and also the battles of Franklin and Nashville, yet he was so fortunate as not to have received a single wound or be taken prisoner. Mr. Lynn received before the war a good common school education at the public schools in his neighborhood. After the war he learned telegraphing, and as an operator he saved money enough to educate himself. He received his education at Kentucky University, and his legal training at the Law School of Harvard University. On November 3, 1871, he was married, in his native county, to a life-long neighbor and school mate, Madora S. Brown, a daughter of the late Hon. E. A. Brown, of Kentucky. They have two daughters living—Sally C. and Lucy P., and Mary E. dead. Immediately after his marriage he came to reside in Emporia, and January 1, 1873, he formed a law partnership with Hon. R. M. Ruggles, which continued to the time of the latter's death in April, 1879. At one time C. N. Storey was associated with them, W. W. Scott becoming a member of the firm in 1874, and the firm still continues as Scott & Lynn. Mr. Lynn is 5 feet 10 inches tall, and only weighs about 133 pounds, being very slender. His health is very delicate, but for a man of his strength he is a great student. He is quite familiar with four or five languages besides his own. He is a thorough lover of science and literature, and keeps a fine select library of this kind; besides he and his partner possess one of the finest private legal libraries in the State. They have a large and increasing practice in their profession.

ROBERT R. McCANDLISS, M. D., was born near Hamilton, Butler Co., Ohio, November 19, 1826. After reading medicine with Dr. Andrew Campbell, he graduated from Miami Medical College, and located at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1857. He commenced the practice of his profession with his preceptor, in Hamilton. He then lived four years in Hill Grove, Darke Co., Ohio; returned to Butler County and practiced at Monroe until he entered the army, in August, 1862. He served in the position of Surgeon of the One Hundred and Tenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry until July 1, 1865, when he was mustered out and returned to Monroe. Later the same season he went to Savannah, Mo., and remained engaged in the drug business until he came to Emporia, in April, 1870. During this year he erected his large business block on Commercial street, engaging in the drug business until six years ago. The Doctor now makes a specialty of treating the cancer. He was married at Hill Grove, Ohio, December 25, 1852, to Priscilla Youart, a native of Troy, Miami Co. Ohio. They have three children living—Robert E., William B. and Harry E. Dr. McCandless is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

W. T. McCARTY, attorney-at-law, was born near Warrenton, Fauquier Co., Va., December 15, 1838. He was educated at Bloomfield Academy, Virginia; was one year in the law department of the University of Virginia. He enlisted in the Confederate army in the spring of 1861; served with Stonewall Jackson in the Artillery, first as a non-commissioned officer, then as Lieutenant, then as Adjutant of Poague's Artillery Battalion; afterwards commanded a battery and surrendered to Grant at Appomattox. Read law one and a half years with Hon. J. V. Brooke, of Warrenton, Va., and was admitted to the bar in Winchester, Va., in November, 1866. In January, 1867, he went to Oxford, Miss., and attended the law school of the University of Mississippi two years, graduating from that department. He was married at Oxford, Miss., October 22, 1867, to Olivia C. West, a native of Lexington, Holmes Co., Miss., and daughter of Gen. A. M. West, then President of the Mississippi Central railroad. Mr. McCarty came to Emporia July 6, 1869. For one year he was associated with H. C. Cross in the practice, after which he was alone until November, 1876, when he became a partner of E. W. Cunningham, which association has continued to the present time. Mr. and Mrs. McCarty have seven children—Mason W., William C., James Brooke, Carrie H., Evangeline, Wirt G. and an infant son.

D. C. McMURTRIE, came to Emporia in February, 1869, first engaging in the hardware business. He has been a member of the Board of Education for the past ten years, and during this period the graded system has been inaugurated, and the High School and two new buildings erected. Mr. McMurtrie was born in Middletown, Pa., March 3, 1835. For twenty years he remained in his native town, and then resided in St. Joseph, Mo., Chicago, and various places. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company H, Seventy-second Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and served until August 16, 1865. He was at the siege of Vicksburg, Champion Hills, Natchez, Mobile, Franklin, Nashville—in fact all the battles of his command. He was married at Middletown, Pa., December 26, 1872, to Kittie Fisher, a native of that place. They have one child—Kittie. Mr. McMurtrie is a member of the A. O. U. W. and the Knights of Honor.

MICHAEL MALONEY, real estate dealer, was born in County Galway, Ireland, August 23, 1823. He came to the United States in 1848, and resided the first two years after in Berkshire County, Mass.; then removed to Ohio, where he resided until he came to Kansas, in the fall of 1858, locating in Lyon County. He took a claim of 160 acres, and farmed it until the commencement of the War of the Rebellion, when he enlisted as private in the Eleventh Regiment Kansas Volunteers, and served three years, participating in all the battles and skirmishes in which the regiment was engaged. He was mustered out at Fort Leavenworth in the fall of 1865. He returned to Center Township, Lyon County, and farmed until the fall of 1866, when he removed to Emporia and started in the real estate business, in which he has since been engaged. In 1877 he went to Ireland as land and emigrant agent of the A., T. & S. F. R'y. Co.; remained about six months. He married Miss Ellen Hickey, of New York, in October, 1858. He was a Justice of the Peace in Center Township for four years. He was one of the organizers of the town, and of the school district, and was a member of the School Board five years.

CLARK C. MARTIN, builder, was born at Bedford, Province of Quebec, Canada, July 7, 1837. Came to the United States in 1855, locating at Grafton, Mass., where he resided until the fall of 1856, when he removed to St. Peter, Minn., where he engaged in building and operated a saw mill. In the spring of 1861 he went to Summit County, Col., and engaged in mining until September, 1862, when he enlisted as a Sergeant in Company A, Third Colorado Infantry. The regiment was stationed at Rolla and at Pilot Knob, Mo. In 1863 it was consolidated with the Second Regiment Colorado Infantry and transferred to a Cavalry Regiment; the company to which Mr. Martin belonged being designated as Company H, Second Regiment Colorado Cavalry. The regiment was sent to Kansas City, Mo., and assigned to Provost Guard duty. Sergt. Martin had charge of the police service of the city for about six months. The regiment remained on duty in Missouri until the Price raid, during which it participated in the battles of Lexington, Big Blue, Little Blue, Westport, Mine Creek, Lucerne, Blue Mount and Newtonia. The regiment afterward was stationed in Kansas, and participated in several skirmishes with rebels and Indians. Mr. Martin was in all the engagements in which his company took part, and was mustered out of service at Fort Riley in June, 1865. He then went to New York City, where he was engaged in building until he came to Kansas in the fall of 1877. He located in Emporia and engaged in contracting and building. In the spring of 1882 he took a partner into the business, the firm name now being Martin & Hoffer. Mr. Martin is a member of first Methodist Episcopal Church of Emporia; a member of Arcturus Lodge, No. 274, A., F. & A. M., of New York City; a member of Emporia Lodge, No. 2, A. O. U. W., of which he is foreman; a member of Union Legion, No. 2, S. K.; and a member of Emporia Post, No. 55, G. A. R. He married Miss Charlotte E. REV. DOMINIC MEIER, Order of St. Francis, was born in Covington, Ky., September 2, 1851. Received his classical education at St. Francis College, Cincinnati, Ohio, and theological at St. Boniface Convent at Louisville, Ky. Was ordained in December, 1874, and first sent to Lafayette, Ind., as assistant at St. Boniface Church. Remained there about a year and a half and was then sent to Reynolds, Ind. While there, from 1875 to 1880, built a church at Reynolds and one at Monticello. Came to Kansas in 1880, and during that and the succeeding year built the Convent of the Sacred Heart of Jesus. In 1882 a large brick school, called the School of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, was completed, and is already attended by over 100 children. The Sisters of St. Francis have also in process of construction a hospital, which will be 125 feet front by 54 feet deep and three stories high. It will be unsectarian and free to all. It is intended to build at an early day a church building adjoining the convent. There are located here besides Father Meier, Father Angelus Hafertepe and Father Guido Stallo, who attend congregations at Strong City, Eagle Creek, Reading, Council Grove, Burlington, Eureka and Hartford. There is plenty of good land still near Emporia; any Catholics desirous of coming to Kansas will find it to their interest to inquire here first before going elsewhere.

ROBERT MILLIKEN, County Surveyor, came to Emporia in March, 1869, being elected to his present position in the fall of that year. He was twice re-elected, serving about six years. He then resigned to take charge of the city schools as superintendent. He continued to hold this position from 1875 to 1877. Until 1881 he engaged in the nursery business and in the occupation of surveying. During this year he was again elected County Surveyor, Mr. Milliken was secretary of the Lyon County Horticultural Society two years, being its first secretary after organization and a prime mover in its formation. In 1873 he was elected president, holding that office to the present time. During the same year he was chosen vice-president of the Kansas State Horticultural Society, which position he retained four years. Mr. Milliken was also City Engineer about eight years. He was born near Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa., July 28, 1838, and was educated at Westminster College, New Wilmington, Lawrence Co. Pa. The period from 1857 to 1867 was occupied more or less in teaching school. The time being spent partly in Illinois and partly in Pennsylvania. LUTHER SEVERY, capitalist, is a native of Chautauqua County, N. Y., and was born in 1828. Coming to Sturgis, Mich., he engaged in farming, was a grain dealer and a merchant. In the fall of 1860 he came to Emporia, and in the following summer commenced to purchase Texas cattle, bringing them from Wichita to Lyon County. During the four years that he dealt in this kind of stock he handled over 5,000 head. Then he commenced dealing in native stock, and he has continued feeding that class of cattle, buying one year and turning off the next year. As an indication of how his business has increased, it may be stated that the first winter he turned off about 150 head; now from 600 to 800 head per year. Mr. Severy raises and buys about 1,000 hogs per year, principally of the Poland China and Berkshire breeds. He has a farm of 3 000 acres, in Osage and Lyon counties, well fenced and abundantly supplied with running water. A fine blue-grass pasture and red clover fields add to the beauty and value of his land, which is also well timbered with walnut, oak, sycamore, elm and hackberry. Besides the natural advantages of his property as a stock farm, there are others which he has brought about himself, such as the making of numerous ponds by damming the many ravines. Of course an abundance of corn is raised for feed. An orchard commenced in 1871 yields 500 bushels of peaches, apples, apricots, and various small fruits. Mr. Severy has the finest farm house in Lyon County, besides seven tenant houses and excellent barns, and cultivates about 1,000 acres of land. Besides this magnificent property, he has a good stock ranch of 2,500 acres, on a branch of the Fall River, thirteen miles northwest of Eureka, another farm one mile from Emporia, extensive real estate and property interests in that city and Northern Michigan, and is interested in the mines of Colorado and New Mexico, and the coal fields of Missouri. In 1878 Mr. Severy was elected a director of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Company, and since that time he has been identified with the interests of that corporation. He built the Eureka branch of that road, and a town in the southern part of Greenwood County has been named in his honor. Since that year also he has resided in Emporia. For the past two years he has been manager of the Osage Carbon Company, in which the railroad is largely interested. In the fall of 1880 he organized the Osage County Bank, at Osage City, and has been vice-president of that institution since. He has always been one of the directors of the company which built and manages the Hotel Coolidge, and is now vice-president, being also one of the owners of the Whitney Opera House. He has been a director of the First National Bank since 1881, and also President of the Emporia Street Railway Company. Mr. Severy was married in Sturgis, Mich., October 5, 1856, to Miss Eveline Hibbard, a native of Cattaraugus County, N. Y. They have three children—William H., who now has entire charge of his large farm, Calvin Luther, now with his father, also Nellie. They have lost one son. Mr. S. is a member of the A., F. & A. M. and the K. of H.

JAMES SMITH, cigar manufacturer, came to Kansas in September, 1867, locating at Leavenworth, remaining there for a few months. He removed to Topeka until March, 1868, when he returned to Leavenworth. He came to Emporia in June, 1870, and established his cigar manufactory, which he has operated since that time. Mr. Smith is a native of London, England, where he was born August 5, 1838. Coming to America in 1863, he located in Brooklyn, N. Y., and in New England States. In September, 1866, he located in Toledo, Ohio, and after several changes within the next year, came to reside in Leavenworth. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M., having filled all the principal offices in the Blue Lodge and Chapter. He is also a member of the Commandery. Mr. Smith was married in Emporia, October 30, 1873, to Fannie C. Neff, a native of New Carlisle, Clark Co., Ohio. They have one child living, Esther.

ELI SNYDER emigrated to Kansas in May, 1878, and engaged in the book business. In the fall of 1879 he engaged in teaching in the city schools, having taught ten years in Luzerne County, Pa., prior to locating in Kansas. Mr. Snyder was one of the incorporate members of the Emporia Athenæum. With S. B. Jones he now carries on the greenhouse business, having utilized six lots on Commercial street for that purpose. He was born in Canaan, Litchfield Co., Conn., July 11, 1850. From the age of one year until May, 1868, his home was with his parents in Dutchess County, N. Y., to which place they had moved. He then went to Scranton, Pa., and taught school ten years, and was married at that place, February 16, 1876, to Carrie Thompson, by whom he has one child, Joseph, born July 12, 1877. Mr. S. is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and of the I. O. O. F.

W. T. SODEN was born in Ireland, November 22, 1835. His parents moved to America when he was one year of age, and located in Clinton County, N. Y., which remained his home until November, 1856. He then came West, spending the winter of 1856-57 in Iowa. In March, 1857, he came to Kansas, locating seven miles west from Emporia, in Pike Township. He purchased a saw-mill, and in August, 1858, had made his arrangements to commence the manufacture of flour, his being the only mill of the kind south or west of Burlingame at that time. He remained at this place until 1860, having there a fine farm which he still owns. In the spring of 1860, he sold his mill and located at Emporia, where he built the Emporia Water Mills, about half a mile south of the city limits, on Commercial street. The mill then had one run of buhrs, with a capacity of less than 200 bushels, now has six run of buhrs, with a capacity of 1,000 bushels per day. In March, 1867, he engaged in banking with J. R. Swallow and L. T. Heritage, and has retained an interest in the banking institutions succeeding that. He has also been a member of the firm of Arnold & Co., furniture manufacturers. He was the first and is at present president of the Emporia Gas Company, the gas works being built under his supervision. He was one of the first County Commissioners after the State organization and has had much to do in building up the city in which he resides, erecting the Fifth avenue hotel in 1881, at a cost of $22,000 and investing $20,000 in buildings on Commercial street and Fifth avenue. He was married in Pike Township in 1860, to Frances Jane McCormick, who died one year later. In 1868, he again married, in Emporia, Jennie Weaver, daughter of John Weaver. Mrs. Soden died in December, 1876, leaving three children—Halcyon B., Justine Rosenthal and Harry Norman.

THYGE SOGARD, merchant, was born in Jautland, Denmark, October 20, 1846; came to the United States in 1871; located in Chicago, Ill., and opened a book store, dealing in Scandinavian works principally. In 1875 he removed to Nuncia, Mich., and engaged in the lumber business, which he continued until the spring of 1877, when he came to Kansas. Took a claim of 160 acres in Lyon County, which he improved and resided upon until February, 1880, when he sold it and removed to Emporia. For about two years he was engaged in teaching music, drawing and geography, in the State Normal School. Then he engaged in writing for the Danish Pioneer, published in Omaha, Neb., a series of papers descriptive of the State of Kansas, her products, resources, advantages, climate, etc.; was at the same time engaged in teaching music. In the spring of 1882 he started in business, under the firm name of Suppe & Sogard, dealing in musical instruments and merchandise, sheet music, etc. The firm was dissolved in August, 1882, since which time Mr. Sogard has continued the business alone. In September, 1882, he was appointed Vice Consul of Denmark to the State of Kansas. He is now engaged in the endeavor to place the young of the Scandinavian population who come here in the higher schools of the State, that they may become more familiar with the history and literature of America, and the more readily assimilate with the native population. Mr. S. is a member of the Lutheran Church; member of Emporia Lodge, No. 12, A., F. & A. M.; member of Walkup Lodge, No. 2010, K. of H.

CHARLES W. SOUTHWARD came to Emporia in October, 1879, engaging in the hide business, as a buyer for Oberne, Hosick & Co., of Chicago. He continued with that firm until October 1, 1882, when he became connected with Smith, Biggs & Co., of Kansas City, in the same capacity. Mr. Southward is a native of Green Bay, Wis., where he was born June 22, 1857. When he was eight years of age his parents removed to Grant County, Ky., where he lived until he came to Kansas, having been engaged in mercantile pursuits. He is now a buyer of hides, wool, tallow and furs, altogether in Kansas. Mr. Southward was married in Emporia, December 22, 1881, to Margia E Sexton, a native of Iowa. He is a member of the I. O. O. Fort Wayne was then his home for two and a half years, after which, in 1877, he removed to Springfield, Ill. In 1879 he returned to Columbus, Ohio, and made that place his home until he came to Kansas. He commenced the study of architecture at Columbus in 1870, and has practiced it as a profession ever since. He was married at Fort Wayne, Ind., December 27, 1881, to Susan Howey, a native of Illinois.

JACOB STOTLER, editor of the Emporia News, was born in Cumberland, Md., June 7 1833. His parents immigrated to Ohio in 1837 where he obtained a limited education in the common schools of the neighborhood. When he was five years old his mother died, and until he was seventeen years of age he divided his time, but not equally by any means, between his duties upon the farm and his tasks at school. At the age of seventeen, young Stotler became an apprentice in the printing office of the Republican, at Wilmington, Ohio. He remained in this office nearly six years. On the first of April, 1857, Mr. Stotler left Cincinnati, Ohio, for Emporia, Kan. He traveled by boat and landed at Leavenworth on the 12th of that month. Two days afterward he went to Lawrence, being employed temporarily on the Herald of Freedom. Having come to Kansas for the purpose of working on the Kansas News, which was about to be established at Emporia by P. B. Plumb, he assisted in hauling the press and the materials from Leavenworth and Quindaro, where they had been landed, to Lawrence, preparatory to bringing them to Emporia, where the new journal was to be published. Mr. Stotler arrived about the middle of May, opened the type and set up most of the first number of the News himself. This made its appearance June 6, 1857, the work being done in an upper chamber of the Emporia House, the Town Company's Hotel. At the end of the first volume he became one of the editors and proprietors of the paper. He has been connected with it as an editor and as sole or part proprietor ever since, with the exception of two brief intervals of a few months each—one in 1859-60, and the other in 1864-65. In 1860, at the last session of the Territorial Legislature, Mr. Stotler was elected Assistant Secretary of the Council, and occupied the same position in the spring of 1861, in the first State Senate. At the close of the session he was appointed postmaster by Abraham Lincoln. He held this office until October, 1864, when he resigned in favor of the widow of a soldier who fell at Wilson's Creek. Upon the assembling of the Legislature of 1865, Mr. Stotler, who had been chosen to represent his district the fall before, was elected Speaker of the House. In 1866, he was again a member of the Legislature. Although Mr. Stotler has held many public positions, and several offices of local trust not mentioned, he has devoted the most of his time to the upbuilding of a substantial newspaper. He was a member of the School Board, and its clerk when the old Constitution Street Building was erected, it being at the time the largest and best school building in the new State. When Emporia was incorporated as a village in February, 1865, he was elected a member of the Board of Trustees, and was chosen its chairman. He served as Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee, and was twice President of the State Editorial Association, which organization he helped to found. Mr. Stotler served as a member of the Legislature in 1869-70, being chosen Speaker of the House at the session of the latter year. This was the first session held in the new State House. After serving in the State Senate during 1871-72, in 1874, he again received the appointment of postmaster, and is now serving the last quarter of his second term. On March 4, 1861, Mr. Stotler was married to Miss Levara Murdock. They have five children—Frances, William, Mary, Adele and Levara.

PETER E. STROMBERG, came to Emporia, July 5, 1870. He had charge of a gang of railroad men engaged in the construction of the A., T. & S. F. R. R., and was afterwards clerk in a hotel about four months. Until 1875, he was a clerk in a grocery store; then was traveling salesman for I. D. Fox & Co., until April, 1877. He next entered the hardware establishment of Lewis Lutz, and continued with him until 1881, when Mr. Lutz sold out to N. E. Weaver. Here he remained until 1882. Mr. Stromberg was born in Sweden, March 21, 1849. In the spring of 1869, he came to America, locating at Junction City, Kas., where he was connected with the construction of the M. K. & T. R. R., until he located in Emporia. He was married, October 10, 1875, to Belle M. Holmes, a native of Michigan. They have one child living—Ernest, having lost one daughter. HON. J. H. WATSON was born in Bucks County, Pa. His parents were Quakers, whose ancestors came to America with William Penn. At the age of twenty-one he commenced the study of medicine, and completed his medical course at the University of Pennsylvania. For six years he practiced his profession at Quakertown, Pa., where he married Miss Hannah Lester, June, 1829. In the spring of 1835 he removed to Warren County, Ohio, and continued the practice of medicine until 1840, when he commenced the study of law, and was admitted to the bar in 1844. He was always earnestly opposed to American slavery, and never omitted an opportunity to lift his voice in behalf of the downtrodden and oppressed of all classes. He was among the foremost in the organization of the Republican party, and remained in its ranks as long as, in his opinion, the party remained true to its great principles. In 1858 he moved to Kansas and located at Emporia. Here he practiced law. In 1862 a vacancy occurred in the office of Chief Justice of the State, in consequence of Chief-Justice Ewing going into the military service. J. H. Watson was nominated by the State Central Committee to fill the vacancy, and was elected by a large majority, but did not serve, in consequence of some technical difficulty as to the time of the office becoming vacant. He was active in furthering the construction of the M., K. & T. R. R. (now Missouri Pacific), and was the first president of the board of corporators. In 1864 he was elected Judge of the Fifth Judicial District, in which capacity he served eight years, and then retired from the legal profession. He is now nearly eighty years of age, and retains much of the earnestness and enthusiasm of his earlier years.

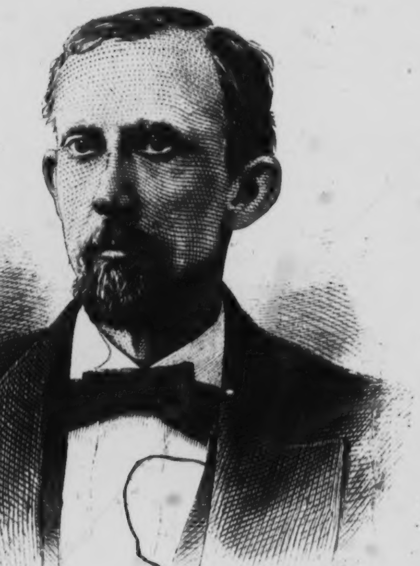
J. S. WATSON settled in Kansas in the fall of 1858, coming with his father, John H., and locating in Emporia. The latter has been District Judge, and is now a resident of this place. J. S. Watson enlisted in Company H, Eighth Kansas Cavalry. He served in that regiment about one year, and was then transferred to the Second Kansas Cavalry, Company L. After a few months he was transferred to the Ninth Kansas Cavalry, Company B. He enlisted August 6, 1861, and served until November 19, 1864, the scene of his operations being the Rocky Mountains, Forts Halleck and Laramie, and Arkansas. After he left the army, Mr. Watson was Under-Sheriff for six years. In the fall of 1869 he became connected with the local office of the M., K. & T. R. R., and there remained for seven years, five years of which time being agent at this point. In 1873 he commenced dealing in coal. For the past five years he has associated himself with A. F. Crowe, and dealt also in lime, sand, building material, etc. They have manufactured brick about three years, averaging 1,000,000 brick per annum. Mr. Watson is treasurer of the Union Building and Loan Association. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. and Select Knights of that order; also a member of the K. of H.; is also a Mason. He was Mayor of the city two terms, served one term in the Legislature, and has been Alderman several years. Mr. Watson was born in Paintersville, Greene Co., Ohio, December 2, 1843, living there until he came to Kansas. On January 6, 1868, at Emporia, he was united in marriage to Ellen C. Armor, a native of Delaware. They have one child—Josie J.

N. E. WEAVER, hardware merchant, came to Kansas July 5, 1859, locating in 1860 near Emporia, and engaging in the occupation of farming. In July, 1862, he enlisted in Company C, Eleventh Kansas Volunteer Infantry, being mustered out in August, 1865. Most of the time while in the service he was detailed for duty in the Quartermaster and Commissary departments. In the spring of 1866 he engaged in the drug business and thus continued until 1872, when he sold out to John A. Moore. In 1873 he became a wholesale liquor dealer, continuing in this occupation until the fall of 1880. After traveling through the West and North for about a year, in Colorado, New Mexico, etc., in September, 1881, he purchased the hardware establishment of Mr. Lutz. Mr. Weaver was born in Danville, Ill., June 27, 1841, and remained there or in that vicinity until he came to Kansas. He was married in his native place October 13, 1875, to Gertrude W. Adams, who was born at Newport, Ind. They have one child, Florine. Mr. W. has been for many years an I. O. O. F., having passed all the chairs of the subordinate lodge and encampment.

J. L. WELLS came to Emporia Township in October, 1867, and located on Section 2, on the Neosho river. After living there about four years he moved to Jackson Township, same county, on Badger Creek. Here he lived for about ten years and then came to Emporia, engaging in the real estate business in January, 1882. His brother, A. A. Wells, has been associated with him since that time. Mr. Wells (J. L.) held the position of School Treasurer of Jackson Township for seven years. He was born in Tyler County, W. Va., March 17, 1847, living here until he came to Kansas with his father. He enlisted in Company C, Sixth West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, in September, 1864, and was mustered out June 10, 1865. He was married August 20, 1871, to Eliza Belle Hammond, a native of Ohio, and daughter of John Hammond, one of the first settlers of Emporia. They have four children, Rosamond Belle, Clarence Clark, Ida May, and William Harvey. Mr. Wells is a member of the United Brethren Church and of the G. A. R.

A. A. WELLS came to Kansas in 1867. He resided on the homestead until the fall of 1880, when he removed to Emporia and attended school. In the fall of 1881 he went to Hartford, Kas., and taught school there during the winter. In March, 1882, he came to Emporia to reside, having graduated at the State Normal School during the previous spring. In August he, with his brother, J. L., formed the real estate firm of J. L. Wells & Co. Mr. Wells was born in Tyler County, W. Va., March 18, 1853, and was married in Emporia March 24, 1878, to Rachel Roberts, a native of Leavenworth County. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

B. WHELDON came to Emporia in April, 1878, and engaged in the drug business. He was born in Springfield, O., December 10, 1853. There he lived until 1871, when he removed to Urbana, Ill, and, as stated, in 1878 to Kansas. He has been in the drug business since he was sixteen years of age. Mr. Wheldon was married at Urbana, Ill., December 13, 1875, to Jennie A. Waters, a native of that place. They have two children, Clarence H. and Kate N. He is a member of K. of P.



H C Whitley

COL. H. C. WHITLEY was born in Camden, Me., on August 6, 1834. His parents soon afterwards moved to northern Ohio. He received his education at the Western Reserve Teachers' Seminary, in the village of Kirtland. From this point, at the age of sixteen, he commenced the business of driving cattle across the Allegheny Mountains to Chester County, Pa. After having gained an experience of two years at this arduous service, he went to Cambridge, Mass., where he was employed. He married Katie W. Bates, of Cambridge, in 1856. In 1857 he removed to Lawrence, Kan., where he was engaged for two years in the grocery business. Upon the breaking out of the Pike's Peak fever in 1859, Mr. Whitley sold out his business and crossed the plains of Kansas to Denver. Not meeting with the success he expected, he shortly afterwards went to New Orleans. At the beginning of the War of the Rebellion he was engaged in business upon Red River. Immediately upon hearing of the capture of New Orleans by the Federal forces he seized the yawl boat of the steamer Starlight, then lying at Shreveport, La., from which point he rowed the boat to New Orleans, a distance of 700 miles, traveling mostly at night and hiding under the banks of the river in the daytime. Upon reporting to Maj.-Gen. Butler, then in command of the Department of the Gulf, Mr. Whitley was at once offered employment in the special service of the United States Government, which he accepted. It was with the aid of Mr. Whitley and half-a-dozen others acting under his instructions, that Gen. Butler succeeded in seizing millions of dollars of Rebel property and in arresting and destroying all the principal thugs and thieves with which the city was at that time so largely infested. Mr. Whitley received his appointment as Major of the Seventh Louisiana Volunteers from George F. Shepleigh, Military Governor of Louisiana. At the close of the war he returned to Boston and soon obtained employment from Hon. E. A. Rollins, then Commissioner of Internal Revenue, as Special Agent of the Revenue Service, having been selected from over 800 applicants to receive the commission which he applied for. He remained in this service until the beginning of Gen. Grant's administration in 1869, at which time he was made Chief of the Secret Service Division of the United States Treasury Department, where he served for six years with wonderful success, as the records of the Treasury Department will show. Col. Whitley resigned in 1875 and immediately removed to Emporia, Kan., where he has made many real estate improvements, which have been largely instrumental in helping to build up the city.

MRS. MARY K. WHEELER, one of the early settlers of Lyon County, was born in Townsend, Mass., June 5, 1804, resided in Massachusetts and New Hampshire until twenty-six years of age, when she removed to McHenry, Ill., where she continued to reside until 1859, when she came to Kansas; in the spring of 1860 located at Emporia, which, at that time, consisted of a hotel, the Emporia News printing office and about a dozen small dwelling houses made of rough boards. At the beginning of the war she returned to Illinois and remained until the fall of 1865, since which time she has continued to reside in Emporia. Mrs. Wheeler was married in 1828; her husband, C. G. Wheeler, died in McHenry, Ill. She has had five children, all now deceased; the oldest, James M., was a soldier in the late war, and died of consumption at Mount Vernon, Mo., where his remains rest. He left two children, James H., now in Oregon, and Jessie M., now deceased. Her second child, Frances B., was twice married, first to Hiram Wanzer, by whom she had one child, Mary E., married to F. G. Jeune and now residing in Chicago, Ill. By her second husband, George W. Smith, she had two children, Ida Antoinette, married August 8, 1882, to F. N. Groth, and now residing at Emporia, and Orson K., also residing at Emporia. The next two children of Mrs. Wheeler died in infancy and rest in the same grave with her husband in McHenry. The fifth child, C. Edna, was married to Orson Kent, and left an infant since deceased. Mrs. Wheeler resides with her granddaughter, Mrs. Groth. Both are members of the Christian Church of Emporia.

NELSON WHITTLESEY, flour and feed store, was born in Lewes County, N. Y., September 17, 1823. Resided in New York until 1868, when he came to Kansas, locating at Emporia. Transacted a real estate business for about five years. In 1873 started business in flour and feed line, in which he has since continued. Was a member of the City Council from 1878 to 1882. Was an earnest advocate and worker for the Water Works in Emporia. Is a member of Emporia Lodge No. 12, A., F. & A. M. He married Miss Adeline A. Pearson, September 16, 1847. She died December 9, 1867, leaving two children—Russell T. and J. Adeline. August 30, 1870, he married Miss Julia C. Evans, of Alexandria Bay, N. Y., and by this marriage has one child, Horace G.

ALBERT G. WILHITE, farmer, Section 19, Township 19, P. O. Emporia, was born in Oldham County, Ky., July 30, 1829. Four years later, his parents removed to Morgan County, Ind., where he remained until he came to Kansas, in November, 1857. He then located in Jackson Township, where he pre-empted 160 acres, which he continued to farm until 1859, when he removed to Emporia, and engaged in the boot and shoe, leather and findings business, renting his farm. He built a fine stone residence in Emporia, and resided there until August, 1862, when he enlisted as a private in Company C, Eleventh Kansas Regiment. He served three years, participating in all the battles and skirmishes in which the regiment took part. While in the army he traded his farm for 160 acres in Emporia Township. When mustered out of service, in August, 1865, he went upon this farm which he has since improved by the erection of a handsome and substantial frame dwelling large barn and other buildings. He raises wheat, oats, corn and other grain, but makes a specialty of growing vegetables for the city market. Mr. W. is a member of the Christian Church. He married, June 23, 1850, Miss Marietta Louallen, of Morgan County, Ind., who died in 1880, leaving seven children, five boys and two girls. Married Mrs. Christina Chapman, of Emporia, October 23, 1880.

CAMBRIDGE G. WILLETT, photographer, was born in Fulton County, Pa., May 2, 1848. Resided in Pennsylvania until he came to Kansas in 1866. Located at Lawrence, where he was engaged two years in the hotel business, and in other enterprises until 1872, when he began business as a photographer at Garnett. After a residence of two years at that place he returned to Lawrence, where he continued the same business until the fall of 1881, when he removed to Emporia. He has a fine suite of rooms, in a central location, and does a prosperous business and good work. He is a member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Emporia, and a member of the I. O. O. F. Married Miss Kate E. Scouten, a daughter of Richard Scouten, of Douglas County, April 21, 1870, by which marriage he has one child, Gertrude Louisa, born May 4, 1874.

DAVID WILLIAMS, farmer, Section 28, Township 19, Range 11, P. O. Emporia, was born in North Wales December 7, 1832. He came to the United States in 1850, locating in Marquette County, Wis., where he remained, engaged in farming, until he came to Kansas, in August, 1857. He took a claim of 160 acres, situated south of the Cottonwood River, in Emporia Township, which he has ever since owned. He has made valuable improvements upon this place, including a fine large dwelling, barn, sheds, etc., and an orchard of 130 trees. He raises cattle and hogs, feeding all his crops to his own stock. Mr. Williams is a member of the Welsh Presbyterian Church. He married Miss Elizabeth Roberts, of Emporia, January 20, 1875, by whom he has four children—Margaret A., William J., Mary E. and Catharine.

CARL A. WOLF, undertaker, was born in Norway, January 12, 1854. He came to the United States in 1868, and resided in Chicago until the spring of 1874, when he came to Kansas. He located at Emporia and entered the employ of Arnold & Co., furniture manufacturers. In the spring of 1882, he started in the undertaking business on Sixth avenue, the only exclusively undertaking establishment in the city. He is Captain of the Emporia Rifles, Company E, Second Regiment Kansas Militia. He is a member of Emporia Lodge, No. 2, A. O. U. W., and Legion, No. 2, S. K. He married Miss Carrie E. Estey, of Emporia, December 28, 1878, and by this marriage has one child—Florence L.

AMERICUS.

The beautiful village bearing the given name of that celebrated explorer, Americus Vespucius, is handsomely located on gentle undulating prairie, nine miles northwest of Emporia, on the line of the Missouri Pacific Railway, and contains a population of 500 souls.

EARLY AND GENERAL HISTORY.

In the fall of 1857, a company known as the Americus Town Company, was formed for the purpose of locating a town, destined to be the future county-seat. The company was composed of the following members, none of whom are living in Americus to-day: T. C. Hill, G. H. Rees, E. Yeakley, J. Moser, E. Columbia, William Grimsley, E. M. Sewell, B. Wright, N. B. Swister, A. I. Baker, J. W. Voak, J. Voak, W. Thompson, D. Swim, F. Barrett and E. Goddard. The first officers were: A. I. Baker, Pres.; T. C. Hill, Treas.; D. Swim, Sec'y. A town site of 640 acres was laid off, and improvements made. The first building was a one-story structure, built of native lumber by E. Yeakley, and was occupied as a dwelling. The next building was erected by W. Thompson, and is a two story frame. It was opened as the "Americus" House, July 4, 1858, with a grand (?) ball. The building is still standing and is now known as the Sulton House. About the time the hotel was completed, G. H. Page built a small building near the site of the present depot and opened a store. In the summer of 1858, a log building, built by subscription, was completed and in it was held the first school. In 1859, a church building was built by popular subscription and used by all denominations until other edifices were built.

In 1858, the place by a vote of the people was made the county-seat of Breckinridge County, and held it until late in 1860.

The first number of the Americus Sentinel, an Independent paper, was issued August 30, 1859, by T. C. Hill, who subsequently transferred it to S. L. Kenyon. After an existence of one year it suspended.

In the fall of 1858, the postoffice was established, E. Yeakley being appointed Postmaster. He was succeeded by Enoch Hoag. Under Hoag's administration, the name of the office was changed to Sheridan. Hoag held the office three or four years, and was succeeded by John McDill, who caused the name of the office to be changed back to its original appellation. McDill was succeeded in the order mentioned by W. W. Kitts, S. Bruner, John Gibson, D. A. Stahl, J. W. Loy, T. A. Wright. Mr. Wright was succeeded in 1874, by the present incumbent, Mrs. T. C. Hill. During the same year it was made a money order office.

The log building built in the summer of 1858, and used for school purposes, was used in that capacity until School District No. 2, was organized in 1859, when a frame structure was built. That building was used until the present one was erected in 1869—a handsome two-story stone structure, costing $6,000.

The first saw-mill was built in the fall of 1859, by J. Kuhns. Steam power was used, and the mill was run by Kuhns until 1861, when he sold it to McCall & Bruner. Early in 1860 T. C. Hill built a saw-mill and "corn mill," near the rival structure. In August of the same year it was destroyed by fire. Hill then purchased the other mill of McCall & Bruner, and run it until the spring of 1864, when he sold his interest to J. McDill. McDill ran it until 1867, when he sold it to its present owner, N. Wise. The mill has a capacity of 3,000 feet per day.

Americus is noted throughout the county as the head of the manufacture of cheese. The first factory for the manufacture of this commodity was built in 1865, by P. B. Campbell. He continued its manufacture seven years. In 1872, F. D. Loy, H. Carpenter, and N. Noll erected a factory, and operated it about a year, when it was destroyed by fire. A new factory was built on the site of the burned building, by T. Anderson, and operated until 1882. In 1876 the Lesh Bros. commenced the manufacture of cheese on scientific principles, and as a result, take first premium wherever a display is made.

During that memorable year, 1860, and the years of anxiety that followed during the war, the town commenced that retrogressive movement, fatal to the prosperity of every community. But in 1869, when the projected railroad was commenced and completed through the place in the spring of 1870, the town began to grow and prosper, until it is now only second in business and population in the county.

CHURCHES AND SOCIETIES.

United Presbyterian Church.—Was organized in 1858, by Rev. J. N. Smith, with about twelve members. The first regular pastor was Rev. G. W. Torrence, who held services in the Americus House. Mr. Torrence remained in charge two years. Until 1865, the church had no regular pastor. Their first church edifice was a frame, 24x36 feet built in 1859, and used by all denominations. In 1871, a handsome brick edifice, 40x60 feet, was erected at a cost of $6,000. In June, 1881, it was destroyed by a cyclone. A new building was erected, 40x60 feet, at a cost of $3,500. In 1865, Rev. D. T. McAuley took charge as pastor and remained two years. The church was again supplied until December 15, 1869, when Rev. J. A. Collins, the present pastor, took charge. Present membership, 103.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—The Americus Circuit was organized early as 1856, but no class was organized until a few years later. The following pastors have had charge of the circuit, which included the organization at Americus: 1858, W. L. Loyd; 1859, C. Madows; 1860, J. McAnulty; 1861, G. B. Woodard; 1862, J. McAnulty; 1863, J. R. West; 1864, J. Earnhart and Jas. Hague; 1865, F. D. Loy; 1866, F. D. Loy and R. Freeman; 1867-8, Wm. M. Robertson; 1869-70, J. McAnulty; 1871-2, S. A. Greene; (1873-5, church supplied); 1876-9, H. W. Chaffen; 1880, C. W. Gullett; 1881-2, J. A. Barker, present pastor. In 1871, the present church edifice was built. It is a neat frame structure, 32x60 feet, and cost about $4,000. Present membership, about 90.

In this circuit is also the Bethel Methodist Episcopal Church, located five miles southwest of Americus. The organization has a $2,500 edifice erected in 1882, and a membership about 30.

The Allen Creek Methodist Episcopal Church.—Located six miles northeast of Americus, has a $1,200 edifice erected in 1881, and a membership of about 35.

Evangelical Church.—Was organized in the spring of 1872, by the Rev. H. Mattel, with twelve members. Mr. Mattel was succeeded by Rev. S. Wm. Longelbach, and John Emmel, who remained one year; John E. Keplinger, two years; E. Wenger, two years; John Emmel, one year; Rev. C F. Erffmeyer, the present pastor. The present church edifice was built in the spring of 1873, at a cost of $600. Present membership, 75.

Society of Friends.—A meeting was organized four miles west of Americus, in 1861. The first meetings were held at the house of T. H. Stanley, and are now held in the Fruitland schoolhouse. Present membership includes about seventeen families.

Americus Lodge, No. 109, A. F. & A. M.—Was reorganized under a charter dated October 21, 1875, with eleven charter members. Its first officers were: John L. Butler, W. M.; John W. Swartz, J. W.; A. G. Huffman, S. W.; Th. H. White, treasurer; Th. Huffman, secretary. Present officers: J. L. Butler, W. M.; W. H. Anderson, S. W.; J. S. Holden, J.W.; M. J. Williams, treasurer; S. M. Morgan, secretary. Regular meetings are Saturday evenings, on or before full moon, at Masonic Hall. Present membership, twenty-seven.

This lodge was first chartered in 1866, and known as Americus Lodge, No. 62. In the fall of 1869 the charter was revoked. At its reorganization in 1875 it was known as Obediance Lodge, No. 109, but was soon after changed to its present appellation.

Americus Lodge, No. 28, A. O. U. W.—Was organized under a charter December 17, 1879, with twenty members. Its first officers were: J. W. Loy, P. M. W.; D. T. Tressler, M. W.; George L. Beard, F.; C. Wise, O.; George Miller, Rec'd; John Band, Fin.; M. Tooney, G.; R. H. Meher, I. W.; N. Wise, O. W. Its present officers are: J. C. Brown, P. M. W.; John Bond, M. W.; A. Tressler, F.; J. L. B. Snyder, O.; D. M. Husted, Rec'd; T. A. Wright, Fin.; M. Tooney, Rec.; C. Kerr, G.; J. W. Lesh, I. W.; M. McCleary, O. W. Regular meetings are held on the first and third Friday evenings of each month, at Tressler's Hall. Present number of members, forty-five.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JAMES A. ANDERSON and JOHN C. ANDERSON, farmers, Section 34, Township 17 Range 10, P. O. Americus, were born in Jones County, Iowa, and while they were yet infants their parents came to Kansas, locating in Lyon County, where they were raised upon the farm upon which they now reside, situated about two miles northwest of Americus. They purchased a half interest in the old home farm in the spring of 1879 and in the fall of the same year they bought a half interest in eighty acres, situated on the Neosho River about five miles northwest of the home farm. They have a fine dwelling, barn and other farm buildings, and though young men are progressive and successful farmers, and have surrounded their home with evidences of culture and refinement.

THOMAS ANDERSON, farmer, Section 34, Township 17, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Berwickshire, Scotland, November 30, 1839, and nine years later came to the United States with his parents, who first located at Cincinnati, Ohio, but after a residence of one year removed to Galena, Ill. Here they resided three years, then removed to Jones County, Iowa, where they remained until the spring of 1859, when they came to Kansas, locating near Americus, in Breckinridge (now Lyon) County. The subject of this sketch engaged in farming, which he continued until February, 1864, when he enlisted as a private in Company E, Eleventh Regiment Kansas Cavalry. He participated in all the engagements in which his company took part from that time until his discharge, September 1, 1865. He then returned to Americus and engaged in farming, upon eighty acres of trust land situated about two miles northwest of town, which he had purchased just before he entered the service. This farm he improved by the erection of a dwelling, barn and other farm buildings, and has operated it continually since. He has since purchased twenty acres of timber land situated on the Neosho River and 160 acres of land northwest of the home farm. About 120 acres of these land are under cultivation, the remainder being used for grazing and hay. His principal crop is corn. He also raises cattle and hogs, and is engaged in dairy business. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church. Has held the office of Township Clerk one term, and has been a member of the School Board continuously for over sixteen years. He married Miss Millie A. McCaw, of Americus, August 21, 1862, by which marriage he has had ten children, of whom Emma M. A., Loucella M., Grant W., Ella M., Grace E., George D., William A., Stella L. and Henry C. are living.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON, real estate dealer, was born in Scotland, October 11, 1846, and four years later came to the United States with his parents who located in Jones County, Iowa. In the fall of 1859, his father came to Kansas, bought a farm of 160 acres in Americus Township, two miles northwest of the town. Wm. H. remained upon this farm until August, 1862, when he enlisted as a private in Company E, Eleventh Kansas Regiment. He participated in all the battles and skirmishes in which his company was engaged and was mustered out at Fort Riley, August 7, 1865. He returned to Americus and bought a farm of eighty acres, adjoining that of his father, which he worked for about two years. In 1867, he sold the farm and removed to Neodesha, Wilson County, where he was for eight years engaged in the hardware business under the firm name of W. H. Anderson & Bro. He sold his interest in this business, and in 1878, in connection with others, organized the "Union Loan and Trust Company of Kansas," with offices at Fredonia and Americus. The Americus office has always been under the immediate management of Mr. Anderson. In July, 1880, he formed a partnership with John L. Butler, under the firm name of Anderson & Butler, dealing in real estate, insurance, loans and collections. He married Miss Lovonia Brown, of Americus, September 1, 1870, and has by this marriage had four children, of whom John A., George D. and William F. are living. He is a member of Americus Lodge No. 9, A., F. & A. M., member of Neodesha Lodge No. 72, I. O. O. F., also of Americus Lodge No. 28, A. O. U. W.

MICHAEL ARNSBERGER, farmer, Section 12, Township 17, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Wayne County, Ohio, February 9, 1836. When sixteen years old he removed to Williams County, Ohio, where he continued to reside until August 15, 1861, when he enlisted as a private in Company D, Thirty-eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteers, which was assigned to the army of the Cumberland. He participated in all the engagements in which his company took part, including Stone River, Mission Ridge, the Siege of Atlanta, Jonesboro and others. He was promoted to First Sergeant of his company. He was with Sherman in the great March to the Sea, and followed that General through the Carolinas, participating in several engagements. He was in the great review in Washington, in June, 1865, and in the following month was mustered out at Louisville, Ky. He then returned to Williams County, and engaged in farming and carpentering, in which he continued until he came to Kansas in the spring of 1877. He located on Allen Creek in Americus Township, Lyon County, taking 160 acres of trust land. He has improved his farm by the erection of dwelling house, barn, corn cribs and other farm buildings. Corn is his principal crop. He raises some cattle and hogs. He has an orchard of 100 apple trees, 100 cherry trees, 60 peach trees, and smaller fruits. He married Miss Mary A. Colgan, of Williams County, Ohio, November 18, 1866. They have no children.

REV. JOEL A. BARKER, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was born at Mound City, Ill., April 16, 1852. When he was five years old his parents removed to Moultrie County, Ill, and in the common schools of that county he received his primary education. He came to Kansas with his parents in 1867, locating in Wilson County. Two years later he returned to Illinois, and attended the Shelbyville Seminary two terms. He was licensed to preach in 1873, and in the spring of 1874, was assigned to the Belle Grove Circuit, in Greenwood County, which charge he held two years. He next went to the Strong Circuit, in Coffey County, for one year. He then took charge of the Mineral Point Circuit, in Anderson County, remaining two years. His next appointment was to the Hartford Circuit, in Lyon County, which he held two years, and in March, 1881, he was assigned to the Americus Circuit, in Lyon County, where he is at present located. His labors in all these circuits have been blessed with good results, several revivals having been experienced under his ministry. He married Miss Alice R. Smith, of Burlington, Kan., November 5, 1876, by which marriage he has had three children, of whom Henry C. and Altona M. are living.

ANDREW H. BRICKLEY, farmer, Section 24, Township 18, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Perry County, Pa., September 28, 1816. He remained in his native county until twenty years of age, receiving there a common school education. In the spring of 1837 he removed to Lockport, N. Y., and followed the trade of a carpenter and joiner. He soon after engaged in business for himself, which he continued at Lockport until 1862, when he removed to Buffalo, N. Y., and was for the next nine years engaged in the manufacture of agricultural implements. He remained in Buffalo about sixteen years, then spent some years in travel and prospecting, and in the spring of 1881 came to Kansas. He located in Americus Township, Lyon County, and, in connection with his nephew, John P. Brickley, purchased a finely improved farm of 159 acres, situated on the Neosha River, three miles southeast of town. He raises corn and oats principally. Has an orchard of 120 apple trees, besides many peach and cherry trees and smaller fruits. He is quite extensively engaged in raising cattle and hogs. Mr. B. is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He married Miss Della M. Spooner, of Cooperstown, N. Y., February 9, 1845, by whom he had one child, now deceased. His wife, Della M., died in 1852.

JOHN P. BRICKLEY, mentioned above, was born in Perry County, Pa., June [illegible] 1839. He remained in his native county until he came to Kansas, in the fall of 1881, with the exception of one year spent in Ohio, and about two years in the army at the time of the late Rebellion. Upon him devolves principally the active management of the farm and stock raising interests in which he is interested with his uncle. He married Miss Mary E. Hench, of Perry County, November 9, 1871, by which marriage he has had three children, of whom Henry M. and Roy are living.

JAMES C. BROWN, merchant and farmer, was born in Randolph County, Ill., December 29, 1844. He received a common school education, and was engaged in farming in his native county, until the spring of 1865, when he came to Kansas. Located in Lyon County, and bought a farm of ninety-three acres, on the Neosha River, about three miles northwest of Americus. In the spring of 1881 he bought another farm of eighty acres, about two miles northwest of Americus. He continued farming and stock raising until the spring of 1882, when he removed to Americus and engaged in mercantile business. He has a store on the Main street, and carries a stock of groceries, crockery, boots and shoes and notions. He continues to operate one of his farms, and rents the other. His principal crop is wheat. He is a member of Americus Lodge No. 28, A. O. U. W. He married Miss Jane Anderson, of Americus, February 18, 1868, by whom he has had five children, of whom Margaret E., Annie M. and Grace E. are living.

JOHN L. BUTLER was born in Warren County, Ill., March 12, 1843. He received a common school education in Illinois, where he resided, with the exception of three years spent in Bowling Green, Ky., until he came to Kansas, in July, 1859, with his father, who located in Lyon County, and entered a claim of 160 acres on the Kaw reservation, on Allen Creek, three miles from Americus. John L. remained with his father until September, 1863, when he enlisted as a private in Company E. Eleventh Regiment Kansas Cavalry. He participated in all the engagements in which his command took part, from that time until he was mustered out in September, 1865. He then returned to Americus and engaged in stock raising and dealing, which business he continued until 1871, when he purchased a farm of 160 acres, situated on the Neosho River, six miles northwest of Americus. He then devoted his attention to farming beside stock raising and dealing. In 1878 he sold his farm and purchased another of 120 acres, on Cahola Creek, in Lyon County. In March, 1879, he discontinued farming and stock operations, and formed a partnership with Mr. W. H. Anderson, under the firm name of Anderson & Butler, who do a general real estate, insurance and loan business, at Americus. Mr. Butler was Township Trustee in 1878-79-80, and a Justice of the Peace in 1880-81-82. He was elected to the office of County Commissioner in the fall of 1882, for a term of three years. He is a member of Americus Lodge, No. 109, A., F. & A. M., and master of the Lodge; is a member of Americus Lodge, No. 28, A. O. U. W. He married Miss Mary E. Swim, of Americus, November 1, 1870, by which marriage he has four children—George S., Ethel Mabel and John W.

REV. JOSEPH A. COLLINS, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church, was born at Xenia, Ohio, April 9, 1829. He was educated at Xenia Academy and at Franklin College, located at New Athens, Ohio, from which he graduated in 1852. His theological studies were made at the Xenia United Presbyterian Theological Seminary in 1856. He was licensed to preach in June, 1856, and settled in Crawford County, Pa., where he preached until 1863. In 1865 he became connected with the Presbyterian Witness, published at Cincinnati, Ohio, with which he remained three years. He came to Kansas in the summer of 1868, and was for a time engaged in mission work among the colored people at Leavenworth. In the spring of 1869 he removed to Americus and assumed the pastorate of the United Presbyterian Church, and for two years he also had charge of the United Presbyterian Church at Emporia. At the time he took charge of the church at Americus it was in a state of division approaching dissolution. He united the factions and awakened an interest in the church, and in 1871 a commodious church edifice was erected. This was destroyed by a fierce gale of wind in 1881 and rebuilt the same year. The church membership has increased under his pastorate from twenty-seven to 105. Since the organization of the Neosho Presbytery, in 1874, he has held the position of clerk and superintendent of missions, the latter being the most onerous in the Presbytery taking him to most of the fields of western Kansas. He is called upon to attend many of the weddings and funerals in the neighborhood of the town, outside of his congregation. He married Miss Anna E. Stewart, of Youngstown, Ohio, September 30, 1875, by which marriage he has four children, Bessie E., Archie S., Eusebius H., and Anna M.

ALBERT G. EDMISTON, farmer, P. O. Americus, was born in Lincoln County, Tenn., April 5, 1818, and resided there until fourteen years of age, when he removed with his parents to Randolph County, Ill., where his father engaged in farming. He remained in Illinois until his removal to Kansas, in the fall of 1865, when he located in Lyon County, and bought an improved farm of 280 acres on the Neosho River, about three and one-half miles northwest of Americus, which he still owns. He also bought that year a one-quarter section of land between Americus and Emporia, which he has since sold. He owns at the present time about 1,000 acres of land in Lyon County, a large portion of which he rents. He also has some town property in Americus. His principal crop is corn. He raises many hogs and some cattle and horses. He was for many years Township Treasurer. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Americus. Married Miss Narcissa G. Taylor, of Randolph County, Ill., March 23, 1843, by which marriage he has four children, William H., Eli J., Robert H., and Mary J., (married to Winfield S. McCauley, of Americus.

JOHN D. GIBSON, dry goods, etc., was born at Youngstown, Ohio, December 29, 1835. Fifteen years later he removed with his parents to Lee County, Iowa, where he resided until the spring of 1858, when he came to Kansas. In the fall of that year he located in Americus, then the county seat of Breckinridge County, and established a general merchandising business, which he continued until 1862, disposing of the same while he was in the army. In September, 1861, he enlisted in an independent cavalry company, which was for a time attached to the Eighth Regiment Kansas Infantry as Company H, and later was designated as Company B, Ninth Kansas Cavalry Regiment. Was with the company during its full term of service, participating in all the engagements in which it took part. Was mustered out in 1865, and returned to Americus and resumed business, which he has since operated. Carries a general stock of dry goods, clothing, boots, shoes, etc. Has been Township Clerk several years, and several years a member of the Board of Education. Was Postmaster at Americus six years. Is a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Americus. Married Miss Lydia S. Heasley, of Americus, April 25, 1861, and they have had three children, of whom, Charles S., is living.

JOSEPH S. GIBSON, hardware, etc., was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, March 1, 1843. When seven years old removed with his parents to Lee County, Iowa, where they remained one year, then removed to Clark County, Mo. Remained there five years, then returned to Iowa. Joseph S. resided in Iowa until 1861 September, 1858, when he came to Kansas, and located in Americus, where he resided until September, 1861, when he enlisted in an independent cavalry company, which was attached to the Eighth Regiment Kansas Infantry as Company H. In April, 1862, his company was transferred to the Ninth Regiment Kansas Cavalry, and designated as Company B. Mr. G. was with the company in all the engagements in which it took part, and remained in the service until his muster out, in 1865. He then returned to Americus, and engaged in farming for about three years. In the fall of 1869, he engaged in mercantile business, establishing a hardware store, the only one in the village. He continues to operate this business, and also deals in agricultural implements, wagons and carriages. In 1876, he bought a hardware store at Council Grove, which he now operates with a resident partner, the style of the firm being Gibson & Davidson. In May, 1881, he started a hardware store at Dunlap, in connection with George H. Loy, the firm being Gibson & Loy. Mr. Gibson is a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Americus. He has held the office of Township Trustee, Township Clerk and member of the School Board. Married Miss Lydia A. Swin, of Americus, November 5, 1865, and they have had four children, of whom Alice, George F., and Carl D., are living.

WILLIAM GRIMSLEY, farmer, Section 7, Township 17, Range 11, P. O. Americus, was born January 25, 1845, in Keokuk County, Iowa, where he resided until the spring of 1856, when he came to Kansas with his father, William Grimsley, Sr., who located on Allen Creek, in Americus Township. He continued to reside with his father until November, 1863, when he enlisted as a private in Company E, Eleventh Regiment Kansas Cavalry. He participated in all the engagements in which his company took part from that time until February, 1865, when he joined Company F, and was with that company in several engagements with Indians, in Montana Territory. He returned to his own company about the 1st of September, 1865, and was mustered out at Fort Riley. He then returned home, and was for several months engaged in freighting, in Kansas and Missouri. He was afterwards engaged in farming, threshing and various pursuits until his marriage. In December, 1872, he bought a farm of 117 acres, situated on Allen Creek, about seven miles northeast of Americus, which he has improved by the erection of a dwelling house, good barn and other farm buildings. He has planted an orchard of 200 apple trees, sixty peach trees, and smaller fruits. His principal crop is corn. He married Miss Alice C. Laughlin, of Americus Township, January 11, 1871, by which marriage he has had six children, of whom Wiley L., Mark W., Roy and Elsie E. are living.

LEWIS HAVER, farmer, Section 24, Township 18, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Greene County, Pa., December 7, 1834. His early life was passed in Pennsylvania. Removed to Henry County, Iowa in 1856, where he resided about two years. In the spring of 1859, he came to Kansas, locating in Americus Township, on the Kaw Reservation, about one mile north of the village. Took a claim of 140 acres, which he improved and resided upon until 1862, when he sold it and bought 160 acres on the Neosho River, three miles south of the village. In 1863, he enlisted in Company M, Eleventh Regiment Kansas Cavalry, and served with the Regiment until it was ordered to the frontier. Being sick at that time, he was left at Fort Riley, and was mustered out at Fort Leavenworth in July, 1865. Returned to his farm, and in the fall of 1865, he purchased an additional 160 acres adjoining. He has made extensive improvements upon his property, including a fine farm dwelling, large barns, cribs, etc. Has an orchard of about 150 apple trees, fifty peach trees, and many of smaller fruit. In 1880, he became interested with his brother, L. B. Haver, in stock raising in the Indian Territory. They have about 1,000 head of cattle. Mr. Haver was a Constable for several years, after the close of the war, and has been a member of the School Board and Treasurer of the same several years. Married Miss Maria D. Smith, of Lyon County, October 29, 1865, by whom he had one child—George, who died February 28, 1870. She died June 23, 1870, and he married Miss Lizzie Shearer, of Perry County, Pa., November 14, 1872, by which marriage he has four children—William E., Ella M., John A. and Frank A.

FRANK E. HAWKINS, farmer, Section 3, Township 18, P. O. Americus, was born in Ashland County, Ohio, February 16, 1845. He resided in his native State until May, 1862, when he enlisted in Company C, One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Regiment Ohio Volunteers. Was stationed in and about Washington, D. C., the most of the time of his service, and participated in some skirmishes at the time of the rebel Gen. Early's raid. He was mustered out in September, 1864, and returned to Ohio, and engaged in mercantile business. Came to Kansas in October, 1870, locating in Lyon County. Bought a farm of eighty acres, one mile west of Americus, which he has greatly improved, and has since added by purchase an additional eighty acres adjoining the first purchase. He also owns a block of sixteen lots in the town of Americus, where he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Married Miss Lestina A. Rusco, of Huron County, Ohio, March 3, 1867. They have one child—Ora, born October 19, 1874.

JOSEPH C. HOLDERNESS, farmer, Section 12, Township 17, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born April 15, 1836, at Bedford, Canada, and twelve years later came to the United States with his parents. They settled in De Kalb County, Ill., where the subject of this sketch remained until he came to Kansas. He was engaged in farming, except the last five years of his residence there, when he was engaged in carriage and wagon manufacturing, and the sale of agricultural implements. In the summer of 1877 he removed to and located in Americus, bringing good recommends from the most influential men of De-Kalb County, Ill., and engaged in the sale of agricultural implements and barbed wire, in which business he continued three years. He purchased in 1877 a claim of 160 acres of trust land, situated about six miles north of Americus, which he commenced at once to cultivate. He has since purchased 320 acres adjoining and now operates the whole; has about 160 acres under cultivation. His principal crops are corn and oats. He is quite extensively engaged in sheep raising, having about 500 fine Merino sheep. He has improved his farm by the erection of dwelling, barn, sheds and other farm buildings. Mr. Holderness is a Justice of the Peace for Americus Township. He is a member of Emporia Chapter, No. 12, A., F. & A. M., and of Americus Lodge, No. 109, A., F. & A. M. He is also a member of the I. O. O. F. He married Miss Priscilla Cheney, of DeKalb, Ill., April, 1859, by which marriage he has had eight children, Elisha J., Georgiana, Henry N., Nellie M., Clara B., Claudius C., Lulu and Maude, all now living.

LAFAYETTE JAMES, farmer and stock dealer, Americus, was born in Edgar County, Ill., May 31, 1834; resided in Illinois until fifteen years old, then spent several years in travel through the Western States, locating in Kansas in the spring of 1857. He at that time pre-empted 160 acres of land situated on the Neosho River, one mile south of Americus, which he still owns. He helped to lay out the town of Americus, and was interested in the town lots. In the summer of 1858, in connection with Wesley Thompson, he built the first hotel in Americus, which was also the first house to be completed on the town site. In the fall of 1860 he returned to Illinois to get married, but the Rebellion, which soon after began, prevented his return to Kansas at that time as he had expected to do. In July, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Company A, Seventh Regiment, Illinois Cavalry, an independent company, the members of which furnished their own horses; was assigned to the command of General Grierson, and was engaged in the battle of Corinth, and in all of the raids and scouts of this famous raiding brigade, which was composed of the Second Iowa and the Second and Seventh Illinois Regiments of Cavalry. Mr. James was mustered out of service in June, 1865, and in the fall of that year returned to Kansas, and engaged in farming and stock raising, in which he was extensively engaged until 1881, since which time he has rented his farm on shares, and devoted his attention exclusively to stock dealing. Mr. James is an active, prominent and popular citizen of the town, and though he wields some influence in politics, he has never sought or accepted office. He is a member of A., F. & A. M. He married Miss Margaret Hartley, of Paris, Ill., March 21, 1861, by whom he has had one son, now deceased.

JAMES D. JAQUITH, farmer, Section 10, P. O. Americus, was born at Bellows Falls, Vt., October 30, 1821. When he was about two years of age his parents moved to Cheshire County, N. H., and lived upon a farm until 1837, when he removed to Edgar County, Ill., where the subject of this sketch remained until 1856, with the exception of three years spent in Detroit, Mich., reading law. He was admitted to the bar by the District Court of Wayne County, Mich., in 1849, and the same year commenced practicing at Paris, Edgar Co., Ill. In 1856 he removed to Minnesota and engaged in the practice of his profession at Plainview, Wabash County. Was elected County Attorney and served in that office three years. He remained here until 1865, when he came to Kansas. He located in Lyon County and bought a farm of 120 acres on the Neosho River, one and a half miles southwest of Americus, which he has since improved and continues to operate. His principal crop is corn. He raises some cattle and hogs. Was elected by the Republican party and served two terms in the Legislature. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Americus. Married Miss Emily Gordon, of Paris, Ill., in 1849, by whom he had four children, of whom Ella M. and Gertie M. are living. Emily died in 1858, and on April 7, 1860, he married Miss Elizabeth S. Kepner, of Plainview, Minn, by whom he has four children—Arthur K., Helen A., James H., and Maggie S.

OSCAR LAMBERT, farmer, Section 11, P. O. Americus, was born in Warren County, Ohio, May 19, 1828. His early life was spent upon a farm in his native county, upon which his father was born and raised. His grandfather came from Pennsylvania and settled in Ohio before a house stood on the present site of the city of Cincinnati, which was then occupied by a fort then called Fort Washington. In 1850 the subject of this sketch married and removed to Clay County, Ind., and engaged in farming. He remained in Clay County nineteen years. Not liking the character of the people who were his neighbors, he removed to Kansas in January, 1870, and was induced to locate in Lyon County by the statement made to him that there was not a liquor saloon in the county. He bought a farm of 185 acres on the Neosho River, one mile southwest of Americus, upon which he has since put $4,000 worth of improvements, including a fine brick dwelling. He has since given seventy acres of this farm to a daughter, and bought two other farms on Allen Creek, in Lyon County, which he has deeded to his other daughters. He has added to his original purchase forty acres of pasture land. He now possesses a very fine, highly cultivated farm, and is one of the most successful and progressive farmers in the county. He has been a member of the board of education three years, and was elected in the fall of 1882 for another term of three years. He married Miss Sarah A. Fouch, of Warren County, Ohio, July 4, 1850, by which marriage he has had four children, of whom Lucy, Mary E. and Viola are living.

JOHN A. LAUGHLIN, farmer, Section 5, Township 18, Range 11, P. O. Americus, was born in Newcastle, Lawrence Co., Pa., February 27, 1828. He was brought up on a farm, and when sixteen years of age learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed in his native town until the summer of 1869, when he came to Kansas. He located on Allen Creek, in Americus Township, Lyon County, upon a farm of 160 acres, which he had purchased three years previous. He has improved this farm by the erection of a fine dwelling, large barn, corn cribs, and other farm buildings. He has since purchased another improved farm of eighty acres, one and a half miles north of the home farm, which he rents. His farm is mostly bottom land, and is well cultivated, and is one of the most productive in the township. His principal crop is corn. He raises cattle and hogs quite extensively. Mr. Laughlin is a member of the I. O. O. F. He has been a member of the Township School Board five years. He married Miss Emeline Fields of Little Beaver, Pa., March 18, 1851, by which marriage he has had five children of whom Alice C., married to William Grimsley, of Americus; Robert S., Albert J. and David F. are living.

ELIAS B. LESH, merchant, was born in Perry County, Pa., January 9, 1840. He received an academic education and when eighteen years of age engaged in teaching. In the spring of 1862 he enlisted as a Corporal in Company E, Nineteenth Regiment Pennsylvania Cavalry, known as the Curtin Horse Guards, called into service to resist the raid into Pennsylvania by the Rebel Army of Northern Virginia under Gens. Lee and Early. He participated in several skirmishes with the enemy, but was engaged in no heavy fighting. Remained in service six months, then returned to his home and resumed teaching, in which he continued with exception of two years, when he was engaged in mercantile business until he came to Kansas in the spring of 1870. He then located in Americus and taught in the schools of Lyon and Chase counties for about six years. In the spring of 1877, in connection with his brother, Jacob W., he established a general store at Americus, under the firm name of Lesh Bros. They carry a stock of groceries, boots, shoes and notions. Mr. Lesh has been Township Treasurer two years and a member of the Board of Education three years. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Americus and a member of Americus Lodge, No. 28, A. O. U. W. He married Miss Mary E. Moreland, of Perry County, Pa., January, 1868, by whom he has two children—David K. and Charles M.

WILLIAM P. LEWIS, farmer, Section 29, Township 17, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Blount County, Tenn., November 2, 1833. He was raised on a farm in his native county, where he resided until he came to Kansas in the fall of 1860. After spending the ensuing winter at Leavenworth, he located in Lyon County, then Breckinridge, and bought forty acres of unimproved land, situated on the Neosho River, five miles northwest of Americus. He has since purchased forty acres of reserve land and forty acres of trust land adjoining the original purchase. He has improved his farm by the erection of a dwelling, barn and other farm buildings. Has an orchard of 180 apple trees, 100 peach trees, and smaller fruits. His principal crop is corn. He raises some cattle and hogs. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis are members of the Society of Friends. He married Miss Nancy Beals, of Greene County, Tenn., December 22, 1852, by whom he had eight children, of whom Henry, Isaac, Daniel B., Samuel R. and Sarah A., are living. Nancy died April 2, 1872, and he married Mrs. Eliza Jane Hayden, of Baltimore, Maryland, December 11, 1872, by which marriage he has had two children, of whom Emma T. is living.

REV. FREDERICK D. LOY, pastor Protestant Methodist Church, was born in Perry County, Pa., January 11, 1828. He was educated in Pennsylvania, and was ordained to preach in the Methodist Protestant Church before he was twenty-one years old. In 1847, he removed to La Salle County, Ill., and his first regular work in the ministry was here, upon a circuit extending over 400 miles of territory. In 1853, he removed to LaGrange County, Ind., and engaged in mercantile business and farming. Removed to Minnesota in 1856, and took a claim of 160 acres in Olmstead County, which he improved and resided upon until 1858, when he exchanged it for a farm of 160 acres in Winona County. Remained in Winona County, until 1864, when he disposed of his Minnesota property and came to Kansas, and located in Americus Township, where he bought a farm of 160 acres, which he improved and brought to a high state of cultivation. In 1870, sold 100 acres of this farm, and in the fall of that year he was elected president of the Kansas Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church. Was re-elected in the fall of 1872. He continued to preach until 1880, when he was disabled by a disease of the throat from active and regular work. He is now interested in mining operations in Colorado, but resides at Americus most of the year. Mr. Loy was Chaplain of the Eleventh Kansas Regiment of Militia during the war, and was with the regiment when called into service during the Price raid. Married Miss Susan Kepner, of La Salle County, Ill., February 7, 1855, by which marriage he has two children—Susie Amanda and Charles M.

JOHN W. LOY, farmer, P. O. Americus, was born in Perry County, Pa., February 26, 1830. In 1847 he removed to La Salle County, Ill., where he resided until 1852, when he went to California by the Overland route, being six months on the journey. He engaged in mining there and in connection with his brother, Samuel A., owned a ranch in Yuba County; remained in California about three years, when he returned via the Panama route and New York. He next engaged in general merchandising with his brother, Frederick D., at Van Buren, Ind. They sold out this business in 1856 and went to Minnesota with a drove of cattle and horses. John W. settled in Winona Co., Minn., where he bought two farms of 160 acres each. In 1858 he sold one of these farms and bought another of 160 acres in Olmstead County, upon which he located and remained two years. In 1860 he sold out his Minnesota farms and came to Kansas, locating in Americus, in Lyon County, and in the spring of 1861 he bought the John McLellan farm of 480 acres, which he resided upon and improved until June, 1870, when he sold it. In the same year he bought a farm of eighty acres adjoining the town site of Americus, upon which he removed and has since resided; has a fine residence and commodious barn and other farm buildings, upon this place. In the same year he bought a fine farm of 100 acres, for which he paid $50 per acre, and has since purchased nearly the remainder of the quarter section. He also has forty acres of timber and hay land, situated on the Neosho River. He was enrolled in the Eleventh Regiment, Kansas Militia, as First Lieutenant during the War of the Rebellion, and was called out and did efficient service at the time of the Price raid and several Indian raids and alarms. Was a member of the State Legislatures of 1863, 1875, 1876 and 1878. Is an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Americus, and has been Superintendent of its Sabbath School for many years. Is a member of the order of A., F. & A. M., also a member of Americus Lodge, No 28, A. O. U. W. Has held the office of Township Trustee and member of the School Board many years. Was appointed Regent of the State Normal School in April, 1881, for four years. He merits and receives the respect and esteem of all with whom he comes in contact, and the love of his neighbors, for many good works and benevolent deeds. He married Miss Jane Hodson, of Livingston County, Ill., November 27, 1856, and they have had five children, of whom Harvey A. and Ella R. are living.

SAMUEL P. McCAW, farmer, Section 10, Township 18, P. O. Americus, was born in Chester District, S. C., March 24, 1833. When he was five months old, his parents removed to Preble County, Ohio, whence, after a residence of one year, they removed to Monroe County, Ind., where the subject of this sketch was raised on a farm, and remained with his father until 1856, when he went back to Ohio and remained two years with an older brother. In the spring of 1858 he came to Kansas, locating in Lyon County. In the spring of 1860, in connection with his brother, he purchased the saw-mill at Americus, and operated it until August, 1862, when he enlisted in Company E, Eleventh Regiment Kansas Volunteers. He participated in all the engagements in which his company took part. Was mustered out at Fort Riley, August 10, 1865, and returned to Americus, where he engaged in general merchandising, as a member of the firm of Kitts & McCaw, which continued in business about two years. They then sold out the business, and he engaged in farming, in which he has since continued. He has a farm of 170 acres on the Neosho, two miles west of Americus, upon which he has built a commodious brick dwelling, barn, granary and other farm buildings. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church of Americus. Has been a member of the Board of Education many years. He married Miss Angie Cornelia Clawson, of Lawrence, Kas., April 23, 1867, by whom he has had six children, of whom Annie M., George W. and Mary B., are living.

AARON MILLER, farmer, Section 9, Township 18, Range 11, P. O. Emporia, was born in Wayne County, Ind., November 16, 1825. When he was about six years of age his parents removed to St. Joseph County, Ind., near South Bend, where he was brought up upon a farm, receiving a common school education. In 1847 he removed to Berrien County, Mich., where he engaged in farming, remaining there two years; then removed to Delaware County Iowa, where he remained engaged in farming until the spring of 1857, when he came to Kansas, locating in Lyon County. He took a claim of 160 acres situated on the north bank of the Cottonwood, but soon after abandoned it and bought a claim adjoining, which he improved and farmed for thirteen years. In the fall of 1870 he sold this farm and bought a farm of 160 acres, situated on Allen Creek, three miles east of Americus. This farm he has since improved by the erection of a large dwelling house, barn and other farm buildings; planted an orchard of 275 apple trees and 100 peach trees, besides smaller fruits. His principal crops are corn and potatoes; also raises cattle and some hogs. He sold eighty acres of his farm in 1877, but still operates the other eighty. He married Miss Lavinia M. Roe, of St. Joseph County, Ind., November 16, 1847, by which marriage he has had eleven children, of whom George L., Elmer E., Effie E. and Martha A. are now living. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are members of the Christian Church. He has been a member of the township Board of Education six years and has held other local offices. He was enrolled in the State militia during the Rebellion, and was called out at the time of the Price raid and during an Indian alarm.

JOSEPH A. MILLER, farmer, Section 17, Township 18, Range 11, P. O. Americus, was born in Beaver, now Lawrence County, Pa., August 19, 1845, and the following spring his parents removed to Lee County, Iowa, where they remained upon a farm until they came to Kansas in June, 1858. They stopped on Eagle Creek, in Lyon County, until October of that year, when they located on Allen Creek, Americus Township, upon a farm of 120 acres, where the subject of this sketch remained until September, 1863, when he enlisted as a private in Company E, Eleventh Regiment Kansas Cavalry. He participated in all the engagements in which his company took part from that time until his discharge. He was mustered out at Fort Riley, September 1, 1865, and returned to Lyon County and engaged in farming. In the spring of 1866, in connection with his brother Albert, he bought a farm of 124 acres, situated on Allen Creek, three miles northeast of Americus, which they improved and operated until the spring of 1880, when they traded it, paying the difference of valuation for an improved farm of 240 acres, situated on Allen Creek, three and one-half miles southeast of Americus. They have since made additional improvements upon this farm, have over 200 acres fenced and over 100 acres under cultivation; have an orchard of 150 apple trees and 50 peach trees, besides smaller fruits. They raise cattle and hogs; their principal crop is corn. Mr. Miller is a member of the order of A., F. & A. M. He held the office of Trustee of Americus Township in 1882, being elected in a strong Republican township, though he is a Democrat. He married Miss Susan L. Grimsley, of Americus Township, December 25, 1866, by which marriage he has had four children, of whom William E., Jessie E. and Ross F. are living.

ELIAS MOORHEAD was born April 14, 1844, in Licking County, Ohio, and nine years later his parents removed to Marion County, Iowa, whence after a residence of four years, they came to Kansas, locating in Lyon County. In the spring of 1857, his father bought a claim of 160 acres, situated on the Neosho River, about five miles northwest of Emporia. Upon this farm the subject of this sketch remained until August, 1862, when he enlisted as a private in Company E, Eleventh Regiment, Kansas Volunteers. He participated in all the engagements in which his company took part, with the single exception of the battle at Lexington, Mo., being at that time unfit for duty, by reason of sickness. Was mustered out at Fort Riley, August 7, 1865. Returned to Lyon County, and engaged in farming, in which he continued until 1867, when he formed a partnership with Mr. N. Wise, and for two years operated a saw-mill at Americus. He then sold his interest to his partner, and for two years after was engaged in carpentering. He then engaged in house, carriage and sign painting at Americus, which business he has since followed. Mr. Moorhead has held the office of Constable of Americus Township five years, and is now serving his third term as Township Clerk, having been re-elected in February, 1883. He is a member of Americus Lodge, No. 109, A., F. & A. M. He married Miss Clara F. Wilkinson, April 25, 1872, and by this marriage has two children—George H. and Ina E.

JAMES O'BYRNE, farmer, Section 19, Township 17, Range 10, P. O. Dunlap, was born at Sandusky, Ohio, November 28, 1851. When he was seven years of age, his parents removed to Kansas, locating in Morris County, but they remained only about a year, then returned to Ohio and resided in Greene County about eight years. In the spring of 1867, they came back to Kansas, locating upon a farm of 160 acres, situated on Diamond Creek, in Morris County. After contending with the grasshoppers one year, a prairie fire the next, and other adverse circumstances, the third year he decided to remove to another locality. In 1870, he removed to Lyon County. Here the subject of our sketch resided, engaged in railroading and other pursuits, until 1876, when he bought a farm of eighty acres on Wright's Creek, in Americus Township, which he has improved by the erection of a fine residence, large barn and other farm buildings. His farm is bottom land, and very productive. His principal crop is corn. He is also engaged in feeding and in raising cattle and hogs. He married Miss Elizabeth J. Quinn, of Chicago, Ill., October 12, 1877, by whom he has one child, Mary. Mr. and Mrs. O'Byrne are members of the Catholic Church.

COL. JOHN W. PARRINGTON, farmer, Section 26, Township 17, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born at Great Falls, N. H., January 25, 1830. When he was two years of age his parents removed to Gorham, Me., where he remained until 1855. He was only six years old when his father died, and since he was eight years old he has been dependent upon himself alone. He was educated in Maine, graduating from Waterville College, now Colby University, class of 1855, with the degree of B. A. He then engaged in teaching in the boys' high school at Portland, Me., where he remained about one year. In the fall of 1856 he removed to Aurora, Ill., and for five years thereafter was principal of the West Aurora High School. During the next two years he was principal of the Geneva School in the same county. In August, 1863, he was appointed and commissioned by President Lincoln Captain of Company A, Fourth Regiment United States Colored Infantry, which regiment was raised in Maryland. He was stationed in Yorktown, Va., during the winter of 1863 and 1864, and in May, 1864, was assigned to the army operating against Richmond and Petersburg, forming part of the Colored Division of the Army Corps, and later part of the Twenty-fifth Army Corps. He participated in all the engagements in which his regiment took part until June 15, when he was wounded in an engagement before Petersburg. He was disabled from further service until October, 1864, when he was assigned to light duty at Harpers Ferry, Va., and detailed as Adjutant at camp distribution. He also served on court martial duty at that point. He reported to his regiment for duty December, 1864, joining his company on the north side of the James River. His regiment was in the expedition against Fort Fisher, N. C., under Gen. A. H. Terry. Upon their arrival at the Cape Fear River he was detailed with his company for skirmish duty, and was under fire from Saturday until the capture of the fort, Sunday. He took part in the capture of Wilmington, N. C., February 22, and was afterward stationed at northeast station for about two months. His regiment then marched to Raleigh, where he was stationed at the time Gen. Johnston's surrender. From there the regiment was ordered to Goldsboro', N. C., where Capt. Parrington was detailed upon the staff of Gen. Paine. From this point the regiment went to Newberne, N. C., where Capt. Parrington was detailed as Judge Advocate upon court martial duty most of the time until October, 1865, when the regiment was ordered to duty on the fortifications around Washington. Capt. Parrington had command of Fort Sumner, Maryland, from October to December. He was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in December, 1865, and ordered to the command of Fort Totten, Va., which position he held until May, 1866. He was mustered out of service May 4, 1866. He then returned to Aurora and completed law studies began previous to entering the army. Was admitted to the bar in January, 1867, by the Circuit Court of Kane County, Ill., and began the practice of law at Aurora. In 1868 he was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court and ex officio Recorder of Deeds of Kane County for four years. In 1872 he resumed the practice of his profession, which he continued until 1876. In the spring of 1877 he came to Kansas, locating in Americus Township, two and a half miles north of the village upon 160 acres of trust land which he had located in 1874. He has improved this farm by the erection of a dwelling house, barn and other farm buildings. Has an orchard of 1,150 apple trees, fifty peach trees and other smaller fruits, planted in 1876. He also has a farm of 160 acres, 110 of which are under cultivation, one and a half miles south of the home farm, which he purchased in 1875. Col. Parrington is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, also a member of Aurora Commandery, K. T. He married Miss Louisa M. McClellan, of Bristol, Ill., June 27, 1861, by which marriage he has had four children, of whom John M. and L. Vernon are living.

HON. ROBERT MITCHELL RUGGLES, deceased, was born at Canfield, Mahoning County, Ohio, August 28, 1833. He received an academic education, and in early life entered a printing office, working as a journeyman printer in several cities, North and South, including, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis. He was an able writer, and contributed to many leading papers of the country. He early commenced the study of law, attending a course of lectures at Poland, Ohio and at Cleveland. He graduated from the Ohio State and Union Law College, at Cleveland, July 2, 1858, with honors and a diploma, conferring the degree of Bachelor of Laws. On September 16, 1858, he was admitted to the practice of law by the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri, and for a year after practiced in St. Louis. With faith in the great opportunities and possibilities presented to the ambitious and intelligent early settler in Kansas, he came to the Territory in 1859, and in September of that year, he was admitted to practice by the United States District Court for the Territory of Kansas. He resided for a time at Americus, and in addition to his law practice, edited the Americus Sentinel. Soon after the location of the county seat at Emporia, he removed to that town, and at once became prominent in his profession. He was appointed Judge of the Fifth Judicial District in 1862, to fill a vacancy in that office. The duties of this position he discharged with such ability and sound judgment, that at the ensuing election he was elected for a four years term, running as an independent candidate, and defeating the regular Republican nominee. In politics he was a Democrat, but was never a mere partisan, and his election in a strong Republican District, in the most exciting days of partisanship, was a proof of his high reputation as an honest and upright Judge. On leaving the bench Judge Ruggles resumed the active practice of his profession, forming a partnership with Col. P. B. Plumb, now United States Senator. The success of this firm was remarkable, and was probably not exceeded by any law firm in the State. Col. Plumb retired from the firm in 1872, after which time Judge Ruggles was the senior partner in the various law firms of Ruggles & Sterry, and Ruggles, Scott & Lynn. He was a member of Emporia Lodge of A., F. & A. M., of which he was for several years master. In the various relations in life, as father, husband, neighbor, friend, citizen, lawyer and jurist, he had few equals, and many in the county, in which he so long resided, can testify to his noble deeds, and many acts of kindness and charity. May 22, 1864, he married Miss Susanna L. Spencer, of Emporia. They had two children—William S., born May 4, 1867; and Robert M., Jr., February 9, 1871. Judge Ruggles died April 24, 1879, from the effects of injuries received by being thrown from his carriage. Resolutions of respect and sorrow were passed by the members of the bar before the District Courts of Lyon, Osage, Coffey, Chase, Morris and Marion counties. From resolutions passed by the Morris County bar we make the following extract, which well expresses the estimate placed upon the deceased by those who knew him best. "In the death of Judge Ruggles the bar of Kansas has lost one of its brightest lights, and one of its ablest and most distinguished leaders, whose great learning and legal skill and incomparable logic and reasoning powers commanded the attention and respect of all courts before which he practiced and all lawyers with whom he came in contact. In the discharge of his duties he was always faithful and true to his client and to his sense of right, and has left a record in Kansas jurisprudence, and the reported cases that have been tried before the Supreme Court of this State that will last as long as time itself, and will prove him a great and distinguished lawyer."

STORY L. SARGENT, real estate and insurance agent, was born, February 24, 1837, at New London, N. H., where he received a common school education, finishing at the New London Academy. When about seventeen years of age he removed to Stoneham, Mass., where for the next four years he was engaged in boot and shoe manufacturing. In 1858, he enlisted in the United States Army, and was sent to Utah to put down the Mormons. In 1860, marched from Salt Lake City to Santa Fe, New Mexico, and in August of that year, he was discharged from the army, but remained in New Mexico, employed in the United States Quarter-master's Department. In 1863, he came to Kansas, locating at Council Grove, Morris County, where he engaged in farming. In 1869, he removed to Lyon County, and bought 177 acres of reserve and trust land, situated on Wright's Creek, in Americus Township, which he has improved by the erection of a dwelling house, nice, large barn, and other farm buildings, planted an orchard of 500 peach and 200 apple trees, besides other fruits. In 1879 he started in the real estate and insurance business. He is also Notary Public. Has an office at Dunlap, Morris County, and still continues to operate his farm. Principal crop raised is corn. He also raises cattle and hogs. He married Miss Mary M. Sowers, of Americus Township, February 27, 1865, by whom he has six children—Colby A., Curtis H., Eddie, Robert M., John G. and Frank P.—all living.

AUSTIN J. SAX, M. D., was born in Gilboa, N. Y., February 20, 1849. Was educated in the public schools of New York. In 1866, he removed to McHenry County, Ill., where he was engaged in farming one year, then removed to Wilmot, Kenosha Co., Wis. The first three years of his residence here he was engaged in farming; he then taught in the schools of Kenosha County, two years. In 1872, he went into business as a general merchant, at Wilmot, which he continued only about a year. He then engaged in bookkeeping in Chicago, for a year, and in the spring of 1874, came to Kansas, located in Americus Township, about four miles northwest of town, and took a claim of 160 acres which he yet holds. For five years, he was engaged in farming in summer, and teaching in the county schools in winter. The next year, he was principal of the Americus schools. In 1876, he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. T. Arthur Wright, at Americus, and in June, 1882, graduated from the Eclectic Medical Institute of Cincinnati, Ohio, and commenced the practice of medicine at Safford, Chase County, where he remained until November, 1883, when he removed to Americus and engaged in practice. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and a member of Buckeye Lodge No. 3036 K. of H. Married Miss Emma R. Holt, of Americus, May 31, 1882.

THOMAS H. STANLEY, farmer, Section 8, Township 18, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, November 20, 1818. He attended the public schools of his native county, and later the Mount Pleasant (Ohio) Friends' College. When twenty-two years of age he married and settled at Mount Pleasant, where he engaged in carpentering until March, 1842, when he came to the eastern part of Kansas as missionary to the Shawnee Indians, under the auspices of the Society of Friends. He remained among the Indians in Kansas, with headquarters about eight miles south of the Missouri River and four miles west of the Missouri boundary line, until August, 1845, when he returned to Mount Pleasant. In the spring of 1847, he returned to Salem, Iowa, and engaged in carpentering. A year later he entered a claim of eighty acres, near Salem, which he farmed until the fall of 1857. In 1852 he visited the Kaw Indians at Council Grove, with a view of elevating their temporal, moral, and spiritual condition, and after council with them, he applied to the Indian Department for permission to locate upon or near their reservation. This object was not fully effected until the spring of 1857, after the lands had been open to pre-emption and settlement. He that spring attended the yearly meeting of the Friends of New York and New England, and, encouraged by this body, applied for and received from the Department of the Interior, permission to locate near the reservation and to labor among them. In the fall of 1857 he came to Kansas, pre-empting a claim of 160 acres on the Neosho River, one mile south of the Kaw Reservation, and about four miles west of the present site of Americus. This land was paid for and presented to him by the Friends' Society of New York. Mr. Stanley continued to labor among the Kaws until their removal to the Indian Territory in 1873, at the same time cultivating and improving his farm. He has added, by purchase, 160 acres near the home farm, has built a large stone dwelling, commodious barn, and other farm buildings. He has an orchard of about 1,200 peach trees, 300 apple trees, and many of smaller fruit. His principal crop is corn. He raises some cattle and hogs. Since the removal of the Kaws, Mr. Stanley has spent two winters with them in the Indian Territory, and visits them, on an average, once a year. He has also visited among the Osages, the Modocs, and the Absentee Shawnees. He recently met among the Absentee Shawnees some who had been his scholars thirty-seven years ago, when he first came among them as a missionary. His labors with these tribes have of late years been largely at his own expense, and his devotion to the cause of the down-trodden red men has always been appreciated by them, and been blessed by good results. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley and family are members of the Society of Friends, in which he has been an elder about twenty years. He has held the office of County Commissioner of Lyon County three years, and has held minor local offices. He married Miss Mary Wilson, of Mount Pleasant, Ohio, September 29, 1840, by whom he has seven children—William F., Hannah W., Daniel W., John, Jane, Sarah, and Thomas Wistar—all living.

JOHN S. STEADMAN, farmer, Section 17, Township 17, Range 11, P. O. Americus, was born in Guernsey County, Ohio, October 11, 1836. His father, Rev. Samuel Steadman, was an itinerant preacher of the Church of United Brethren. The subject of this sketch removed, when sixteen years old, to Bureau County, Ill., where he remained, engaged in farming, until after his marriage. In 1859 he removed to Green County, Wis., where he engaged in farming until December, 1861, when he enlisted as a private in Company H, Eighteenth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteers. The regiment was assigned to the division of General Prentiss, in the Army of the Tennessee. Mr. Steadman participated in all the engagements in which his company took part, including Pittsburgh Landing, the Capture of Corinth, the Defense of Corinth, and Iuka. He was discharged for disability in the fall of 1863, and returned to Wisconsin. Soon regaining his health, he enlisted in December, 1863, as a Sergeant in Company K, Sixteenth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteers, Colonel Cassius M. Fairchild. The Sixteenth Regiment was in the Seventeenth Corps, Army of the Tennessee, and participated in the battles of Kenesaw Mountain, Peach Tree Creek, the siege of Atlanta, Jonesboro, Snake Creek Gap and others. Mr. Steadman was promoted to Second Lieutenant of his company, January 2, 1865. He was afterwards in the great march to the sea with Sherman, participating in several battles and skirmishes. He then followed Sherman through the Carolinas to Washington, and was present at the great review at the National Capital in June, 1865. He was mustered out in July, 1865, at Madison, Wis., and returned to Green County. In the fall of 1865 he removed to Cass County, Iowa, where he remained a year, then located in Page County, buying a farm of twenty acres near College Springs, which he operated about three years. In the spring of 1870 he came to Kansas, locating in Cloud County. He took a claim of 160 acres near Clyde, which he improved and operated until the spring of 1878, when he sold his farm and removed to Lyon County. He purchased a fine farm of eighty acres, situated on Allen Creek, five and a half miles northeast of Americus, which he has improved by the erection of a commodious dwelling house, barn and other farm buildings. His principal crop is corn. He also raises some cattle and hogs. Mr. Steadman is a member of the Methodist Protestant Church. He is also a member of Americus Lodge, No. 28, A. O. U. W. He married Miss Eleanor E. McDonald, of Whiteside County, Ill., April 25, 1858, by whom he has had seven children—Arthur F., Sarah E., Charles S., Marcus E., Leah E., Ellen G. and Jessie S., all living.

JOHN W. STENSON, farmer, Section 35, Township 17, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Nottingham, England, June 30, 1828. He came to the United States in May, 1848, locating in Canton, Ill., where he remained three years, then went to Chillicothe, Ill., where he remained seven years, engaged in farming. From there he went to Milan, De Kalb Co., Ill., where he engaged in farming. In 1875 he removed to Hinckley, Ill., and engaged in hotel business, operating the Hinckley House for about six months, then sold out and came to Kansas. Located in Americus Township, one mile north of Americus, where he purchased an improved farm of 160 acres, which he has further improved by the erection of a large dwelling, barn, crib and other farm buildings. His principal crop is corn. Raises cattle and hogs. Has ninety acres under cultivation on the home farm. In 1881 he purchased a small improved farm of seventeen acres near the town, which he rents. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Americus, of which he is a steward, and teacher of the Bible class. He married Miss Charlotte Pierce, of Canton, Ill., November 25, 1850. By this marriage he has had nine children, of whom Annie, Fannie, Ellen, Alfred L., Sarah L. and Charlotte are living. His first wife died in 1869, and he married, March 20, 1872, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pattison, of Illinois, by which marriage he has three children—Leroy O., Mabel E. and Alice Victoria, all living.

LEWIS W. SUTTON, proprietor of the Sutton House, was born August 3, 1849, in Ohio County, Ind., where he resided until February, 1865, when he enlisted as a private in Company H, One Hundred and Forty-sixth Regiment Indiana Volunteers. Was assigned to the Army of the Shenandoah, in which he served until disabled by sickness. He was mustered out of service at Hicks Hospital, Baltimore, Md., July, 1865, and returned to his native county, where he remained until the fall of 1868, when he came to Kansas. First located at Hartford, Lyon County, where he remained, engaged in farming, until the spring of 1870, when he removed to Americus and engaged in mercantile life. The firm of G. W. Sutton & Bro. continued for about two years, dealing in drugs and sundries. Mr. S. then engaged in the dairy business at Americus, in which he continued two years. He was then engaged for about a year in the grain business. In the fall of 1877 he bought the Goddard House at Americus, and under the name of the Sutton House, has since continued to operate it. It is the principal hotel in the town. He has also a livery stable in connection with the hotel. He also handles fat cattle and hogs quite extensively. Has about sixty head of cattle. He married Mrs. Hattie A. Wait, of Emporia, September 19, 1876, by which marriage he has had three children, none of them now living.

THOMAS H. WHITE, farmer, Section 17, Township 18, Range 11, P. O. Americus, was born in Huntington County, Pa., January 23, 1830, and a year later his parents removed to Bedford County, where he was raised upon a farm and remained until the fall of 1853. He then started West, and, after spending some months in Illinois and Iowa, came to Kansas. In May, 1855, he took a claim of 160 acres on the Neosho River, north of the present site of Emporia. He improved this claim and resided upon it four years, then sold it and bought an unimproved farm of 160 acres, situated three miles southeast of Americus, which he has improved by the erection of a commodious dwelling, large barn and other farm buildings. He has since added by purchase 160 acres situated on Allen Creek near the home farm. He has all his lands under fence and eighty acres under cultivation. His principal crop is corn. He also raises cattle and hogs, keeping on an average 100 head of cattle and seventy-five hogs. He purchased in 1881 and 1882 a cattle range of 600 acres in Chase County, which he has improved and fenced. During the Rebellion Mr. White was enrolled in the State militia, and called into service at the time of the Price raid and during the several Indian raids and alarms. Mr. White is one of the oldest settlers in the county, and has been out of the county to remain over night not to exceed half a dozen times since 1855. He is a member of Americus Lodge No. 109, A., F. & A. M. He married Miss Louisa Grimsley, of Americus Township, June 20, 1857, and by this marriage has nine children, Mary, George, William G., John S., Edwin, Perry M., Annie E., Susan and Thomas H., all living.

LAFAYETTE A. WOOD, farmer, Section 3, Township 18, Range 10, P. O. Americus, was born in Oswego County, N. Y., March 24, 1834. He received a common school education in his native county, where he resided until 1852, when he removed to Clayton, Jefferson County, N. Y., and learned the trade of carriage making. In 1856 he began business for himself at Clayton, continuing until August, 1864, when he enlisted as a private in Company K, Tenth New York Heavy artillery. He participated in the battle of Fisher's Hill, under Gen. Sheridan October 18, 1864, and was soon after transferred to the army in front to Petersburg, and participated in several engagements under Gen. Ord. His regiment was among the first to enter Petersburg at its capture and he remained on duty around Petersburg until he was mustered out in July, 1865. He then returned to Clayton and resumed his carriage making business, which he continued until 1869, when he disposed of it and came to Kansas. He located in Americus, in Lyon County, and engaged in blacksmithing and dairying, in which he continued until the fall of 1879. He then rented his shop, purchased an improved farm of 230 acres and engaged in farming and stock raising, in which he has since continued. His principal crop is corn but he also raises some oats. He has held the office of County Commissioner of Lyon County four years, and has been a member of the School Board of Americus Township. He is a member of Americus Lodge No. 109, A., F. & A. M. He married Miss Harriet A. Babcock, of Clayton, N. Y., September 14, 1855 by which marriage he has had seven children, of whom Emma J., Adelbert D., Nellie M., Frank F., and Flora M. are living.

T. ARTHUR WRIGHT, M. D., was born in Kemptville, Province of Ontario, Canada, May 12, 1841. He was educated in the public schools of Canada, and in the fall of 1858 graduated from the University of Queen's College, at Kingston. Cotton, of Sparland, Ill., May 18, 1862, and by this marriage has had si children, of whom Sarah E., Frances A., and Catherine I. are living.

HARTFORD.

Hartford is located in the beautiful valley of the Neosho, sixty miles (air line) south of Topeka, and sixteen miles southeast of Emporia, on the Missouri Pacific Railway. Surrounded by large, well-cultivated farms and stock ranges, with its favorable location, and natural advantages, it has during the past few years grown from a slumbering hamlet to a live business town, with a population of five hundred inhabitants.

EARLY HISTORY.

In the spring of 1858, a town association was organized, and composed of H. D. Rice and A. K. Hawkes, of Hartford, Conn.; H. W. Martin, E. Quiett, and others. The town site, which was called by its present appellation was named at the instance of Messrs. Rice and Hawkes, after their native place. In the fall of 1858, the site, of 320 acres, was laid off by Judge Graham and D. P. Bond. One-half of the original town site has since been vacated, leaving it—180 acres—its present size. The first building put upon the town site was a log structure 14x16 feet, which stood on Commercial street, nearly opposite of the Palace Hotel. This building was used as a store, which was kept by C. P. Bassett. The next building was a two-story frame house, erected by Mr. Longley, and used as a dwelling and lodging house. The building which stood in the northeast part of town, remained intact, until 1870, when it was torn down. During the spring and summer of 1859, dwellings were erected by Messrs. Bond, Hunt, Sears, and Robinson.

In the fall of 1859, occurred the death of —— Sears, whose was the first in the little settlement of pioneers. Mr. Longley, who as a member of the town company, erected the second building in town, afterwards went to Lawrence, and was one of the victims of Quantrell's Raid, in 1863. The first marriage was probably that of W. M. McGinnis and Francis Hunt, who were married November 7, 1860, by Rev. I. Harris, a minister of the Baptist persuasion.

The postoffice was established in 1859, and A. K. Hawkes appointed Postmaster. He was succeeded in the order mentioned, by E. B. Bassett, W. K. Norbary, S. M. Morgan, S. G. Britten, G. W. Sutton, and T. Campbell, the present incumbent. It was made a money order office, July 2, 1877, and now does an annual business of $15,000.

The first school was taught by Mrs. A. K. Hawkes, at her house, in 1860. About this time it was decided by the Methodist Episcopal Conference, that a branch of the Baker University, should be located at this point. The citizens agreed to donate aid in the shape of funds and land, and work was commenced on the building, which was a two-story, stone structure, 32x46 feet. After an expenditure of several thousand dollars, the building was partially completed in 1862. In connection with the District School, several terms were taught, after which the "Collegiate Institute" became defunct. The building was then used by the District school, until 1877, when a two-story frame building was erected at a cost of $2,000, T. A. Rogan, being the first teacher.

In 1859, E. Quiett commenced to build a frame saw and "corn mill," a few rods above the present grist mills. It was completed in 1861, by J. H. Hunt, who sold his interest to W. K. Norbary, who operated it for about seven years.

Benjamin N. Hunt, of Hartford, relates an incident illustrating the fears and groundless alarms to which the early settlers were frequently subjected. In May, 1861, the rumor prevailed in the settlement adjacent to Hartford that the Indians would, upon a certain day, make a descent upon them and wipe them all out of existance. Upon the day set for this bloody massacre, Mr. Hunt was ploughing in a field, about half a mile from his house. His wife was left at home with her child and young woman "help." The latter saw some Indians approaching with guns, and, hastily picking up the child, ran screaming to the nearest neighbors. Reinforced by them she ran on to the next, until all the neighbors were aroused to the threatened danger. In the mean time, Mrs. Hunt carried the alarm to her husband, who mounted a horse and rode hastily to town. All the men gathered up their guns and started out to reconnoitre the situation. They soon met some of the Indians in the woods, and as they showed no hostile intent, they were allowed to approach. Without a suspicion that they were the game being hunted, the red men inquired, innocently, "Have you killed anything?" It proved to be merely a hunting party, but the alarm spread as far as Ottumwa, in Coffey County, and men from all directions were before night hastening with what arms they possessed to the aid of the supposed threatened settlement.

CHURCHES, SOCIETIES, ETC.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—Regular services were held at Hartford in 1860, by Rev. J. P. McElfresh, and in 1861 a class was organized by him. Services were held some time at the house of E. Quiett. In 1863, the lower story of the Institute Building was used until 1866, when the upper story was and is used at present. The following pastors have had charge of the organization up to the present time (December, 1882): Revs. J. H. Hawley, two years; M. Robinson, two years; G. L. Williams, one year; J. He married Miss Amanda J. Rogan, of Washington County, Tennessee, November 1, 1866, and they have had seven children, of whom five are now living.

NEOSHO RAPIDS.

The village of Neosho Rapids, so called by reason of its close proximity to the Neosho River, is located in the beautiful valley of that stream, twelve miles southeast of Emporia, and fifty-four miles (air line) from Topeka.

EARLY HISTORY.

Tradition states that a town site, known as Italia, was laid off where Neosho Rapids now stands, by F. R. Page, H. S. Sleeper, and G. J. Tallman, in 1855. It is needless to remark that no improvements were made at that early period. Its Italian appellation was soon after changed to Florence. In 1857 Messrs. Page, Sleeper and Tallman caused a new town site of 320 acres to be laid off, and known as Neosho Rapids. One of the first buildings erected on the town site was a two-story frame, 30x40 feet, which was built by F. R. Page and Mrs. Allen. The building was occupied as a hotel, and was completed in 1858. In this hotel were also held the first religious services in the place by Rev. Rice.

One of those uncalled for events that very frequently occur in a newly settled country, and for which, in many cases, no redress can be obtained, was the death of Mrs. Sarah Carver, in August or September, 1856. At the time of her death Mrs. Carver was only seventeen years of age, and a bride of but one year. At this time the neighborhood, with but few exceptions, was composed of the Pro-slavery element. Late in the evening of the day of the tragedy, a party of ten or twelve men, supposed to be Free-state men from Topeka, arrived at the house of C. Carver, one and one-half miles west of where Neosho Rapids now stands, and demanded admittance. Mr. Carver and his wife having retired, Mr. Carver refused to let them in, and they commenced breaking the door down. Carver then got down his somewhat disused rifle, and, while loading it, one of the outside party thrust his revolver through one of the numerous cracks between the logs, and fired twice, both shots taking effect in the body of Mrs. Carver, who was still in bed. The shots were fatal, and her death occurred the next day. After firing the shots, the door was broken in, and the ruffians ordered Carver out, but seeing they had already gone too far, their main object being plunder, they left without further violence, and went to the house of Dr. Gregg, three-fourths of a mile distant, and told him to attend to the woman they had shot. During his absence the party ransacked the house, and from there went to the house of J. Connell, five miles east of Emporia, and stole nine head of horses. In anticipation of this raid many of the settlers had secreted their valuables, and it is said of one John Pierce, that he buried $1,000 in gold, and after the excitement could not remember where he had buried it, consequently did not recover it. After leaving Connell's they went to Mr. Simcocks, at Columbia, one and one-half miles southeast of Emporia. After leaving there the party came towards Emporia, and passed north. The next day they robbed the store of C. H. Whittington, at Allen postoffice, and are said to have taken $3,000 worth of goods. Leaving Allen, they passed north, and were seen no more in the country.

In 1859, P. Harvey commenced the erection of frame saw and grist mill, which was completed in 1860. Its dimensions were 40x40 feet, four stories high, and was propelled by water-power. For a number of years it was operated by Harvey as a saw-mill. In 1865, a steam engine was put in use, and an addition, 25x40, built, under the firm name of Harvey & Barber. In April, 1868, J. L. Simmons purchased Barber's interest, and in May, A. Robberts bought out Harvey. In 1872, another member was added to the firm. In 1875, the firm name was known as Robberts & Jones. Steam power was used until 1867, when a stone dam was built across the Neosho at a cost of $3,000. At present it is owned and operated by Messrs. Robberts & Jones. Has three-run of buhrs, with a capacity of 150 bushels of wheat, 150 bushels of corn and 4,000 feet per day.

The school facilities of Neosho Rapids are good. The present schoolhouse, a two-story stone structure, 25x40 feet (about) being erected in 1871. Employs two teachers.

The Free Methodist Church was organized in February, 1876, by Rev. G. W. Smith. A frame edifice, 38x50, was erected in 1877, at a cost of $1,500. Rev. Smith remained eighteen months, and was succeeded by Rev. Jno. Garrett, one year; O. Limback, one year; L. C. Eby and B. S. Smalley, one year; S. V. Green, one year, and Rev. E. Leonardson, present pastor, from September, 1882. Present membership, 14.

Protestant Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in 1876 by Rev. J. L. Wilkins, with twelve members. Rev. Wilkins remained eighteen months, and was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Annis, two years; M. P. Grant, one year; J. L. Fordney, six months. The organization occupies the old Free Will Baptist Church, said to have been built in 1860. Present membership, 10.

Neosho Rapids Lodge, No. 2,555, K. of H., was instituted under dispensation September 14, 1818. A charter was granted November 4, 1882, with about twenty-five members. Its present officers are: J. E. McLeod, D.; F. C. Brown, V. D.; H. H. White, A. D.; W. F. Hancock, R.; W. H. McMullen, F. R.; J. Jacob, Jr., T.; F. L. Grove, G.; Wm. M. Nelson, Grd.; A. O. Stevenson, Chap.; S. Jacob, S. Regular meetings held in hall first and third Saturday evenings of each month.

Although Neosho Rapids is two miles from the nearest railroad, it is on the line of the projected K. C. & E. road, which will be built through the place during the summer of 1883. A larger increase to its general business is expected.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—JACKSON TOWNSHIP.

WILLIAM S. COOK, farmer, Section 25, Township 19, Range 12, P. O. Neosho Rapids, was born December 25, 1839, near Springfield, Ohio. His parents dying when he was twelve years old he went to Lewis County, N. Y., where he was raised upon a farm. Before attaining his majority he began teaching school, and taught for eight years in Indiana and Illinois. In 1875 he came to Kansas and pre-empted 160 acres of land situated on the south of the Cottonwood, three miles northwest of Neosho Rapids. He has since purchased additional land and has now 287 acres in his farm, which is well improved. His buildings are much better than the average of farm buildings in the State, his fine large barn being particularly worthy of note. Mr. Cook is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, also a member of Chicago Mound Grange, No. 482, P. of H. He married Miss Margaret E. Pittman, of Parke County, Ind., April 14, 1861, by which marriage he has had nine children, of whom Ida A., Emma A., William O., Margaret and Charles Sumner are now living.
